TO REPEAL CLAUSE

U. S. Congress Likely to Cancel Rebate to American Ships

TREATY NATIONS KICKED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—If the consent of Representative Underwood and other House leaders can be secured to-day a joint resolution will be passed through Congress within a few days repealing that portion of the new tariff law authorizing a 5 per cent. tariff rebate on goods brought to this country in American-owned ships.

The decision to ask for the repeal of the clause was reached by administration officials yesterday after experts of the State and Treasury Departments had decided that to carry out its exact terms would mean a reduction of 5 per cent. in tariff on goods from practically all the chief exporting countries except Brazil, France and Russia. After a conference with President Wilson, in which the latter gave his endorsement to the plan, Solicitor Joseph W. Folk, of the State Department, took up with the Congressional leaders last night the plan to have the objectionable clause eliminated from the tariff law.

Senator Simmons, chairman of the Senate finance committee, gave assurance that the Senate undoubtedly would agree to a repeal of the entire clause, as it had originally rejected it. An attempt was made to reach Representative Underwood over the long-distance telephone, but Mr. Folk could not locate him in Atlantic City, where he had gone for a short vacation. It is expected that Mr. Underwood will be consulted to-day and that House leaders will accept the decision of the administration that the provision should be taken out of the new law.

Foreign countries, including Germany, France, and Spain, which claim they would be severely discriminated against by the shipping clause, have made strong protests to the State Department, and it is realized that retaliatory measures probably will be adopted by several countries if the 5 per cent. clause is administered, as the State Department believes it must be.

HYDRO RADIAL PLANS.

Commission Gives Estimate For Toronto Suburban System.

TORONTO, Oct. 9.—But four months ago the proposition to build a Hydro-electric Railway to Whitby and Port Perry was conceived; yesterday the Hydro-electric Commission submitted plans and estimates to the promoters, who unanimously adopted them, and immediately set about preparing ways and means for getting the people affected by the line to make final acceptance of the project and the apportionment of cost among the townships and municipalities which are to be benefited by the line's construction.

One hundred mayors, reeves and councillors of the various rural and urban areas in the counties of York and Ontario attended at the City Hall yesterday to hear Hon. Adam Beck read the report they had been waiting for during the past two months.

The general scheme embracing the Toronto, Markham, Uxbridge, Port Perry and Whitby areas would have a mileage of seventy-one, representing a capital cost of $2,,470,776. The mileage is made up of sixteen miles of line between Toronto and Markham and Port Perry and seven miles between Brooklin, a point on the Markham-Port Perry section, to Whitby. Estimating the operating expenses at $396,660, with a revenue of $450,500, there would be a surplus over operating expenses of $53,840.

The engineers have figured out the total cost of construction and equipment at $41,300 per mile, or $2,932,276 for the whole scheme, or $2,470,000 deducting the Government subsidy.

TO SUPPRESS DISORDERS.

Government Will Not Waver In Home Rule Plans Says Churchill.

DUNDEE, Scotland, Oct. 9.—Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, addressing his constituents last night, reaffirmed that nothing would deter the Government from carrying through the Home Rule bill as planned and doing its duty in upholding the law suppressing disorders, by whomsoever fomented.

Mr. Churchill, whose speech was keenly anticipated as a declaration of the Government's policy, added that in the natural course of events a general election would occur before any legislation could be passed by the Irish Parliament, and, in the event of the transference of power it would be open to the opponents of the bill to repeal it. That was their only constitutional remedy so long as they opposed settlement by agreement.

In the latter part of his speech Mr. Churchill made what is regarded as an overture to Ulster. He said:

"The claim of Northeast Ulster for special consideration is a claim which, if advanced with sincerity and not as a wrecking manoeuvre, cannot be ignored without full consideration by any Government dependent upon the present House of Commons."

EMPIRE IS NOT IN DANGER

ORMSTOWN, Que., Oct. 9.—In this section of Chateauguay county, where the Conservatives have been making their most strenuous efforts, a tremendous success was scored yesterday afternoon at the great public meeting which was addressed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Hon. Chas. Marcil, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Mr. R. L. Calder, and the Liberal candidate, Hon. Sydney Fisher. Ringing speeches, full of fight and campaign fire, aroused the audience to a great pitch of enthusiasm, and the building rang again and again with their cheers.

Speaking of the Conservative record of work since 1911, Sir Wilfrid said: "What have they done? They have been dabbling in what they call imperial affairs. They have forgotten Canadian interests. The Empire is not in danger. It does not require the assistance of anybody. Mr. Borden says: 'Save the Empire.' I say to Mr. Borden: 'Leave the Empire to Mr. Asquith, and attend to our own affairs at home'."

Sir Wilfrid cited a compilation on the cost of living issued by the British Board of Trade, which showed that while it had increased in the British Isles seven per cent. it had increased in Canada fifty-one per cent. On the other hand, he showed them a surplus of fifty million dollars in the Dominion Treasury. The Government he said should not take from the pockets of the people so much money when the cost of living was so high.

"For this money does come from your pockets. Surpluses do not come from heaven. The Government has no magic hand. I say on behalf of Mr. Fisher and the Liberal party this state of things must not last. We must revise the tariff."

Referring to the navy, Sir Wilfrid declared that there was no emergency. The British navy collected in home waters when Mr. Bordon brought in his emergency bill had scattered to the ends of the Empire. This, he said, showed how little of an emergency there was.

Hon. Sydney Fisher, in his speech, told the farmers in the audience what improvements on their farms could be traced to his own influence and work as Minister of Agriculture.

STRIKERS STARVING.

Dublin Labor Deadlock Produces Terrible Results.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Dublin is being ruined by the continuance of the transport war, which is now in its fifth week. The plight of the poorer section of the population is dreadful, one hundred thousand men, women and children, or one-third of the city's whole population, being on the verge of starvation. Rain fell heavily in the city Tuesday, intensifying the misery of the strikers and their wives and children huddling together for warmth. A crowd of girls and boys lined up at the Liberty Hall headquarters of the Irish Transport Union to receive a dole of soup and bread, and then sat down on the nearest doorsteps to nourish their wasted bodies.

The food which has come in the relief ships is the only thing which has kept many families from actual death by starvation, and any cessation of these supplies would be followed by indescribable misery. As it is, strangers are dogged by child beggars, who implore the price of a meal without hesitation and without relaxation.

Aged Lady Drowned.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 9.—Lying in the shallow water at the edge of the old Welland Canal, Mrs. Robert Loosemore, a widow, aged 73 years, was found drowned yesterday morning one hour after she had left home. It had been suffering from melancholia. She is survived by a grown up family of five sons and four daughters.

PRISON FARM HELD BACK.

Brant County Delegates Will Seek a Committee of Inquiry.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 9.—The attitude of the delegates from Brant County, declaring to vote in favor of an industrial farm, because of the fact that they did not wish to bind themselves to the county council blocked progress at the meeting held here yesterday of the representatives of the six counties, Waterloo, Brant Elgin, Perth, Norfolk and Oxford.

After Dr. R. W. Bruce Smith had spoken and outlined the need for such a farm and the system in use in Fort William, a vote was taken. The resolution was to the effect that the delegates report back to their councils, recommending the adoption of the industrial farm scheme and advising the appointment of two delegates from each council to secure further information.

Prince Ernest Rejoins Wife.

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Prince Ernest August of Cumberland returned here yesterday and rejoined his wife, the Princess Victoria Louise, who has been staying with the empress, her mother, while recovering from her recent indisposition. The reunion of the prince and princess is regarded here as a definite sign that the recent trouble over the succession to the throne of the Duchy of Brunswick was rather a controversy between the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, and his advisers, than between the Hohenzollern and the Guelph families.

Hangs Himself on Shipboard.

HAVRE, Oct. 9.—During the voyage of the steamship France, which arrived here yesterday, an Italian emigrant, Baptiste Gai, who had been deported from New York, was seized with a violent attack of homicidal mania and attempted to kill his wife. He then hanged himself. The woman was only slightly injured. The man was buried at sea.

Toronto Brigade Second.

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.—The results of the field artillery competitions of the Canadian Artillery Association are announced. In the brigade competition for the Shaughnessy cup the sixth brigade of Montreal was first with a score of 1998; the second brigade of Toronto second, score 1,749 and the eighth brigade of Ottawa third, score 1,722.

Samuel In Montreal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 9.—Rt. Hon Herbert L. Samuel, British Postmaster-General, arrived in Montreal shortly before midnight and will remain here for several days, attending a banquet this evening and speaking at the Canadian Club to-morrow. Several luncheons and receptions have been arranged in his honor during his stay here.

"BOBBIES" ESCAPED

RIGHT THROUGH BUILDING

WINDSOR, Oct. 9.—While running at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, a Grand Trunk westbound freight train ran into an open switch in the Walkerville yards at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, crashed head-on into a Wabash yard engine with a long train of cars, and pushed several of the cars right through the middle of the Walkerville police station. Both engines, several of the cars, and the police station were badly smashed, but no one was injured. Chief of Police Griffith and F. E. Evans, who were standing in a station room at the time, had narrow escapes.

The freight, in charge of Conductor Sheehy of Windsor, and drawn by Grand Trunk engine No. 1,282, Engineer Nelligan, came around the curve at a rapid rate in order to make a nearby grade. When it was too late Nelligan and his fireman saw the switch set against them and jumped.

Wabash yard engine, No. 117, Engineer Howe, had just entered the siding to haul out several freight cars. The impact of the collision splintered several of the cars and knocked others back through the brick wall of the police station at the far end of the switch.

The extension to the station, which had just been finished, is in ruins. The yard engine was almost completely wrecked, and the pilot of the mogul freight engine was carried away.

WORST IS NOW OVER.

Nome Citizens Set To Work To Rebuild Their Homes.

NOME, Alaska, Oct. 9.—Though the waves are still high and the wind is blowing about thirty miles an hour, fears of further destruction from fire or storm are over and the work of repair and of helping the hundreds of needy is under way.

Plenty of Venison.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Reports to the Federal Bureau of Education from Nome say there is no danger of famine there because of the recent tidal storm. Reindeer representing 750 tons of meat are within driving distance of the stricken city.

SLAIN BY REBELS.

Federal Officers and 125 Soldiers Are Executed in Mexico.

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 9.—Federal General Alvarez and his staff and 125 Federal soldiers were executed Tuesday in Torreaon, Mexico, under order of Gen. Francisco Villa of the Constitutionalist forces, according to information from reliable sources brought here yesterday. With the city of Torreaon the rebels captured practically all of the Federal arms and artillery. The battle lasted four days with heavy losses to both sides.

To Exterminate Rats.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 9.—A bubonic plague-infected rat was killed on the waterfront here several days ago, the first in years; and the health department immediately spread poison in the neighborhood and took other steps to exterminate rats. For many years Seattle has paid a bounty of ten cents on each dead rat brought to the health department, and has employed rat catchers besides. The danger of plague always is present because rats jump overboard from oriental boats and swim ashore, sometimes a mile.

To Eradicate Scourge.

EDMONTON, Oct. 9.—The Alberta Legislature yesterday afternoon passed a resolution authorizing the Government to memorialize the Federal Minister of Agriculture to take steps towards the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle.

"There have been many complaints," said Hon. Duncan Marshall, in presenting the resolution, "and up to the present no action has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease further than supplying the farmers who make requests with tuberculin."

Killed By Train.

UTICA, N.Y., Oct. 9.—Dr. C. F. Wood, president of the village of West Winfield, and H. D. Wheeler, a prominent resident of that place, were last night killed by a Delaware, Lackawana and Western train at Clayville. They were in Dr. Wood's automobile and going home from this city when they drove in front of a milk train. The machine was demolished and both men were instantly killed.

Convicted of Arson.

KINGSTON, Oct. 9.—Frederick Gabriel and Alex. C. Maws, former members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons Toronto, were found guilty of arson by a jury at the fall assizes yesterday afternoon. The particular crime related to caused the fire at the riding stables of the Royal Military College, on June 10. Mr. Justice Britton remanded the prisoners until to-day for sentence.

Labor Federation Assembles.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 9.—Delegates from points east as far as Glace Bay, N.S., and west to Toronto were present at the fifth annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Labor which opened in Brockville yesterday.

WANTS PROMPT ACTION.

Hon. Mr. Hazen to Jog Uncle Sam About Fisheries Treaty.

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.—Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, will go to Washington about the end of the present month to take up with President Wilson and other members of the United States Government the long-vexed question of the international fisheries treaty between Canada and the United States, which has been hanging fire for the past three years. Mr. Hazen will endeavor to procure some decisive action by the United States on the question, so that if possible the treaty may go into force for the present fishing season. If such action cannot be obtained, then Canada will withdraw from the treaty, and consider legislation for the conservation of the fish in the boundary waters.

Mr. Hazen will urge that the provisions of the treaty, as prepared in 1910 by the joint commission consisting of David Starr Jordan and Prof. Prince, and accepted by Canada, be also concurred in by the United States, so that the treaty may go into force at once.

The ratification of the treaty by the United States has been opposed by the representatives of special interests in the Senate from Michigan and other states. Now that the United States Government has disposed of the tariff bill it is expected that it will have time to turn its attention to this important matter.

Dr. Kennedy Dead.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9.—Dr. G. H. Kennedy, one of the most distinguished members of the medical profession in western Canada, surgeon captain in the R.N.W.M.P. and the official doctor of the C. P. R. for many years, died in the General Hospital yesterday morning.

Dr. Kennedy was born at Dundas, Ont., in 1857 and came to the northwest in 1878. In 1883 he married Miss Alice Maude Allen, who survives him. One son and one daughter also survive. The son, Dr. A. Kennedy, lives in Macleod, Alta., and the daughter, Mrs. Ward, resides in British Columbia.

"THE MEDIATOR"

By ROY NORTON

"Hello, Jerry," he called through it, and the agent came toward him with a familiar grin. "Jerry," he said, "I'm in a heap of trouble. Jack and me's goin' to a place called Keswick, in California. How much do the tickets cost?"

"One ticket, thirty-five plunks. Two tickets, seventy."

"But say, where will they let Jack ride?" demanded the Mediator. "In the express car?"

"Why, what in the deuce is Jack, anyhow?" demanded Jerry, staring at the Mediator, as if thinking him mad.

At that moment, they heard the clatter of small hoofs, and Jack's head appeared in the door, smiling at his master as if to say, "Found you, did I?" Then, being wise as to the size of packs, he halted, knowing that his burden could not clear the space.

"That's him," explained Lish, jerking his thumb toward the door.

The station agent, being an unfeeling man, doubled over and laughed, then, observing that Henley was very earnest, quoted the rules.

"Can't take him unless you ship him as express and crate him," he said.

"Crate him? Crate Jack? So he couldnt move around and rest hi self? Not by a danged sight!" emphatically protested the Mediator.

"That's the rule," insisted Jerry. "No other way unless you hire a freight car, or hood it."

"And can I ride with him in the freight car?" demanded Lish, hopefully.

"Sure you can, if you pay your fare."

"Then give me the car."

"But, say, Lish! That's pretty expensive. Why don't you sell the burro, or give him away."

"Why don't you sell your mother, or your brother?" demanded the Mediator. "Who asked you about expense, Jerry? Lord, man, that ain't no common donkey. He's my friend, that feler is! Me and him's been together for five years; slept together, fed together; been drunk together before I cut it out; fought together; been busted together; had money together! Leave him! Humph! He'd never forgive me, I reckon, and there wouldn't be no place homelike for me without him. Nope! We travel together. Got the car?"

"Yes, there's one out there on the siding now. Train comes through in just two hours. Run-way out there. I'll help you plant it so's to lead him up, unless you want to throw him in."

"Guess you ain't seen him kick none," remarked Lish, blithely. "If you had you'd start for the runway right now. Come on."

A few minutes later, Jack, to his surprise, was securely tied in one end of a clean box car, and the Mediator was up at a provision store, buying baled hay and straw, and explaining his needs. Also he bought a barrel of water lest Jack go dry, and as a last thoughtful perquisite, a sack of cornmeal, explaining, as he did so, that Jack had always liked it.

"Maybe it'll keep the poor feller from gettin' homesick," he observed, hopefully. "I sort of expect he'll be all busted up leavin' here, because he don't know where we're goin' as well as I do."

He went back to the station, and paid his bill uncomplainingly, but mentally deciding that railroads should get rich if it cost so much to take one poor little burro on a four or five day journey, and then as a happy afterthought, got out his beloved art gallery, and tacked the posters inside the car to give it a homelike appearance. He was sorry that he had not brought his cot and stove; but they were far behind, up there in the lonesome hut in the mountains. The proprietor of the Old Rest came down, followed by two Mexicans carrying a case of "sody-pop" and a large chunk of ice. A provision dealer joined them, and lounged outside the car. A cowman with jingling rowels followed, and then two or three other prospectors of his own kind. The crowd grew as the news became bruited over the camp that the Mediator was departing, for good and all. Many of them bethought themselves of something to add to his comfort, and many others came merely for the satisfaction of seeing him go. There was quite a crowd when the train pulled in, and the locomotive switched his car back and coupled it to the train. The crowd gathered by the door again while the conductor went in to get his orders, and it was then that the Mediator made his long-remembered farewell speech.

"Boys," he said, standing in the doorway of the box car, with his white hat on the back of his head, "be good! There ain't nothin' like bein' peaceful. I'm goin' to where I can get it, and you bet your last dollar on that. There's a lot of you here that I like, and some that I don't like. Them that I liked, knowed it, and them that I didn't like knowed it. I been around this camp a mighty long time, and they ain't no one can say I didn't always do all I knowed how to keep the peace."

He paused impressively and glared at them, and some of them grinned with joyous recollection of his manner of forcing the white dove to brood over that part of Arizona, and some others scowled and involuntarily turned to look at the graveyard up on the hill behind the town. The train began to move and his last words were uttered as he leaned far out of the moving car.

"Be peaceful," he shouted. "Its the finest thing in the world. The Good Book says forgive your enemies, and love one another. I'm right sorry to leave those of you who was my friends. All the rest can go plumb to hell! Adios!"

CHAPTER IV.

And Peace Cometh Not.

Lish was a very subdued man on the day he arrived with Jack in Keswick, after many strange adventures and reported for work. Men who did not understand had made fun of him as he rode with his burro, and asked him simple questions. Some of them had been sorry for it, when they recovered consciousness. Some of them had fathomed his quiet simplicity and been kindly, and those he remembered with much gratitude, and referred to their names, which he had inscribed in the little worn memorandum book that contained all his modest accounts. He was certain that all of these friends, at some time or another, might come by his place, and find proof that he was not the kind of a man who ever forgot a friend. Some of the others he wanted to forget, but couldn't. From Burton to Keswick, railway men told stories of him, and referred to him as the carload of dynamite they had carried on such-and-such a date. His trip passed down into railway history as an eventful one, and there were those who referred to it as to a battle, and pointed to scars in proof of their having met the strange man who wielded such a mighty "punch." His quest for peace had not been auspicious up to the time of his arrival, but he brightened with hope on the day he assisted the complacent Jack out of the car, delivered him, temporarily, to a corral, and sought the reformed William Higgins, now the responsible foreman for a great mine.

"Well, Bill," he said, with a grin, as he looked through an office window, "I'm here all right. Top-side up with care. Jack come with me. He's boardin' down here with a right-nice feller. Got my blankets here, too."

He hoisted a bundle into view that made some of the clerks gurgle with delight, and took off his hat to wipe his forehead with his coat-sleeve. It shone white, in contrast with his coat-sleeve. It shone white, in contrast with his cinder-blackened face, and for an instant Higgins' heart sank. The Mediator did not seem the heroic figure that he had remembered But Higgins, grown to man's measure with his responsibilities, was not the one to weaken where an old friend was concerned, even if the old friend had won his esteem by nearly killing him. He busied himself in the Mediator's welcome, and conducted him to his own quarters.

"There's two rooms here I don't use, Lish," he said, "and you can have 'em. Here's a bath-tub with runnin' water. In there's a closet for your own use. That red building you passed on the way up here is the storehouse, and I'll tell 'em who you are and that anything you want you're to have. The supe, and you and me, and the assayer and the head millman at one table. I'll show it to you when the gong blows, and that'll be in about a couple of hours. I expect you want to take a bath, now."

"What for?" demanded the Mediator.

"Why you ain't so all-fird clean-lookin'," protested Higgins. "Come over here and look at yourself."

He led the way to a large mirror in the corner of the bathroom, and the Mediator followed meekly after him.

"Gee whiz, Bill! Ain't that a ring-dinger of a lookin'-glass," he said. "Why say! It's bigger'n the glass there in the Old Rest."

He might have passed away from it entirely unconscious of his own appearance, had not Higgins, wishing to present him in a cleanly plight, insisted on turning the water into the tub. And into it Lish plunged, gurgling with enjoyment, and shouting through the flimsy partition that this was the first swim he had had since he left the Rio Grande River seven years before.

"Washin' in a gold pan ain't nothin' like this," he exulted. "This is sure the land of plenty, where you don't have to tote water in a barrel and have the drops from your hat rim. No siree! Lawsee! I wish I had this much water down at my mine!"

And then he remembered that he nol onger had a mine, and that Arizona was ages and ages in the past, and millions of miles distant, and that he was on the step-stone of a new future where all was to be serene and peaceful, and he thoughtfully gathered himself to meet the new and strange conditions.

The settling process was not easy. He had not been there a week before he proved his efficiency and won the approval of the superintendent; but, somehow, the place was not as peaceful as he had anticipated. These miners were, for the most part, different from those he had known on the broad, fre ranges of the South-west They talked of unions, and union scales, and day's drives, and overcharges at the company's store. Many of them were foreigners to whom the Mediator could not talk. All that he could do was to prove to them that he knew what constituted a day's work. Some of the others borrowed his money, and from some of them he borrowed trouble. Many of them failed to understand him, in the least, for which he was sorrowful.

There were reports to make out, long slips of paper detailing the progress of scores of drifts, over which he puzzled his head, with fingers in his hair, and to fill which he chewed lead pencils into splinters until Higgins, grown suddenly grave and competent, relieved him of that portion of the work; for Higgins, sombre sober, and industrious, was intent on seeing that he fulfilled all recommendations. The former gun man treated him as a brother, and won from him an almost idolatrous affection; but the discipline, and the need for exercising it, chafed his spirit as a loosely tied diamond hitch chafes a pack animal. Often and often, when Lish visited Jack's boarding-house in the evening, he whispered his rebellion into the long hairy ears.

"It ain't that I ain't makin' good, Jack," he said, "because I am. I heard the old man talkin' to Bill this afternoon, and says he, 'that Lish Henley gets the work out of 'em, and knows a honest day's work, and insists on it's bein' done.' That's what he says. But you see I ain't used to bein' bossed, and I ain't no good at bein' bossed! I want to do things my own way, and sometimes it seems to me that this here superintendent don't know what orter be done as well as I do. Then Hunks is awful. They'd starve to death where me and you come from!"

True Tales of Adventure

ROMANCE and MYSTERY of VANISHED HEIRS TO FORTUNES

WHEN the news, subsequently denied, came over the cable recently that Lord de Freyne had died at his country seat in County Roscommon, Ireland, the story if his eldest son, heir to the title and estates, the Honorable Arthur Reginald French, who ran away from home in 1905 and became Private French of the United States Army, was recalled by many persons.

This is one of the many romantic stories in regard to heirs to titles or estates who come to this country, sometimes avowedly to better their fortunes, sometimes for a taste of adventure. Others, for one reason or another, not only drop their titles but sink their identity while sojourning here.

The Honorable Arthur Reginald French apparently came over to see the country on this side of the water, intending to stay as long as he liked it. As many a young man starting out to see the world has done, he got his experiences rapidly, paying quite a high price for them, and, being of a proud spirit, preferred to pay the penalty and to recoup his fortunes rather than to appeal to his family for help. For the first few days after he went aboard the steamship Umbria he held himself aloof from his fellow passengers. The purser later said that he had noticed several men whose appearance he did not like trying to ingratiate themselves in the young man's favor. As he knew who Mr. French was he warned him against the men, but the youth laughingly replied that a man who had been an officer in the British army could take care of himself on shipboard. The purser was especially anxious as he knew that Mr. French had a draft for £200 in addition to considerable cash that he carried with him.

When Lieutenant French left the Umbria to go to the St. Denis Hotel two of the men accompanied him and the draft for £200 was later cashed by one of them. The older men offered to show the younger the sights of New York. First they went to the Bowery, but the stranger passed through its allurements without serious harm. Next he was introduced to the Tenderloin district, and there he learned what gay life in New York really costs. He started by spending freely and taking no change from a five dollar bill when paying for a drink. Within a few days he had lost every cent that he had, did not return to his hotel and completely disappeared. For almost a month nothing was known of him. Meanwhile his uncle, who had a ranch in New Mexico, had telegraphed to know why he did not keep his appointments to meet him in the West. He even sent a draft, but it was not paid. In response to requests from Baron de Freyne, the young man's father, the British Consul in New York employed detectives and notified the head of the Police Department, but every effort was made to keep the news of the disappearance secret. It was only when all other means failed that publicity was resorted to, and very soon thereafter the missing heir was located.

He had been seen in the vicinity of Forty-second street and Sixth avenue with an Englishman who had been his fellow passenger on the Umbria and with a New York man who was in business in that locality. When he found himself destitute he told this man that he did not want to return to the hotel when he had nothing with which to pay his bill, and he asked his advice about enlisting in the United States army. With his assistance he found a recruiting station where his American acquaintance vouched for him. A visit to the headquarters of the recruiting department confirmed this report, and the Hon. Arthur Reginald French was found doing duty as a private at Fort Slocum. He did not long remain a private, however, as within a few days after he had arrived his well set up appearance, his carriage and his expert drill tactics caught the eye of his superior officers and he was forthwith promoted to be acting first sergeant of recruits attached to the Eighth infantry.

How Lieutenant French ever managed to escape detection when he was lost on Broadway was one of the mysteries of the case, for it is safe to say that there was not another man dressed in anything like his fashion in the entire city of New York. He was the typical British dandy of the stage. He wore tan shoes with his blue serge suit, an unusual winter combination at that time; a red checked waistcoat, a bright colored necktie and a straight brimmed round top hat. It was not for lack of clothes that the heir to a title vanished. In his trunk, a good one, which was opened some time after his disappearance from the St. Denis Hotel, and in his suit case were all the things that a young man of fashion could use, including clothes suitable for various social occasions and costly toilet articles.

When the news came out revealing his identity Sergeant French, who had been very popular with his mates, became an object of much curiosity, but he protested against his being treated differently by them because they had discovered his rank. He had thought of going to Canada and joining the mounted police, he explained, but when he heard how cold the climate was there he decided to accept his uncle's invitation to join him on his ranch instead. He had sent a telegram to him inquiring about routes, but, failing to get an answer, he decided to go to a recruiting station and put on the uniform of Uncle Sam.

"I left my luggage at the St. Denis," he explained. "I owe them a few dollars and thought my traps would cover it. I am sorry there should be so much ado about my movements, but I suppose it is my own fault. I should have written to my people to tell them where I am. I have just written to the British Consul asking him to take no further steps to ascertain my whereabouts, as I like the service and am content to stay where I am."

It was thought that the heir to the barony might have been kidnapped or come to some harm, as his father had been rated as a strict landlord and had incurred the enmity of the Irish Parliamentary party through the insistence of the exact payment of land rates. A few years before he had charged W. J. O'Brien, John Redmond, John Dillon and other prominent members of the Parliamentary party with conspiracy, saying that forty of his holdings were tenantless because of the conspiring of these men and the "Pay No Rent" cry, and he demanded damages. It was suggested that his son might have been dealt with in reprisal.

The Honorable Arthur Reginald French is the only son by the fourth Baron's first marriage, with Lady Laura Olivia Dundas, daughter of the Marquis of Zetland. He was born in 1870 and in 1902 married Amabel, daughter of William Angus.

If he had really disappeared the barony would not have failed for lack of an heir, as the fourth Baron de Freyne had eleven children by his second marriage. The estate that the new lord inherits is known as Frenchpark and is located in County Roscommon, Ireland.

An heir with a picturesque name who succeeded to a title and who scorns to use it, preferring one which he enjoys as an humble officer in the Salvation Army, is Sir Genille Cave-Brown-Cave, who ran away from his home, Stretton Hall, Leicestershire, in 1888, when he was fourteen years old. Two years later he returned and enlisted in the Twenty-first Hussars and saw three years' service in India. They called him "Kid" Cave, and he brought back the skins of twenty-nine tigers that he had bagged in Burmah.

He again entered the army soon afterward, this time in the Legion of Frontiersmen, and rose to the rank of captain in the reserve of officers. His spirit of adventure next led him to America, and he became identified with the G—Bar—C ranch of Arizona. For a while he served as deputy sheriff of Cochise county and during a wandering life of eight years worked at various times in Kansas, Utah, Colorado and Wyoming.

When the Spanish-American War broke out he hastened to offer his services and went to Puerto Rico as a teamster with General Miles' expedition. As soon as he was through with that he hurried to London to enlist in the navy, where he rose to the rank of signal quartermaster, in order to get to the seat of the Boxer troubles. When his father, Sir Myles Cave-Brown-Cave, died in 1907 Captain Genille succeeded to the title and to a heavily mortgaged estate. His method of meeting the situation was characteristic. Coming back to the United States, he openly avowed that he wanted a wife with enough "tin" to clear his English estate of its hundreds of thousands of dollars of encumbrances. No woman of wealth volunteered to furnish this, however, and he set to work to get employment, gladly accepting a position with a motion picture film concern, which brought him $10 a day. His next adventure was with the Salvation Army, into the work of which he threw himself with his usual enthusiasm. The free life of the West has been particularly attractive to scions of noble families. The heir to Sir Robert Drummond Moncrieffe, the eighth Baronet of the name, William Moncrieffe, lives at Bighorn, Sheridan county, Wyo., and the next heir, Malcolm Moncrieffe, who married a Kentucky girl, lives at Polo Ranch, in the same county.

Lord Sholto George Douglas, a son of the eighth Marquis of Queensberry, was a well known character in the Far West for several years, and the Marquis himself has several times visited this country with the expressed purpose of going into business.

Not often is a titled Englishman a naturalized citizen of the United States. This is the case, however, of Sir James Stuart-Menteth, the third Baronet, who succeeded his uncle, Sir James Stuart-Menteth, in 1870 and who married an American wife and lives in Canandaigua, N. Y.

Sometimes the Englishman in America disappears so utterly that, even in the case of his becoming heir to an estate, it is difficult to locate him. Only a few months ago an effort was being made to find Mr. William Clark Davy, who had left Liverpool for New York on the steamship Servia in 1892. Thereafter his whereabouts was unknown to his family, and the recent death of his father, Edward Major Davy, of Orford House, in the parish of Stainton le Vale, Lincolnshire, had caused a search to be made for him that his inheritance might be handed over to him. The difficulties of finding stray Englishmen are sometimes increased because of the change of name. Years ago James Douglas Bishop left his home in Maidenhead, England, and went to California, where because of family differences he took the name of Douglas F. Davis. Under that name he prospered and married Miss Mary Keith. A little more than a year ago a relative died and left $100,000 to James Douglas Bishop. He was not found, for Douglas F. Davis gave no sign that he was the man. When his father died, however, not long ago, leaving a very large estate, the missing heir decided to assert himself for the sake of his infant son. To make his position quite legal, a second marriage was performed under his original name, his little son being one of the wedding guests. Then he went to England to claim his rights.

Lieutenant Frederick Fermor-Hesketh, son of Sir Thomas George and Lady Sharon, disappeared two years ago and is supposed to have come to the United States. Another lost scion of nobility is the Hon. Francis Patrick Clements, who left the navy in 1911.

Not all of the claimants to titles and estates live in the West. They are scattered all over the country. In Brooklyn the Grahams of Esk, a very old family of Scottish nobility, have lived in modest circumstances for years, the Baronet and all of his sons having married American wives. A car repairer in Bangor, Me., recently received a letter from a Scottish solicitor that led him to believe that he and his brother were relatives of the Earl of Airlie, and the brother has now gone to Scotland to investigate the information that they received.

There is the well known American born Lord Fairfax, who proved his claim to use his title and sit in the House of Lords, and then turned to his American business again. The United States is invitingly big with opportunities enough, both for profit and entertainment, to take care of any number of younger sons until they are ready to come into their inheritance.

Many Americans Seek Fortunes in Precious Stones in Ceylon

CEYLON has long been famed for its precious stones, and probably more people in the world to-day know it for its beautiful gems than for any other product. Every year thousands of American tourists go to Ceylon to find small fortunes, or at least to pick up bargains, in precious stones, and many of them fall victims to the wily native merchant, whom they not infrequently consider ignorant of the true value of his gems.

The precious stones found in Ceylon are rubies, blue, yellow, white and pink sapphires; asterias, or star stones; alexandrites, beryls, chrysoberyls, cat's-eyes, amethysts, topazes, garnets, moonstones, zircons (jargons and hyacinths), spinels, aquamarines, tourmalines, peridots and olivines; in short, nearly every gem known to the lapidary except turquoises, diamonds, opals and emeralds.

The gem fields begin at Avisawella, some thirty miles from Colombo, and extend to about the eighty-fifth mile on the Rakwana road and from there due south to Matara, nearly the whole of the productive area lying in the districts of Ratnapura and Kegalle of Sabaragamuwa Province, and in the Southern Province. The Central Province about Matale and Kandy produces only moonstones, garnets, amethysts, pink quartz and tourmalines. No precious stones are found here, but quantities of abrasive corundum of the nature of sapphires and rubies are obtained. In the Southern Province are cat's-eyes, tourmalines, chrysoberyls and alexandrites, the best of which are found in the Welligama district. Sapphires are rare and rubies not common. In the Ratnapura district every gem of Ceylon is found, though alexandrites are rare.

About 1906 a new bed of extraordinarily fine garnets of a dark pure color was discovered at Pellawella, in the Southern Province. These have been sold by native dealers as spinels, but they are in reality very fine dark garnets and might be mistaken for Siamese rubies or spinel rubies. About the same year new fields of moonstones were discovered on crown lands of the village called Weragoda, one and a half miles due east from the seacoast, in the Southern Province, and fifty miles from Colombo. As with most Ceylon stones, this deposit of the finest blue and white sheen moonstones was found in low lying swamp lands. The discovery of these stones in large quantities was most timely and important, as the mines about Kandy and Wagawella were about worked out. The best stones from these mines were sent to Idar, on the Rhine, where there is an important semi-precious stone cutting industry.

Until within the last year gem mining in Ceylon was purely a native industry. Various attempts have been made by European companies to exploit the gem mining lands, but always unsuccessfully. In December last for the first time a company undertook the hydraulic mining of gems. Some London capitalists organized a $500,000 company and secured options on the lands of native chiefs in the Ratnapura district, near Maralayia. They have turned streams on the gravel and are now washing out the rough stones with fair success and with a good deal of promise for a rich future. The lands so mined are to be held on long leases at one-fifth of the profits, and all gems found are to be sold at public auction in Colombo. Besides gems, gold and tin in promising quantities have already been obtained. The opening of this hydraulic mining enterprise promises, if successful, to revolutionize gem mining in Ceylon and to affect seriously the world market in precious stones.

Aside from the methods employed by this company, all gem mining is done on the old native system. The gem miner selects his land in likely territory and arranges terms for its exploitation. He then employs a number of natives more or less skilled in detecting rough stones. They dig pits, usually ten to fifty feet [illegible] gravel, called illam, in which the stones are found and wash over the gravel carefully. This is practically all there is of the business. Sometimes large and fine stones are found, but the industry is generally precarious for the individual.

No trustworthy statistics are obtainable of the quantity of precious stones exported annually from the island. Local dealers estimate that gems of the value of $1,000,000 are sent every year to London and to Paris, chiefly rubies, sapphires of all shades and star stones.

A Descendant of Charles II.

A Descendant of Charles II., the Aged Duke of Grafton.

LAST year the Duke of Grafton fractured his thigh and since then has been unable to indulge in any very active form of exercise. Although he is ninety-two years old he still likes to get about his estate and finds the easiest mode of conveyance a pony chair.

His Grace was Ranger to Queen Victoria, King Edward VII. and King George V. and had an important part in the coronation of King Edward. He is descended from King Charles II. and Barbara Villiers, Duchess of Cleveland, their son, his ancestor, having been created successively Baron of Sudbury, Viscount Ipswich, Earl of Euston and Duke of Grafton. The present Duke served with distinction in the Crimea.

Pope Pius X. Likes Sedan Chair

How Pope Pius X. Takes the Morning Air—The Habitual Promenade in the Vatican Gardens.

MANY devout admirers have wanted to do something for the comfort of the aged Pope Pius X. with an automobile, but as His Holiness spends almost every morning, after saying mass, in the Vatican gardens and never leaves the Vatican grounds his use of one, even if used in a sedan chair through the pleasant Vatican precincts, would be limited. He is attended by clerical and military members of his household on his habitual rounds and sometimes, if he is strong enough, goes for a stroll or a drive later in the day, but never outside the Vatican precincts.

Had Itching Piles For 27 Years

Few people were ever more enthusiastic in praising Dr. Chase's Ointment than the writer of this letter. When you read the description of his case you will not wonder why.

Mr. John Johnson, Coleman, Alta., writes: "Three years ago I was cured of blind, itching piles of 27 years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I would ever get from the terrible misery of piles. Often I was laid up for three days at a time, and at other times worked when I should have been in bed.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth sixty dollars a box instead of sixty cents. I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time, and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this ointment made for me. I cannot tell half as much about it as it deserves. Anyone doubting this can write direct to me."

"Farm and Dairy" Live Stock, Produce and Grain Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Oct. 6.—Business men, both in this country and the United States, talk prices now in terms of the United States tariff. The proposed changes, now almost law, are particularly important so far as farm produce is concerned. For instance, the duty on wheat will be lowered from 25c a bushel to 10c; potatoes ditto; eggs free; milk from two cents a gallon to three; cream from five cents to free; butter six cents to two and one-half cents; cheese, six cents to two and one-half cents; apples, 25c to 10c, and cattle, sheep and other animals will be admitted free under the new law. This opens up a vast new market for Canadian produce.

Prospects of entry into United States markets is already having its effect on produce movements. Quebec farmers are holding their hay pending the reduction of the $4 duty to $2. Butter is firmer for the same cause, and the activity in stockers may be traced entirely to the expected access to the Buffalo market.

Money seems to be a little easier, and first-class city mortgages are being taken out at six to six and one-half per cent and farm mortgages a trifle lower.

WHEAT

World wide good crops are exerting such a deadening influence on the wheat market that reports of injury to the Argentine crop and decreases in the estimate of the Russian wheat crop, did not bolster the market and quotations have dropped one cent in the past week. Local quotations now are: No. Northern, 98½c; No. 2, 97½c; Ontario No. 2, 83c to 84c outside; 87c to 88c here.

COARSE GRAINS

The coarse grain market is characterised by fair demand and small delivery. Large quantities of Canadian oats are being marketed in the United States. It is now evident that at least 10,000,000 acres of corn in the United States will be entirely abandoned, which means stiff prices in this commodity that last year was plentiful enough to reduce prices of other grains. Quotations are as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 40c; No. 3, 38½c; Ontario, 35c to 35½c outside; 36c to 37c here; corn, 75c to 76½c; barley, 52c to 53c; peas, 80c to 86c; rye, 69c to 62c. Similar conditions prevail at Montreal, with quotations as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 40½c to 41c; No. 3, 39½c to 40c; corn, 82c to 83c; barley, malting, 46c to 46c; feed, 50c to 51c; buckwheat, 56c to 58c.

EGGS AND POULTRY

This week has been marked by another seasonable advance in wholesale and retail egg quotations. Wholesalers now quote as follows: New laid eggs, 23c to 24c; fresh, 22c to 23c; storage, 17c to 20c. Montreal dealers report an active demand, with fresh as 24c to 28c; selected, 29c to 31c; No. 1 storage stock, 20c to 22c. The price f.o.b. country points is 22c to 23c.

Poultry quotations are: Fresh killed fowl, 17c to 18c; live, 10c to 13c; spring chickens, dressed, 22c to 23c; live, 15c to 18c; ducks, live, 13c to 15c; turkeys, live, 14c to 16c.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

Quotations are: Peaches, 14 qt. bkt., 30c to 75c; tomatoes, 25c to 35c; plums, 30c to 50c; canteloupes, crate, $3 to $4; bkt., 25c to 40c; apples, bkt., 30c to 60c; bbl., $2.50 to $3.50; pears, 30c to 60c; grapes, six-qt. bkt., 20c to 25c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

Butter continues to show growing strength and quotations have been advanced slightly. Practically none is being exported out of Canada, but the demand from the West and the expected demand from the United States are enough to strengthen the market. Present wholesale quotations here are: Dairy prints, 28c to 30c; creamery prints, 32c to 33c; solids, 30c to 32½c; inferior, 26c to 27c. Cheese is dull at reduced quotations: New large, 14½c to 14¾c; twins, 14¾c to 15c; old large, 15c to 15½; twins, 15½c to 15¾c.

LIVE STOCK

Stockers still hold first attention. It is reported that several thousand head were being held on pasture near the frontier, pending the final passage of the United States tariff bill. A great number too were being herded around the stock yards here. These will all be shipped now that the tariff bars are down. Should the final signing of the bill have been seriously delayed many speculators would have stood to lose heavily.

Shippers are holding back their well finished stock, and consequently receipts on the market are of rather an inferior quality. This has had its effect in bolstering up prices for choice cattle of any kind. We quote as follows: Export cattle, choice, $7 to $7.25; medium, $6.60 to $6.90; butchers', choice, $6.90 to $7; common to good, $6 to $6.50; heifers, good to choice, $5 to $6.25; cows, choice, $5 to $6; common to good, $3.50 to $5; bulls, $3.50 to $5.75; feeders, $5 to $6.10; stockers, $3.75 to $5.10; canners and cutters, $2.50 to $4.

There is a fair demand for choice milch cows at $60 to $75; common to medium, $40 to $60; springers, $40 to $75. There is a good demand for well finished calves at $6.50 to $9.25; rough, $4.40 to $6.

The new classification of lambs into wethers and bucks has had a favorable influence on the price of wether lambs. They now go at $6.50 to $7; buck lambs, $5.75 to $6.25; ewes, $4 to $5; old bucks and culls, $2.50 to $4.

The predicted decrease in hog quotations took place the first of last week, and the market is still anything but firm as spring litters are now coming on. Packers now quote hogs $8.75 to $8.90 f.o.b. heavy, $8.25; sows, $7.25.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, Oct. 4.—The expected decline in local prices for live and dressed hogs on account of the lower prices ruling in the Toronto market at the beginning of the week was not materialized, but packers state that the prospects are that they will be reduced in the beginning of next week, as supplies coming forward are liberal. The trade in live hogs was fairly active to-day, with sales of selected lots at $9.40 to $9.75 a cwt., weighed off cars. The demand for abattoir fresh-killed dressed stock was only fair at $13.75 to $14.

EXPORT CHEESE TRADE

Montreal, Saturday, Oct. 4.—The market for cheese this week was decidedly unsteady; and, although prices on the average ruled higher than they did last week, there was not by any means sufficient demand for export to warrant the higher prices paid; but, as the cheese offering in the country were practically the last of the Septembers, buyers generally seemed to be afraid to pass them by, and it was comparatively easy to raise prices a fraction or two over those current the previous week; and, as a consequence, as high as 13 1-16c was paid, the bulk of the cheese selling at 12¾c to 13c. Receipts into the city this week totalled almost 60,000 boxes, and compare very favorably with those of the corresponding week last year, the total being barely 2,000 less than a year ago. The make, however, will fall off very rapidly from now to the close, and reports from all parts of the country indicate a very quick closing up of the factories for this season. In some parts the Americans are booking cream for shipment across the line, and in other parts cows are being bought up for shipment out of the country or for shipment to the West, all of which will tend to diminish the supply of milk and bring about an early closing of the season.

The market for butter is strong and prices are well maintained, there being an active demand for speculative purposes for fresh receipts, which are quoted at 28c here for finest Eastern Townships quality. June make is quoted at 26½c to 27c, and Augusts at 27c to 27½c.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HEM BIDDLE'S HOBBY

It Lost Him His Bride

By KATHARINE GRAY

"Our fellow townsman, the well known aeronaut," was the manner in which the Finchville Banner always referred to Hemenway Biddle. Mr Biddle was the editor of the Banner and in the great shed back of the printing office was anchored his big balloon.

On clear days after the paper had gone to press Mr Biddle might be seen tinkering away at his balloon or else in the act of soaring over the heads of his neighbors in the car attached to the gas inflated craft.

Hem Biddle himself soared skyward because he liked the strange sensation of hanging between earth and heaven with the ever present element of danger attached thereto. As a counter irritant to editing a country weekly newspaper he believed there was nothing like it, excepting always Amabel Paine.

At this particular moment the Banner had gone to press and was in the hands of its eager readers. Hem Biddle was scaling the airy heights, and Amabel Paine was swinging in a hammock under the apple tree in her front yard.

Amabel's eyes, blue as the sky above, were fixed dreamily on the green canopy of leaves overhead. There was one spot where she could see the sky. Suddenly across this bit of sky there raced a black blot.

"Oh, bother!" pouted Amabel, all at once remembering that she was engaged to Hem Biddle. It was rather disconcerting to recollect it, for at that very moment she had been dreamily reliving a few delicious hours spent in the company of Peter Lamb the previous evening.

The gate creaked inward, and Peter Lamb's massive form plodded sturdily down the shell path to the apple tree. Amabel watched him, delighting in the glint of sunshine on his blond head and the answering gleam in his brown eyes when they met hers. She blushed and her eyes hid themselves under drooping lids as she sat up in the hammock and allowed her little hand to rest an instant in his big one.

"I accepted your invitation to call," he laughed rather awkwardly as he sat down in a big rustic chair and tossed his hat to the grass. "You can see that I haven't waited."

Amabel's mouth curved deliciously "I am glad," she murmured, soothing the seam of her white duck skirt.

"I'm that sort. When I want to do a thing I can't wait," he went on earnestly. "I don't believe I understand the pleasures of anticipation. I know what I want when I see it, and then I want it right away."

"Yes?" Amabel smoothed another seam.

"I'm going to shock you, Miss Paine," went on this startling young man in a determined tone

"Please don't," she murmured.

"It sounds foolish on such short acquaintance, but you know I used to live in Finchville, and we played together when we were children. Why, we went to school together! The wonder of it all is that I should come back again and meet you at the schoolhouse dance last night and not remember your name. I suppose I used to call you Amy," he ended daringly.

Amabel said nothing, and Mr. Lamb, taking a fresh grip on his courage, leaned forward eagerly. His handsome face was quite crimson with embarrassment, but his brown eyes were pools of flaming determination.

"Don't laugh, please, but I love you, Amabel. I want to marry you," he said briefly.

The girl's eyes flashed up with a startled question in their blue depths. It was as if she were questioning his sincerity. His eyes answered her.

"I can't," she whispered sadly.

"Why not?" His voice was tense.

A shadow passed between them and the sun.

"That." She pointed upward.

"Why, what do you mean? It's a balloon, isn't it?" he asked in a startled tone.

She nodded. "There's a man in it," she explained.

His jaw tightened. "Ah! It's the man, I suppose?"

"I am engaged to Mr. Biddle," she said with dignity.

"Biddle! Hem Biddle of the Banner?"

"Yes."

He got upon his feet, and his white lips curved in a wry smile. "Just my luck to get here too late. I hope you will be very happy, Miss Paine. Is—it—to be very soon?"

Amabel reddened from brow to chin, but she held her head haughtily. "It—it is indefinite," she stammered "Thank you for your good wishes."

He was holding her hand tightly and looking quite unconscious of that fact.

Something small and dark hurtled down through the branches and fell at Peter's feet.

"What's that?" he gasped.

"It's mine!" cried Amabel sharply. "Mr. Biddle often amuses himself by dropping messages down to me from the balloon as he circles above. His poetry is very good."

Peter Lamb read the lines distinctly; and it is to his credit that he did not smile, for the provocation was great:

"Sailing high in heaven's blue,
Dearest, now I think of you.
Are you thinking now of me
Swinging 'neath the apple tree?

She stood there looking half wistfully, half defiantly, at Peter Lamb when there sounded steps on the foot path beyond the thick screen of lilacs that hedged the fence.

"Hem Biddle's sailing around. What do you make of it, Anna?" The woman's sharp voice was eagerly curious.

Another voice beyond the hedge answered. "Pretty doings, I say, to go ballooning the afternoon he's going to get married!"

"There ain't many girls would wait any longer for Hem Biddle. He's been going with Amabel six years, and any one can see that the child is tired to death of him and his freakish ways But she's got grit, and she'll stick by her promise."

"Is what they said true?" he demanded hotly.

"Every word."

"Why do you stand it?" he blurted out.

"I was quite fond of him, and I promised, you know, and he is always sorry. I was wondering if we could signal to him now. Ah, here comes mother!" She clasped her hands and looked apprehensively at the little roly poly gray haired woman hastening toward the apple tree.

"Amabel Paine!" cried the lady in a shocked tone. "Here on your wedding afternoon entertaining company! Oh, now do do! Peter Lamb, did you say? Little Peter Lamb, bless your heart! The last time I saw you you were in knee pants and calico blouses. You'll excuse Amabel, won't you? She's going to be married at 6:30, and it's after 5 now. Come, Amabel."

She tucked her hand under the girl's arm and smiled, but it was plain that she was shocked at the unconventional behavior of the bride to be. "Have you seen Hem?" she asked quickly.

Amabel pointed upward where the balloon circled lazily against the blue sky.

Mrs. Paine's eyes narrowed, and her face flushed. "Amabel!" she cried, with tears in her eyes. "If he forgets again I shall die of mortification. I can't stand it."

Amabel's lips trembled in a smile that was near to tears.

"Mrs. Paine, if Hem Biddle isn't on hand at 6:30 the wedding can go on just the same if you will listen to reason."

Peter Lamb explained volubly, and Amabel added timid words of consent

"If Hem isn't here at 6:30," said Mrs. Paine, "Peter, you can take his place. Come, Amabel." And she bore the blushing bride away down the path to the house.

It was deliciously cool and pleasant up there in the evening sky. Delicate tints of primrose and pale rose flecked the blue and silver sunset sky. Hem Biddle, sunburned and frowsy with dishevelled hair, leaned against the side of the car and dreamily scanned the green earth below.

Most of the afternoon had been spent in hovering over the vicinity of the Paine place, where a certain white speck in the garden represented Amabel. An uneasiness had prevailed in his mind the last hour. There was some task unfulfilled, some promise he had not kept. What was it? He gazed dreamily at the sunset and composed another poem.

The balloon drifted a little lower in the unstirred air. There came the tinkling sound of church bells from below. It was Wednesday evening. He glanced at the little calendar in the cover of his notebook as he closed it, and his eyes bulged with horror.

It was Wednesday, the 17th, and he was to be married this evening to Amabel.

For the third time he had forgotten it. Twice Amabel had forgiven him But now!

He looked at his watch. It was half past 6, the hour for the ceremony He leaned over the car in an agony of fear. There was much activity about the Paine place. Little groups of people dotted the lawn, some in white. Those were women, and the dark ones were men. He guessed they were gazing up at him, waiting for him. Poor Amabel! He snatched at the rope that released the gas, and the balloon dropped earthward. Again he looked over, and now he saw that the people had streamed into the house. There was a carriage before the gate!

At exactly 7 o'clock the balloon landed in the middle of Ebenezer Paine's cornfield and destroyed about 100 stalks of prized corn

Within the house Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lamb were receiving congratulations and answering the questions of dazed wedding guests. Mrs. Paine was explaining matters to Hem Biddle's indignant relatives and friends.

Ebenezer Paine, stiffly garbed in his Sunday clothes, creaked across the lawn, through the orchard and into the cornfield. He frowned at the broken corn, and a quizzical look came into his eyes when he saw Hem Biddle crawling out from the folds of silk that enveloped the basket of the balloon. Hem was disgracefully untidy.

"Better late than never," he said apologetically

Ebenezer Paine smiled grimly "You've said that three times, Hem, and I reckon the proverb's worn out This time 'it's better never come at all than be late.'"

"But Amabel," murmured the crest fallen aeronaut, wiping his grimy hands on his coat.

"Amabel," remarked the bride's father thoughtfully—"why, Amabel waited till 6:35, and then she married an old sweetheart who was interested enough to be there on time."

LOOK!

If you were told of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial? Especially if you could try it for fifty cents!

Peps is the discovery!

Peps are little tablets, neatly wrapped in air and germ-proof silver foil. They contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air sacs in the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

Peps are entirely distinct from the old fashioned liquid cough cures, which are merely swallowed into the stomach, and never reach the lungs. Peps treatment of coughs and colds is direct treatment.

If you have not yet tried Peps, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box.

Headaches And Heart Trouble

Nervous Prostration of Three Years' Standing Cured a Year Ago by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Anyone who knows the discouragement and despair which accompanies the helplessness of nervous prostration will appreciate the gratitude felt by the writer of this letter.

Mrs. H. C. Jones, Scotch Lake C B., writes: "I suffered from nervous prostration for nearly three years. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors, without obtaining satisfactory results, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was completely cured by this treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine. I now attend to my housework with pleasure and comfort, and am glad to have the opportunity of recommending Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

At least some benefit is bound to be derived from each dose of this great food cure, as day by day it forms new blood, and builds up the system. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $3 and Fully Guaranteed.

Sixteen ounces of cough syrup — as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

GIRLS! HAVE BEAUTIFUL, CHARMING HAIR AND NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Try This! Doubles Beauty of Your Hair and Stops It Falling Out

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine" hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowltons Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 50 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

BURIED IN LANDSLIDE.

Toronto Sewer Laborer Taken Out Dead by Companions.

TORONTO, Oct. 9.—While engaged in excavating in the civic trunk sewer near the corner of Glenholme drive and Glendonwynne street, Geo. Voitch, a Servian laborer, was caught in the collapse of the sewer and buried under 23 feet of timber and sand. The accident happened at noon yesterday, and it was not until five hours later that 40 fellow workmen succeeded in digging out the body. The remains are at the morgue, where an inquest is to be held.

John Pinco, who was working with Voitch in the trench at the time, had a narrow escape. Pinco, partially protected by timbers, was buried under a few feet of debris, but was dug out alive in a few minutes.

The greatest care had been taken to avoid just such a catastrophe. The walls had been planked at intervals of a foot as the work progressed, and the belief is that one of the braces gave way.

The pulmotor was applied, but Voitch evidently had been dead for some time.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Duke of Connaught has desired that his departure for Canada next week shall be as private as possible.

The act which consolidates and revises the Railway Act will be introduced at the next session of Parliament.

Tod Downey, of St. Catharines, for many years a star lacrosse player, swallowed half a peach stone and is in a critical condition.

The defence in the Sulzer impeachment trial rested its case shortly before four o'clock yesterday, without calling Governor Sulzer or his wife.

A sphinx, carved from a solid block of red granite and weighing twelve tons, arrived in Philadelphia from Luxor for the University of Pennsylvania.

Emperor William of Germany is revealed as a restaurant proprietor for the first time. He is owner of a small cafe and restaurant near the historic mill of Sans Souci at Potsdam.

In Toronto it is now an offence for anyone in charge of any kind of vehicle to pass a street car which has stopped to embark or disembark passengers. The first offender was fined yesterday.

The battle has been re opened again around the bilingual question as 6.1.1. of the pupils say the children will leave the classes on the arrival of the English Protestant inspector, at Ottawa.

FANATIC RUNS AMUCK.

Religious Maniac Kills Three Men Then Slays Himself.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 9.—A fit of religious mania yesterday caused a youthful church worker here, William McDonald, to run amuck with a loaded revolver, with which he shot dead three of his fellow church workers and then committed suicide.

McDonald appears to have drawn up his program with deliberation. He paid a round of visits to the residences of his colleagues in the church work at about midnight, and shot them down in turn, afterwards battering their bodies with a bludgeon.

Apparently there were no witnesses of the series of tragedies, and the only evidence found besides the dead bodies were a nearly empty revolver and a bloody bludgeon clasped in McDonald's hands when his body was discovered.

Aviation Corps Formed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Through the activities of the Aero Club of America, a volunteer military aviation battalion has been formed to become a part of the National Guard. Application to that end, endorsed by some of the highest military authorities has been made to Washington and through official channels to Albany.

Up to the present time aviation in the regular army corps has been conducted as a part of the signal corps but under plans that have been proposed, the aviation corps will be organized on an independent basis and the proposed battalion conforms to the new plan.

Sister or Niece?

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 9.—A dispute between heirs as to whether Mrs. Caroline Amelia Waller of Vancouver, is to be the sister or the niece of the late Ald. Wallace McRae of North Vancouver, is to be settled by the appointment of a commission to take evidence at the old home in Ontario of the McRae family. Mrs. Weller was recently appointed administratrix of the estate on the representation that she was a sister of the deceased.

Both Were Acquitted.

MELUN, France, Oct. 9.—The Criminal Court here yeste day tried and acquitted on a charge of running over and killing a gypsy girl on Aug. 8, Baron Hans von Bleichroder and Walter Palmer, the chauffeur of Princess Sofia of Saxe-Weimar, who committed suicide at Heidelberg on Sept. 9, owing to the refusal of her parents to consent to her marriage to Baron Bleichroder.

Rogers To Lay Stone.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 9. — Mayor Hartman received word yesterday morning from W. F. Cockshutt, M.P. that Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works for the Dominion would be in the city next week for the laying of the corner-stone of the new postoffice building.

Austria Plans Navy Increase.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—A Vienna cable says: Austria's naval estimates made public yesterday, include forty-five millions for new battleships to be constructed or already building. Besides four dreadnoughts already laid down, it is planned to build two super-dreadnoughts at a cost of $15,000,000 each.

The Admiralty also contemplates two more super-dreadnoughts to be completed in 1917 at a cost of thirty million dollars.

Crashed Through Wall.

GUELPH, Oct. 9.—An accident, which fortunately resulted in no loss of life or injuries to anyone, occurred yesterday morning at the Dominion linen mills and caused the temporary closing down of the plant. A fly-wheel on a high speed engine which supplies the power, flew off and, gyrating at a terrific speed crashed through the wall of the building and out forty yards into the swamp.

"CASCARETS" RELIEVE SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Get a 10-cent box now.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children— their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

We are sorry to learn of the death of Mr. Norman Lean's child. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Proccer, at Apsley.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Accidental Death.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 9.—The jury empaneled to enquire into the demise of Frank Marlatt, who was killed on the new postoffice building on Sept. 30, returned a verdict of accidental death.

Eggs Mollet.

Do you know what eggs mollet are? A cross between hard boiled and soft boiled eggs. Plunge the eggs in boiling water, then put on the back of the stove for ten minutes, but do not boil. This makes the eggs soft and waxy. Put in ice water and when thoroughly chilled remove the shells, carefully keeping the eggs whole. When ready to use, heat in a meat stock and serve on rounds of buttered toast, with a cream sauce poured over. Or it can go on a bed of spinach, chopped fine and highly seasoned. Only a fresh egg can be cooked in this way.

Wealthy But Little Known.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The estate of Benjamin Altman, president of the dry goods firm of B. Altman & Co., who died at the age of 73 years on Tuesday evening, is said to amount to probably $45,000,000. About a third of this wealth is represented by art objects, particularly in the line of paintings and porcelains. Real estate holdings are valued at $20,000,000.

Mr. Altman was a bachelor, and had led a very secluded life, especially during recent years. His physician said that it was doubtful if there were one hundred persons in New York who knew him by sight.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Surprising continuance of heavy receipts of wheat in the Canadian northwest more than offset today a decrease in the arrivals this side of the border. Largely in consequence the market closed weak 3-8c under last night's close. Corn showed a net decline of 1-4c to 1-2c and oats a drop of 1-8c to 1-4c. Provisions wound up 7 1-2c to 30c advance.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 131 carloads, comprising 2914 cattle, 265 hogs, 839 sheep and lambs and 804 calves.

Butchers

Choice butchers' steers, $7.25 to $7.50; loads of good, $6.90 to $7.20; medium, $6.75 to $6.85; choice cows, $6.75 to $6.85; medium, to good cows, $4.50 to $5.50; canners and cutters, $3.50 to $4.25; bulls, $4 to $6.25.

Stockers and Feeders

Prices for feeders and stockers were firm for the best grades; choice steers, 1000 to 1150 lbs., $6.50 to $6.75; steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., for distillery purposes, sold at 5¢ to $6.25; bulls, at $4.75 to $5; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., at $5.25 to $5.75; eastern stock heifers, $4.25 to $4.80.

Milkers and Springers

Trade was active at steady to strong prices for milkers and springers, which sold at $55 to $95 each.

Veal Calves

Choice veal calves are scarce, and prices were very firm. Choice veal calves sold at from $9.50 to $10.50; good calves, $8.50 to $9.25; medium calves, $7 to $8.25; rough eastern calves, $4.00 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs

The market for sheep and lambs was firmer. Sheep, light ewes, 100 to 130 lbs., $4.50 to $5, and $5.25; ewes, 140 to 160 lbs., $4 to $4.25.

Lambs, ewes and wethers, selected, sold at $6.75 to $7.25, and a few choice lambs reached $7.40; buck lambs, 75c per head less.

Hogs

The packers are quoting hog prices as follows: Selects, fed and watered, $8.35, and $8.50, f.o.b. cars, and $8.10, off cars. Drovers informed The World that $8.65 was being paid in the country for hogs, f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—The trade in cattle at the C.P.R. live stock market today was active with the undertone strong. Prices tended toward a higher level, owing to the big demand from American buyers. Choice steers sold at from $7.50 to $7.60; good at $7.20 to $7.25; fairly good, $6.50 to $6.75, and the lower grades from that down to $4.50 per cwt. Choice butchers' cows brought $4.25 to $5.50; fair, $4.50 to $5, and the common and inferior, $3.25 to $4.25, while bulls sold at from $3.25 to $4.25 per cwt.

There was no change in the condition of the market for small meats, prices being firm under a good demand for all lines and an active trade was done for local account in lambs at $5.75 to $6.75, and sheep at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt. Demand for calves was active, and a number of grass-fed were bought for shipment to the United States at 4c to 4½c per pound, and milk-fed stock sold to local buyers at 6½c to 7c as to quality. Hogs were easier, but prices showed no further change. The demand was good and sales of selected stock were made at $9 to $9.25, and straight lots at $8.75 to $9 per cwt., weighed off cars.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 300; fairly active and steady to easy.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD TO TAKE UP NAVAL PROBLEM

It is Said That Canada Has Been One of the Initiators of the Movement, and It is Likely That Something Entirely New Will Be Formulated.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 9.—That there will shortly be another Imperial conference with representatives of Canada and other dominions beyond the seas present, to go thoroughly into the matter of naval imperial defence, was practically admitted by the members of the Government to-day. It may take place in December, and it is understood that Canada has been one of the initiators of the movement. Just what form or basis the negotiations will take is not decided, but it is likely that something entirely new will be formulated. Australia, of course, doesn't desire any interference with her present naval programme, but the urgency of the Canadian matter seems significant to people here. There is a good deal of speculation as to the result.

WORK ON NEW STATION STOPPED

Construction on Proposed New Station at Havelock Will be Suspended

Word was received from C. P. R. headquarters at Montreal to stop all work on the new station at Havelock.

Contractor Martin was in town and stated that he was at a loss to account for the order, unless the Company had decided to alter the plans by providing for a larger building, the proposed one, he said, not having enough offices included to accommodate the needs of the officials.

It was later announced that the work was stopped owing to inability to secure the material, and that the station will be constructed on the present plans about the first of March next.

AUTO COLLISION ON KEENE ROAD

Mr. Arthur Johnston's Car Runs Full Tilt Into Mr. Pennefather's

While returning from the Keene Fair, yesterday afternoon, about five o'clock, a rear-end automobile collision occurred on the hill this side of the Village, when Mr. Arthur Johnston's big touring car ran full tilt into Mr. C. H. Pennefather's touring car. Both automobiles were homeward bound and Mr. Pennefather, who was in the lead, had decreased his speed because of the presence of several farmers' waggons and buggies on the road, which was too narrow in that locality to permit passing them easily. Mr. T. D. Mulholland was on the front seat with Mr. Pennefather, and Mr. E. L. Goodwill was on the rear seat.

Going down the hill Mr. Goodwill glanced back and saw the big car come over the brow. A few minutes later, while talking with the men on the front seat, he was shot off the hind seat and found himself ensconced on the front seat. Mr. Johnston's car had humped its radiator against the back of Mr. Pennefather's car, which suffered a broken hood, dinged the back piece, and the wind shield was also damaged. Mr. M. Kennealey is chauffeur for Mr. Johnston, and it is understood that the dust on the road shut out the view of the car ahead. While neither car was badly damaged, both of them showed signs of the collision and Mr. Pennefather's car requires a number of repairs.

Killed Herself And Her Son

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Oct. 9.—Returning to his apartments at an early hour this morning, Henry L. Schleth, Governor of Queen's County Gaol, found his wife and four-year-old son dead, by his wife's hand. She had lived in the jail ever since her marriage and it is supposed that this life made her morose and despondent.

MASSACRED BY REBELS

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9.—It is feared here that nearly two hundred Spanish, French and German subjects have been massacred in Torreon by rebels.

LARGE SUPPLY OF CATTLE

Required Eighteen Cars to Move the Stock Out

$18,000 is a large sum of money and it takes some live stock to make up that amount, but that was the sum paid out in Hastings on Friday for cattle and sheep, mainly cattle. John Collins cattle yard at the station commenced to take in the herds in large and small lots early in the morning, and gradually the lot filled up until there was hardly any room left. It took eighteen cars to take the stock out, and a special engine was sent down from Peterborough to do the shunting. The cattle came from Alnwich, Percy, Seymour, Asphodel and Belmont, Hastings being the best point to handle this shipment from.

MR. J. J. GILLMAN FELL FROM BARN

Slipped While Shingling and Fell Head First

HARWOOD, Oct. 9.—Mr. J. J. Gillman is able to be about again, having recovered from an accident he met with a short time ago when he fell from the roof of his barn. Mr. Gillman and his son were shingling the barn. The foot support snapped, and he started to slip. Unable to grasp anything that would have kept him on the roof he slid over the edge head first, striking the hammer with which he had been working. Mr. Gillman received quite a gash on his head, and was bruised across the hips. The Doctor who attended him stated that Mr. Gillman narrowly escaped a fatality, for if the wound on his head, caused by falling on the hammer, had been a shade nearer the temple it might have cost him his life.

CHURCHILL IN HOT WATER

Special Cable to The Examiner.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 9.—It is generally agreed that Winston Churchill's Dundee speech, regarding Home Rule enforcement was very ambiguous and the First Lord of the Admiralty is already in hot water with the newspapers of both parties regarding the result. The Daily Mail, Unionist, says Churchill's speech looks like an offer to exclude north east Ulster from operation of Home Rule, providing the Unionists cooperate for its enforcement in other parts of Ireland. On the other hand the Liberal newspapers insist there shall be no tampering with the unity and integrity of Ireland.

NEW MAIL DELIVERY TO LAKEHURST

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I understand that a new rural mail delivery has been agreed upon by the Government at Ottawa, by which a rural mail at a cost of $1,200 a year or thereabouts, will be sent direct from Peterborough to Lakehurst, and that the stage and rural mail route from Peterborough to Ennismore will be cut off. This taking effect on the first of January.

"Revenge is sweet" with some people apparently.

The tender for Mr. Windover for this trip is in the neighbourhood of $1,000 and it is understood that the tender of Mr. Clarkson is about $1,200. I am informed that the contract has not as yet been awarded. The "powers that be" seemingly want to be in favour of Mr. Clarkson's tender, but Mr. Windover's is in the way. As Windover's tender is the lowest, he insists on it being accepted.

Yours truly,
ONE WHO KNOWS.

Peterborough Canoe Company Are Defendants in an Action for Damages—List of Cases for the High Court Sittings

ONE ALIMONY CASE

The fall sittings of the High Court will open in Peterborough on Tuesday, October 14th. Mr. Justice Middleton will preside. Five civil actions have already been entered for trial and it is altogether probable that the list will occupy the attention of His Lordship for the remainder of the week. The docket includes one criminal case, that of a Belmont man who will appear on a charge of rape.

A Jury Case.

The first case is that of Benjamin Johnston versus Sidney Armstrong in which the plaintiff claims damages to the amount of three thousand dollars and costs of action from defendant, who it is alleged, wrongfully seduced plaintiff's daughter, Lilace Mabel Johnston. It is further alleged that in consequence of such wrongful seduction, the girl in question gave birth to a child on the fourth of January, 1912, and that the plaintiff has been put to considerable expense for medical services and nursing.

The defendant denies the obligations and puts the plaintiff to the proof thereof.

The parties to the action are farmers and reside in the Township of North Monaghan. Peck, Kerr and McElderry are acting for the plaintiffs, and Ruddy and Burnham for the defendant.

$2,000 For An Eye.

John Swanston, East City, has entered an action for damages to the amount of $2,000 against the Peterborough Canoe Company. It being allaged that the plaintiff last the sight of the left eye as a result of negligence on the part of Henry Morgan, general superintendent, and Wesley Hinds, superintendent, while the latter were exercising superintendence entrusted to them by the Peterborough Canoe Company. On the third day of June last, while engaged in sewing a canvas wrapper about a boat, together with Wesley Hinds, in preparation for shipping, plaintiff had his left eye pierced by a long needle manipulated by [illegible]. The sight was completely destroyed. Swanston claims that the injuries were caused through negligence on the part of defendants, and through a negligent and desective system in carrying on the work in their factory.

The defendants deny the implication as to negligence and state that the plaintiff at the time of the accident was in the employ of the defendants and in the course of such employment was required from time to time to participate in the work of packing canoes. The defendants submit that the action be dismissed, it being claimed it is wrongfully sustained.

Mr. G. N. Gordon is appearing for the plaintiff, and O'Connell and Corkery for the defendants.

FIRST MEETING OF LADIES' MUSICAL CLUB A SUCCESS

Held This Morning at the Residence of Mrs. John Allan—Membership is Restricted to Twenty-five

SUBJECT WAS BEETHOVEN

The first meeting of the Ladies' Musical Club held this morning at the home of Mrs. John Allan, Downie Street, was in every respect a gratifying success. Beethoven and his works were selected for the initial meeting, and the literary and musical offerings proved to have been placed in capable hands. The programme was as follows:

Introductory remarks by the President, Mrs. R. E. Wood.

Paper on Beethoven—Mrs. Bollins.

Piano Solo (variations from Beethoven)—Mrs (Dr.) Buchanan.

Violin Solo, Minuet—Miss Tomlins.

Piano Solo, Pathetique—Mrs. R. E. Wood.

Vocal solo "Wake Thy Flute"—Miss Dorothy Allen.

Piano solo, Sonata—Miss Jean Hill.

Piano duet, fifth symphony— Mrs. (Dr.) Frederick and Mrs. Fessenden.

The programme proved very delightful and proved a happy augury for future meetings which will be held every second Thursday morning at the home of one of the members. Mrs. Rollins was allowed eight minutes for her aper, in which she dealt with the spirit of the times leading up to and contemporaneous with the period in which Beethoven lived and which to an extent influenced his work. Reference to the programme would require individual mention, and every number was well rendered and thoroughly enjoyed.

50,000 WOMEN AND CHILDREN STARVING

Examiner Special:

DUBLIN, Oct. 9.—The strike situation in this City is getting worse every day. A merciless struggle is now going on between organized capital and organised labour. As is usual in wars, the worst sufferers are the women and children, and it is estistarving. It is stated that $50,000,000 women and children of workers are straving. It is stated that $50,000,000 is available to protect the vested interests here until the strikers give in. In the meantime shiploads of food are on the way from England and European countries to aid the strikers in their fight.

PRISONER WAS WELL SUPPLIED WITH MONEY

FINED $25.00

"Not guilty," said John Morgan, with a deprecating gestur, as he stretched his six feet of elongated statue to its full height. Morgan appeared in police court this morning minus a coat. When arrested Morgan carried a large roll of bills. He could not give a satisfactory account of where he got the money and at the instance of Special Officer Weller of the C.P.R., was remanded for a week. A second charge of resisting arrest will also be pressed. Weller swore that he saw accused jump off the cars at the Chamberlain Street crossing yesterday. He followed the man as far as the C.P.R. bridge and there apprehended him. When searched at the station the sum of $257 was found concealed inside his shirt. In addition to this a tin of caned milk, a razor, and other paraphernalia usually associated with tramp life, was unearthed. Morgan said that he was on his way to Montreal from Toronto. He had purchased a ticket as far as Myrtle, and walked the remainder of the journey to Peterborough.

"We'll know more about you in a week," was Magistrate Dumble's assuring remark as Morgan was removed from the dock.

Other Cases.

Samuel Young paid two dollars for the privilege of being inebriated on Simcoe Street last night. Young pleaded guilty.

Robert Hagerman who was charged with supplying liquor to Arthur Kennedy, a member of the prohibited fraternity, was fined twenty-five dollars and costs.

A local liveryman was fined two dollars and costs for allowing a horse to run at large.

Mrs. Ernest Wallace can escape fifteen days in gaol by paying ten dollars and costs into the police court treasury. The accused, who was charged with improper conduct, together with her husband and Mrs. Peter Munro, moved to Peterborough a few days ago from Campbellford. They were apprehended a few hours after their arrival. Mrs. Munro was remanded and will appear before Magistrate Dumble to-morrow.

DEATHS.

BROWN—At Springville, on October 8th 1913, Rebecca Brown, daughter of the late James Brown, North Monaghan, aged 48 years.

Funeral on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of the deceased's brother, Mr. Henry Brown, Springville, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

ATHLETICS WIN THE THIRD GAME OF SERIES HAMMERED TESREAU

Joe Bush, Connie Mack's Recruit Pitcher, Held Giants at His Mercy All Through, While Philadelphia Team Hit Big Spit-Baller Hard and Piled Up an Early Lead.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Cloudy and unsettled, with probably a light rain, but not sufficient to cause a postponement of the game, is the weather report for to-day.

POLO GROUNDS, Oct. 9.—Thirty thousand wild-eyed fans packed the Polo Grounds when the third equation in the argument between the Athletics and Giants was to be solved this afternoon. Merkle unexpectedly returned to the game to-day. Shortly before play it grew dark. Line-ups:

First Innings.

Athletics—E. Murphy out, Fletcher to Merkle, an easy grounder. Oldring single to centre, a sharp rap. Collins singled over second, sending Oldring to third on a vicious grounder. Baker singled through short, scoring Oldring, Collins taking second. McLean and Tesreau held a conference. Collins and Baker worked a double steal. They had such a lead on Tesreau's wind-up that McLean didn't attempt to throw. McInnis struck out, and when McLean droped the last strike, was tossed out to Merkle. Collins and Baker scored and Strunk reached second on Fletcher's wild throw over Merkle's head when Strunk hit to Fletcher. Three runs, three hits, one error.

Giants — Bush appeared perfectly cool. Herzog out, Barry to McInnis. Doyle bounced a hit off Bush's glove, which the youngster was barely able to knock down, but couldn't field. Fletcher was hit by a pitched ball and went to first, and Doyle to second. Doyle worried Bush by dancing off second. Burns popped to Collins, who tossed to Barry, doubling Doyle. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

Philadelphia.— Schang was called out on strikes. Bush flied to Murray. Murphy beat out a hit to Fletcher. Oldring singled to right, putting Murphy on third. Oldring stole second McLean's throw being too high. Collins singled to centre, scoring Murphy and Oldring. The stands went wild, with Baker up. Tesreau took his time with Baker, Doyle and McLean advising the pitcher. Baker forced Collins to Doyle, unassisted. Doyle made a remarkable one-hand stop of Baker's liner, rushing at full speed. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Giants—Shafer out, Collins to McInnis. Murray flied to Collins. McLean poped a high foul to Schang. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

Philadelphia—McInnis flied out to Burns. Tesreau appeared to be labouring. Strunk flied to Burns. Barry popped a foul to McLean. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Merkle flied to centre. Bush was still taking it easy. Tesreau struck out on three pitched balls. Herzog kept a rapid fire of comment directed at Bush. He popped out to Collins. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Athletics—Schang struck out. Bush was given a great hand by the crowd and singled to centre. Murphy flied to Shafer. Oldring out, Doyle to Merkle. No runs, one hit, no errors.

New York—Doyle flied out to Baker. Fletcher singled over Bush's head. Bush was working very slowly. Burns struck out, and a quick slide saved Fletcher off first when Bush tried to catch him off the bag. Fletcher stole second. Schangs's throw was a little wide. Shafer was out, Collins to McInnis. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Athletics—Collins flied to Murphy. Baker flied to Fletcher back of third. McInnis flied to Murray. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Murary walked after three and two on him, the first walk of the day. Murray stole second and Schang threw low to get him, and when the ball rolled away from Collins and into right field, Murary took third on Schang's error. McLean sent him home with a single straight through Baker, scoring Murray, the crowd hooting like mad. Cooper ran for McLean, McGraw making a quick change when he figured Bush was about to crack. Merkle flied to Murphy. Cooper stole second, Schang's throw being too high. Tesreau out, Baker to McInnis, Cooper taking third, Herzog out, Schang to McInnis. One run, one hit, one error.

Sixth Innings.

Wilson took McLean's place. Strunk flied to Burns. Barry singled to right. Schang fouled one into the left stands which would have been a homer if fair. Then he high fouled to Wilson. Bush flied to Doyle. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants— Doyle out, McInnis unassisted. Fletcher waited and walked. Burns hit into a double play, Bush to Barry to McInnis. No runs, hits or errors.

Seventh Innings.

Athletics—Murphy singled to right, his second hit. Oldring forced Murphy. Fletcher to Doyle. Doyle's inability to recover himself quickly enough to throw to first, prevented a possible double play. Tesreau gave Collins his fast ball and he drove it into the right field stand, missing a homer by inches. Collins tripled down the right foul line, scoring Oldring, a solid smash, bouncing off the stand. Baker singled through second, scoring Collins. Tesreau went back for a conference with Doyle and Fletcher. Crandall then relieved Tesreau. McInnis flied to Doyle, who touched out Baker on the line. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

The Athletics touched Tesreau for eleven hits and 7 runs in six and a third innings he pitched.

Doyle's double play unassisted was a feature, making a brilliant jump and one handed catch of a sizzling liner.

Giants—Shafer opened with a double down the left foul line, the first extra base hit registered by the Giants in the game. Murray singled to left centre, scoring Shafer. Oldring made a remarkable attempt, diving headlong, rolling over and over, but failing to make the catch. Murray was out stealing, Schang to Collins when Wilson fanned. Merkle walked, Bush's third pass. Wiltse ran for Merkle. Crandall out, Collins to McInnis. One run, two hits, no errors.

Bush faced the worst situation in the seventh up to this stage of the game. A fast throw by Shang, which nipped Murray, stopped the batting rally.

Eighth Innings.

Philadelphia—Wiltse replaced Merkle. Strunk out, Crandall to Wiltse. Baryout the same way. Schang hit a homer into the right field stand and the crowd rose to its feet as one man and howled. Home Run Baker jumped from the dug-out and met Shang, shaking hands with him. Bush fanned. One run, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Herzog lined to Baker. Doyle out to McInnis unassisted. Fletcher fouled to Schang. No runs hits or errors.

Ninth Innings.

Athletics—Murphy flied to Murray. Oldring fouled to Herzog. Collins flied to Shafer. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants — Burns flied to Murphy. Shafer walked. Murray forced Shafer, Barry to Collins. It was a close play, and Connolly's decision was hissed. Wilson fouled to Baker and the game was over. No runs, hits or errors.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled"

THURSDAY, OCT. 9, 1913

A SUBJECT FOR REFORM.

A despatch states that a prisoner awaiting trial in Elgin county jail escaped from jail under circumstances that justified his action, or, rather, perhaps, threw the blame of his escape upon the authorities. The man, named Miller, was sent down to help men who were filling the jailor's cellar with coal; and escaped through a window the coal heavers had left unclosed. The authorities are directly to blame for his escape. The jailer had no more right morally and legally—if he had actually—to send this prisoner to do menial labour than he had to pick up any man in the street for the same purpose. Miller, the prisoner, was in jail awaiting trial. Under British law he is held innocent till his assumed guilt is proven by fair trial. It was an outrage to put him to the "hard labour" to which a convicted criminal is condemned. A man detained in jail on a charge of wrong-doing, is entitled to as mild and decent treatment as is consistent with his safe detention till his time of trial. The authorities have no more right to treat an accused prisoner with indignity as if he were a convicted cirminal than they have to mete out similar treatment to the judge on the bench. We see frequent examples of men and women accused of wrong-doing—and sometimes innocent, as proven at the subsequent trial—mishandled and maltreated by policemen at the time of arrest and treated as if they were condemned criminals, instead of being what they are, innocent men and women according to the spirit of British justice. Such persons are often and generally cast into foul police cells and severely treated, when as a matter of fact, they are entitled to decent, if not deferential treatment pending their trial, which may end in their complete acquittal, after having been maltreated as criminals. The matter of the decent treatment of arrested suspects is a subject for reform.

ASQUITH STANDS FIRM.

In the matter of Home Rule the Asquith Government has declared, through the mouth of Home Secretary McKenna, that it will neither yield to minority rule nor anarchy; that the will of the representatives of the people must be supreme, that constitutional government procedure will not be displaced. This will either kill or cure the seditious mischief-making of Sir Edward Carson, on behalf of Ulster. The latter has been encouraged of late by the proposal of a conference between those favouring and those opposing Home Rule. Such a conference, it is now seen, would have amounted to nothing, could have had little result, for to be of any influence upon the Bill the government would have to acknowledge itself in the wrong by yielding some vital principle. The Ulster agitation does not represent, even in its own Parliamentary delegation a majority hostile to Home Rule. There are thirty-three constituencies in Ulster, and these are held by seventeen Home Rulers, and sixteen anti-Home Rule members, so that even Ulster sends a majority of one in favour of Home Rule to the British Parliament, and even Belfast, the hot-bed of Orangeism, sends one Home Rule member to Parliament. Sir Edward Carson and his rebellious dupes in Ulster are, therefore, fighting against a pretty formidable majority. The total population of Ulster is 1,578,572; less than half of this population, or about 780,000 is opposed to Home Rule, or in other words, a minority of a million and a half people are setting themselves against the constitutionally expressed will of the very large majority of the 46 million people of the United Kingdom. The fact is that religious bigotry is not the dominating factor in Ulster's comic opera rebellion, but landlordism and the allied interests it stands for, are using the Orange element of Ulster to pull their chestnuts from the fire; for well they know that once Ireland is given autonomous government the special privileges for ages accorded to the powerful few will have to encounter legislation in the interests of the people. The Home Rule bill will have to run the gauntlet of another parliamentary session, but there is no doubt that it will be passed again; and, if again rejected by the House of Lords, will automatically become law, according to the provisions of the Parliament Act, and receive the King's signature. We shall then see, if the Ulster agitation lasts so long, whether less than half of the population of Ulster—780,000—shall defeat the will of the 46 millions of the United Kingdom.

STICK TO OUR OWN BUSINESS.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the most eloquent of Canadian orators. He has an inexhaustable command of words; yet he does not waste them; he succeeds in using a few words to express great facts. Speaking at Ormston, Quebec, yesterday, in the Chateauguay bye-election, Sir Wilfrid, in dealing with the little accomplished under the Borden regime of two years, condensed his remarks into this compact space:

"What have they done? They have been dabbling in what they call Imperial affairs. They have forgotten Canadian interests. They remind me of the astronomer who looked so much at the stars that he fell down a well, and took his last look at the stars as he went beneath the waters. The Empire is not in danger. It does not require the assistance of anybody. Mr. Borden says: 'Save the Empire.' I say to Mr. Borden: 'Leave the Empire to Mr. Asquith and attend to our own affairs at home.'"

Here is a concise, pointed, pungent expose of a situation that many an orator would have taken half an hour to express with less effect. A nail is easily driven home—it has a point; but the same nail hammered out into sheet-iron would be useless for penetrative purposes.

THE ARGUMENT IN CHATEAUGUAY.

In spinning out the by-elections the Government has seen fit to begin with Chateauguay. The reason is obvious. Though a Liberal constituency the late Liberal member only had a majority of 40 at the last election. The Conservative candidate now is a popular local man, while his opponent is a non-resident. That ought to give the Government an advantage, and to secure this riding will, it is supposed, have a good effect in the elections following. So, some strong arguments must be used to make things sure. And the Rogers argument is brought into service.

The Minister of Public Works has secured an appropriation of $20,000 to build a dam in the river. With the promptness noticeable only at election time, the money is being expended in the way to do the most good. The correspondent of the Toronto Telegram, a Conservative paper, says in a recent letter:

"Along comes Hon. Robert Rogers, now minister of public works. Hon. Bob will tackle anything, even the Chateauguay River. So the riding which has been neglected for many years is bound to take notice of the 200 men in rubber boots who at generous pay, march up and down the river seeking some way to ward off the springtime floods."

Two hundred men in rubber boots, with "generous pay," will recognize the strength of the arguments for the Government. Other voters interested in the damming of the river, will doubtless think the arguments in favour of the naval contribution very convincing.

Nor are these all the specimens of the arguments to be used. The Liberal candidate wanted to hire a horse at a local livery. He could not get it. And he found on further inquiry that all the livery stables in the town had been engaged by the Conservatives up till election day, and each proprietor was to receive $500 for the control of his stable.

Doubtless these pecuniary arguments are being urged eloquently all over the riding. If the Liberal candidate succeeds in spite of them it will be rather remarkable. The result would certainly be highly creditable to the electors. Few people are indifferent in arguments of this kind. And if the men of Chateauguay can vote unaffected by corruption, there will be a moral victory more worthy of fame than the victory at arms achieved in the same locality by their ancestors in the war of 1812.

INSTINCTIVE OPPOSITION.

The Dominion Trades and Labour Council may have been wise in deciding not to call for the resignation of the Minister of Labour. Any other Minister under the Conservative Government would do as he did. A party traditionally and instinctively opposed to all modern developments of industrial organization need not be expected to do anything except obstruct. —Globe.

WHEN MR. BORDEN WAS A LIBERAL.

Mr. Borden is fond of misquoting what Sir Wilfrid Laurier is supposed to have said in 1891. It may be well to remind Mr. Borden that he was an ardent supporter of the Liberal party at that time, led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and had only a short time previous thereto penned a highly flattering and commendatory address to the man he now condemns. It was only in 1896 that Mr. Borden joined the Tory party, under pressure, and at a time when decent men were leaving it. There is still in existence the minute book of the Young Men's Liberal Club with Mr. Borden's signature affixed to a declaration that he was a firm supporter and would remain a staunch upholder of Liberal principles. It does not lie in Mr. Borden's mouth to charge anyone with inconsistency when his own record is so vulnerable. It would be interesting if he could be prevailed upon to explain the "pressure" under which he for the first time polled a Tory vote, if he did so, in 1896.—Halifax Chronicle.

Political Conditions Have Changed Since The General Elections Of 1911

The issue to be faced by the electors of Chateauguay and East Middlesex is very different to that which was adjudicated upon in the elections of September, 1911. To the extent that it is changed it has weakened the Conservative cause and strengthened that of the Liberals. The hypocrisy of the Conservative arguments and methods in 1911 has been thoroughly exposed, while the course of the Borden Government has in two years completely falsified every promise made by them previous to the elections, with one solitary exception, that of the Agricultural Aid Bill. This, however, was founded upon the report of the Technical Education Commission, appointed by the Laurier Government, and in itself was simply an elaboration of the policy of Hon. Sydney Fisher during his fifteen years as Minister of Agriculture. The bill was so strongly endorsed by the Liberals that they compelled the unwilling government to accept the principle of the division of the fund pro rata amongst the Provinces and the expenditure of the money by the Provincial Governments themselves.

Conservative Change of Base.

Since September, 1911, the Conservative position has been completely reversed. Their policy during the general election was to shout Imperialism and denounce reciprocity throughout the English speaking provinces, and to denounce Imperialism and the Laurier Naval policy in Quebec Province. This chicanery was not openly practiced but it has since been absolutely proven by Mr. Bourassa that the anti-naval, anti-Imperialist campaign of the Nationalists in Quebec, which robbed the Liberals of sixteen seats, was secretly financed by the Conservative party and that hysterical "Empire saver," Sir Hugh Graham. Mr. Bourassa has also proven that there was a secret compact by which the Conservatives agreed not to put up candidates in Quebec, where Nationalists were running and to support the Nationalist candidates with money and votes. This fact is so completely proven that even Mr. Borden's Ministers dare not deny it.

Mr. Borden and his colleagues thus became responsible for the wild and disloyal utterances of the Nationalists and responsible for their promises to the people of Quebec. The French Canadian electors were told: "Defeat the Laurier Government and you will defeat the Laurier Naval policy," and they were promised that if Mr. Borden should win the day nothing would be done to aid in Empire Naval defence without an appeal to the people either by a plebiscite or by an election.

Every one of these promises has been broken in cold blood. Nearly all the Nationalist members of parliament have with cynical indifference repudiated the principles upon which they were elected and have sold themselves as servile followers of the Borden-Rogers-Pelletier coalition. The promise to oppose any Imperial Naval Aid scheme has been thrown into the Conservative dust heap where it lies with the promise of a plebiscite before anything was done. The location is familiar to Hon. F. D. Monk, who also occupies a position in the Conservative discard, owing to a belated twinging of conscience in this matter.

Can the people of Chateauguay forget these things? Can they trust a Government which has been so utterly recreant to its trust and so brutally confident that it can cover the bitter pill of official wrongdoing with the sugar - coating of public works and public bribes?

Can the electors of East Middlesex forget the criminal double dealing which urged them to save the Empire by defeating reciprocity when the same political "patriots" were sending immense sums to finance the disloyal campaign in Quebec? If they can condone such conduct it will be a dark day for Canada, when the people put partizan advantage so far ahead of political honour.

BORDEN CABINET SHOULD REMOVE DUTY ON WHEAT

Toronto World (Conservative) Approvingly Quotes Manitoba Free Press to This Effect

WINNIPEG, Oct. 7.—The Free Press to-day says: The new United States tariff will have important results not only in the United States, but in this country as well. It will soon more than ever make it evident that the idea set forth so strenuously by some people in this country two years ago to the effect that it was not only possible, but imperially desirable, not to say vitally necessary, to the maintenance of British connection, that the Canadian people should hold themselves religiously aloof from "truck or trade" with neighbouring people with whom we share possession of this continent, are ideas which are false.

The multitudinous and complex relationship of trade and intercourse between the two countires are actualities which must be taken into account. We Canadians cannot, if we could, cut ourselves off as with a Chinese wall from the rest of the continent to which we belong. Inevitably such legislation in the United States as the new tariff now in operation is destined to have results of very great importance here in Canada.

The coming into operation of the new tariff in the United States has created a difficult situation for the Borden government. There is only one way in which the Borden government can meet the situation effectually and that is to take action forthwith to secure free entrance of Canadian wheat into the United States. Mr. Borden and his colleagues, if they are wise, will do this without delay, eating their words of two years ago, about the necessity of saving our Canadian wheat from contamination with the wheat grown in the United States, thereby saving Canada to the empire and incidentally also saving the railway tracks between Western Canada and Eastern Canada from becoming mere streaks of rust overgrown with grass.

The only thing for Mr. Borden and his colleagues to do now is to forget all that sort of talk and meet the situation by introducing and carrying through the Dominion parliament the necessary tariff legislation which will secure for the wheat grown in this country entry free of duty into the country to the south. — Toronto World.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE BLACKBURN ROVERS MAY WIN THE LEAGUE

Have Started Well in the Soccer Race and Many Think Sunderland Will Repeat It---Promoted Clubs Are Making a Fair Showing.

Another leaf has been turned over in football annals; more victories and more defeats have been registered in the records of the various British football clubs, and the hoary old fable of fortune or misfortune remains to be told. Hopes have either been upheld or dashed to the ground, but still, the optimistic aver that the season is quite young and Dame Fortune may still smile upon those who have not yet basked in the sunshine of her smiles. Perhaps the most hopeful of the supporters of any Old Country team are the followers of the fortunes of the league champions, Sunderland. The question that is occupying them to the exclusion of all else is whether their idols, the "Sunderland Rhoys," can repeat last year's performance this season.

Sunderland Hopeful.

To those that scoff at the performances of the team so far, the supporters of the champions answer by pointing to the beginning of last year's matches. Out of their first seven games played last season, Sunderland only managed to win two, and yet they finished up by annexing the league championship with a record of 54 points to their credit. Their full record was 38 games played, out of which they won 25, lost 9, and drew 4. They scored 86 goals and had but 43 notched against them. Aston Villa were the only team who scored as many goals, as they managed to tally 86. Manchester United and Blackburn Rovers also had 43 goals scored against them, while Manchester City were the only team to have a lower number chalked up against them, as their opponents had only found the net uon 37 occasions.

Done Better So Far.

Although the progress of the champions this year has not been one of triumph, they have done better than at the commencement of the last season. Out of five games they have managed to win two, and in their last game, when they defeated the cup holders, Aston Villa, by 2 goals to nil, they showed such improved form over that exhibited in their previous games that it is not at all surprising that their followers are forecasting for them as successful a season as they had last year when, in addition to winning the championship, they ran up to the semi-final in the cup ties.

As to whether Sunderland will uphold the fond and evident hopes of their numerous supporters is problematical, but there can be no doubt whatever of the team's ability to put up a stirring contest for premier honours.

Blackburn Rovers.

But at the present moment interest is chiefly centred around Blackburn Rovers, who are at the head of the league. The playing of the leaders has been the main topic of interest in football circles in the English-speaking world. Out of the five games they have so far engaged in Blackburn have emerged with an absolutely clean sheet, having won all their matches. They, therefore, head the league with 10 points and have scored no less than twenty goals, while but four have been registered against them. Football followers in general are wondering who will be the first club to take their measure. It will surely have to be a strong aggregation, if one can go by the manner in which the Rovers have swept down all opposition so far. Still, as I always held, football is such an unsure game, it is just likely that one of the minor teams may do the trick.

Spurs Still Second.

Tottenham must be feeling quite proud of themselves these days, for it is certainly a unique position for the North London club to find themselves in. Second place in England's premier league is certainly an enviable distinction. True, they may not stay there long, as some of the stronger teams will soon get into their real playing gait, but nevertheless the Spurs in less fortunate moment can point back and show that at one time they were in the first division, for which they were tied with Blackburn Rovers, also that for a time they undisputably occupied second place.

The Manchester United is nothing extraordinary to be in third position, as last year they finished up the season in fourth place, West Bromwich and Oldham Athletic, who have the same number of points as Manchester United, all three teams having six points apiece, have done very well this season, and if luck proves favourable they should not be very far behind the leaders at the close of the season.

MATTHEWSON'S GREAT WORK OVERTOPPED ALL THE REST

Peerless Big Six Pitched Athletics Into Helplessness With Superb Skill and Supported That Skill With a Nerve That Knew No Flinching.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8. — The Giants and Athletics, in the second game of the world's series this afternoon, stood up toe-to-toe through nine scoreless innings—innings full of splendid pitching by Mathewson and Plank, and of support in keeping with their own sterling work. Then came the tenth, and with it the break, three runs for the Giants and a victory for that team, with the final score 3 to 0 in their favour.

A feature-laden game was this, in which the Giants evened up the reckoning of games won with the pugnant Macks. Before the National Leaguers were returned the winners defeat was perilously near to them more than once, and in avoiding that fate there was one participant whose work, whose port in the battle, overtopped all the rest.

That man was Mathewson. His was in a measure a personal triumph. No greater ever has been achieved by a single player in a game. In shutting out the hard-hitting Athletics on their own field he pitched them into helplessness with the same superb skill with which he beat a far less formidable team of Athletics eight years ago. To-day's will always be regarded as one of the most memorable of accomplishments for the old fellow, who not before this year has shown more commanding skill than he did to-day, and who supported that skill with a nerve that knew no flinching.

Twice in the game "Matty" was in dire straits. Had he wavered in the least on those occasions, the game would have gone against him. In the first inning the Athletics had two on bases with none out, and yet they could not score. In the ninth inning—the most dramatic period of a dramatic game—they had men on second and third and none out, and yet couldn't score.

The ninth inning situation was, of course, the more critical of the two. It was do or die with the Giants then. Any shrinking, any yielding, the least out-cropping of weakness, and the game was gone. Indeed, it was close to being gone anyway, for nom atter how firmly the Giants stood their ground, any sort of a hit by the Athletics, who are too potent with the ash to be repelled often under similar circumstances, and the American Leaguers would have had two victories on their side of the ledger.

But Mathewson, with craft on his part and on the part of his fielders, and with cool steadiness on the part of both, again sent the home brigade to the field empty-handed, whereas in the New York half of the tenth Plank, who up to that time also had pitched one of the best games of his career, succumbed a hit to the stress of conflict, one of his fielders—Collins—made a bad wobble, and a caravan of three Giants circled to the plate.

Giants' "Subs" Made Good.

As Merkle was too lame from yesterday's mishap to his ankle to go into the game, and as Meyers hurt his hand in practice shortly before the batteries were announced, McGraw had to make changes which apparently would weaken his team. Apparently only, for in reality the changes didn't weaken it in the least. Snodgrass started the game at first, but after making a base hit limped so painfully while trying to run that he was taken out and was succeeded by Wilste. The latter did fine work at first base.

In that wiry, hawk-like way of his, he proved a custodian of the first junction whose work would not have been surpassed. He handled difficult drives well, and in the throbbing ninth inning he threw out two men in succession at the plate. The other understudy who did himself proud was Larry McLean. He made two hits, one of them being the inception of the New York rally in the tenth, and from the start he buckled down to the task of handling "Matty" with seriousness of purpose and close application. His back-stopping was as good as Meyers could have done, and the "Chief," for the day at least, wasn't missed.

Mathewson was a versatile contributor to his team's success. A ringing single from his pestle—and there were two strikes on him at the time—rushed the first run of the game into the, until then, empty corral. In this batting bee McLean and Fletcher helped with singles, in which connection it may be mentioned that, contrary to yesterday's contest, the longest hit produced was not for more than a single. No extra base jolts appeared. That was one angle of the gruelling pitchers' duel which the tussle between Plank and Matty was.

"MATTY" IS MODEST.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 9. — Christy Mathewson, who is generally credited with winning yesterday's game for the Giants, says: "That game, yesterday, was the toughest and most satisfactory that I have ever been through. The Giants fought their way to victory after the other team was so sure it had won that the players began to pick up their sweaters and pack up their bats."

Matty goes on to say he was weakening and had but little left when the break came in the Giants' favour.

Eighty Voices In Attendance At Practice

St. George's Choral Society Had a Big Turnout

The St. George's Choral Society held their fourth practice of this season in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday last, when the register showed an attendance of over eighty voices. There are sixty-eight numbers in Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," but about forty only are generally used. Of the twenty choruses to be sung by the chorus, the following have been put in practice:

No. 2—'Mourn, Ye Afflicted Children.'
8—'Oh, Father Whose Almighty Power.'
11—'We Come, in Bright Array.'
27—'Fallen is the Foe.'
46—'We Hear, We Hear.'
58—'See the Conquering Hero.'
60—'Sing Unto God.'
68—'Hallelujah, Amen.'

The following choral numbers for the forth coming concert are also in practice:

'The Village Blacksmith,' part song; 'The Gypsy Chorus' (Balfe), ladies; 'Admiral Tom,' part song, gentlemen; "Nautical Airs," Fantasia; 'The Merry Old Maid,' glee.

It will at once be seen that it is by no means an idle two hours' work on each practice night, and the welcome news is forthcoming that the special emergency committee have been obliged to hastily order extra copies of the works in hand, as there was a shortage on Tuesday last, which the committee will promptly remedy. In view of the brilliant programme, which will entail an enormous amount of hard work this season, the committee are heartily thankful for the practical sympathy and help of the Board of Education and the Press. There is always a member of the committee at the door on practice nights to welcome new singers or visitors.

Norwood Curlers Elect Officers

There was an enthusiastic meeting of curlers held in the Agricultural office, Norwood, on Oct. 6th, when the officers and executive committee were appointed, complete registration of members decided upon, and other important business arranged amicably to all concerned.

The club fee is again fixed at 25c. per member, and the first twenty-four members who hand their fee to the secretary will be registered members of the Ontario Curling Association and eligible to take part in the District Cup and Ontario Tankard competitions.

For the District Cup this year there are eight official groups and for the Ontario Tankard there are sixteen. Group No. 2 is made up as follows: Peterborough, Norwood, Cannington, Keene, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Port Hope, Hastings.

Umpire for District Cup, Mr. R. M. Waddell, for Ontario Tankard, Mr. J. D. Flavelle.

There will be another meeting of the Norwood Club after the membership is in, when skips will be appointed and rinks drawn up as evenly as possible for the local competitions, which from all appearances will be more keenly contested this year than ever.

Officers elected: W. E. Pakenham, President; J. R. McKelvie, Vice-Pres.; T. E. Finlay, Secretary; Chas. I. Fuller, Treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. A. Bresult and Mr. and Mrs. H. Robb, Patrons and Patronesses. Rev. M. Cree, R. G. Lawlor, H. W. Nicoll, the President and Vice-President, Executive Committee.

Afraid Of Doing Too Much

By RUTH CAMERON

At five minutes of nine the other morning I met a little stenographer lady whom I know just leaving the shopping district, about a half mile away from her office.

"Won't you be late?" I asked.

"Oh Yes, I suppose I will," she said, cheerfully. "I stopped to do a little shopping, I often do. You see," she added, falling into step beside me with no appearance of haste whatever, "I don't get paid half what I ought and so I'm not going to work my head off. If I were paid properly I'd try to be prompt, but as it is I take my own time."

You can imagine, can't you, just how likely that little stenographer is to ever get "paid properly?"

The fear of doing too much work is not confined to foolish, little rattle-brained stenographers. It is to be found everywhere—that is, everywhere in the ranks of the failures. The successful man is too busy and too fond of work for accomplishment's sake, and not merely for the sake of the money it brings, to be always weighing and balancing lest he give his employer overweight.

A man who is close to the top of the business ladder said to me the other day, "I never worked any harder in my life than I did when I was getting $6 a week. I often stopped at that office until 10 or 11 at night. The other boys would kick. They'd say they weren't going to work themselves to death for $6 a week. But I didn't work myself to death, and I didn't have to do it very long for $6 a week. Everywhere I've been I've done my best work, no matter what I was said. If I found I wasn't getting ahead, I got out and went where I could make more progress, but so long as I stayed in any place I did my best work."

No man with that spirit and any brains at all could fail.

Of course it is not right for any man to continually give the full force of his brains and energy to an unappreciative and stingy employer. But the solution is not for the worker to become slack in his methods and do an inferior grade of work; that it hurts him as much as it does his employer.

He should make himself valuable, give his employers a chance to recognize and appreciate that value, and if they do not, find someone who will. There are always enough openings for a man who is willing to put the whole of himself into the work.

RUGBY

The Rugby Club will practice at 6 o'clock to-night at Central Park in preparation for Saturday's game with Parkdales, in Toronto. Every player is expected out in order that arrangements can be made for the trip.

About the worst thing that can happen a baby is to take first prize in a baby show. The poor youngster is never allowed to forget the incident.

Wireless telephone invention the other day carried a conversation 300 miles. Married men regard the possible development of this idea with something akin to awe.

Refusing to eat a copy of his own paper, a Kentucky editor was shot by an indignant citizen whom he had written up. It may have been an extra large issue, with a double supplement.

Council Will Take Action

Against Unlicensed Vendors Who Are Said to be Operating in Norwood—Will Make a Test Case

A couple of parties residing in Dummer Township, who have been bringing in baled hay from outside points by rail and selling it in Norwood, were asked by the village council to pay the usual license of $50 in accordance with the Transient Traders By-law. The parties, it is stated, declined to put up the license fee. Action has consequently been taken to make a test case of the matter. The case will probably be heard on Thursday of this week before County Police Magistrate Edmison.

The by-law above referred to is based on chapter 43 of the Ontario Statutes, section 420, which requires transient traders and other persons whose names are not entered on the assessment roll in respect of income or business assessment, and who offer goods, wares or merchandise for sale, to pay a license fee before commencing to trade. The statutory definition of a "transient trader" includes any person who has not resided continuously in the municipality for at least three months next preceeding the time of his commencing such business there. The sum paid for a license shall be credited to the person paying it on account of taxes thereafter payable by him. In reference to hawkers and pedlars we also notice that the new statutes 1913 prohibit persons not resident within the county from selling tea, coffee, dry goods, jewellery, etc., therein without a license. Paragraph (f) of section 416 further says: "Where the council of a town not separated from a county has passed a by-law under this paragraph, a by-law of the county shall not be in force in the town while the by-law of the town remains in force."

It will be remembered that under an amendment to the Assessment Act passed a few years ago, a special tax of 35 per cent. of the value of the premises occupied is imposed upon merchants and other business men, over and above the ordinary tax.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND KEENE AGRICULTURAL FAIR

Fine Weather and a Large List of Entrants Contribute to the Success of the Fair Which Was Accounted For Yesterday—A Fine Showing of Horses and Cattle.

The Keene Agricultural Fair was recorded yesterday. Chaperoned by a bright sun and an invigorating breeze, the Fair assumed proportions beyond the most sanguine expectations of its promoters. The crowd was large and good natured whether caught in the masses that congregated around the show ring or sandwiched in between the hot dog booth and the peanut vendor. Everyone succeeded in maintaining the holiday spirit and a propensity to enjoy themselves to a superlative extent. Next to the crowd the finest thing was the weather. It was the best made-in-Canada brand.

The people began to arrive on the grounds early and by 3 o'clock the Secretary of the Fair, Mr. A. Shearer, was able to report an attendance considerably in excess of the previous year. It was evident that the attendance was regulated by the population of the district, not by the popularity of the Fair. The Alderville brass band of Roseneath occupied a position on the Grand Plaza, and with the sky as a canopy, rendered a varied programme of popular airs. A piper, attired in full regalia, made several laps around the grounds to the skirl of the bagpipes. He was ably assisted by a coterie of drummers belonging to the Alderville band. The piper in question constituted a section of the outside talent that was billed to appear in connection with a Scotch concert that was given in the town hall in the evening.

The Horses.

To the great mass of visitors, however, it was the horses, and the greatest activity was manifest around the show ring where the animals were subject to the scrutiny of the judges. This is one of the big features of the Keene Fair, and this year it attracted more attention than usual because of the number and quality of the horses and cattle on exhibition this year greatly exceeded that of former years.

The Races.

The racing card consisted of a free-for-all and a green race. The former was won by "Susie Hall" in a comparatively easy manner. The results were as follows:

"Susie Hall," owned by Dr. Johnston, Peterborough . . 1 1 1
"Burbourn Brook," owned by W. A. Elmhurst, Keene. . 2 2 2
"Harry Direct," owned by Dr. Johnston, Peterborough . . 3 3 3
"Ora Tariff,' owned by Chas. Fife, Otonabee. 4 4 4

The free-for-all race was for a purse of $60, and the green race, twenty dollars. Only two started in the last named race. They were, namely: "Dr. Johnston," owned by Charles Fife, of Otonabee. 1 1 1
"Maude Direct," owned by W. A Elmhurst of Keene . . . 2 2 2

Mr. Frank Montgomery acted as starter and Messrs. J. Clancy and R. Munro of Peterborough acted in the capacity of judges.

List of Donations.

Messrs. Matthews-Laing, Limited, Peterborough, cash, $6; Peter Hamilton Mfg. Co., goods, $5; J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., cash, $5; Messrs. Grafton Co., goods, value, $10; Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co., goods, value $3; D. F. Drummond, Esq., cash $2; Messrs. R. Hall & Son, goods, value $5; The Peterborough Hardware Co., goods, $2.50; T. Barrie, Esq., merchant, goods, value $3; C. Gunsolus, Esq., goods, value, $1.50; Messrs. W. Lech & Son, goods, value $2.50; W. Higgins, Esq., goods, value $2.50; Messrs. Warne Bros., goods, value $2.50; The Kingan Hardware Co., goods, value, $5; R. Campbell, cash, $3; L. Beerley, Esq., cash $2; G. T. Gall, Esq., cash, $3; Mr. A. St. A. Smith, Bank of Toronto, Keene, cash $5; Mr. A. Dickson, merchant, cash $2; Geo. Gillespie, Esq., merchant, cash $2; Messrs. R. Simpson & Co., Toronto, goods, $2; R. R. Hall, Esq., solicitor, cash, $5; V. Eastwood, Esq., cash $2.

The Main Building.

The exhibits in the main building were numerous and the standard of quality which was represented made the work of judging the exhibits a difficult one. An exceptionally fine sample of apples was shown as also potatoes and many other varieties of vegetables. The fancy work department was well stocked and the display elicited much favourable comment from those who were fortunate to see it.

There was a marked absence of concessionaires on the grounds. The man-eating monstrosity, captured in the jungles of Central Africa, was an unknown quantity. Even the big and almost indispensable snake was conspicuous by its absence.

BULBS RECEIVED

Bulbs for distribution to the members of the Peterobrough Horticultural Society have been received and are being delivered this week. Any member not receiving his allotment within the next few days is requested to call the Secretary's attention to the fact.

For the benefit of those who may not be familiar with the handling of these winter and spring flowering bulbs the following simple directions for handling the same are given.

The general treatment of Hyacinths, Daffodils and Narcissi is the same. A light, porous soil just suits them — some garden loam, leaf mould and sand mixed together. Use 5 inch pots for Hyacinths and Narcissi. Place some pieces of broken pot in the bottom so as to secure free drainage, and then fill up to within two inches of the top, set a bulb on the soil in the centre of the pot, then fill in with soil until the bulb is about two-thirds covered. Set the pot down once or twice with a sharp rap so as to settle the soil and bulb down well. This will leave sufficient space for watering. When the potting is finished as above described, give water sufficient to wet the soil all through.

The pots should now be placed in a dark cool place, to remain several weeks while the bulbs are making roots, for it is necessary that these should form before the growth of the leaves and flower. For from six to eight weeks will be sufficient to fill the pot full of roots and care should be taken during this time to see that pots do not dry out. Some varieties root faster than others and will show signs of leaf growth, and these can be taken up first to the light, while the others are left to being up later thus causing them to bloom at different times, successively over a number of weeks. They should be placed in a good light in a temperature of from 50 to 60 degrees and freely ventilated on fine days.

The Science of Servant finding is now reduced to the last word of Simplicity—OUR Small Want Ads act as a "Magnet for Maids."

Result Of Cadet Inspection

Seven were absent on leave and seven had left school for the West.

HOW ABOUT THE BUCKHORN DAM?

Buckhorn, Oct. 7, 1913.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The people of this locality would like to know when the work will be resumed with regard to the new sluice in connection with the Buckhorn dam.

The coffer dam just erected by the Government, seemingly will not hold back the water, and it continues to rush in the pit more rapidly than removed, and it can not be lowered with the pump.

The ratepayers are watching to see how their money is being wasted, and they are quite satisfied that everything that is being done by the Government is costing three or four times as much as it should. If spending money is the main object of the Government, which seems to be, the bridge might be constructed at Gannons Narrows, where it might be of some use.

Yours truly,
LOOKER-ON.

Mr. Morrison was born in Scotland and the family have no relatives in America. The sincere sympathy of all goes out to the bereaved family

Contractor Martin of Smith Falls, has commenced work on the new station at Havelock, which, he informs us, will cost at least $50,000. It will be 148 x 32 feet in dimension, and two storeys high. The foundation will be of concrete, with the first storey of stones and the upper of special Milton pressed brick. It will be situated directly east of the present building, but much nearer the street line; in fact, the concrete platform, 8 feet wide on the north side, will border on the street. On the south side a concrete platform 850 feet long and from 12 to 24 ft. wide will afford ample accommodation for traffic and passenger service. The building, as may be presumed from the cost, will be a most modern structure, and will be fitted up with every convenience, including electric lights, hot water heating, lavatories in marble and oak offices, finished in oak and burlap. The upper portion will be utilized for offices for departmental heads. A remarkable coincidence is that Mr. Martin built the first station in Havelock and the first engine house. He also removed the station when it was situated at the west end of the present site, using a flat car for the purpose.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bound attended the Warkworth Fair last week.

Mr. Jack Hastings of Toronto was renewing friends in town last week

Mr. Leonard Bennett of Lindsay was in town for the week end.

A Rap at Canadian Theatres.

Wilton Lackaye, the well-known actor, was recently touring through Canada with his company in "Fine Feathers." He found the Canuck theatres hardly as comfortable as could be wished, and tells of one show-shop in a Western city where his dressing room would have made the Count of Monte Cristo's dungeon look like Marie Antoinette's boudoir by comparison.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Oct. 8.—G. T. R. Brakeman Thomas Riley, whose home is in Wichita, Kansas, was formally charged to-day with murdering Geo. Blackburn, and committed for trial at the December Assizes. Riley appears to be very greatly worried over his position in which he finds himself in, as a result of his drunken shooting escapade. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of which he is a member, will provide for his defence.

Would Favour Day Schools

The appended letter from Mr. E. G. Patterson, of the Canadian General Electric Works, has been received by the Board of Education:

Dr. Morrison, Chairman Board of Education:

I would like to offer a suggestion to yourself and the Board of Education with reference to manual training and technical work.

As a member of the sub-committee you will probably remember that while supporting night schools as a temporary means to get started on the above, I made the statement that I especially favoured day schools, and the more I think of it the more I am in favour of them. If we are going to start day schools at any time, it means that room facilities must be provided. To my mind no city or town in Canada requires technical and manual training schools as badly as Peterborough.

The object of this letter, is if possible, to induce the Board of Education to hold the West Ward school property which they own andw hich no doubt can be changed to suit the requirements of the work. I am afraid if this property is sold, the time necessary to provide other rooms will be too long and probably there would be difficulty in getting the citizens to approve of spending the money necessary to erect a building especially adapted for the purpose.

I therefore hope that the Board will seriously consider holding this property for the purpose mentioned.

E. G. PATTERSON.

Mr. Patterson's suggestion was regarded by the Board as a possible one. The matter was referred to the Property Committee.

Tweeds and Serges Are Always Stylish and Correct

THEREFORE, WE WOULD MAKE MENTION of the excellent selection of these fabrics that is to be obtained in the dress goods department.

For Serge of course, there are a thousand and one uses; Skirts, Coats, Suits, Dresses and things for the children, all looking remarkably well in this material, to say nothing of the splendid wear that good serges will give.

Commencing with those of British make, we have some beautiful All Wool Serges in Blue, Red, Brown, Grey, Hunter's Green and Black, which are 50 inches wide and range in price $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75 a yard.

These can be obtained in the wide or narrow wale, the finish being hard and durable.

And there is another line of Cheviot Serges, 42 inches wide, in all the afore-mentioned colours, which is of special value at 59c yard.

Cavendish Corduroy Velvet

The smaller cord is 69c a yd. while the larger wale in Navy and Brown, is only 59c

The New Tweeds

There is a charming diversity of colour and texture in the New Tweeds, some of the rougher weaves having weight enough for the heavy winter coat.

And because browns seem to have a preference this season, one will find upon the shelves, many bolts of this serviceable colour, in a variety of two tone and stripe effects.

In the same substantial finish, there is also some excellent Greys, and Blues, the widths running 54 and 56 inches, and the price $1 25 and $1.50 per yard.

The garments in the illustration can be secured by number in Ladies' Home Journal Patterns 15c.

Smooth, Hairless Skin Follows This Treatment

(Toilet Tips)

Among the home-beauty helps, none perhaps is more important than that which will free the skin from obnoxious hairy growths. A simple method to rid the skin of unsightly hairs is to make a paste by mixing powdered delatone with water and applying for about 3 minutes, then rubbing off. With it comes every bit of hair and when the skin is washed it will be firm and free from blemish. Results are more satisfactory if the delatone is bought in an original package.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Poultry Association is Arranging for Annual Show

Notwithstanding the fact that the Peterborough Poultry Association's annual exhibition will not be held until the second week in January, there was a great response to the call for a special meeting of the directors, which was held last night. All the officers and directors were present, and when President Fred Holmes called the meeting to order they immediately got down to business with seemingly more enthusiasm than ever before in the history of the Association.

The amount of work involved in making preparations and the holding of a poultry show is far greater than any person not closely connected with the same, has any idea of, therefore in order to be in readiness the officers and directors have made an earlier start this year than is usually their custom. In view of the fact that the entries have been steadily increasing year after year, it is now found necessary to build more coops, and a committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. Robson, Kelly, Abbott, Brault, Lush, Butler, Grose and Holmes to purchase material and erect coops to accommodate several hundred more birds. This will give ample room for the coopage of 1500 birds, which number the association is hoping to have on exhibition next January.

Other committees appointed were as follows:

Printing Committee—Messrs. Paxman and Holmes.

Committee to Revise Prize List—Messrs. Holmes, Paxman and Kelly.

There will be about ten or twelve new classes added to the list this year, also a slight increase in prize money for the heavier classes.

Quite a discussion arose over the discarding of the old-time prize card and introducing the more up-to-date system of giving ribbons instead. It was finally left in the hands of Joe Kelly and Geo. Paxman to inquire into the matter and report back to the executive at the next meeting.

D. A. Fortune, M. P., Liberal for Montcalm.

Albert Sevigny, M. P., Conservative for Dorchester.

La Fortune challenged Sevigny to contest Montcalm. His challenge was accepted and both members have resigned their seats for the new battle.

BRIDESMAIDS ENTERTAINED

The following is an extract from the Brantford Expositor of Oct. 4, which will be read with interest by the young people of this City who know Miss Mary Watt, a frequent visitor to Peterborough:

Bridesmaids Entertained.

A charming reception and tea in honour of her five bridesmaids (all in the city this week) was given by Miss Mary Watt, on Wednesday afternoon—the house a bower of sweet blooms, and her mother, Mrs. Thomas Watt, and Miss Mary Burton McLean, of Winnipeg, receiving with her. Upstairs the bridesmaids were in charge of the trousseau room—a fascinating showing of beautiful things, and where one stopped to chat with Miss Lottie Large, Miss Madeliene Ward (London), Miss Alma Knapman (Peterborough), Miss Annie Burden (Toronto) and Miss Margaret Goold (Uxbridge) before going down to the tea room, with its bridal decorations of white lily of the valley while bells and slippers, the dainty refreshment table presided over by Mrs. A. A. Popplewell, who poured the tea and coffee. Mrs. George Watt ushered the guests to the dining room. Mrs. C. J. Watt cut the ices and Mrs. J. Watt (Chicago), Mrs. George D. Watt, Mrs. David Wright and Mrs. Harris Popperwell formed a very attractive bevy of assistants.

Two dainty little girls opened the door on entering. Miss Muriel and Miss Margaret Watt, and about sixty immediate friends were thus charmingly entertained.—Brantford Expositor.

JAPANESE TOWELING.

Runners For Breakfast Tables That Are Artistic and Durable.

Japanese toweling can be put to many interesting uses. It is cheap, artistic in design and easy to launder so it ought to be popular.

The most usual way to make use of it is to make it into runners for the breakfast and luncheon table. These are strips long enough to go through the center of the table, from end to end, and cross it at intervals, so that each end of each runner is used for a place. The ends can be hemstitched hemmed or feather stitched.

Instead of runners, doilies can be made of this toweling. Make them square and hemstitch them on two sides. Napkins for use with runners can be made in the same way. They are attractive and easy to launder and save wear and tear on more expensive damask.

Runners for sideboard and serving table of this toweling are attractive for use in the simple dining room furnishing in blue. They can be finished like the table runners.

Toweling can also be made into very decorative curtains. These can be hemstitched at the end which hangs free, and hemmed to go over brass rods. If a valance is desired, it can be made of a strip of toweling running lengthwise across the top of the window. This sort of valance will not need hemstitching and seaming, as one made of sections of the toweling running up and down would.

Attractive couch covers are made of several lengthwise strips of the toweling fagoted together with dark blue if the design is in blue, as it usually is. For use on a couch covered in this way, cushions can also be covered with the toweling. Two strips of the toweling, fagoted together, are used for the cushion slip cover.

CONSERVATIVE CONVERT TO RECIPROCITY

The Ottawa Citizen (Conservative) Favours Reciprocity and Caustically Criticises "Protectionists"

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—Cabinet Ministers are to-day threatening to read The Ottawa Citizen out of the party, and to cut it off the patronage list. The Citizen, which has shown of late unmistakable signs of independent thought where the Government's high tariff policy is concerned, came out to-day with a clear-cut reciprocity editorial apropos of the new American fiscal revolution, and with this editorial was coupled another advocating practically free trade with Great Britain.

In the leading editorial the Citizen says in part: "Tariff reform is now an accomplished fact in the United States. This alone will show how effectually President Wilson has overthrown the outer stockade of special privileges in America. If not a rout, the Underwood bill is at least a reverse to the monopoly interests fattening behind the protective tariff.

Remarkable Point of View.

"The new fiscal policy of President Wilson should have a noticable effect ere the next annual report of the Department of Trade and Commerce. Judging by current comments a remarkable point of view would appear to provail in Canada regarding imports and exports and the policy of protective tariffs.

"For every dollar's worth of grain taken from Canada there must be imported at least a dollar's worth of goods in exchange—more than a dollar's worth if the transaction is to be a profitable one for the Canadian producer. Yet there is an opinion being circulated freely through the press that the Underwood tariff will benefit the people of Canada, because it may be possible to send produce into the United States without granting any concessions, by reducing the customs tax in Canada. The citizens of the Republic have decided to cease taxing themselves by a customs tariff every time they import foodstuffs. In return for Canadian foodstuffs they will send for Canadian foodstuffs they will send machinery, clothing, coal—whatever the people of Canada desire. The tariff will not be reduced in Canada. No concessions! What a triumph! Canadian citizens will continue to tax temselves as usual. Certainly the United States consumer will take more Canadian grain and farm produce. But Canadians, generous people, will refuse to import anything in return, at most will take as little as possible, and will insist upon paying a tariff toll every time an exchange is made."

$2,000 CLAIMED FOR LOSS OF AN EYE

ages and costs for breach of promise. The plaintiff was during part of the years 1912-13 employed as a domestic on the farm of one Sanderson in the Township of Cavan. It is also stated that defendant who was also employed with Sanderson during the course of such employment agreed to marry the plaintiff. This, it is said, he later refused to do.

Mr. R. E. Wood is appearing for the plaintiff.

No appearance has been entered to the writ of summons, therefore interlocutory judgment has been duly entered, with damages to be assesed

Cordova Mines.

The Northern Electric Company of Toronto has entered action against the Cordova Mines, Limited, to obtain judgment against defendants for the sum of $802,53, and to have a mortgage set aside that was made by the defendants, Cordova Mines, Limited, to the defendants, W. G. Mackenzie, a physician residing in Marmora, and William Hughes, a lumber dealer, for the sum of $60,000. The defendants named in the action are Cordova Mines, Limited, Peter Kirkequard, William Hughes and W. G Mackenzie. It is alleged that the said mortgage is illegal and is a fraud as against the plaintiffs and other creditors of the defendants. The action also calls for an order and judgment requiring the defendants, W. G. Mackenzie and William Hughes to account for and repay all moneys received by them under said mortgage.

The defendants in their statement of defence admit the legality of the amount claimed and owing by the Cordova Mines Company to the plaintiff. They deny that the defendant company is insolvent, although it has not the funds in hand to pay its debts in full. The defendants allege that the property and assets of the company are quite sufficient to meet all liabilities and would have done so had not the operation of the company been suspended by reason of litigation in connection with the mortgage given by the company.

Johnston, McKay, Dodds and Grant of Toronto are acting for the company, and Kerr, Bull, Shaw and Montgomery for defendants.

Alimony Case.

Mary Kearns has entered suit for alimony from her husband, Frank Kearns, a mail carrier, residing in Peterborough. The plaintiff who was married to the defendant on the 15th day of November, 1910, claims that defendant abused her and threatened to kill her and compelled her to escape on several occasions from him by going to the neighbours.

The plaintiff claims alimony from the defendant, and also interim alimony, sufficient under the circumstances. The plaintiff also claims a declaration and judgment that the defendant is a trustee and holds for the benefit of the plaintiff, a house and lot in Peterborough, as prescribed in the claim. The defendants deny the allegations.

Mr. G. N. Gordon is appearing for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Stewart and O'Connor of Lindsay will appear for the defendants.

PASSIONATE APPEAL BY SULZER'S LAWYER

Special to The Examiner:

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Contending that the relief from the office of William Sulzer would substitute anarchy for law in the State of New York, Louis Marshall made a dramatic appeal for the acquittal of the impeached Governor in the High Court to-day. It was as much an appeal to the passions of the jurors as an argument in favour of his client. In dramatic tones he placed the responsibility for proceedings on men whom the Governor had prevented from looting and despoiling the empire state.

WEDDING BELLS

WELLINGTON—KOYL.

A pretty wedding was celebrated Tuesday, Sept. 30th, at the home of Mrs. R. B. Koyl, 702 Queen Street, Saskatoon, when her daughter, Miss Muriel Bigelow Koyl, formerly of Lindsay, became the bride of Mr. Frederick Wm. Wellington, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Brown. The bridal couple were attended by Mrs. A. Leon Koyl, matron of honour, Miss Lucile Koyle, bridesmaid, and Mr. Leonard Morrison of Toronto, best man. Miss Mary Hollindrake played Beethoven's Moonlight sonata as the guests assembled and the bridal march from "Lohengrin" as the bride entered the drawing room.

The newly married couple left at midnight for the Rockies. They will sail on October 8th from Vancouver on the Empress of Russia for Hong Kong. Their future home will be in Toronto. The bride's going-away costume was of navy blue cloth with which she wore a plumed hat of taupe velours with touches of burnt orange. Among the bride's gifts was a silver jewel case, from the Fitzgerald chapter, I.O.D.E., of which she was one of the vice-presidents.—Lindsay Post.

OBITUARY

MISS REBECCA BROWN.

The death occurred suddenly last evening at the residence of her brother, Mr. Henry Brown, Springville, of Miss Rebecca Brown, daughter of the late James Brown of North Monaghan.

The deceased was forty-three years of age and was born in the above township. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She was a member of the Methodist Church Springville. Four brothers and one sister are left to mourn her loss. The brothers are John and Henry of North Monaghan, and Thomas and James of this City. The sister is Mrs. Fred Anderson of this City.

PRAISE IN AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS WILL NOT INCREASE SAYS COCKSHUTT

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.—That abolition of the United States duty in agricultural implements will not result in any considerable amount of invasion of the market by Canadian manufacturers is the opinion of W. F. Cockshutt, member for Brantford, who is in the Capital on departmental business. Cockshutt, who is one of the strongest protectionists among the Conservative ranks in parliament, does not think that Canada will compete to any great extent even when free entry has been established. "Our implement industry on this side is comparatively small when compared with their's on the other side," said he; "where we manufacture 10 they manufacture 100."

PRIME PEACHES GROWN IN PETERBOROUGH

When we recall winter coal bills and blizzards we can hardly realise that we in Peterborough are in the peach belt. Yet the chronicler of the fact has before him in proof of it a cluster of fine Peterborough Crawford peaches, like a gigantic bunch of yellow grapes. They were left in by Mrs. James Thornton, 270 Rubidge Street, grown in her garden, from Crawford peach nuts, planted by herself. They are late Crawfords and as natural in this latitude, are not thoroughly ripe, nor will they ripen—it is a shameful reflection on our civilization that the peaches had to be plucked before they were ripe, in order to save them from the depredations of villainous boys.

Did You Notice This?

RAILWAYS FAVOURED

Their Taxes Are Far Too Low Say Municipal Delegates

WILL DEMAND REFORMS

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—"The Assessment Act provides now rural and urban property shall be taxed, and the interpretation clause sets in the provincial act. If the assessment were applied to railway property as it is applied to rural and urban property, the whole question would be disposed of." J. G. Merrison of Arthur, secretary of the Dominion Grange, made the above observation during a discussion in the City Hall yesterday on railway taxation. There were about 40 delegates from various counties in Ontario, who gathered in the council chamber to investigate the cause of excessive assessment, and to attempt to discover by what means the situation could be alleviated.

H. J. Pettypiese of Forest presented statistics on railway assessments in Canada. On a total railway investment in Canada of $1,600,000,000, the taxation would be about one mill, while on a similar amount of investment in the United States it would be about six mills. The speaker said he had secured figures from a U. S. railway manager, and they illustrated the relative positions of the farmer and the Grand Trunk Railway in Canada.

"Railway taxation in Michigan" was the subject undertaken by C. A. Parker. He stated that there was a vast difference in the revenue collected from railroads in Ontario and that collected in Michigan. In Michigan there were 9,941 miles of roads, valued at $24,126 per mile. In Ontario there were 8,321 miles of road, which on the basis of the Michigan mile value, would be worth $200,000,000. When the Ontario average rate of $17 per acre is applied it would seem as if $3,500,000, but the present is only collecting $970,000.

The meeting was opened by a formal address by W. D. Gregory of Toronto.

He produced figures to show that the 630 miles of Grand Trunk Railway running through the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario pay $69,000 per annum, or 4472 per mile, while the 5,000 miles of Grand Trunk road through various states in the Union are taxed $288,265, or $478 per mile per annum. "Why should this be?" asked Mr. Gregory. "If the railways pay less than their share, the general property owners have to pay their own taxes together with an amount equal to that which the railways evade."

The result of the conference was the drafting of a plan of argument to be advanced when the deputation goes to the Provincial Government today to press for assessment changes.

Acquitted of Grave Charge.

GALT, Oct. 10.—Several months ago William Flood, of Galt, aged 20, was arrested and committed for trial on the charge of outraging a girl of tender years. At the trial before Sir John Boyd at the Waterloo assizes, a jury heard the case, the charge having been reduced by the crown to indecent assault. The prisoner was acquitted. A strong local public feeling was created over the case in which an innocent youth suffered arrest, imprisonment and the odium of a public trial on a grave charge.

Official Opening of Canal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. — President Wilson at two o'clock to-day will press a button and flash to the works on the isthmus of Panama the signal to blow up the last barrier between the two oceans. Arrangements for this, the final act in the construction of the canal, were announced yesterday. The temporary dam which is to be destroyed will let water into the Culebra cut.

Episcopal Church Offering.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Chief interest in the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church now in session here centered to-day in the united offering, the amount of which was to be made public at Carnegie Hall. Three years ago, at Cincinnati, the total reached $248,000. Estimates of the probable amount of this year's offering run as high as $600,000.

Firebugs Sentenced.

KINGSTON, Oct. 10.—Found guilty on the charge of arson, in connection with the fire at the riding stables of the Royal Military College, Justice Britton sentenced Frederick Gabriel to two years and a half in the penitentiary, and Alex. C. Manis to two years in the penitentiary.

FOREIGNERS SLAIN

Fighting in Torreon Has Involved Non-Combatants

MASSACRE REPORT DENIED

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—Reports were received by an insurance company and also by the German Bank yesterday that Spaniards and Germans were killed at Torreon. The number of the victims was not reported. The Deutsche-and-American-Riche Bank notified the Bank of Montreal yesterday afternoon of the killing of the Germans.

Bernardo J. De Celegan, Spanish Minister, and Rear Admiral Paul Von Heintz, the German Minister, called on the Department of War yesterday afternoon to confer with Gen. Blanquet, but the result of the conference was not made public.

Manuel Garza Aldape, Minister of the Interior, yesterday afternoon confirmed the news of the fall of Torreon. He said the city probably passed into the hands of the rebels on Oct. 2, the Federals having evacuated it on the preceding day. The Minister denied emphatically the report of the massacre of foreigners, but indicated that his denial was based on his belief that Panfele and Natera, the rebel leaders who captured Zacatecas and treated the foreigners there well, were in command of the insurgents at Torreon.

Generals Ignacio Bravo, Munguia and Escurado are to be court martialled, as there was no reason for their evacuation of Torreon, according to the War Department.

Minister Aldape stated that he was not informed regarding the reported defeat of Gen. Alvirez at La Loma although, owing to the persistent reports, it is feared that something has happened to his troops.

General Manager Clarke of the national lines reports that last week the railroad division from Tampico to San Luis Potosi suffered damage of more than 2,000,000 pesos through rebel activity.

PRESCRIBED BY WIRELESS.

Other Ships' Surgeons Told Captain How to Treat Patient.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10. — The fact that a fireman of the C. P. R. Atlantic liner Monmouth is alive to-day is almost certainly due to the fact that he was on board a ship which was fitted with wireless.

James Arthur, the fireman in question, was attacked with internal trouble of some kind accompanied by severe hemorrhage. There was no surgeon on board the Monmouth, during the voyage which terminated Wednesday with the ship's arrival at Montreal, so her commander, Capt. N. Griffiths, got into communication with the Allan liner Hesperian. By wireless he detailed the sufferer's symptoms to the Hesperian's surgeon, and received daily prescriptions in return.

After the Hesperian had passed beyond the range of the Monmouth's wireless apparatus, Capt. Griffiths managed to get in touch with the Montezuma, of the same line, and the surgeon of the sister ship continued the good work.

Polack Rioters Punished.

BRAMPTON, Oct. 10.—Two Polacks who took part in Sunday's fracas were fined $25 and costs in the police court yesterday afternoon.

Michael Heryog, boarding-house-keeper, at whose place the fight took place, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. He was given the option of a $100 fine with costs, but did not pay.

Killed In the West.

KINGSTON, Oct. 10.—Word has been received here that Peter O'Donnell, aged 55, a resident of Kingston for many years, was killed by a train near Vancouver, B.C. Particulars of the accident are meagre. O'Donnell was a sailmaker, and had been living in the west for six years. His wife and several children reside here.

RELEASE FOR SMALL FRY.

Bad Suffragettes Must Take Their Meals Forcibly.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The belief of the militant incendiaries that under the "cat and mouse" act they were assured of speedy release from prison by "hunger striking" and could then repeat their offence, received a rude shock yesterday by the announcement of the Home Secretary that Miss May Richardson, who has been in prison since Oct. 4 on the charge of arson, and who has been refusing food since her arrest, would not be given her freedom. The prison authorities have been instructed to resort to forcible feeding, if necessary, to prevent the incendiaries from starving themselves to death.

The Home Secretary says that the act will continue to be applied, as heretofore, to minor suffragette offenders, whose crimes do not include acts of serious violence.

Three Injured In Wreck.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 10.—Three men were injured when the Michigan Central train, No. 63, from Buffalo to Niagara-on-the-Lake, was ditched two miles south of here yesterday. An open switch was the cause of the wreck.

The injured are: Clarence Parker, Niagara-on-the-Lake, fireman, scalded; Abraham Meadows, Niagara-on-the-Lake, bruised; William Schuller, Toronto, commercial traveler, bruised.

Comb Sage Tea In Hair To Darken It

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening grey, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

Canadian Federation of Labour Deprecates Lawless Methods

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 10.—The two sessions of the second day of the convention of the Canadian Federation of Labor were taken up largely with a consideration of the report of the committee on resolutions which resulted in the adoption of the many recommendations, including the following:

That the Ontario Government be requested to insist upon a more rigid enforcement of the Lord's Day Act regarding bakeries. That the Provincial Government of Quebec be requested to open a class of applied science in the Quebec technical school for the benefit of the different trades in which such knowledge is necessary. That the Dominion Government be requested to take all classes of employes of the Government into consideration when dealing with the question of superannuations, allowances, etc. That the Federal and Provincial Governments be urged as far as they can, to prevent the establishment of the Industrial Workers of the World and such illegal bodies whose lawless methods of agitating and conducting strikes are a standing menace to the progress of all well-regulated labor unions and also to the best interests of the industrial life of Canada. That the Quebec Government be requested to take the necessary steps to arrive at the adoption of a system by which engineers' certificates of boiler inspecting issued in one province shall be recognized in all the others. That the Quebec Government be requested to amend the factories' act so that the present regulated hours of labor in cotton mills shall be applied to all other factories employing women, girls or boys. That the Quebec Government be requested to establish a bureau of inspection the same to issue engineers' and boiler inspectors' certificates and formulate modernized regulations concerning the construction and inspection of steam boilers.

TOLMAN GOES DOWN.

Loan Shark Must Do Six Months In Penitentiary.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—David H. Tolman, notorious as a loan shark was convicted yesterday afternoon of violating the state law against usury and sentenced to serve six months in the penitentiary. The complainant, a clerk, testified that he had paid interest at the rate of 200 per cent. a year for the use of $10 for three months. The defendant said he had conducted between 40 and 50 loan offices throughout the United States.

"This is the most flagrant case of usury that has ever come to the attention of the court of special sessions," said Presiding Judge Zeller. "Tolman, you are a most miserable usurer."

Warrants for Tolman's arrest on usury charges were issued some years ago in Montreal and Winnipeg but he was careful to keep out of the jurisdiction of the Canadian courts.

Double Tragedy Near New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The Queen's County Jail in Long Island City, just across the East River, from New York, was the scene of a midnight double tragedy, which was probably a case of murder and suicide. Henry C. Schleth, who was warden of the jail, returned to his apartments there at an early hour yesterday morning and found his wife and four-year-old son dead, each with a bullet wound in the right temple. Near Mrs. Schleth was found a revolver with two chambers empty. Both mother and child were in their night clothes.

Winter Fair Improvements.

GUELPH, Oct. 10.—Robt. S. Wade, secretary of the Winter Fair board, has inspected the Winter Fair building, and as a result some suggestions made by Mr. Wade will be acted on.

The Winter Fair building will be whitewashed. Around the horse arena three tiers of benches will be built, and to connect the sheep pens with the lower part of the building a stairway will be constructed. An entrance from the Winter Fair into the auditorium of the City Hall will be made, so that it may be used for the grain exhibit. Other improvements also will be made.

Say Commission Is a Failure.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(C.A.P. Cable)—Commercial quarters are betraying some scepticism as to the ultimate result of the Dominion Trades Commission. It is officially stated that no further meeting will be held till November, and no further evidence taken from this country. The commissioners are due to go to South Africa early next year, and must subsequently visit Canada, and also inspect the Panama Canal. There are rumors that the commission will collapse before completing its labors.

Nineteen Plead Guilty.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 10.—Contrary to expectations, nineteen of the union men charged with rioting in the recent labor troubles at Nanaimo, pleaded guilty yesterday morning when they were brought before Judge Howay for trial at the Coal City. All of these were young men, mostly English miners, and none were officials of the union.

CAN IT BE BOUGHT?

Government Working Hard In Chateauguay Bye-Election.

ST. MARTINE, Que., Oct. 10.—"If the people of Chateauguay county can be bought, then Mr. Fisher can be defeated. I do not think that the people of Chateauguay can be bought, and therefore I think that Mr. Fisher will be elected," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday afternoon near the end of an address delivered in the open air before a crowd of eight thousand or more people, mainly of French origin.

This statement of the Liberal Chieftain sums up the situation in this bye-election as the Liberals see it. Both sides are claiming that they will be successful by a large majority.

Sir Wilfrid, in his address, while expressing confidence in the issue, quoted a remark of the late Sir John Macdonald with regard to the uncertainty of elections. "But whatever comes," he added, "whether Hon. Mr. Fisher is elected or beaten, we will continue the fight which we have commenced against those who commission of duplicity in the election of 1911 deceived the people and temporarily obscured the brightness of these principle for which the Liberals have ever fought. The fight will continue. That is the last word I have to say."

Addresses were also delivered by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Mr. R. L. Calder, Hon. Charles Marcil, and Mr. R. C. Smith, K.C. Sir Wilfrid also addressed another open-air meeting at Chateauguay village.

Urge Damming Chippewa Creek.

OTTAWA, Oct. 10.—The damming of Chippewa Creek so as to connect the city of Niagara Falls with the new Welland canal was urged upon Hon. Dr. Reid, acting Minister of Railways, yesterday by a delegation headed by Evan Fraser, M.P.P. The creek enters the Niagara River within a mile of the city, and from the outlet to the new canal is about seven miles. A dam is required to make the creek navigable and furnish Niagara Falls with water transportation like Welland and St. Catharines.

Problems of the Large Employer

In the small factory, frequently managed by a resident owner, the continuance of a system of direct contact between employer and worker has generally operated to maintain and perpetuate harmonious relations. The problem before the large corporation-owned plant is to provide that ready touch which, by emphasizing the essential community of interests, establishes a sense of unity and fellowship. It can be done only by making this oneness of aim and interest a reality, and not merely the occasion for pleasant speech-making. It cannot be done by reducing wages; it may be done by dividing profits. Success depends principally on an unfailing insight into the needs and problems of the body of employes, and that insight can only be obtained by sharing the problems of management with the men. The degree to which employers are prepared to go in this direction is a sound indication of their earnestness in desiring the removal of the prevailing mood of discontent. —Engineering Magazine.

"THE MEDIATOR"

A month passed, and the second month, and his pay was increased; but it brought small gladness to the subdued spirit. Then came the third month, and that was the worst of all, and the month of complaint. A question came up between the union of miners and the mine-manager who promptly referred it to his board of directors. Lish was not present when the ultimatum was announced, but saw by the troubled face of Bill Higgins, in the house that evening, that something might be apprehended. It was while he was changing his rubber boots and stained blouse for comfortable garb that Bill explained it to him.

"The Queen's a union mine, as you know, Lish," he said, in a grumbling monotone. "And there's never been no fight about her. But she's gone deeper, and she works a couple of hundred more men, and the union wants a new scale. Well, the old man's hot-headed, and the feller the union's got here is hot-headed, and so they both get sore, and now there's the devil to pay."

Lish pulled on a shoe before he answered.

"Maybe I'd beat go and talk to both of 'em," he ventured. "I'm for peace. That's why that feller down in Arizony called me a Mediator. I'll just naturally go to this manager, and say 'Don't be a dod-gasted bull-head. Listen to what the other feller's got to say.' Then I'll find this here union man, and say, 'Lookie here. You just better go and talk again and keep your mouth shut.' Then the fust thing they know, they'll get together, and there you are! That'll be all there is to it! Everything peaceful and nice. Work goes ahead just the same. Huh?"

Bill Higgins grinned, and shook his head.

No, Lish," he said, "you don't understand these kind of men, and they can't understand you. You just let them tend to it."

In vain the Mediator argued for a chance to arbitrate; in vain he tried to see the doughty manager; in vain he tried to get the men to talk to him. The Keswick Queen was a simmering pot, waiting but a degree or two of heat to boil up to the edge.

It came on a morning when Lish, tired from a night's work, slept serenely in his room and dreamed of uncovering a ledge that glittered with raw gold. The house was empty when he crawled out of the luxurious bed that had been his chief admiration, and slipped, barefooted, to the luxurious bath where water could be used with reckless prodigality. He whistled, mededioously, in a soft, thick volume of sound as he stepped out to the front of the commodious house apportioned to him and the foreman, and then stopped in amazement.

"Somethin's wrong," he said to himself, as he started for the mess-house to get his breakfast. "Stamps ain't droppin'."

And he was right, for the big mill was silent and the hills andf orests no longer echoed to the roar of industry. He passed on down to the mess-house and called his cheery, "Hello, Charley!" to the Chinese boy that served him.

"All stlike!" declared the boy, coming toward him. "Laise hell down by hoist. Say killeee engineer."

"What? What's that?" demanded the Mediator, pausing when half-way seated in his chair. "Kill the engineer? What for?"

"Him no stlike. Him say pumps go all time. Melican man no make tlouble. Foreign man say, 'we killeee him—quick!'"

The Mediator looked bewildered for an instant, then hurried to a window in the end of them ess-house, and looked out. It gave him a view of the big hoist, the boiler-rooms all squatted alongside like twisted giants bent low for their work, and the blacksmith's shops on the flat in front. But now the flat was filled with angry men, gesticulating, and twisting to and fro as if preparing for some violence. The plume of smoke above the engine-rooms was dull and pale. The trees on the hillside appeared to be bending over in suspense.

The Mediator grabbed his hat, and plunged down the declivity and across the valley intervening between the mess-house and blacksmith's flat. When half-way across, his generalship arose to the occasion, and he halted.

"Mustn't go that way," he said to himself. "I'd better go back and slip clean around so as to get into the boiler-room by the back door, and then I'll be where I can face 'em."

He retraced his steps around the scattered buildings of the Queen, and after what seemed to him a long time gained the rear. His face was scratched with brambles and bushes that had impeded his passage, and his splendid lungs were pumping vigourously when he came to the little opening in the building that he knew so well. It was unlocked, and a strange silence pervaded the dark interior. The open doors of fire-boxes glowered at him, redly; but no fireman was in sight. From the engine-room adjoining, he heard the muffled, steady stroke of the pumps, still keping the Queen from being flooded, and beyond that the threatening roar of the turbulent strikers.

Quite calmly, he walked the length of the boiler-room, and his lips were pursed as if to whistle. His face wore a look of perplexity, as if he could not understand why men should quarrel over anything, and he stopped long enough to pick a wrench from the floor and lay it on a joist at the side of the flimsy wall. He entered the engine-room through a low door, and saw a grey-haired, but undaunted old man, standing above his pumps, and recognized him as the chief.

"Hello, Tom," he called, as imperturbably as if this were an ordinary morning greeting. "Stickin' to it, are you? That's right!"

The engineer turned a grim face toward him, and the Mediator noted, with approval, that no evidence of fear was visible. He sauntered across to the doubled oors in front of the engine-house, and confronted the change. On one side of the door stood the manager of the mine, with a rifle in his hand, and on the other stood Bill Higgins, big and formidable, with a heavy pistol. Farther over and with his back to the wall as if fearing a rush, stood the superintendent, also armed.

For a moment the keen eyes of the Mediator swept over the crowd of sullen men out on the flat, and he muttered to Higgins:

"All of 'em Hunks! Ain't none of the American boys there. Wish there was. Where are they?"

Higgins, without looking around, answered:

"They've tried to keep them fellers from makin' asses of 'emselves. They've gone over to the next mine to get some of the boys to come and help 'em clean this mob out. If we can hold out till then, there won't be no killin'. They want to throw old Tom down the shaft, and hear him fall a thousand foot."

"Whew!" the Mediator whistled, as if horrified. "After Tom, eh! That's right mean of them! Somebody ought to talk to 'em."

"Talk? Talk's no good. The old man went at 'em, and only r'iled 'em more," grumbled Higgins, in a low tone, as if fearful that the superintendent would overhear him. "We're fightin' for time. That's all. If we can hold 'em off—"

A sudden shout from the mob in front broke his speech, and distracted his attention. A swarthy Hungarian, loud mouthed and waving his arms, ran up and down in front of the sullen ranks, and berated them in his strange tongue. The Mediator watched him for an instant, and recognized him.

"I never liked that feller," he drawled to Higgins. "I've seen him cut a heap of didos that I didn't like."

"They'll do what he says! He's the head of the whole fuss," remarked the manager, angrily.

The Mediator's steady eyes watched the disturber for a long minute, as the latter ranted up and down in front of his followers, now and then turning toward the engine-house and shaking his fist angrily at the little group of guardians. There was even a smile of contempt on the Mediator's face, and he fumbled in his pocket for tobacco and a cigarette paper, and said, "Pahaw!" when he found that he had left these important articles behind.

"He's the one that will give us trouble," agreed the superintendent, watching the demagogue. "If they stick to him, it's off with Tom."

"Then, if that's the case," declared Lish, cheerefully, "there's just one thing to do, and that's to find out!"

Before any of those at the door could stop him, before they could utter a word of warning or protest, he slipped past them, and hurried across the open space, directly toward the giant who was exhorting his followers to attempt a rush. Little and outclassed, the Mediator looked as he ran valiantly across the flat, and, astonished, the strikers saw him coming and stood still as if paralyzed by his temerity. The foreman uttered a shout of warning.

"Hey! Come back here!" he roared.

"Henley! Henley! Look out!" shrieked the manager.

But their cries were unheeded by the Mediator who, without hesitation, rushed ahead toward the Hungarian who confronted him.

"You get out!" yelled the Mediator, shaking his fist up toward the big man's nose. "You're no good! You're fired! Get off the dump, before I throw you off!"

The Hungarian made a wild swing with his fist as if to knock the intruder out of existence; but Lish ducked nimbly under the arm and toward a man in the front rank who stood leaning on a pick handle. He hutted into thel atter with the velocity of a catapult, and seized the pick handle and wrested it from his hands. Almost in the same motion he whirled and leaped at the startled leader, who threw his hands outward in an attempt to seize the dangerous cudgel. It was useless; for even while it was in mid-air, Lish leaped sidewise, feinted, side-stepped, planted his feet, and brought the white-ash stick down on his opponent's head. The giant reeled, and lifted his hands to protect himself, but now the white ash flew up again and again, raining blows on the body, battering the arms to uselessness, and finally descended on the unprotected head. The giant fell as if he were an ox striken by the slaughter, a limp heap in front of his followers. They stood aghast at this downfall of the champion, and Goliath's followers were no more surprised by the victory of David; but the difference between David and the Mediator was that the latter was not the man to pause and wait for his laurels, or to perform deft decapitations. He was one who took advantage of his gains without waste of time.

"Get out!" he roared, in a voice that seemed magnified for the occasion. "Get off the ground, or I'll get sore and kill a dozen of you! Go, I say!"

The cudgel now lifted itself again andb anged the head of the nearest man, who dropped alongside the giant. It played in and out, seeking unprotected spots on others. The Mediator was a living rapier, here and there, up and down, leaping sidewise, backward orf orward,w ith equal celerity, and everywhere he passed men gave, tried to protect themselves, fought and fell, or found refuge in flight. For an instant, the battle wavered, and then, roaring like a bull, fearful for his friend, angry beyond bounds, Bill Higins came to the rescue. Right and left they struck, the stocky little Mediator, who fought silently, and the big man, who swore loudly and cursed every man he hit. They mowed a lane—they doubled back—they turned to the sides, they battered the flanks and flying rear; for the men who would have murdered an engineer had no stomach for being murdered, and so ran. Behind them came thed ull thud of the pick handle, and the angry 'mpact of Higgins' fists. Behind them lay men who were either suspiciously still, or who turned and wove around on hands and knees. Urging them to greater speed was the roaring voice of the infuriated foreman, and the war cry of the Mediator, who had at last given tongue.

"Want to fight, do you?" he kept shouting. "Well, take that! And that! We want peace around this mine! We're goin' to get it! Wow! There you are!"

The mob fled down the roadway pursued by the short-legged man and his big friend until the latter twain, out of breath, stopped like a pair of tired bulldogs andf aced each other. Blood was streaming down the face of the man of peace where someone had hit him with a rock, and Higgins' face was red and insane with anger and anxiety.

"Lish! Lish, are you hurt bad?" he panted, dragging a handkerchief from his pocket and wiping the Mediator's face. "If you are, I'll kill the man that done it!"

The Mediator staggered for an instant, then looked gratefully up at the big man, and drawled:

"I always was fond of you, sober, Bill. But, Lordy! Think what they'd have done to us if you'd been drunk."

He semed dazed by over-exertion, and it was the manager and superintendent of the big Keswick Queen, important personages both, who supported him to the house on the hillside, and put him to bed, where, quite tired, he went to sleep. It was the manager and the superintendent who came to him quite gratefully, in the evening, to voice their thanks.

The Mediator crawled out to meet them with a very red suit of flannel underwear exposed, and a bandage around his head.

"We've got the strike settled," declared the manager, "and the men are giving in half-way, and I meet them the other half! They all go to work to-morrow. There's nothing around this mine that either you or Higgins can't have! You're the man who saw ther ight thing to do, Henley!"

The Mediator sat grumpily on the edge of his bed for a moment, and wiggled his bare white toes.

"I didn't do the right thing," he growled. "What I should have done was to beat you over the head, first! Next, there's nothin' around this here mine I want. I'm done. I quit — right now. I ain't no fightin' man! All I'm lookin' for is peace! This ain't no place for me. I'm goin' away from here, I am. Me and Jack'll pull out of here to-morrer, we will. You can go to the devil with your job! We're goin' to that place they call Peaceful Hill. We ain't no good workin' for nobody else, nohow. And that goes!"

An Operation For Appendicitis

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

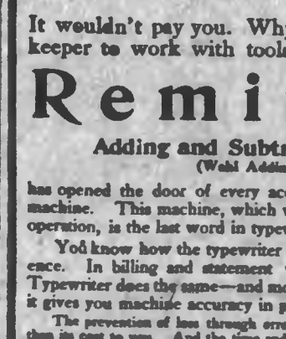
A Harmless Bleach.

Peroxide of hydrogen is the best bleaching agency known, for it gives a pure white with positively no chance of hurting the fabric in any way. It may be used for silk, woolen, linen or cotton. Use as follows: One teaspoonful of peroxide of hydrogen to half a tub of cold water. Allow the article to soak over night, and after rinsing wash as usual and you will be agreeably surprised at the result. This is almost the same method that the mills use in bleaching their goods from natural color to white before finishing.



THE NEW WAY

Help Your Bookkeeper to Help You

Help him to give you more efficient service. You wouldn't want your stenographer to transcribe your letters with a pen. It wouldn't pay you. Why, then, expect your bookkeeper to work with tools that are antiquated? The

Remington

Adding and Subtracting Typewriter

has opened the door of every accounting department to the writing machine. This machine, which writes and adds (or subtracts) in one operation, is the last word in typewriter efficiency.

You know how the typewriter saves time and labor in correspondence. In billing and statement work the Adding and Subtracting Typewriter does the same—and more. It stops errors, prevents errors; it gives you machine accuracy in place of brain fallibity.

The prevention of loss through errors alone makes this machine worth more than its cost to you. And the time and labor saving are clear gain.

Our illustrated booklet, "The New Remington Idea," sent on request, will tell you all about it.

FREAK PLANTS

Trap and Devour Insects, Digesting Bodies of Their Prey

Among the strangest of all nature's products are the insect-eating, or carnivorous, plants. They actually catch, eat, and digest various insects by a process practically as thorough as that of the animals.

The splendid Venus "fly trap" or "vegetable butcher" is one of the most remarkable of these. It grows in a wild state in the forests of North Carolina, where it creeps along the ground, presenting thousands of gaping mouths, into which the unsuspecting fly or insect is lured and imprisoned.

The leaves of this plant consist of two valves, shaped like clam shells, which, when closed, form a trap. The ends of the leaves are baited with a sweet juice which attracts the insect. The leaves are covered with minute hairs, which correspond very closely to the arrangements of the nervous system in animals. On the edge of the leaves are rows of long, fine teeth.

When the unsuspecting insect has been lured to the leaf by the attractive juice he steps upon one of the microscopic hairs, and the two valves shut with a snap, keeping Mr. Fly secure.

Still more curious are certain plants in Borneo, which distill liquors for the purpose of luring their victims. Many of these are miniature grog shops. In their leaves are little pitchers, which are filled with hard alcoholic liquors. Each of the pitchers, as a tight-fitting cover which keeps the dew and rain from diluting the liquor. No scientists have yet succeeded in analyzing the liquors with any satisfactory results, but it is evident that they are of different kinds, since different species of the plants attract different insects.

The most unique of all the productions of nature is the plant popularly known as the "goose plant." It is a native of Guatemala, and receives its name from the bud, which has the shape of a goose floating along the water with its neck proudly arched. The flower is very beautiful, but repulsive. It has an odor resembling that of decayed meat. The plant attracts the carrion fly, which is the agent of fertilization.

RAND HIGH-GRADERS

Precious Metal Stolen After it Leaves the Stamps

Most people have heard of I. D. B. (illicit diamond buying), a crime which in South Africa is punished with penal servitude on the breakwater at Cape Town.

The Rand, however, has the lesser-known offence of I. G. B. (illicit gold buying). Considering that in the Rand mines only a few pennyweights of gold go to a ton of quartz, it is obvious that the miner does not get much chance of stealing the precious metal. When does the gold thief get his opportunity?

The pieces of quartz are ground into dust by powerful hammers known as "stamps." Water then washes the dust over inclined plates coated with amalgam. The gold instantly combines with the mercury in the amalgam, afterwards being easily separated by chemical process.

It is of this gold-laden amalgam that the dishonest employe will scrape off portions which, though small, will mount up to a good bit of gold in time.

Granulation Of The Eyelids

Is Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment—Scores of Uses for the Great Soothing, Healing Ointment.

Most people know Dr. Chase's Ointment best as a cure for eczema and itching piles. Nor is this to be wondered at when you think of the remarkable record made in this class of cases.

But there are scores of other uses for this ointment, which are only discovered when it is kept constantly at hand.

Mrs. Martin, 13 Carroll Street, Toronto, formerly of Bowmanville, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years, and found it invaluable in treating skin irritations and all sorts of burns and wounds. In fact, we would not be without it in the house. It is a most excellent treatment for granulated eyelids, from which I suffered without finding anything to help me."

Wherever there is itching of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can use Dr. Chase's Ointment with full assurance that it will prove entirely satisfactory. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Should Women Play Bowls?

The question of women playing bowls was raised at Oswestry, Wales, Town Council. A letter from Miss Fanny Wall inquired why she was not permitted to play bowls in Cae'as Park, which she understood was open to all, the chairman of the Parks Committee having given orders to the parkkeeper to stop ladies playing bowls.

Soldiers Pull Gun Carriage

As the horses at Colchester barracks were isolated on account of mange, no horses could be obtained to draw the gun-carriage at the funeral of Private Fair, a Gordon Highlander. Eighteen of his comrades, in full dress, with kilt, busby, and sporran, harnessed themselves to the gun-carriage and drew the coffin to the cemetery.

A Sportsman's Serious Blunder

While a couple of lovers were sitting upon some waste land at Stoke, near Coventry, they heard the sound of a gun, and the young woman received a number of shots in her hat and forehead, and the young man got some in his ear.

It was explained by Joseph William Taylor, when arraigned for discharging a gun, that he mistook the white chiffon on the young woman's hat for a piece of paper on some thistles, and he fired to test his cartridges.

Experiment on a Donkey

At Runcorn Dr. Warrington Yorke, head of the Research Laboratory of the Liverpool Tropical School of Medicine and a well-known expert in sleeping sickness, was charged with cruelty to a donkey by neglecting it. The donkey lay for over a week in a field apparently dying without shelter. Dr. Yorke's defence was that the animal had been given a new drug experimentally, and felt absolutely no pain. He killed it immediately the result of the experiment was known. It was fed and watered daily. The charge was dismissed.

GOLF BALL MAKER

An appliance for supporting to gold balls their peculiar pock-marked configuration has been designed. Arising from a metal base is a metal standard with an overhanging and bifurcated arm. In the bifurcations of this arm a rotary die is pivoted. Directly below this die is a vertically moving plunger that is operated by a little lever on the side head that has a spring attached to control its movements. On top of the plunger is a cup into which a golf ball is placed. By pressing down on the lever the plunger rises and the ball is pressed against the die. The force of the impact is sufficient to set the die revolving and it continues to revolve as the ball rises against it. This has the effect of turning the ball around in the cup so that it is stamped around its entire circumference.

POLITICAL NICKNAMES

Many of Australia's Notables Given Peculiar Tags

The nickname has now got a very firm hold in politics in Australia. Senator A. J. J. St. Ledger is widely known as "Sledger," on account of his humorous sallies in the House. Mr. Webster, who spoke for over nine hours on one occasion, is alluded to as "Webster unabridged." Mr. Austin Chapman, is "Chappy" to everybody—one of the best-loved men in the Federal Parliament. Dr. W. Maloney is called "Little Doc."

In the State Parliament, Mr. R. H. Solly, of Carlton, is familiarly known as "Fighting Bob," owing to his pugnacious disposition when roused. The tendency of members of Parliament, however, is to call one another by their Christian names. They do not cultivate the nicknaming art to such extent.

Sir William Lyne was always "Bill" among his friends, just as Mr. Joseph Cook, the Prime Minister is "Joe," and Mr. W. H. Holly is "Willie." Mr. W. M. Hughes, ex-Attorney-General, is "Billy," while Mr. Fisher, the ex-Prime Minister, is "Andy" to a great many.

A WEAK CRESTED BOY

"My boy Frank caught cold, coughed and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Sigvaux, Sharon, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Mr. Gregory's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was required to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

She Saw a Short Cut.

As the baseball season nears its close there comes from Ottawa one of the best yarns on the queer queries that fanettes put to their escorts at ball games.

The girl in the Sawdust City had never been to a game before and the whole thing was naturally new to her. Her young man, knowing the game well, tried to explain its fine points, but probably assumed her knowledge to be greater than it was.

One of the players made a hit and the girl gave a little cry of delight. She was learning. She watched him as he took a lead off first base, and finally saw him steal second by a desperate slide. Then he tried to steal third and was nipped by the catcher's throw.

Turning to her friend, the girl demanded:

"What's the matter with that fool? Why didn't he run straight back home from first base when he made the hit instead of trying to sneak around all those bases and getting out?"

Then he gave up his attempt to enlighten her.

German Emperor Most Fortunate in This Respect—Bequests Usually From Eccentric Subjects

It was something of a coincidence that within a very short period two wills should have been offered for probate, one leaving a great fortune to Emperor William and the other bequeathing a large sum to King Alfonso of Spain. The benefactor of Alfonso was Albert Sapene, mayor of a city in the south of France, a man whom the King of Spain in all probability had never seen. Sapene ignored his relatives altogether in disposing of his property and they engaged counsel to contest the will.

Hermann Knorr, a Saxon landowner, left about $3,750,000 to the Kaiser, cutting off his widow with her dower and an annuity of $300. Knorr was undoubtedly inspired by patriotic motives when he left his fortune to the Kaiser, for his will did not specify William III., but mentioned the reigning Emperor, so that the landowner did not care particularly whether William or his son, the Crown Prince, was the beneficiary. He directed that the money should be used for the purpose of strengthening the army and navy of Germany at the discretion of the Kaiser.

This is not the first bequest the German Emperor has fallen heir to. Five years after he ascended the throne William was made the heir to Count Adolf Schack, who died in Rome. His estate consisted for the most part of a famous collection of paintings and objects of art in Munich, and the burghers of Munich had confidently counted upon the collection being left to the city. Great was their disappointment when the Kaiser was made heir.

Surrendered Art Treasures

They expected nothing better than that he would move the collection to Berlin. However, he made a wise disposition of the estate when he presented the pictures to Munich, and to this day they are among the chief treasures of the citizens.

Ten years later the Kaiser, who appears to be a particular favorite with eccentric will-makers, was left a beautiful house, surrounded by large grounds, in Southern Austria. He accepted the gift, and since then has used the premises as a convalescent home for officers of the German army. He has received several other bequests of a less important character, but his custom has been to relinquish his claims in favor of those who were the near kin of the testator.

The fact is recalled that the foundation of the large private fortune of Queen Victoria was laid by a bequest from a subject of whom she heard for the first time when the contents of his will were announced. This was John Camden Neild, who left her £2,000,000, "begging her Majesty's most gracious acceptance of the same, for her sole use and benefit and that of her heirs." The will was not contested, and the Queen, having erected a handsome monument to Mr. Neild, accepted the money and wisely invested it. Neild was the son of a jeweler who had done work for George III., and had left a fortune of more than a million dollars. His son was an eccentric character, and lived in the most miserly fashion, but was shrewd enough in his investments to more than double his capital. Neild's bequest inspired a number of others to leave their fortunes to Queen Victoria, and some of them were accepted, though others were immediately handed over to either the relatives or to some charity. For many years past no British sovereign has accepted money thus acquired.

HEIR TO MILLIONS

Erich von Goldschmidt-Rothschild, grandson of Baron Wilhelm von Rothschild, head of the German branch of the family that holds the purse strings of Europe. He is 19 years old and a student at Oxford. His father was Baron Goldschmidt. At his father's death by command of the German Emperor, he took the name of Goldschmidt-Rothschild to perpetuate the Rothschild name.

WOMEN WARRIORS

The German Emperor delights to surround himself at the grand parades with four "colonelled." These noble warriors are the Empress, his daughter the Princess Victoria Louise, the Princess of Schaumberg-Lippe, and the Grand Duchess of Hesse-Darmstadt. Accompanied by these four Amazons, the Emperor passes before the regiment, and the crowd gives voice to its admiration.

The "colonelles" are, in fact, superb attractions in their striking uniforms. The Princess Sophia of Prussia, sister of the Emperor and wife of King Constantine of Greece, shares the military taste of her sister-in-law, the Empress.

The Empress of Russia, born Princess Alix of Hesse, is chief of the Regiment of Uhlans and of the dragoon regiment of the Prussian Guard; Princess Marie of Roumania is "colonelle" of the Rochiori regiment, and the Queen Mother, Marguerite of Italy does not conceal her pride that she is chief of a battalion of Prussian chasseurs.

TREMBLING CITIES

The heavy traffic near St. Paul's, London, has shaken and cracked the columns of the cathedral so seriously that the Government is considering how the vibration can be lessened.

All large cities, however, are in a constant state of vibration. In places like London, Manchester, and Birmingham there is not a square inch of soil that is perfectly still. In some large towns it has been found necessary to insist on iron drainage pipes being used instead of earthenware ones. Though embedded in concrete, the average earthenware drainage pipe lasts only a few weeks uncracked.

Some months ago Professor Ingleton experimented in different parts of London with a seismometer—the instrument used for measuring earthquakes. He found that though the trembling of the earth was naturally less in the suburbs than in the City, and between 1 a.m. and 6 a.m. than at other parts of the day, the constant vibration was such as to make a seismometer in London useless for its real purpose of registering far-distant earthquake shocks.

Of recent years there has been some talk of finding a fresh site for Greenwich Observatory, owing to the vibrations set up by the London traffic.

KITCHENER IN TEARS

An Incident in the Final Soudan Campaign

Lord Kitchener is by no means the cold, unemotional man he is represented to be. In action he certainly is, as the late G. W. Stevens put it, "A brain working in a box of ice;" but he can shed tears.

Once in the final Soudan Campaign, when sudden and torrential rains swept away the labor of months, he broke down, wept, and, like Job, asked why he should be thus afflicted.

Again, in the final scene at Khartoum, when a thanksgiving service was held, the tears rolled down his face, and he made no effort to hide them.

At the Durbar there appeared 300 old men, all that was left of the Sepoys who remained loyal in the Mutiny, to be reviewed by the Duke of Connaught and the Viceroy. Lord Kitchener, of course, was there, and he gazed in silence at the line of quavering veterans.

Then he turned to a brother-officer of high rank and said: "I say, old chap, let's give these men a cheer!" All responded to the call, and a moment later it was seen that the tears were standing in Lord Kitchener's eyes.

HOW TO DOCTOR WOUND ON HOOF

Cleanliness and Antiseptic Treatment as Necessary for a Horse as for a Man

Nature often repairs wounds on the horse's hoof without help from man. All man can do is to assist nature; but often he hinders the reparative process, and sometimes his interference is positively harmful. This is so when he soaks an injured foot in an old, dirty tub and forgets to change the water each time it is used. The foul soaking tub is a veritable abomination. It should be accounted a relic of barbarous days not to be used by modern man.

This advice refers especially to the treatment of a nail-puncture case. It may, however, be admissible in some cases to treat sores of the coronet, or suppurating corns, by soaking in a tubful of antiseptic solution.

The average poultice also is an abomination, and positive damage in many a case. This certainly is so as regards the cow-dung poultice. Germs teem and multiply in it, and these germs induce pus or possibly may cause tetanus (lockjaw). Any hot, moist poultice in which an antiseptic is not mixed will harbor and grow noxious germs. If a poultice of any sort is used, it should be made up with a solution of a good disinfectant or germ-killer.

Modern treatment seldom employs a poultice in the nail-prick case. When a nail has been found and removed, the horseman often is contented to pour some turpentine on the wound and allow the opening to close. Germs may be retained, and in the absence of air they may cause tetanus; for the tetanus germ can live and grow only in the absence of oxygen. The right way to handle the case is to remove the shoe, cleanse the hoof thoroughly with soap and hot water, pare away all soiled horn of the sole and rinse it off with a 1-500 solution of corrosive sublimate (bichlorid of mercury) or five per cent. solution of coal tar disinfectant, lysol or carbolic acid.

Then cut down upon the puncture with a sharp, sterilized hoof-knife, removing enough horn to expose the wound and allow blood, serum or pus to escape. When this has been done the wound should be well swabbed with the 1-500 solution of corrosive sublimate and at once covered with a mixture of one part of iodoform and seven parts of boric acid, fresh absorbent cotton and a clean bandage, to be covered in turn with a square of clean gunny sacking, held in place by a strap around the pastern.

If there is objection to the strong odor of the iodoform mixture, substitute one part each of calomel and subnitrate of bismuth and six parts of boric acid as a dry dressing powder. Renew the dressing daily. Often the treatment will lead to a speedy and perfect recovery. If a fungus-like growth comes down through the wound in the sole, add an equal part of powdered alum to the dressing powder, and cover the dressing with a wad of oakum to cause pressure.

If joint oil (synovia) flows like liquid vaseline from the wound the synovial bursa has been opened by the nail. Such a serious case should have the immediate attention of a skilled veterinarian.—Farm and Fireside.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Ludwig Keisewetter

A Story Showing That It Is Better to Be Too Much Hated Than Too Much Loved

By F. A. MITCHEL

The Widow Keisewetter dwelt on the bank of the river Rhine in peace and comfort, having inherited from her husband a vineyard which produced one of those wines for which that region is famous. Frau Keisewetter was wrapt up in her only child, Ludwig, who had taken a degree at the University of Heidelberg and was an excellent young man. But Ludwig had one fault. He was so serious that no one ever came near him who did not become repelled by him. The only person who had ever seen him smile was his mother. When he was a baby she used to chirp to him just to see his face break into dimples and the roguish look in his eyes. As he grew older she found it difficult to produce this effect, and when he became a young man he very rarely smiled even at her.

Ludwig as a boy had played with a little girl, Lena Stieber, whose father owned the vineyard adjoining Widow Keisewetter's. As the children grew older the intimacy became love on Ludwig's part, but not on Lena's. She realized his worth, but could not endure his seriousness. Only once had she seen him smile, and then she was enraptured with him. But when days, weeks, months, passed and his face continued to wear the same gloomy expression the effect died away and association with him became depressing.

This defect in her son caused the widow great sorrow. She desired him to marry to perpetuate the family name and produce an heir for the vineyard, and when she found that Lena Stieber would not have him she endeavored to make a match for him with some other girl. She selected one girl after another. There were many girls who wished for just such a husband, but there was none who could stand Ludwig's seriousness. So long as he could not win Lena, he did not care whom he married and would have accepted any one his mother selected for him if he had been himself acceptable. But there was not a girl within a distance of fifty miles who would marry him.

Frau Keisewetter heard of Professor Coblesteiner, who was working wonders in Cologne about that time in hypnotism. It occurred to her that probably he might by hypnotic influence give her son a cheerfulness that would show itself in his countenance. She wrote the professor to that effect and received a reply that he could influence her son while in the hypnotic state in any direction, but that he doubted if the condition could be made permanent. He was making some experiments in securing permanent effects and should be glad to include her son in the number of his subjects.

So anxious was the good woman to get rid of Ludwig's defect that she begged him to go to Cologne and put himself under Professor Coblesteiner's influence. Ludwig, who knew something about hypnotism, had no faith in it. At least, he had no faith in his disposition being so changed as to alter the expression of his face. But to please his mother he consented to go. So he mounted his horse, and, kissing her goodby, promising her that he would give Professor Coblesteiner every facility to serve him, he started on his journey.

Now, Frau Keisewetter had been so diligent in hunting for a girl who would marry her son that she had tried every girl living both up and down the river. Since Ludwig traveled down the river, he passed the homes of girls who had been tried living in that direction. The fact had spread that young Keisewetter, who was so serious looking that he could not get a wife, was going to Cologne to have his disposition changed, and the girls who had refused to marry him were watching him from behind blinds as he went by.

"He would make an excellent model for a tombstone."

"'Tis better to laugh than to cry."

"Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone."

"I would rather marry an Egyptian mummy."

These were some of the remarks of the girls who were watching Ludwig.

So Ludwig gloomily journeyed on down the river, unconscious of the remarks made from behind the blinds by those who had refused him, hoping, though not expecting, that some good would result from his journey.

When Ludwig left home it was expected that he would remain under Professor Coblesteiner's care for a week or two. But at the end of that time the professor wrote Frau Keisewetter that he had found in her son a very peculiar patient, one especially susceptible to his influence, and he hoped that by hypnotizing him frequently for several months to break the lugubrious spell that rested upon him.

At the end of four months the widow received a letter from the professor stating that he had ceased to put her son under hypnotic influence. The young man had not yet relapsed into his former condition, but the professor could not tell how long this present one would last. He was sending Ludwig home to remain there while waiting developments.

Frau Keisewetter was so filled with hope and enthusiasm that she told all her friends that her son was coming home cured. The news traveled, and before Ludwig left Cologne it had reached even to that city. The young man had not ridden half an hour before he passed the house of Gretchen Ludlub, who was watching for him. She went out into the road to congratulate him. He greeted her with a smile that she considered the most beautiful she had ever seen in a man's face. Clasping her hands in hesitancy she said:

"Oh, Ludwig, how changed you are!"

"Ha, ha!" gently laughed Ludwig but he did not stop, and Gretchen walked along beside him, talking to him, he looking down upon her with that heavenly smile and an occasional soft "Ha, ha!" Then another girl ran out of a house and added her congratulations to those of the first, taking the other side of his horse from Gretchen. So Ludwig was kept turning his head from one side to the other, smiling at each alternately, while now and then a musical "Ha, ha!" came from him like the soft piping of a bird.

As Ludwig proceeded one after another the girls who had watched him from behind blinds on his outward journey came forth to congratulate him, and it seemed as if the hypnotic spell that had been thrown upon him by professor Cobblesteiner was communicating itself to each and every girl, for all the girls followed him, and none of them seemed to have the power to turn back to her home. But an old curmudgeon who lived on the road and saw the procession of girls led by Ludwig took his pipe out of his mouth long enough to grunt and say:

"Look at those girls! When the man went to Cologne none of them wanted him. Now they all want him, and no one will give way to the others."

Frau Keisewetter was informed of the hour her son would arrive and went out before her house to welcome him. Lena Stieber had always been her choice for her son's wife, and she asked Lena to be with her when he came. So Lena was there waiting with the widow.

Presently they heard a babel of sweet voices, above which sounded an occasional merry "Ha, ha!" and, looking up, saw Ludwig ambling along on his horse surrounded by every girl who lived between the vineyard and Cologne. Strange to say, there was not that bickering which might have been expected from so many girls who wanted the same man. It was held in check by the beautiful smile he gave each one of them, causing her to believe that she was the best beloved of all.

When Lena saw this procession she turned on her heel and went into the house. Ludwig, coming up to the house, dismounted and, taking his mother in his arms, kissed her, then asked for Lena. She came out looking like a thunder cloud. This at once broke the spell of Ludwig's charming good nature, and every girl was clamoring at every other girl, upbraiding her as bold and shameless, declaring that she, and she alone, was the first, the original one whom Frau Keisewetter had asked to marry her son.

The widow dr[illegible] the young man into the house with [illegible] and slammed the door in the faces of the others.

"What shall I do?" asked Ludwig, wringing his hands.

"I will tell you what to do," said Lena decidedly. "Go back to Professor Cobleseteiner and bid him remove the hypnotic spell and make you again what you were. Do this and I will marry you."

So Ludwig, when it was dark, stole out of the house and returned secretly to Cologne. In a few days he came back again to his home and married Lena Stieber. His disposition was much improved by marriage—that is, after some years, when he and his wife had got used to each other. He has never forgotten having been followed by so many girls and even to this day clings to his wife in the presence of other women for protection. He says that he prefers that all women, except his wife, should hate him rather than that all women should love him.

MISSED COBALT'S RICHES

Old French Voyageurs Knew of One Mine 150 Years Ago

That the old French voyageurs and missionaries knew of the existence of at least one mine old maps show beyond dispute. If they had extended their researches for minerals beyond the waterways and had happened upon the silver mines at Cobalt what a difference it would have made to the probable destiny of the Dominion?

The discovery of Cobalt a century and a half ago was quite within the realms of possibility, says The Cobalt Nugget. There was an old Indian trail within a few feet of Long, now Cobalt Lake, and where the Indian was wont to go, there too, the French voyageur could and did follow him. There would have been no difficulty in mining the ore. It was right on the surface and could easily have been mined and taken down in boats to Quebec. Then would the world have been astounded with the glamor of a silver Eldorado in the heart of Canada. The French king would have taken more pains to conserve the country which his predecessor had valued as so many arpents of snow and the destiny of the Dominion might have fallen along quite other lines.

SAVING THE SEALS

Only International Agreement Saved Them From Extinction

Russia, England, Japan and America agreed to suspend sealing in the open sea for fifteen years and sealing on land for five years. The need for this close season is explained by George Archibald Clark:

Pelagic sealing proved very destructive to the herd. It respected neither sex nor condition of the animals found, and the catch fell principally upon the nursing females, which were taken upon the summer feeding grounds in Behring Sea; for when the migration route of the seals had been covered the sealers entered Behring Sea and lay in wait for the mother seals as they visited the fishing banks one or two hundred miles distant from the islands for the purpose of feeding. As a result of the death of the mother, the dependent young starved to death on the rookeries. In the fall of 1896 sixteen thousand fur seal pups died of starvation on the rookeries of St. Paul and St. George islands.

As pelagic sealing developed through the increasing number of ships, its catch grew from 8,000 at the beginning to a maximum of 140,000 in 1894; but this could not last, and with the declining herd the pelagic catch also began to decline. In the season of 1911, the last of the industry, the catch numbered about 15,000 skins. From the known catch of the sealing fleets and from conservative estimates as to animals killed but not recovered it is apparent that more than a million breeding female fur seals and a like number of unborn and dependent young were destroyed during the thirty odd years the pelagic industry has been in operation. The result is the depleted condition in which we find the herd to-day. Our best information places the number of animals in the herd in 1867 at between two and three millions. It numbers to-day about 215,000.

Guelph Growing Rapidly.

City Assessor Hastings of Guelph estimates that when he has figured up all the returns they will show an increase of over 1,000 in population, and at least three-quarters of a million dollars increase in the assessment. An increase of 1,000 in the population would bring it up to the 16,400 mark. A large percentage of the newcomers to the city in the last year are old country people.

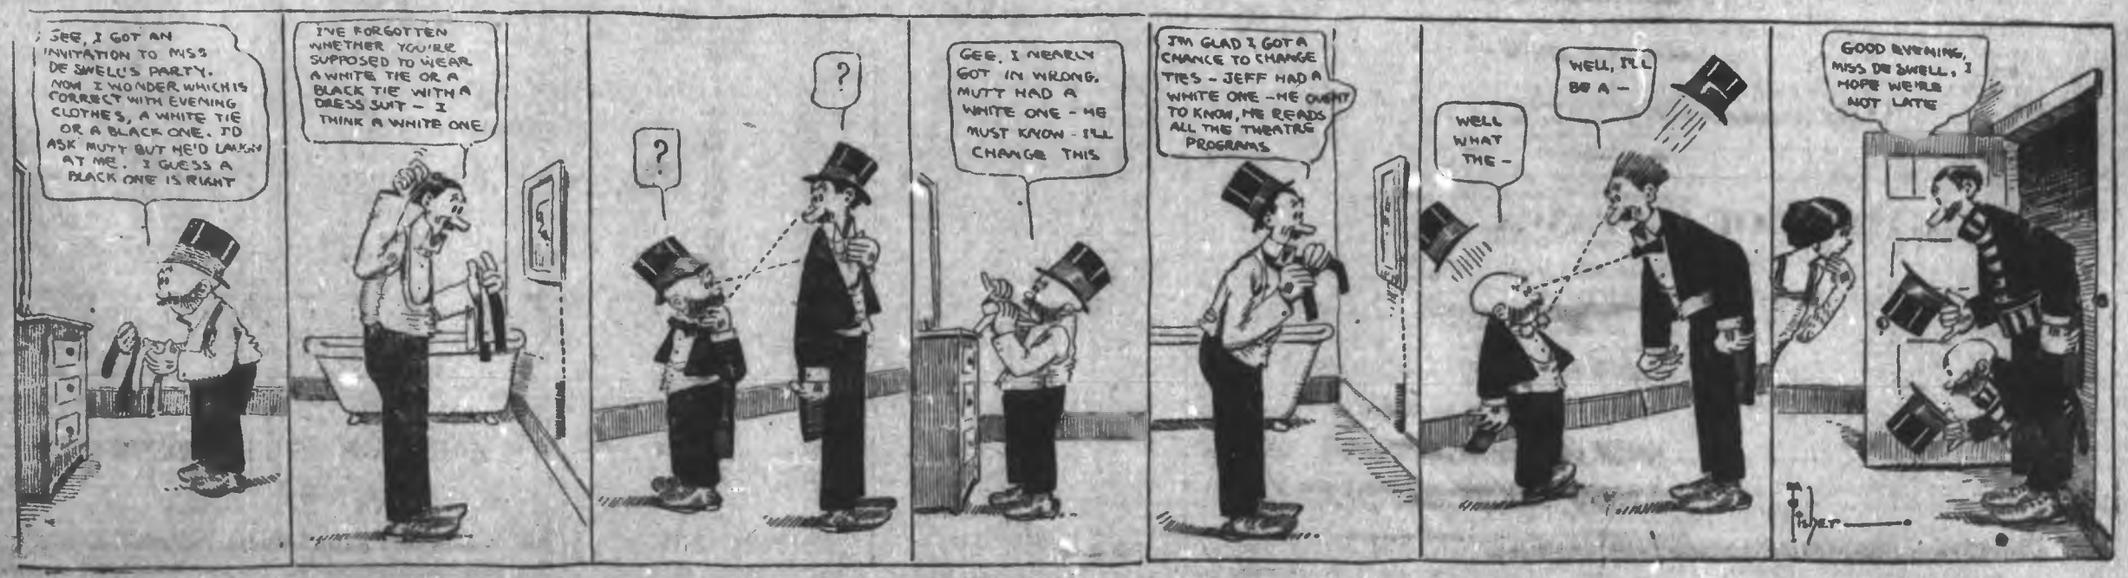
Mutt and Jeff Get an Invitation to a Very Swell Affair -:- By "Bud" Fisher



IN ONE MINUTE CLOGGED NOSTRILS OPEN--COLDS AND CATARRH VANISH

Stops Nasty Discharge, Clears Stuffed Head, Heals Inflamed Air Passages and You Breathe Freely.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake to-night struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw, dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

In this decadent day it is refreshing to observe that the Irish policemen can still whack heads hard.

"To Manuel, King of Portugal," was inscribed on the wedding gifts the ex-ruler received. Wasn't that rubbing it in on the deposed kinglet?

IT'S LIBEL ANYWAY.

Quebec Judge Finds Against Paper For Reporting Speech.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—Newspapers in this province that publish reports of public meetings in the course of which utterances of a libellous nature are made, do so at their own risk and on their own responsibility. Such is the decision of Justice Pawnton in a judgment wherein his lordship yesterday condemned La Patrie to pay Armand Lavergne the sum of $250.

Mr. Lavergne sued on account of certain accusations made by Albert Sevigny, M.P., in the course of a speech during the Hochelaga bye-election campaign a year ago. La Patrie reported the meeting, gave a faithful resume of Mr. Sevigny's speech and maintained in its plea that the utterances made at the meeting in question, being a matter of public interest, formed a fair subject for a newspaper article.

Mr. Sevigny himself admitted that the report published was a good summary of his speech, but where the newspaper principally erred, according to Justice Pelletier, was by drafting a heading, wherein the accusation of Mr. Sevigny was made a sort of positive assertion.

BEILISA ON TRIAL.

Russian Jew Accused of Murdering Boy on Religious Rite.

KIEV, Russia, Oct. 10.—The indictment of Mandel Beilisa for the murder of Andrew Yushinsky on March 25, 1911, near this city, was read immediately upon the reassembling of the court yesterday morning.

Widespread interest was attracted by the trial, owing to the report that the prosecution would advance the theory that the killing of the Christian boy Yushinsky was a "ritual murder."

The court-room was crowded when the four judges, presided over by Judge Boldirlew, took their seats the jurymen sleep in the court-house during the trial, and are kept without newspaper or letters until their verdict has been given.

The tables in the centre of the court contained the exhibits to be used in evidence, including dozens of sealed and clothbound packages, a large wooden box and a mysterious parcel wrapped in green paper. The Catholic priest, Pranaitis, one of the principal witnesses for the prosecution, occupied a seat in the well of the court next to Rabbi Maze of Moscow, and both of them sat reading books and taking notes.

POLICE DEFY CHIEFS.

London Bobbies Are Organizing a Secret Union.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Cable to The Tribune from London says: "Efforts are being made to form a secret trade union among the members of the metropolitan police. The Daily Express understands that, in spite of official opposition to schemes, offers have already been taken in Westminster, not far from Scotland Yard, and that within a fortnight an appeal will be issued to all the members of the force to join the new organization.

"Owing to the official opposition which the scheme has encountered the utmost secrecy will be maintained with regard both to membership and to the identity of the officers of the union. The organization will certainly be completed this month and will first be confined to the metropolitan force, but if it is successful it will be extended to other districts."

BACKACHE VANISHES RHEUMATIC PAINS GO

Few Doses of Croxone Ease Stiff, Sore Swollen Joints and Muscles, Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders

If you suffer with backache—have pains in the neck or sides—nervous or dizzy spells—a few doses of Croxone will relieve the congestion—and you will be surprised how quickly all kidney, blader and rheumatic troubles will disappear.

Croxone promptly relieves these diseases because it really does reach the real cause. It soaks right into the walls and linings of the kidneys, cleans out the stopped-up, inactive organs, neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid and makes the kidneys sift from the blood the waste and poisonous matter that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and acute rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and gives the kidneys renewed strength so they can filter the blood and keep you well.

Croxone is different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorised to return the purchase price if it should fail in a single case.

FIVE MINUTE CURE IF STOMACH IS BAD

When "Pape's Diapepsin" reaches Stomach All Indigestion, Gas and Sourness Disappears

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

MISSIONARIES STARVING.

Sufferings In Hands of Chinese Bandits Were Acute.

PEKIN, Oct. 10.—The harrowing experiences of the missionaries who fell into the hands of the Chinese brigands under leadership of "White Wolf" at Tsao Yang, were related yesterday in a despatch from Rev. Christian Stokstad of the Hauges, Norwegian Mission.

He declared that the Government troops found the two missionaries, Rev. George Holm and Rev. H. Fauske, merely living skeletons. The children had been for ten days hidden under a heap of straw. For the first three days they were without water. Afterward water was obtainable but the captives were without food at several occasions.

The bandits searched their hiding places and thrust their bayonets through the straw, grazing the limbs of those hidden beneath.

Girl Attacked By Bull.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 10.—Gleana, the ten-year-old daughter of Leslie Booth, was attacked by an infuriated bull opposite her home on Perth street and before being rescued received a terrible gash on the left, besides, other body injuries, none of which are considered serious. The girl attempted to climb a fence in an effort to escape the animal and was driven clear through the barricade by the force of the charge of the infuriated beast. The bull was shot on the spot by the child's father.

Toronto Mayor Honored.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 10.—Alexander Patterson of Toronto was elevated last night from the office of second to first vice-president of the Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada, which closed its tenth biennial sessions here in the Masonic Temple. Andrew J. O'Reilly of St. Louis was chosen president. It was decided to hold the next biennial convention in Indianapolis Ind., although about ten cities were contesting for it.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR CONSTIPATED CHILD

Every mother realises, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

NEW APPLE MARKET.

Ontario Despatches Her First Shipment to South Africa.

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—Ontario has found a new market for her apples. The first shipment was made yesterday from St. Catharines to Cape Town, South Africa.

The shipment comprised three thousand bushels of "King" apples, the chief rival of the famous "Northern Spies." The output was gathered from 245 trees in an orchard at St. David's, belonging to Mr. George H. Jooderham, M.P.P., of Toronto. The fruit was packed in special boxes in compliance with the fruit shipment act.

A prominent merchant of Cape Town, while passing through the Niagara Peninsula about a month ago, was so impressed with the fruit that he made an offer for the entire output of the orchard. As a result Mr. Gooderham obtained a price fully twenty per cent. better than he could in the home market, besides being relieved of the freight charges.

It is also understood that the same purchaser made contracts for apples to be shipped to South Africa next year with several other producers in the district, who could not accommodate him this year on account of the fact that they had already closed contracts with Toronto commission men.

Crocodile in a Tree.

An African hunter once found a large crocodile hanging in the fork of a tree about ten feet from the ground. As the place was fully half a mile from any water it was difficult to account for the crocodile's strange position. When questioned about the subject the natives explained that it was put there by an elephant. It seems that when the elephants wade into the Lake Ngami to bathe the crocodiles are in the habit of worrying them and biting their legs. Sometimes when an elephant is annoyed beyond endurance it picks up its tormentor in its trunk, places it among the branches of a tree and leaves it there.—London Graphic.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers

If you have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Instead of proving bearish, the government report today on wheat turned out slightly in favor of the other side. The news, however, came too late to affect prices, which closed steady, the same as last night, to a shade decline. As to corn, the Washington estimate showed some gain as expected. That cereal, nevertheless, finished ⅛c to ⅜c net higher, with oats ⅛c to ¼c up, and provisions 5c off to 5c advance.

Optimism.

Cheer up, old boy, don't dump your joy because the day is glum; pick out the best and dump the rest, let's hear you start to hum. When in a jam don't cuss and slam, but grin and wait it out; the joys love flops, it's powerful dope and puts the grumps to rout. So don't despair, turn down dull care and leave him to the mob. The sun ain't dead, he'll leave his bed and soon be on the job.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Eminent Latinist Dead.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Prof. Robinson Ellis, one of the greatest of English Latinists, is dead.

Since 1893 Prof. Ellis had been Corpus professor of Latin literature at Oxford. He was born at Barming, Kent, in 1834. He was appointed professor of Latin at University College, London, in 1870, and Latin reader at Oxford from 1883 to 1893. He was the author of many works on various phases of Latin literature.

Carnegie Helps Aberdeen.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 10.—Andrew Carnegie has expressed an intention of giving funds enough to Aberdeen University to establish a lectureship or professorship of Norwegian history. Dr. Jakob Jakobsen, one of Norway's most learned men, has been invited to be the first occupant of the chair. He is noted as an authority on old Norse dialects and place names.

SATURDAY BATHING.

A Custom the Occident Borrowed From the Orient.

Most barbarians, judged by modern standards, were anything but cleanly in their personal habits. In England, France and Germany bathing was an almost unknown custom until after the Crusades. The pilgrims from the east brought home with them ideas of the bath as help in the treatment of disease, and bathrooms were gradually introduced into the hospitals. From the hospitals the ideas of bathing spread generally. People who had been treated there saw the value of keeping the body clean in order to resist disease. The great plague that swept over Europe in the early years of the fourteenth century helped to teach this lesson.

By the fifteenth century there was scarcely a large city that did not possess well patronized public bathing establishments, although it was not until the seventeenth century that the Turkish bath was introduced, and not until the eighteenth century that sea bathing, so common among the American Indians, was tried experimentally.

Saturday was chosen as bathing time and the reason is not difficult to imagine. On Sunday everybody was compelled to go to church, whether he would or not. As the Moslem in the east bathed before entering the mosque so did the medieval man before entering his church, only he must take his bath on Saturday afternoon in order to be clean the following day. There was even a distribution of bath money to the children whose parents were unable to pay for their baths.—New York Post.

Deep and Shallow Diamonds.

In buying a diamond see to it that your stone is neither too deep nor too shallow. If it be too deep the "table" at the top of the stone will have a dead look instead of showing as much color and light as at the edge, where the diamond is cut thin to receive the light. You are simply paying for extra weight that adds nothing to, but rather detracts from the appearance of the gem. The shallow stone, on the other hand—which is technically known as a fish eye—has a glassy look. Some people buy them because they appear bigger than they really are, but the bargain is a poor one and to be avoided.

LACK OF EXERCISE

Brings on Troubles which are Best Corrected by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Sedentary Habits Become Constipation

Man was intended to live an active, outdoor life, and his digestive system was modelled accordingly. Indoor work with hands or head, long hours sitting or standing still, especially in air that's none too good, slow down the healthy activities of stomach, liver, kidneys and the millions of tiny skin glands.

Then the worth of that good old reliable family medicine, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, is appreciated. Though it has been in use for over half a century, modern science has not been able to devise a safer or better cleanser for the whole system.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are largely vegetable in composition, free from any harmful drug, and mild yet most effective in their action. They are "Mother's standby" in hundreds of homes because they nip in the bud so many of the common ailments.

POLICY IS ENDORSED

W.C.T.U. Supports Liberal Demand For Bar Abolition

NEW DRESSES IMMODEST

STRATFORD, Oct. 11.—The discussions at the Ontario Women's Christian Temperance Union convention were crystallized at the closing session yesterday afternoon in a series of resolutions touching various phases of temperance and social activities.

Toronto was selected as the meeting place next year.

The convention in its resolutions dealt with Ontario liquor legislation and expressed disappointment that the reforms had not been more drastic. Endorsation of the present policies was given as follows:

"Resolved, that we are in hearty sympathy with the advanced temperance legislation enacted at the recent session of the Ontario House. We believe these amendments to the License Act will have a most salutary effect in compelling respect for the present law. At the same time we must express our regret at the refusal of the Government to enact the only legislation that can really be effective (prohibition) up to the constitutional powers of the province, and we take pleasure in endorsing the much more radical stand of the Opposition. For while the abolition of the bar, treating and drinking in clubs is not our ultimate goal, it is a long stride towards it, and is a policy that should command the respect and compel the support of every temperance man and woman."

A vigorous shot was levelled at modern dress tendencies among women:

"Believing that many of the present styles of dress are not only immodest, but directly tend toward immorality among our youth, therefore be it resolved that we do all in our power to raise the whole question of dress to a higher plane, training our daughters to desire only beauty of line and color—the visible sign of the soul, which is all glorious within."

The desire of the W. C. T. U. for woman suffrage was indicated in the following resolution:

"That our women should make manifest their determination to secure in every legitimate means an extended franchise either in Parliamentary or municipal suffrage."

Will Build Retaining Wall.

GALT, Oct. 11.—A special meeting of Galt town council last night, decided to proceed with the work of a retaining wall on the west side of the river, extended back ten feet, to admit a wider channel and minimize flood danger. The Grand River Improvement Association would seem to have abandoned hope of having the Ontario Government take up the flood question in a practical way and it will fall on the several municipalities menaced, to protect themselves as best they can.

DEPUTIES ARRESTED

TROOPS AROUND CHAMBER

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—President Huerta's heavy hand fell ruthlessly upon members of the House of Deputies last night, when, acting under orders from the President, Garza Aldape, Minister Gobernacion and Chaves, chief of police, arrested 110 members of the chamber and imprisoned them in the penitentiary.

The men arrested are charged with usurping executive functions. They constitute the entire membership of the chamber, exceptin those belonging to the Catholic party.

Gendarmes and soldiers in civilian garb were packed into the galleries of the chamber, and the public was excluded.

Garza Aldape bore a written message from Huerta, in which he peremptorily ordered the deputies to rescind their resolution for an investigation of the Dominguez case.

A guard was stationed at each deputy's desk. Then Garza Aldape and Chaves, with several soldiers, replaced the President and clerk of the chamber. A list of those members who voted for the Dominguez resolution was read. As each name was called, the member who bore it was formally taken into custody. A score of automobiles were waiting outside the chamber, and into them the prisoners were forced and hurried to the penitentiary. No cells were available for them, as the institution is crowded with political captives. Accordingly they are spending the night on the floors of the corridors.

The American secretary of embassy, Mr. O'Shaughnessy, was refused admittance to the chamber, although Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, was allowed to pass the lines of troops to the diplomatic gallery.

The Chamber of Deputies is surrounded by federal troops, and several hundred others are inside the building. It is reported that President Huerta intends to dissolve the body.

The evacuation of Torreon by the federal forces just before its occupation by the Constitutionalists is beginning to show its effect in the capital. A small detachment of troops in Provisional President Huerta's army broke out in rebellion Thursday evening in Tlalnepantla, a suburb of the city. The soldiers who engaged in the local revolt turned on their officers before the latter had an opportunity to escape. The officers were killed by the mutineers.

Further violence was prevented when other troops combined to put down the mutiny. It is feared, however, that this tragedy will have a great effect on the morale of the garrison here.

Died From Excitement.

HAMILTON, Oct. 11.—A few moments after receiving the advice of a doctor to avoid all excitement, Mrs. Ernest Hall, 19 years of age, fell prostrate Friday afternoon on Main street and died while being carried to the hospital. Mrs. Hall's death was caused by apoplexy, induced by the sight of a small boy, Teddie Johnson, being thrown from a bicycle and crushed under the wheels of a heavy motor truck.

Seeing the accident as she walked from the public library building, Mrs. Hall stepped forward quickly in an attempt to save the boy. Suddenly she faltered and fell. Death followed within a few minutes.

Will Call on Empire.

BELFAST, Oct. 11.—The Ulster Liberal Association issued a manifesto yesterday announcing that the Ulster Liberals would disregard the authority of the proposed provincial government and claim the protection of the forces of the Empire in defence of their liberties, "which would be greatly imperilled by the success of the Anarchistic movement led by Sir Edward Carson."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Adolphus Busch, the St. Louis brewer, died at Langenschwalbach, Prussia, yesterday.

Rev. Charles Shelley of Valleyfield, Que., has signified his acceptance of the call to the First Presbyterian Church, Brockville.

As a result of a head-on collision on the Berlin branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, near Westfield, Conn., one man was killed and several hurt.

Arthur Kenyon of 84 Bartlett avenue, Toronto, who was crushed between a motor truck and a wagon on Spadina Crescent two weeks ago, died in the General Hospital early yesterday.

The storm that devastated Nome, Alaska, wiped the town of Solomon off the map. Not a building of any sort in the settlement, which had a population of 300 remained standing after the gale.

Thomas Cooper and George Cahill [illegible], were arrested on Thursday for stealing a quantity of brass and selling it at a second-hand store at Brockville. They were convicted yesterday.

Rev. Isaac M. Thompson, one of the oldest clergymen of the Church of England in the diocese of Quebec, died in Quebec last evening, after a short illness, in the 78th year of his age, and the forty-fourth of his ministry.

Grain shipments eastward over the lakes yesterday climbed toward the 2,000,000 bushel mark, the actual figures being: Wheat, 1,298,000 bushels; oats, 431,000 bushels; barley, 140,000 bushels; total, 1,869,000 bushels.

Two Great Oceans Meet in the Panama Canal

TOLLS DISPUTE NEARS END

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. — The momentary touch of a key by the President of the United States yesterday sent a flash of electricity through a continuous telegraph and cable connection of 4,000 miles, setting off a gigantic blast of dynamite which exploded the Gamboa Dike, the last of the great physical barriers to water communication in the Panama Canal.

It was an extraordinary feat of telegraphy, specially planned for the occasion. At precisely two o'clock yesterday afternoon President Wilson, by simply closing a telegraph key at the White House, sent the current overland and under sea and just a few seconds later came a message informing him that the explosion had been successful.

The special circuit had been set up early in the day and the telegraph companies stationed men at every important point en route to guard the continuous connection and prevent mechanical interference.

"Is the cable ready?" he enquired.

"Yes," came the answer, and soon Galveston announced that "PA," the telegraph call of Panama City, was heard. By agreement, the operator at the White House made four distinct dots at 20 seconds before two o'clock. This gave the signal for the engineers at the Gamboa Dike to be in readiness for the flash. They waited 20 seconds, and on the dot President Wilson closed the key which sent the current into the dynamite apparatus.

"There, it is all over," smiled the President. "Gamboa is busted."

The President sent Co. Goethals, engineer of the canal, a brief message of congratulation and turned to those about him, happy in the thrill of the moment—for it brought anticipation of the final step that will open to the world a short waterway between the Atlantic and the Pacific, the dream of centuries.

Settlement In Sight.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The Washington correspondent of The Times sends his paper this cable: "Almost at the same moment as President Wilson yesterday, by releasing an electric spark, has removed the last obstacle between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, it is with peculiar pleasure that I am able to announce that there now is every prospect of a victory for Great Britain's patient and logical diplomacy over the Panama tolls question."

The President, after conferring with John Bassett Moore, councillor for the State Department, announced that he is convinced of the correctness of the British contention that free tolls for American shipping are a violation of treaty obligations.

"Whether the Presidents' view will be presented to Congress in a special message or be personally communicated to the Democratic leaders, has not yet been decided, but action will be taken either in this or early in the next session. Politicians who are in favor of a rebate have not changed their views, but the administration is confident it now will be able to secure a repeal of the clause."

Tokio Insists On Satisfaction.

TOKIO, Oct. 11.—The Foreign Office yesterday issued a statement concerning the negotiations with China arising from the killing of Japanese subjects at Nanking, in which it says one condition imposed by Japan upon China remains unsatisfied. The statement adds that the time has not arrived to disclose its nature, but that China has given assurances that it will be complied with.

It is understood that this condition calls for the dismissal of Gen. Chang Hsun, head of the Chinese Government troops at Nanking, and that while China has agreed eventually to comply, she has postponed action for the time being owing to the inability of the central government to enforce his dismissal at the present time if it were decreed.

Galt's Population Increases.

GALT, Oct. 11.—Galt's growth is evidenced in the assessor's returns made public yesterday. Each of five wards show increased population, the aggregate being 806, making a total population of 11,983. Total value of assessment is $6,182,540, being $232,000 increase. Births were 192 deaths 66. The town has three hundred dogs. Following the rabies scare of two years ago, the canine population has perceptibly diminished. Assessors report a house famine. Many houses contain two to four families, some as many as 22 persons.

Four Hundred Thousand Fire.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Fire early yesterday destroyed the six-storey main building of the Southwestern Milling Co., Kansas City, Kan., and the mill's power plant, a short distance away. The loss is estimated at $400,000.

Snuffed Blue Vitrol.

GALT, Oct. 11.—Allison Markle, a Hespeler small boy, picked up a piece of blue vitrol and snuffed it up his nostrils. The services of a doctor were called to avert possibly fatal consequences.

DYNAMITERS CONFESS.

Police on Verge of Solving Many Bomb Outrages.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The mystery of more than a hundred bomb explosions that have occurred in this city during the past year is on the verge of solution, he police believe, as the result of the confessions of four men in jail at Hackensack, N.J., their statements leading to the arrest here yesterday of two men charged with setting off a quantity of explosives in front of an east side tenement house on Sept. 9. The accused men, Pietro Gambrone and Antonio Leventino, were held in heavy bail in a magistrate's court for a hearing today.

Leventino was taken to Hackensack, and, according to Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, was identified by the prisoners there as the head of a gang of black hand bomb exploders operating in New York and vicinity. Italian detectives were assigned to make a round-up of suspects, and last night several were being questioned at police headquarters. Commissioner Dougherty said they had made confessions corroborating the statements of the men under arrest in Hackensack.

One of the latter prisoners is declared to have betrayed the gang when a portion of his reward for firing off a bomb was held back. Disclosures that followed police inquiry, according to reports, indicated that some bombs were manufactured here with dynamite stolen on contracting jobs in nearby counties.

Escaped Lunatic a Menace.

CHATHAM, Oct. 11.—A man, who is supposed to be an escaped lunatic from the London asylum, is terrorizing the residents of the vicinity of Blenheim. Thursday he made his appearance near a farmer's house, and with a revolver, gave chase to two small boys, shooting the gun off several times during the pursuit. The boys were not injured, but they and their parents were badly scared. The man frightened several other people, also of the vicinity. Constables Fagan and Earle tried to locate the lunatic, but he is still at large.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

By ROY NORTON

Where the Roof Is the Sky.

The Mediator with a nice round place shaved on the side of his head, and the round place decorated with court-plaster, was out bright and early on the morning after the end of thes trips, and could have been found draped carelessly over the board fence of a corral at about ten o'clock. All importunities voiced by the redoubtable manager of the Keswick Queen, the stolid superintendent, and the big foreman, had been inflexibly met with the statement that he had discovered that he was "no good workin' for other folks," and money inducements he scorned. Indeed, for the first time since he had arrived in Keswick, he semed completely happy and care-free. His expression was as joyous as that of a boy released for his summer vacation. He whistled softly, smoked, and loafed with an air of fascinating contentment. The world had stretched inviting arms out to him, spread glamourous trails leading into unknown and alluring distances, and whispered pleasant tales into his ears. And the heart of the wanderer had leaped in response. He was going to "hit the trail" again. He was done with being "bossed," even though there had been scarcely any restraint on his movements in those weeks he had conscientiously passed in the employ of the Keswick Queen.

"I've got to have somebody to help Jack," he meditated, as he leaned over the corral fence, "and I want to pick out some feller that he likes. I'll hang around here a while till he shows his preferments."

And so, for an hour, Mr. Henley watched the burros in the corral, as they dozed here and there, or wandered aimlessly around, or fought, or sauntered over to where, with friendly intent, he stood.

"That's the feller Jack likes best," he said to himself, at last, observing that Jack appeared to have a predilection for about the poorest burro in the yard. "It's that old grey mucker there. Bet he's got Methusalem lookin' like an infant; but, hang it all! if Jack likes him, reckon I can stand for him."

He called the corral-owner to his side.

"Who's that old feller over there—the one by my burro?" he asked, pointing at the old one.

"Him? That's Pete. He's for sale," was the reply. "But wh. don't you pick out a good one?"

"What's the matter with him?" demanded the Mediator.

"Nothin' except he's old."

"Is he a nice old feller?" queried Lish. "Mean? Pilferin', balky, bitin', or anything like that?"

The dealer laughed.

"Nope. He's all right; but he's old. He belonged to old Specimen Jones that died here about a month ago. Specimen and him was sort of fond of each other. Specimen must have had that burro when he started prospectin', and they do say he was at the game for nigh on to a hundred years, or maybe more. Public administrator left Pete here to be sold."

"That settles it," declared the Mediator. "I ain't runnig no home for aged and impoverished mules, but that old cuss ought to fall into good hands. He ought to be with somebody that'd appreciate him. I like him. I see now why Jack's so fond of him. Jack's always been careful about pickin' his company. He don't want any drunken, fightin' bums hangin' around him. No, siree-e!"

"Well," said the dealer, "I can't exactly say that I ever saw Pete drunk. It'll cost you fifteen dollars to get him."

Lish paid for the new burro with some of the money he had earned at the Queen, climbed the fence, and made his way to his now purchase. He ran his hand along Pete's back and noted the pack-saddle scars, lifted the tiny legs and inspected the hoofs, and threw an arm over the patient neck.

"It's all right, Pete," he confided. "You and me and Jack's goin' to be friends. I'm goin' to take you out of this hole. It ain't no place for a decent, self-respectin' old feller like you nohow. If I didn't take you some fellar might come along that'd be mean to you, and, for the sake of old Specimen Jones, we ain't goin' to let that happen."

He got around and held the burro's face up so that he could look into the soft eyes, and added, whimsically:

"You're hired. Jack's goin' to be the foreman. You're the gang. I'm the manager. Come on."

He whistled to Jack, who obediently came to his heels, caught Pete at the back of the ears, and led the way to the big gate. Through it they passed, and Pete, as if wise and comprehending, trotted alongside Jack, as the latter delightedly followed the Mediator up the street, and away toward the mine that was no longer a part of his everyday life.

They paused long enough to purchase and fit a pack saddle and some fresh tarpaulin, and then went to a supply store where the beans, bacon, flour, baking powder, and other necessaries were selected, rolled into the tarpaulin, and made into a well-ordered pack. The deft hands of the Mediator threw the diamond hitch, and Pete appeared to appreciate a master's hand as he settled himself to his load, and smiled wisely at Jack.

Up at the house that had the wonderful bathtub, Lish made another pack, and loaded it on top of the restless Jack, who, with the contempt of long familiarity, nipped at the folds of the Mediator's shirt. The Mediator went back into the comfortable home that had been his, and that he was so carelessly abandoning. The walls looked bare, now that he had denuded them of his "art gallery," and the bed was tumbled and tossed where he had dragged off his blankets. He halted in the door, and loked the place over with a critical eye—the eye of the old trail man—to see whether he had left any valued possession behind.

"All set," he said. "Everything ready. You've been a good room, best, I reckon, that I've ever had! But after all, you're nothin' but a house! It ain't your fault because you can't help bein' what you are; but you're just plain house. And the air don't come through you from all sides, and I ketch cold in you, and you shut out the songs of the pine trees at night and the whistles of the birds in the mornin'. Your sides don't move when the wind blows, and—hang you! you keep out all the rain. The trouble with you is, that you're too cussed good! If you'd only leak once in a while, or act as if you were goin' to fall down, or do somethin' to make me think you was workin' hard to be a shelter, I might have liked you; but you didn't, and so now I'm goin'. Good-bye!"

He passed out to the open front door, and smiled as he saw that everyone around Keswick Queen was working as if there had never been a strike, or a threat of one. He ran down to the messhouse to bid the Chinese boy good-bye, and returned to the cabin, just as Higgins, looking gloomy and distressed, appeared.

"Lish,' protes'ted Bill, rather hopelessly, "I'd hoped right up to now that you wouldn't go. Don't be a fool, man! Stick here. Why, say! you can have anything you want around here, after yesterday. The old man's for you to the finish. He told me to keep you from goin', no matter what it cost. Give him anything he wants, but keep him here. He's the kind we can depend on. He's the best man we've ever had on the works. If it's money, he can have more. If the house don't suit him, we'll get him another one that will. If the hours tain't right, let him make his own. Anyhow, keep him. Find out what's the matter with him, and fix it.' That's what the manager of this mine said to me, this mornin'. Now, Lish, what the devil is it that ails you?"

His air was almost belligerent as he put his hands on his hips, and looked down at his old-time friend. It was as if he challenged the latter to name something that could not be granted. But the Mediator blinked up at him, then looked at the burros who stood patiently in front of the doorway, awaiting his direction.

"There ain't nothin' ails me, Bill," said the wanderer, lowering his fearless eyes for once, as if a trifle ashamed of his desertion, "except that I can't stand it. I've got to be outside. I've got to be some place where ther ain't so dog-gone many people. You see, Bill, I ain't used to makin' people do what I think they'd orter. I ain't cut out to be a boss over nobody but mules. I don't know how. I'd like it, if I could make fellers do things for me because they loved me; but they don't. They do it because, somehow, I have to make 'em afraid. And the things men does for you because they're afraid of you, don't count, nohow. You'd do it, Bill, because you understand, but the others don't. I was nice to them fellers. I didn't do nothin' to 'em except tell 'em they had to work, and then, you saw how it was, yesterday, I had to hammer it into em with a pick handle. I don't like to have to hurt folks. It messes things up so, and as soon as it's all over, I'm so plague-goned sorry I could sit down and cry about it."

He looked sorrowfully at the ground then appealingly upward at the dark eyes that met his, and seemed to be ashamed of having so openly voiced his soul.

"You've been good to me, Bill, and they all have, but there's somethin' else. You can't understand it. I'm thinkin', but I want to be out under the sky, and the trees, and where I can make friends of the birds, and livin' things that's all around me. Them's the places where I have peace. And runnin' water! I like to self where there's a stream, because in the night I can hear it sayin' things, and singin' nice little songs, and tellin' me all about the boulders it met farther back in the hills and what they said to it as it came hustlin' along on its trip. Nope, Bill, it ain't no use! I ain't cut out for it, and I'm goin'."

He pretended to have discovered something wrong with one of the packs, and plunged out to Petes side and bent over; but he did not in the least deceive Bill Higgins, who stood in the dorway, looking as if something was being wrenched from his reformed life.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion."—Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont.—"I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial."—Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

"And, Bill," called the Mediator, as he straightened up and rested a hand on the clean tarpaulin, "there's one thing more I want to say before I go. It's about that Marthy of yourn't. Don't give up! Keep after her! I ain't particularly wise about women, but I've noticed that it's the feller who makes it so damn hot for em they can't rest that usually gets 'em. You just make it hot for Marthy. Sometime she'll melt like a can of lard in hell, and then you can scoop her in."

He walked up to Jack's head and said:

"Well, boys, here we go.'

"But, Lish, where are you goin'?" demanded Higgins, coming down from the doorstep as if still hopeful of checking the adventurer.

"By Crackey!" exclaimed the Mediator. "That's somethin' I hadn't thaunth anything about, at all. Where does this road go?"

"That road," said Bill, reluctantly, "leads southward." He paused as if he had thought of that long trail on many occasions, when the world was a despondent one, and added, softly: "It goes, if one follows it long enough, to Peaceful Hill. And that's ten thousand miles away."

The Mediator's face brightened and a slow smile crept up into the wrinkled corners of his eyes, and around the firm lips.

"Ged-dap, boys!" he said to the burros, with a friendly nudge. "This trail's the one we'll take. It's as good as any other."

And, without looking back for even so much as a wave of the hand at big Bill Higgins, he started away, little whirls of dust arising when his feet struck the road, little clouds of smoke rolling backward from his cigarette, and his eyes lovingly searching the sky line, as if eager to behold what the mountains might conceal.

CHAPTER VI.

Stirring up the Peaceful Prospector.

Up on the Big Divide, the camp of Peaceful Hill slumbered peacefully in the afternoon haze, and was all unconscious that, plodding down its main street, with a philosophical eye cast to right and left, had come the Mediator. The Widow Callahan, who did the camp washing, first saw him. She paused, with a mouthful of clothespins, after deftly hanging a faded, dripping blue shirt on the line and stared at him. Not that prospectors were such rarities, but because this one looked different. Apparently he wanted to say something. He calmly walked toward the weather-beaten fence that kept her domain sacred from the intrusions of the road, which in muddy seasons was inclined to wander, irrespective of property rights, across front-door stoops and gardens, as teamsters strove to find footing for sweating teams. He was followed by two pack burros that expressed a predilection for his company, or acted as if they wer afraid to be left alone and unprotected in such a wildly exciting and metroploitan situation as a street in a dosing camp.

He leaned amiably across the weather-beaten fence and grinned at her, one of those grins that show white teeth from under a straggling moustache out of a patch of brown, leathery face. He cleared his throat loudly, as if the granite dust of a long journey had parched his throat.

"Good-day, ma'am," he began politely. "Can you tell me how far it is to the nearest saloon?"

"I can," she answered with acerbity, after removing the clothespins, "and likewise I have no use for a man who drinks. It's the curse of the devil, whisky is. A man that drinks is nogood. Not that a body needed to look twice at you to know. There's one just beyond the corner. It's run by a blackguard named Holliday, bad luck to him!"

"Thanks!" he replied, imperturbably. "Now can you tell me whether there's a waterin' trough in front of it? Most of 'em keeps 'waterin' troughs. Sort of a drink-for-man-and-beast deal, I reckon. I want to get a drink for them burros. They're right thirsty, ma'am, them mules is."

At this ingenuous explanation she softened half-credulously, and then shook her head, very emphatically.

"Now, when Mike Callahan was alive," she said thoughtfully, "I thought he had given me all the excuse there were for findin' saloons; but this is the first time a man ever asked because he wanted to give his burros a drink."

She stooped over to pick up another garment from the basket at her feet; but the stranger did not move.

"My name's Henley," he said; "David Elisha Henley; but the boys mostly call me Lish."

The widow looked up at him.

"Oh, you're there yet, are you?" she said. "Well, what of it?"

"And I kind of wonder if you know anybody by the name of Higgins—Mrs. Marthy Higgins. I sort of come out of my way to have a talk with her."

Mrs. Callahan stopped and frowned thoughtfully.

"It does seem to me there's a woman by that name who's cookin' for the Candy Hill Mine," she said. "Its 'way up on the Divide—most fifteen or eighteen miles from here. They can tell you down at 'most any store."

She resumed her work, and still David Elisha Henley paused. Again she looked up.

"Well, what are you waitin' for now?" she asked.

"Just wanted to thank you when you warn't so busy," he said. "Its been right good of you to tell me where this Marthy and the saloon and the waterin' trough is. Hope I can do the same for you sometime. Good-day, ma'am."

She appeared mollified by this remarkable courtesy sufficiently to wish him a polite good-day as he turned away, with his patient burros still following like two miniature mountains labouring under their worn packs. As he walked it was patent to John Martin, owner of the Cricket Mine, boss and judge of men, who passed him in the roadway, that the newcomer was something of a physical study, for there was no more than five feet of him perpendicularly, with peculiarly broad, sloping shoulders and a pair of ridiculously lithe legs. The torso was quite like a barrel. And premonition told Mr. Martin nothing, even when he was wished an exceptionally polite "Good-afternoon!" by the man in the dust. There was no mistaking that prospector type.

And Mr. Henley, as he passed along, eyed with a very satisfied eye the beauties of a camp that led out for the most part in one main street, bordered by fine old trees, weather-warped old houses, sun-dried old board walks, and signs that were nearly illegible. He could not refrain from voicing his satisfaction to the lead burro, thereby indicating that he had discovered that animal to be a gentleman with an observing soul, and a compassionable understanding.

"This looks like the place, Jack," he said; "the place we've been looking for. There's a schoolhouse over yonder where probably they teach kids to read and write and figger a little. That shows this is a home town. There's a real meetin' house beyond it with a bell in that thing that looks like a dog's house, and that shows they are church folks. Mayte they sing hymns in there on Sunday. There's a store there with a porch in front of it, and a fat man fannin' himself with a palm leaf, that makes me believe theres a circus comes here once in a while. That shows the town is for entertainment and culture. Theres an old soak asleep out on the porch in front of the saloon two doors up, and that shows that the folks live here is all liberal, and dont interfere with a man's enjoyin' himself in his own way. Then up there alongside the road is a waterin' trough, which sure indicates to me they're kind to animals. We been huntin' a peaceful place ever since they run us out of Keswick with their awful brawlin', and this seems to be the spot. I'm for it! Let's mosey over yonder and get that drink."

As if he had understood the whole summary, the burro hastened his steps, and made for the trough into which cold water, piped down from some mountain spring, gurgled rapturously, and joined a duet with the overflow from the lower end. The other burro, who appeared to be a phlegmatic sort of person, and given to nothing but work, joined his fellow in a drink, plunging an aged grey muzzle into the cooling flow and the prospector advised them to "go to it," and walked around the end. He stepped up on the creaking porch—saw the sign, "Happy Home," on the window, and went in. A tall, lank man was asleep, with his elbows on his arms over the worn bar.

Lish smiled sympathetically. He could understand sleep. He had manifested the habit on many occasions.

The man who had been dozing suddenly let out a yell that shook the glassware, landed on his feet immediately in front of the cash till, and at the same time whipped a wicked-looking gun into sight in a dangerous line with Henley's head. The latter, with equal celerity, stretched both hands skyward, and his face lost its habitual good humour.

"Hold on, pardner! Don't press the trigger!" he admonished. "I'm right sorry I disturbed you. I didn't mean nothin' by it, you know."

The man rather sheepishly lowered his weapon, and his eyes lost their wildness. He threw the gun back on the edge of the shelf, and then apologised.

"I'm a bad sleeper," he said. "Sometimes when I'm woke up that way I come right out of shaky dreams, and—well, I just can't get over it! What'll you have, stranger?"

The invader's arms came down slowly, and his eyes betrayer a certain watchfulness, as if anticipating further belligerent action; then he explained his wants.

"Id like a bottle of sody pop—the red kind. Sarsparilla is my favourite, but if you ain't got that, I'll take raspberry."

"On the water waggon, are you?" he asked solicitously. "Well, sody pop's about the only thing we ain't got. Maybe you'd like a lemonade? It's right steadyin' to the nerves. Chunk of ice in it makes it colder. Every try it?"

He leaned across the bar, and gazed commiserating into the customer's face, as conveying a great and boonful information. He seemed relieved when told that would do.

"I've come a right long way to get here," Lish volunteered, in the interest of sociability. "The first time I heard of this place was when I was down in Arisony. It was an awful camp, what with the fightin' men they had there, and gun men and gamblers. The name Peaceful Hill struck me right hard. Then I started for it, and I've been nigh on to two years gettin' here, what with all the stops I had to make; but here I am. Says I to myself: 'If there's any peaceful place on God Almighty's earth, I want to get into it with both feet, because I'm for peace—first, last, and all the time!'"

The proprietor of the Happy Home grinned sympathetically, and shoved a decoction of acid, sugar, and water across the bar, and, without invitation, and in the interests of promoting business, poured out a drink of villainous-smelling whiskey for himself, and with an absent-minded manner, took a liberal price for two drinks from the wayfarers money. Inasmuch as Lish made no objection to this polite robbery, the saloon man ventured to hope he would like the camp, and remain there forever.

"There ain't no place like this here Divide for a good prospector," he explained with enthusiasm, when asked to repeat the drinking performance. "The Forty-niners scratched and pawed over the top of the ground, and got all the easy money; but pshaw! they wa'n't miners. They was just plain pikers and farmers from down East. The Native Sons don't get up this way very often. It's too far off the railway. They don't like that thirty or forty miles of Divide. So, you see, you got the whole blamed country to look at. Minin's pickin' up around here lately. Go to it, says I."

It sounded as if the proprietor of the Happy Home owned all that vast sweep of mountains, and was presenting them all to the newcomer. And the newcomer was accordingly gratified. He bethought him of the woman in whom he was interested.

ENGLISH MONEY

Some Facts About It Which Are Not Generally Known

The last tests which the sovereign undergoes at the Mint before it is issued are the weight and sound of it. The weight is tested by a wonderful automatic machine. The coins are pushed along one after the other, and those which are too light drop down one hole, those which are too heavy drop down a second hole, and those which are exactly true weight drop down a third hole.

These latter are then ready for sound testing. This is done by a workman who is seated in a glass sound-proof office. In front of him he has an object like an anvil. On either side of him he has piles of sovereigns, and he bangs these on the anvil, one after the other, keeping up a continuous fire. The moment he hears a discordant note, he picks out the offending coin. The coins drop down into a receptacle below the anvil, and these are then all ready for issuing.

Sovereigns are legal tender to any amount, but that is not the case with silver coins, for they are only legal tender up to two pounds, and a person is not bound to accept more than two pounds' worth of silver in settlement of a debt. As to copper Britons are not bound to accept more than one shilling's worth.

When a customer pays Bank of England notes into a bank they are put carefully into a drawer, and are used again just like cash. But if a note is cashed at the Bank of England or any of its branches, the cashier hands out the gold and destroys the note by tearing it in two.

The reason of this is that every note issued by the Bank of England represents its face value in sovereigns in the possession of the Bank. They are not allowed to issue as many notes as they think fit, for every single five-pound note issued by the bank there must be five sovereigns in the bank's cellars. The object of the system of banknotes is to facilitate the transfer of cash, and assist in the rapid discharge of business.

Do you Believe in going straight to the weak spot in treating disease? If so, you will never use anything but Peps for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and throat and lung troubles. Listen why!

Peps are tiny tablets, which contain rich medicinal ingredients, so prepared that they turn into vapour in the mouth, and are breathed down to the throat, the breathing tubes and lungs direct.

Cough mixtures go—not to the lungs and chest at all, but to the stomach. There is absolutely no direct connection between stomach and lungs.

When you have a bad cold, your digestion is weakened. You lose appetite, and if a man, your usual smoke does not "taste good." In other words, your digestive system is looking tone. All cough mixtures make this condition worse.

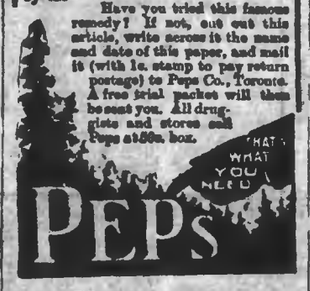
Surprising how they end coughs, catarrh, bronchitis, sore-throat, "clergyman's throat," asthma, and all lung troubles. Contain no poison, and are best for children.

Dr. Gordon Stables says:—"If you wish to ease and end a cough, if you desire to loosen tickling phlegm, and clear the throat and the breathing tubes, use Peps. The pine fumes and balsamic fumes, so beneficial in throat and lung trouble, which are liberated when a Pep is put into the mouth, also serve another good purpose. They are strongly germicidal, and germs of disease in the mouth, on the palate, in the throat, and in the breathing tubes, are at once destroyed by their action."

Have you tried this famous remedy? If not, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box.



MONEY IN WOODLOTS

Scientific Principles to be Followed to Secure Best Results

There is no part of the farm which will give bigger returns for so little expenditure of time and labor as the woodlot, says Mr. B. R. Morton, expert forester for the Dominion Government, and there are three ways in which the farmer, by the exercise of ordinary common sense, can vastly improve the composition, production and reproduction of his woodlot.

The first thing necessary is to improve the character of the crop, which can be done by cutting down and using for firewood all diseased and deformed trees, as well as such species whose presence in the woodlot is not desirable. Only too frequently is the method of cutting exactly the reverse. The best trees are cut, often for purposes for which an inferior wood would serve. Firewood probably yields the best returns for a small acreage and for this purpose rapid-growers such as poplar, ash and elm should be encouraged, which should make an annual growth of from one-half to one cord per acre. Basswood, too, will be in increasing demand because of its rapid growth, because it coppices readily and because of its value in small sizes for the manufacture of excelsior, cooperage stock and other small articles for which the wood is particularly adapted. Maple reproduces readily, and although not a rapid grower, it nevertheless yields a substantial revenue when it becomes large enough to tap. Soft woods like spruce, balsam and pine grow much more rapidly than hardwoods and might be advantageously grown for fuel or pulpwood.

When the most suitable species have been selected and the weed-trees removed, the woodlot must then be thinned until the crowns of the best-formed remaining trees are seen to barely touch.

The third requisite in the scientific farming of the woodlot, is that the cattle be kept out, especially after heavy cutting, when reproduction is most desired. Cattle are just as injurious to a young crop of tree-seedlings as they are to a young crop of grain. They may indeed eat the grass in the woodlot, but they would just as soon, if not sooner, eat the young and tender hardwood shoots, and the same can be said of sheep. Even coniferous seedlings are not immune so that certainty in production is only assured by fencing off the cut-over areas.

Newly-laid Eggs

Bacteriologists tell us that in an egg evaporation and the action of bacteria are evident by the third or fourth day. There are some who believe that from that time on the egg is not perfectly "fresh," or "new laid," nor any other name that should mean the best. It is edible for some time after that if kept properly, but it is not of first quality, and all the statements to that effect cannot make it so. If the farmer has to have longer time than three days to get his eggs to the consumer, he should have to classify them other than the highest, and he cannot expect to compete with the poultryman who delivers his product 72 hours old.

THE POULTRY HOUSE

Some Pointers Gathered From a Government Publication

A dry, porous soil, such as sand or gravelly loam, is preferable to a clay soil.

In most localities the building should face the south, as this insures the greatest amount of sunlight during the winter.

Allow at least two square feet of floor space per bird.

Proper ventilation and sunlight mean a dry house and healthy birds.

The partial open-front house is conceded to be the best type for most sections.

The colony plan of housing poultry may be adopted to good advantage on many farms. This system does away with the danger of tainted soil.

The roosts should be built on the same level, two feet six inches from the floor, with a dropping board about eight inches below them.

Good roosts may be made of 2 by 2-inch material with upper edges rounded.

The nests may be placed on the side walls or under the dropping boards. It is best to have them darkened, as the hens prefer a secluded place in which to lay.

TWO PESTS OF CATTLE

How to Prevent and Control Lice and Ringworm

These two pests of housed cattle trouble most in dark, damp, dirty, badly ventilated stables. Remedial measures fail if only the animals are treated. So long as calves and adult cattle remain on pasture they are not bothered with vermin or skin disease; but when they go into winter quarters the trouble starts. The reason is that eggs ("nits") of lice remain in the stable from season to season, while the vegetable parasite of ringworm lives on damp walls, partitions, fences and other woodwork as well as on the skin of animals. Both pests, therefore, are acquired in the stable. If animals are to be made comfortable by keeping them free of lice and ringworm the stable should be specially prepared for their reception. Each animal should be allowed four square feet of window-glass and five hundred to eight hundred cubic feet of air-space in the stable.

Good ventilation, too, is absolutely necessary, and by preference should be of the King system. In this method of ventilation the fresh air enters at the ceiling, drives the hot air downward upon the backs of the cattle and is sucked out through wall vents near the ground-level and connecting with pipes discharging through a high chimney in the roof. The cleansing process consists in removing all loose trash, litter and soiled feed, scrubbing walls, mangers, partitions, floors and ceiling with a 1-50 solution of coal-tar disinfectant or crude carbolic acid or solution of four ounces of formaldehyde or sulphate of copper to a gallon of water. Fresh-made lime-wash is then applied with a spraying pump, which forces the wash into every crack, cranny and crevice. An addition of one pound of chloride of lime to three gallons of lime-wash makes it more effective.

To rid animals of lice a 1-100 solution of coal-tar dip may be sprayed on and brushed in, when the weather is not too cold, or an even more effective solution may be made by steeping four ounces of stavesacre-seeds in a gallon of boiling water and using when cold. Frequent applications are necessary, as new broods of lice hatch out from "nits." In cold weather dust the infested part of the skin freely with flowers of sulphur, or Persian or pyrethrum insect-powder. Mercurial ointment (blue ointment) is effective when applied to the poll of the head and along the backbone; but treated animals must be separated to prevent licking of the ointment, which is poisonous. Ringworm is indicated by bare, white, scaly, crusty spots upon the face, around the eyes and on the neck or other parts of young cattle. Treat by scraping and scrubbing each spot clean, and then rubbing in iodine ointment every other day until well. "Barn itch," or ringworm, may also affect adult cattle, causing itching, scaly spots on the body and especially about the tail-head. Treat by scrubbing clean and wetting with a solution of two pounds of sulphate of copper to a gallon of water applied hot.

Taxing the Childless

The Race Francaise Society, whose object is the improvement of the French birthrate, has made the novel proposition of a tax on what it terms the "unproductives," whether single or married. There are 1,250,000 bachelors in France, 1,800,000 childless couples, 2,400,000 couples with only one child, 2,650,000 with not more than two children. The race requires, says the society, that every male citizen should be the father of at least three children, and it therefore urges the imposition of an annual tax upon all and sundry at forty-five years of age at the rate of about $6 for every absent child, or who has not three children living, or whose children died under the age of twenty-one. Such a tax would bring $100,000,000 yearly.

TEACHING HORSES

How They Are Instructed to Count and Spell

Do horses possess hidden intelligence capable of development like that of a child? The question naturally arises in view of the experiments which have been carried on of late years with the object of teaching horses to think, spell, and count, and the amazing results which have followed.

A few years ago a German schoolmaster observed that a horse which he used to ride and drive responded, apparently, to verbal instructions, such as "stop"; "turn to the left or right"; "walk"; "trot"; etc.; and such was the intelligence of the horse that at last the schoolmaster was able, by vocal utterances alone, to drive the animal without touching the reins through the crowded thoroughfares of Berlin. Ultimately the horse died, and following up the idea, the schoolmaster bought a five-year-old Russian horse which not only obeyed verbal commands, but actually achieved proficiency in arithmetic and spelling.

The system of training does not seem to be very complicated, the first step being to captivate the animal's attention by carrots and other signs of affection. The second, and far more difficult, stage was to teach the animal to control his movements so as to adapt them to responsive expressions, or rather to render the animal conscious of them.

The manner in which the horses count is by stamping the foot, and considerable difficulty was experienced in stopping the horses counting when they had reached the right total. For instance, one horse could not get himself to stop at the right number, counting six or seven instead of five, eight or nine instead of seven, unless the trainer counted with him.

Incredible though it may seem, Mr. Krall, a famous trainer, explained to his horses the rudimentary procedure of addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division as he would to a child, and was greatly astonished at the ease and quickness of their understanding, for instance, in grasping the difference between 2x2 and 3. With the aid of a simple spelling table, the horses learned to spell, each letter being represented by a number. The association between each letter and a certain number being once formed—that is to say, once the animal had got the idea of the number of stamps to make with its hoof according to a letter displayed—the spelling of words written on the blackboard was merely a matter of memory.

Further experiments have been made in regard to other animals, notably an Algerian donkey, a baby elephant, and a German pointer, but with indifferent success. It might be mentioned, however, that among Mr. Krall's animal scholars is a blind horse. The animal's work is limited to elementary arithmetic. But such was its intelligence that it not only worked out spoken problems, but would also answer simple questions written on his flank.

The claim which was made by ship owners and others, and which has been confirmed to a considerable extent by official records kept by the Marine and Fisheries Department of the Dominion, that the level of the river and Great Lakes is being constantly lowered, principally by drainage operations on a large scale, is to be thoroughly tested by a Commission appointed by the Canadian Government. Gauges were placed at various points between Port Arthur and Quebec to make the required tests.

One of the rules of a ladies' club is to refuse to call a bachelor "Mr." This is rather hard on the poor bachelor, for he is generally the man who has "missed her."

OUR PUBLIC SPIRIT

Scotchman Says Unpleasant Things About Canadians

A young Scotchman, after three years in the Canadian West, wrote a letter to the London Everyman describing in unvarnished terms some of the Canadian characteristics, says The Ottawa Citizen. They can hardly be said on the whole to be complimentary, which doubtless makes their expression all the more valuable from the Canadian standpoint. It is always well to "see oursels as ithers see us," and a touch of Scotch opinion may in this case help to improve the spirit of Canada. One of his criticisms regarding the latter is as follows:

"Nor does the public spirit of the Dominion strike a stranger as abundant. It does not find its expression in the Territorial forces, at any rate, which are manned, out of all proportion, by home-born Britons. Certain Canadians suffer from the gratifying belief that the Dominion saved the effete Empire in 1901, and are indignant when told that of the Canadian contingent sent to South Africa eighty per cent. were home countrymen. Nor does public spirit find much expression in local government, where the 'best people' are conspicuously absent—too busy making money to bother with such matters."

Without discussing the incident of 1901, The Citizen says by way of comment, the truth of the rest of the criticism must be confessed. Canadians have been so busy with the multifarious tasks of a new country that they have not had much time to devote to the interests of the country at large. But surly Canada has now advanced in development to such an extent that more attention can be given to the public interest. Unless such attention is given, no greatness of future can be safely predicted. That public spirit that makes a citizen think and feel and act for Canada, as for his larger self, is without doubt the great need of Canada to-day. Others recognise the fact, and Canadians cannot too soon follow their example, and profit by it.

In Norway people who are not vaccinated are not allowed to vote at an election.

Ensuring Potato Crop

Canadian western farmers are remarkably ingenious in assuring themselves a crop. At least they are reported to be. An Ontario farmer tells of an incident that occurred when he was paying a visit to a relative farmer in the Canadian West. He followed the trail for many miles and finally found his relative digging in a field. The man dug about eight inches and rooted out a good hill of potatoes. He dug to another depth and revealed a second hill. At still another depth a third hill of potatoes was forthcoming.

Mystified, the farmer from the east questioned the digger concerning the magnificent crop of potatoes, by hills three deep. "Well," he said, "we plant them three deep this way in order to be sure of one crop at least. You see in a dry season the upper hill is killed by drought, and in a very dry season the second hill is also lost, but it never gets so dry that the bottom hill is destroyed. On the other hand, when the season is wet the bottom hill rots, in a very wet season the middle hill goes as well, but it never gets so wet that the top hill is destroyed. In the third place, in a favorable season the result is three crops, as you see.—Toronto Globe.

One of the oddest of Royal hobbies is that followed by Queen Maud of Norway who for years has made ivory her hobby. Most of these are supplied with tiny gold plates, telling where and in what circumstances the animal from which the tusk was taken was killed.

SIZES OF SILOS

Depend Upon Amount of Silage Required—How to Determine

The amount of silage required and the size of silo needed to hold it can be quite closely calculated provided the number and kind of animals to be fed from it are known before building.

An average cow or beef animal may be fed about thirty-five pounds of silage per day and the usual period during which silage is used in this latitude will be about 210 days. Large animals, or those that are being fattened, may consume considerably more than thirty-five pounds per day, but this has been found a fair average.

In a silo of ordinary depth, the average weight of the silage is about forty pounds per cubic foot. Near the top of the silo, however, where the pressure is not great, it will weigh only twenty-five pounds per cubic foot, while at the bottom of a thirty-five foot silo it may weigh sixty pounds. Taking these averages, if a cow eats thirty-five pounds of ensilage in a day, she will eat thirty-five fortieths, or seven-eighths, of a cubic foot per day; and with this as a basis it is easy to determine the number of cubic feet of ensilage required to feed a cow or any number of cows throughout the season. The diameter of the silo must be such that the stock on hand can use one or two inches of silage off the top each day during the winter and at least three inches per day when summer feeding of silage is to be practised. This is necessary to keep the silage from spoiling.

A silo ten feet in diameter is adapted to feeding ten mature cattle. One twelve feet in diameter will feed fifteen head, and one fourteen feet in diameter will meet the needs of twenty head; but if there are thirty or more cows to feed a sixteen-foot silo should be erected. These silos should be thirty or forty feet, or even more in height.—A. D. Wilson.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

MONUMENT TO LIARS

DYAKS OF BORNEO CELEBRATE A GOOD UNTRUTH.

British Missionary Tells of Aborigines of East Indian Island — When a Man Is Brave They Say That He Has a "Brave Liver" and When He He Is Wise They Speak of His "Enlightened Liver."

Some curious information about a race among whom lying is so rare that when a really good lie is told a monument is erected to perpetuate the memory of its sponsor, is given by an English missionary in an article in "The Mission Field" concerning the Sea Dyaks of Borneo. The Dyak, it is stated, has no idea of clear thinking; logic finds no place in his brain, and the most contradictory opinions seems to dwell together in perfect harmony in the turbid stream of his mind. His conceptions of cause and effect are hopelessly muddled, and anything he cannot account for he attributes to the action of unseen spirits. He cannot distinguish between coincidence and causation, and will argue that because his grandfather died after he had climbed a tree, therefore his death was caused by his climbing the tree, and consequently, neither his father nor himself nor his children are to climb trees, if they wish to enjoy good health! The liver is supposed to be the seat of various qualities and emotions.

Bravery is considered the highest of virtues, and when they wish to describe the great courage of a man they say he has a "brave liver." Intelligence also resides in the liver, and a man of knowledge is one possessing "an enlightened liver." Kindness is the quality of the man who has a "large liver," and perseverance that of one who has a "hard liver." They have good memories for such things as interest them, but it cannot be said that their mental powers are great. Dyak boys are very quick in their early years in assimilating new ideas, and for a time make rapid progress, but at puberty their energies seem to be absorbed exclusively in bodily functions, nutritive and sensual, and at the age of puberty the development of the brain, as a general rule, seems to cease.

The natives describe conscience as the voice of a god (petara) speaking to them. A man who acts in a disgraceful way and is not ashamed of himself is said to have a "bad spirit" (petara jai) urging him, and natives have sometimes been heard to say that they were not responsible for their conduct, as it was the fault of their petara. The Dyak, the article states, is truthful and honest, and these qualities are rather unusual in Eastern races. In his jungle home he is remarkably honest. Families are often away from their homes for weeks at a time, living in little huts on their farms, and though no one is left in charge of their rooms in the long village house, things are seldom lost. The writer states that with an experience of nearly twenty years in Borneo he knew only of two instances of theft. One was the theft of rice. The woman who lost the rice most solemnly and publicly cursed the thief, whoever it might be. The next night the rice was left at her door. The other was a theft of money. In this case, too, the thief was cursed. The greater part of the money was afterwards found returned to the box from which it had been abstracted. Both these incidents show the great dread which the Dyaks have of a curse. Even an undeserved curse is considered a terrible thing, and, according to Dyak law, to curse a person for no reason at all is a fineable offence.

The Dyaks are very truthful. So disgraceful indeed do they consider the deceiving of others by an untruth, that such conduct is handed down to posterity by a curious custom. They heap up a pile of branches of trees in memory of the man who has uttered a great lie, so that future generations may know of his wickedness, and take warning from it. The persons deceived start the tugong bula—"the liar's mound"—by heaping up a large number of branches in some conspicuous spot by the side of the path leading from one village to another. Every passer-by contributes to it, and at the same time curses the man in memory of whom it is. The Dyaks consider the adding to any tugong bula they may pass a sacred duty, the omission of which will meet with supernatural punishment, and so, however, pressed for time a Dyak may be, he stops to throw on the pile some branch or twig.

Believing, as the Dyaks do, in the efficacy of curses, it is easy to understand how a Dyak would dread the accumulation of curses that would necessarily accompany the formation of a tugong bula. The Dyaks are very hospitable and consider the refusal to entertain strangers as a great crime. In the Sabuyau River, there is a collection of rocks, said to be the inhabitants of a whole village, who were guilty of a serious breach of the law of hospitality and refused to give food and shelter to some travelers, and were punished by the gods by being turned into stones. The morals of the Dyaks from an Eastern point of view are good, and divorce is very uncommon after the birth of a child, but where there are no children, for such reasons as incompatability of temper or idleness divorce is obtainable by either husband or wife on payment of a small fine.

A Rebuke For Beau Brummel.

One day when Beau Brummel was talking with Lady Hester Stanhope chance obliged him to give some explanation of his general conduct. They were in Bond street, and the Beau was leaning upon the door of the lady's carriage, whispering to her the secret of a marvelous perfume, when a young colonel passed whose name was then in all mouths.

The Perfect Rose.

"Thou are like unto a flower," warbles the German poet to his love. A certain exasperated old German florist and nurseryman who flourished half a century ago in New York was accustomed to assert with equal positiveness that a flower is like a woman. He had many women customers whose trade he appreciated, but whose demands often drove him to rumple his upstanding Teutonic brush of hair until he looked like an angry parrot. He finally unbosomed himself to the husband of one of them, whose diary has preserved his words:

"I have so much trouble with the ladies when they cooms in to buy mine rose! They wants him hardy, they wants him double, they wants him mundtly, they wants him fragrand, they wants him nice golor, they wants him eberytings in von rose. I hopes I am not what you calls one unreliant man, but I have sometimes to say to that ladies, 'Madam, I never often sees that ladies that was beautiful, that was rich, that was good tempered, that was yoong, that was indelligent, that was discreed, that was bervection in one ladies. I sees her mooch not!'"—Youth's Companion.

Thorp's Corpse.

Testators' requests often lead to strange results. A Scotchman, Thomas Thorp, left all his worldly goods to his two nephews on condition that they erected a monument to his memory with at least one verse inscribed thereon. These careful brothers searched long and ardently for a verse at once brief and apt, but they found that the poets were inclined to run to words. They asked the aid of the monument mason, who suggested that the following couplet would admirably meet the case:

Here lies the corp
Of Thomas Thorp.

The brothers thought this apt, but wordy. The mason cogitated long and deep, and, to the satisfaction of every one, the verse found upon the stone was:

Thorp's Corpse.

Gold the First Metal Used.

Gold was probably the first metal known to man because it is generally found native. The oldest metallic objects to which we can assign a probable date were found in a royal tomb at Nagada, in Egypt, supposed to have been that of King Menes. In one of the chambers were some bits of gold and a bead, a button and a fine wire of nearly pure copper. If the tomb was properly identified these objects were at least 6,300 years old at the time of their discovery. Nearly all of the ancient gold that has been examined contains enough silver to give it a light color. It was gathered by the ancients in the bed of the Pactolus and other streams of Asia Minor.

An Original Sort of Ham.

A lady gave a luncheon recently and explained that she always cooked ham by the recipe used by Thomas Jefferson, which had been handed down in her family for years. This recipe required that the ham be cooked for about two hours by simmering, but under no condition must it be allowed to boil.

A ham was on the stove, its destinies presided over by a young colored woman from up in the mountains.

"Jane," called the mistress of the house, "don't let that ham boil."

"No'um," replied Jane, "I ain't er gwine to boil no ham. It's on the stove now just a-simperin'!"

Of Course.

An official of a social settlement bank relates this anecdote with great gusto: On Saturday morning a small boy, well known to the residents, arrived and, with an air of importance, withdrew two cents from his account. On Monday morning he reappeared and, with the same air of importance, replaced the sum.

"So you didn't spend your two cents?" the receiving teller remarked.

"Oh, no," the child replied, "I didn't need to. But a fellow likes to have a little cash on hand over Sunday."

Spencer at the Derby.

Herbert Spencer, the philosopher, once attended the Derby. Francis Galton, who was his guide, took notes of the jaunt: "All went off well, except that Spencer would not be roused to enthusiasm by the races. He said that the crowd of men on the grass looked disagreeable, like flies on a plate; also that the whole event was just like what he had imagined the Derby to be." Even the castumes of the men who shouted the odds was only what he had imagined them to be!

FALLING HAIR

Dandruff and Itching Scalp Are Caused by Microbes

There is no doubt about it. Doctor Sangerbond proved it when he infected a guinea pig with dandruff germs and all its hair disappeared in a short time. The entire medical world has accepted Dr. Sangerbond's discovery as final. Ask any worthy physician.

Paris leads the world in knowledge of diseases of the hair and remedies for the same.

Parisian Sage which can now be obtained at leading druggists all over Canada is the one great remedy that kills the dandruff germs.

That is why the Warne Drug Co. says to every reader of the Examiner if Parisian Sage does not banish dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks they will refund the purchase price.

Dandruff is the forerunner of baldness. Take care of your hair while you have hair to take care of. Kill the dandruff germs now before the dandruff germs kill your hair.

It is used extensively by ladies of refinement because it keeps the scalp absolutely clean and gives a bewitching lustre to the hair. Comes in large 50-cent bottle at the Warne Drug Co. and leading druggists everywhere. Girl with Auburn hair on every package. Made in Canada by The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. CRESTS ARE TAXED.

Licenses Must Be Secured For "Arms" In England.

It is not by any means common knowledge that in England licenses are required for crests on gems and notepaper, that the user of articles bearing another's arms must pay a fine—or rather a fee—for the privilege.

If you want to avoid trouble with the law you must be very, very careful what you wear in the way of jewelry, what you use on your notepaper, how you decorate your furniture, plate, carriage, and even your books.

Very unfortunate was the experience of a London doctor who received a ring from a grateful patient. One day a London County Council officer called to inquire if the doctor had taken out a license for his motor-car, and noticed the doctor was wearing the ring, on which there was a design—a garter encircling a hand.

"That's a crest," said the officer, and a few days later the doctor was summoned for using armorial bearings without a license.

Since then many people have been summoned for wearing rings on which designs were cut, and for using notepaper bearing arms.

Strangely enough, although everyone is held liable to license duty in connection with their use, the law gives no definition as to what constitutes "armorial bearings, crests, or ensigns."

"A 'bearing' is, properly speaking, a device or charge depicted on a shield or coat of arms. A 'crest' is a figure or device placed on a 'wreath,' or anything resembling a 'wreath.' 'Ensign' is a general term for any distinguishing mark or bearing." According to the same authorities, ciphers, monograms, medals, and massive emblems are not "armorial bearings."

The cost for armorial bearings on vehicles is £2 2s. a year, but the cost for use on anything apart from vehicles is a guinea.

One may possess goods marked with armorial bearings, but may not use them. One very novel point has not yet been settled—whether a person who buys old china, silver, furniture, and so on, having armorial bearings upon them is liable to pay the license.

Everything, it seems, depends upon whether the person owning the goods uses them or merely keeps them as curios.

Many people who collect curios may have in their possession old plate, chairs, books, china, or even pictures, bearing coats of arms. It would be reducing the law to absurdity to pretend that a man was liable to pay a guinea for an antique article bearing some sort of crest which he may have picked up on the Continent, or elsewhere, in his travels. If, however, such articles could be proved to be in use the owner would be liable.

A Quaint Island.

Elmley, one of England's oldest little islands, though only forty-eight miles from London, is a parish where roads, shops, lamps, telephones, motor-cars, public houses, and postoffices are unknown. The island, which lies off the Isle of Sheppey, Kent, has an area of about two thousand acres, and is the property of Oxford University. The inhabitants are mostly shepherds of large flocks of sheep. The oldest man of the village is in his seventieth year. He has yet to see a motor car. The school and church are the two chief landmarks on the island. The reason they were built in such a sparsely-populated spot is that in winter it is almost impossible to leave the island, as the ferry which runs to and from the island is dangerous. A novel method of obtaining the services of the ferrymen, who live opposite to the island, is the opening of the white door of a hut facing the shore. At night a lighted candle held aloft serves the purpose of the open door.

The Reason for Worry.

City Cousin—But Cousin Eben, you can't go to the party in those clothes. Your grandfather wore those at least 40 years ago.

Country Cousin—That's all right. You don't suppose there'll be anybody at the party who saw him in them, do you?

Throwing the Slipper.

According to a French historian the custom of throwing the slipper after the newly married couple originated in the far east thousands and thousands of years ago, and from there spread all over the world.

A Different Ending.

"Had quite an adventure lately. Gave an old gentleman my seat in a street car and he insisted on taking my card."

"And now he wants to give you $25,000, eh?"

"No, now he wants to sell me an encyclopaedia on dollar payments."

Fat and Fashionable.

According to the Moorish idea of beauty, the chief charm of a beautiful woman is that she can only waddle, not walk. The fatter she is the more beautiful she is considered. If she can attain two or three hundred pounds of flesh she is the envy of all her sex.

The Moorish shape—if shape it can be called—approaches the perfection of feminine beauty when it resembles, or rather exceeds, the circumference of a barrel.

What a paradise for the fat woman! There she can eat and drink and feast to her heart's content, denying herself nothing, living an easy, indolent, luxurious life, with no horror of accumulating fat, but rather rejoicing in it. There the ambition of a woman is to acquire bulk. Physical culture she would regard as an enemy to beauty, and to take Turkish baths and diet herself would be considered the height of folly. She wants to be beautiful, and to be beautiful she must be fat.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

How Capital Grows!

Two centuries ago the sum of £5 was bequeathed for the education of the children of poor inhabitants of Lytham. In course of time the fund grew to nearly £600, and this sum was invested by the trustees of the Lytham charities in a plot of land which now forms the center of Blackpool. Within the last fifty years the corporation of Blackpool has paid about £100,000 for the freehold rights of small sections of this estate, and it is believed that in course of time the value of the property owned by the charities will reach £600,000.—London Express.

Cured Diseases Of The Kidneys

Once Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are introduced into the family and their efficiency becomes known they are usually found too valuable to do without. For everyday ills arising from liver and bowel disorders they bring relief promptly, and when complicated diseases of the kidneys and liver develop they often prove a successful cure after doctors have failed. As an illustration, you may read the following, which was received a few days ago.

Mrs. John Wright, 53 McGee Street, Toronto, Ont., states: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for ten years, and would not be without them. My husband suffered from kidney trouble, and after taking treatment from several doctors without receiving any benefit, tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which worked a complete cure. Since that time we have used them for all stomach and liver disorders."

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

PRAISE IS AN INCENTIVE.

We are far too ready with blame, far too chary with praise, and praise is the oil which keeps the domestic machinery from friction. If a child has tried to please, recognize the effort. If the school report shows an advance in previous work, be generous in praise. A father is often secretly very proud of his boy, but he is tongue-tied by native reserve, or he is afraid that praise will seem like flattery, or he does not wish to spoil the child by too much enthusiasm, yet, as sunlight to the flower, as water to the thirsty, is praise from the lips of love. Let us not withhold it. Demonstration on the part of the parent in the line of affection is rewarded a hundredfold in the warm-hearted spontaneity of the child.

But far worse than withholding praise is the too common sin of fathers of finding fault with children in the presence of others. Mothers are not blameless in this regard, but fathers are the greater offenders. A man is tired, or worried, or out of sorts, and the boy does or says something inexpedient or indiscreet. The father's best way would be to wait till he is alone with his son and then explain his error, or point out his fault, or else to make a tactful opportunity at once for a little private talk. Five men out of six show very little tact on such occasions. They blurt out their rebuke in a manner little short of brutal. All public fault-findings and scoldings are to be avoided and deprecated. They wound a sensitive nature and further burden one that is callous.

MOTHER'S INFLUENCE.

We were somewhat startled the other day to hear a learned lawyer of mature years and wide influence say: "Every child is five-sixths mother and one-sixth father."

"How is that?"

How can it be otherwise when you consider the closeness of the tie between mother and child? It is actually bone of her bone and flesh of her flesh. During the early formative period the child is almost entirely under the influence and guidance of the mother. A wise observer of human development has said, "Give me a child during the first five years of his existence and I will make him what I please. It is in babyhood when the mind is soft and impressible, that it receives the indelible marks for good or evil. The father is away from home, busy with affairs, the bread winner earning by the sweat of his brow protection for his little ones and means of educating them, while the mother is with them constantly, forming their minds, their dispositions and establishing their principles permanently. The power of the mother over the child is almost absolute. She may praise or punish as she will. In her home she is the dictator and may rule as a despot,, exacting obedience from a rebellious horde or as an angel diffusing sweetness and light into every corner and cranny of her kingdom. Thus the power and influence of women, though quiet, secret, hidden, are the heart and homes of the land, is infinitely owerful and far reaching.

HOME HAPPINESS.

The responsibility of making home happy does not rest on one but equally on two. How can a man love to stay at home when the home is anything but neat? His meals poorly prepared and presided over by a careless, slouchy-looking woman; and how can a woman without any encouragement be all that a wife should be, when herself and children are neglected, half-clothed, and half-fed, the father and husband, if not drunk, sitting around the store whittling and indulging in chat that is far from becoming a gentleman? The combined efforts of both will succeed, though it will take days, weeks, and even years, but be patient. A crown awaits you. Don't husbands and wives, so far forget yourselves as to speak of each other's faults to other people. Before doing this ask yourselves, "For what did I marry?" If you married without first considering the subject, well, you made a broad mistake. If you married for beauty, wealth, to please some one else or to keep from being called an old maid, be content with your lot, or if not content, make the best you can of the situation. You don't deserve pity, for you shut your eyes and didn't even try to see the faults of him whom you wed. If you had the courage to marry a stranger and have got in trouble, console yourself with the fact that you have performed as dangerous a feat as Hobson did when he sank the Merrimac.

The trues home—our never failing fountain of happiness—should be kept pure. As an intelligent, progressive people we cannot afford to let anything lower our standard of civilization. Most of us have an ideal mental and physical perfection, and we owe that condition to posterity. The child, like plants and flowers, needs to be carefully and thoroughly cultivated. That culture should begin early—yea, in the germ—to attain the end sought.

For Fancy Work.

A new notion in painting or in fancy work, as you will, comes from England. It is called "pen painting" because of the process involved. By this process a special kind of oil paint is applied to fabrics, and on gowns produces an entirely different effect from the hitherto seen stencil work.

On fans, particularly of gauze, the result is very pretty. This seems the best of the sugestions given for it, though picture frames and book covers are done by the same method. Book covers of satin might be successfully decorated in this way for special occasions; that is, presentation books, books for the bride, etc.

In applying the paint a pen point is used to pick up the small, previously divided particles of prepared paint and to place them on the satin. A complete outfit for the work costs $3.50, the colors are $2 a dozen, and the necessary ingredients for mixing are $3 a dozen each. Patterns for the work are also to be had if one is not clever at drawing one's own.

Aunt Sally's Advice To Beauty Seekers

W. C. D. says: "My face is freckled the year round; nothing I try seems to help much. Is there anything that will really take off these horrid spots?" Have you tried the treatment recommended to Minnie L.? I've known this to remove very obstinate freckles.

Ellen B. asks: "What should I do for deep lines under my eyes and across my forehead?" Such lines, and will wrinkles, are best obliterated by bathing affected portions in a good astringent and tonic lotion, which strengthens and draws in the relaxed tissue. Here's a reliable formula: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, ½ pint witch hazel; mix and use daily until entirely relieved.

Minnie L.: The undue redness as well as the pimples, may easily be removed by using ordinary mercolised wax. Apply nightly like cold cream and erase mornings with warm water. Soon you'll have a beautifully white, clear, soft and velvety complexion. Mercolised wax, sold by all druggists, is better than cosmetics for any complexion trouble. One ounce suffices for most conditions.—Woman's Realm.

Women Work as Road Builders.

You would not think that a woman could ever outwork a man when it comes to heavy road work, but such is, nevertheless, the case in the Philippines. In the construction of the Pasay-Currimao road it is recalled that at one time there were approximately 500 women and girls employed daily, notes the Engineering News. These feminine workers, receiving from 20 to 25 or 35 centavos per day, according to their strength and ability, are most efficient when materials for subgrade, surfacing or gravel and sand for concrete are to be carried a short distance.

They tie up their skirts or "panday" to be less hampered as they work, and wield shovels, load, carry and empty their baskets with a zeal that outclasses the men.

In the construction of the subgrade of the Pasay-Currimao road it was necessary to haul material half a kilometer at one point. This was accomplished with women workers. Men loaded the baskets at the borrow pits. Baskets hold about one-sixtieth cubic meter and are carried on the head. On a short haul a woman will carry from a meter to a meter and a half of material per day.

As may be imagined, there is considerable talking done as the work progresses, especially in the afternoon, when the women begin to tire. Ignorance of the dialect may have caused the listener to misinterpret, but it is said that the capataces (men) use some very forcible arguments to convince the women that they should talk less and work more. On concrete work women are used to advantage carrying sand, gravel and water. They are not strong enough to mix concrete for any length of time, so men are employed for that purpose.

FALL MILLINERY.

TWO FAVORITE HAT MODELS.

To a youthful face nothing is so becoming as the tam-o'-shanter hat, and the fall tam crowns in millinery are the dernier cri. One of the nifty shapes illustrated shows this full crown effect combined with the new visor front, which, by the way, is one of the smartest of hat wrinkles. A pump bow is the only trimming on this Paris creation.

Eve's Deductions.

Even though fair wedding prospects look slim, the kind of woman who usually wins is the one who begins right now to look forward to another summer.

The woman who is too anxious to get married is, quite often the one who never succeeds.

Many a man is so conceited that by the time he has found a woman he thinks is good enough he discovers that she considers him altogether too old for her.

It's getting so a girl just doesn't dare to be as entertaining as she could for fear some man will dub her a "highbrow."

While the man fisherman can come home bravely with stories of the wonderful fish that got away, the girl angler at the summer resort must either come home with a solitaire or preserve an awful silence.

Every woman imagines she is better suited to make the man happy than the other woman in the case.

Worth Knowing.

A few minced dates added to fudge as it comes from the stove will make a novel and dainty confection.

In cooking peas and beans the water should be allowed to boil away to almost nothing. When the seasoning is put in this makes a delicious juice.

If the clothes boiler leaks while in use the hole may be temporarily stopped up by putting a handful of corn meal into the water. It will fill the hole.

Stale macaroons, which can be bought cheap at the baker's, make the most delicious addition to pudding and custards if pulverized and sprinkled over the top.

For Tired Feet.

For tired feet put a handful of common salt into four quarts of hot water and while it is as hot as can be borne place the feet in it. Afterward rub dry with a rough towel.

New Dance, "Mule Balk."

The "mule balk," a satire on the modern dance, is Washington's latest contribution to up to date dances. It originated in the army set, and Miss James Allen, the society wild west rider, has been hailed as its inventor. Miss Allen laughingly denies the impeachment, however.

The first movement of the mule balk is that of the turkey trot, with a swift reversal into the horse trot and tango steps. Suddenly an alluring, dreamy waltz is begun by the band.

The dancers stop short and refuse to dance a step. In vain the music woos them. They will have none of the time honored waltz. With a loud crash the music then breaks into a turkey trot, the floor wakes again to life and "everybody's doing it."

About an Old Song.

It may not be known to every one that the Rye of the poem of Burns is a river and not a field of grain. "If a body meet a body comin' through the Rye," it was his privilege to demand the toll of a kiss, if they met in midstream. The fact that Jenny "drag'it all her petticoats comin' through the Rye" is said to be proof of the fact that a small stream near Ayr was meant.

Kitchen Kinks.

Cure for sick headache: Squeeze the juice of half a lemon into a cup of coffee or tea and drink without sugar.

A quick way to bake sweet potatoes: Before placing in the oven allow the potatoes to stand in very hot water for fifteen minutes. This will save considerable time in baking.

To prevent odor from lamps soak new lamp wicks thoroughly in vinegar, then allow them to become perfectly dry before using, and they will never have an odor when the lamp is turned low or blown out.

Famous Woman Composer Honored.

Among the 374 persons who have been made members of the legion of honor or who have been promoted in rank in that organization on the occasion of this year's celebration of the Quatorze Juilliet are three women, one of whom is Mme. Cecile Chaminade, the most famous living female composer of music, who is well known to thousands of Americans who heard her play in different cities of the United States in 1908.

The Nest.

All day I watched a busy crow
Who built a deep, soft nest
With twigs and tiny bits of fluff,
Where baby crows might rest.
That night I dreamed that mother made
A cozy nest for me
And that I had a little bed
Up in a shadowy tree
And that I chatted with the birds
That swung upon the pine.
Oh, how I wish that dream were true
And that the nest were mine!

This Woman Knows How D. D. D. Cures Skin Trouble!

(This letter is just received:)

"Toronto.

"I am the mother of twelve children. I took a bad leg at the birth of my last child. I was laid up five weeks, with a doctor attending me who does nothing but treat this kind of skin disease. Six weeks ago I heard of D. D. D. As I used to tear my leg at night until it was a bleeding mass I applied a bottle of D. D. D. I can't tell you the ease it gave me. I never used to sleep with the pain. Many a time I nearly fell with dizziness from want of sleep. Now my leg is completely healed up, thanks to the blessed D.D.D. I never expected a cure. I only got D. D. D. to take the terrible itch away. But by degrees I saw the big sore getting smaller. I have a thankful heart today.

Mrs. Stitt, 203 N. Weston Rd., West Toronto.

The cures of D.D.D. are past belief. All druggists have this soothing, cooling wash and also the efficient D.D. D. Skin Soap.

Come to us and we will sell you the first full size bottle on the guarantee that it will stop the itch at once or your money refunded.

Eat and Get Thin

This is because an old dispute about what modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Co., Pioneer Building, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) $1 cash. For this trifling amount of much need and of hardship until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave unwilling to the subject, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and free

AFTER HIM.

Tyrs (as he offers a chair)—Oh, after you, Mr. Slowleigh.

Short, Sharp Shock.

In the evening of the day a reporter for The Appleton Thunder died. The day after the funeral a visitor to the office found the editor and his staff talking about their late associate.

"It has been a sad loss, friends," the visitor said, "a sad loss, indeed." He sighed and looked about the room. "Ah, I am obliged to see," he went on, "that you commemorate the melancholy event by hanging up crape."

Opie Read frowned. "Crape," he said. "Where do you see any crape?"

"Over there," said the visitor, pointing.

"Crape be damned," said Read. "That isn't crape. That's the office towel."

A member of parliament enlivened a political club luncheon recently by telling the story of a certain famous politician who attended a banquet at which it was expected important speeches would be made. A dish of whitebait was set before him and, after looking at the fish and then at the other guests, he remarked:—

"Gentlemen, let us follow the example of these little fish—drink a great deal and say nothing!"

The legislature of a western state contains this year several women members. At a recent banquet they were invited to speak, but all with one accord began to make excuses, and on of the men was asked to represent them. He accepted, saying that he was willing to act, so far as in him lay, but that his case was similar to that of a naughty little girl who was told that if she didnt behave she would be shut up in the chicken-coop.

"You can shut me up in the chicken-coop if you want to," replied she, "but I ain't going to lay any eggs."

A number of persons were talking about telescopes, and each professed to have looked thru the "largest one in the world." One after another told of the powerful effect of the respective telescopes. At last a quiet man said, mildly:—

"I once looked thru a telescope. I don't know as it was the largest in the world. I hope it wasn't. But it brought the moon so near that we could see the man gesticulating in it wildly and crying out: 'Don't shoot—don't shoot!' The old fool thought it was a big cannon that we were pointing at him."

An Irish priest had labored hard with one of his flock to induce him to give up the habit of drinking, but the man was reluctant.

"I tell you, Michael," said the priest, "whisky is your worst enemy, and you should keep as far away from it as you can."

"My inimy, is it, father?" responded Michael. "And it was your riverince's self that was tellin' us in the pulpit only last Sunday to love our inimies!"

"So I was, Michael," rejoined the priest; "but was I anywhere telling you to swallow 'em?"

Sir Frank Lockwood was on one occasion conducting the defence of a person charged with cattle-stealing, and was pressing a witness in cross-examination to ascertain how far he was away from the animals at a certain time.

"How could you tell they were beasts?" he asked.

"Because I could see 'em!"

"And how far off can you tell a beast?"

Witness looked calmly at Sir Frank, and said, "Just about as far as I am from you!"

The teacher was addressing his pupils on the subjects of laziness and idleness. He drew a terrible picture of the habitual loafer—the man who dislikes work and who begs for all he gets.

"Now, John," said the teacher to a little boy who had been very inattentive during the lesson. John was instantly on the alert. "Tell me," continued the teacher, "who is the miserable individual who gets clothes, food, and lodging, and yet does nothing in return?"

John's face brightened.

"Please, sir," said he, "the baby."

During a winter visit to Florida Andrew Carnegie attended a service in a little negro church. When the contribution-plate came around, Mr. Carnegie dropped a five-dollar bill upon it. After the contents of the plate had been counted, the clergyman arose and announced:—

"Brethren and sistern, the collection this evening seems to figure up six dollars and forty-four cents; and if the five-dollar bill contributed by the gentleman from the north is genuine, the repairs on the sanctuary will begin immediately.

THE TEN-MILE "LIMIT."

"Grand Country you have here, shepherd."

"Oh aye, it's no sae bad; but ye ha'e tae walk ten miles for a drappie o' whusky."

"Well, why not get a barrel and keep it by you?"

"Mon, mon, it will na keep."

"A woman came into the hospital the other day, and she was so cross-eyed that the tears ran down her back."

"You couldn't do anything for her, could you?"

"Yes," we treated her for bacteria."

Barber (finishing the lathering of a customer): "Yes, sir, there's no carelessness allowed by our employer. Every time we cut a customer's face it means a fine of a shilling."

Then he added, brandishing his razor:—

"But today I don't care a rap; I backed a winner yesterday, and have just drawn a sovereign."

Wilkie Bard tells a story of a husband and wife who were always quarrelling. A friend called one evening and found them in the middle of a row. After the storm had subsided a little he ventured to remonstrate with the husband.

"Look here," he said; "you shouldn't quarrel like that, you know. Look at the dog and cat lying there. They get on very well together."

"Yes, they may," retorted the husband; "but you tie them together, and see what happens then."

An American called upon to return thanks for the distinguished strangers at a public dinner, said:

"This is quite unexpected; in fact, when I came into this room I felt much like Daniel in the lions' den. When Daniel got into that place and looked round, he thought to himself, 'Whoever's got to do the after-dinner speaking, it won't be me!'"—Detroit Free Press.

Fay: "The Widow Dashaway's husband didn't leave her much when he died, did he?"

Ray: "No, but he left her pretty often when he was alive."—The Club Fellow.

Sothern, the actor, was once walking in the Strand with a friend on the day of a royal opening of parliament when they overheard a man who had been thrown out of a public-house, loudly addressing his ejector.

"Another speech from the throne," was Sothern's comment.

Old Woman: "Which would ye rather be in, a collision or an explosion?"

Old Man: "I would far rather be in a collision."

Old Woman: "For why?"

Old Man: (thoughtfully): "Because in a collision there ye are; but in an explosion, where are ye?"

Reminded Him.

"A man never loses anything by politeness," said the Old Fogey.

"I know a lot of men who never intend to," added the Grouch.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Worse Luck.

Gargius: "He can't meet his bills."

Marjorie: "She's going to have her picture taken in her wedding shirt."

Solving the Problem.

Anna; "What do you suppose makes that baby cry so awfully loud?"

Grace: "Why, both of its parents are hard-of-hearing you know."

THE SPARTAN PARENT—PROUD, BUT NOT ANXIOUS.

Bill, the Rescuer: Actually standin' in the middle of the road, 'e was, a-facin' all them motor-cars.

Billson, the Proud Father: Lummo! There 's pluck!

Just a Hint.

They had scrambled thru the first dance on the program and he was leading her back to a seat.

"I could die dancing, couldn't you?" he asked.

"No," she replied. "There are pleasanter ways than being trampled to death."

The Ruling Passion.

The great stock operator was under the doctor. On the second day of his illness his nurse took his temperature and the financier asked her what it showed. "It's 99¾," was the reply. "When it gets to 100 sell," rejoined the patient.

He Shone Once.

Thespis—"When were you a leading man?"

Foyer—"When the company had to walk back from Chicago."

Even.

First Author—"That Carper is a beastly sheet; it says you have put a lot of trash in your recent book of poems."

Second Author—"Yes; and it says that you have put a lot of yourself into your recent novel."

How He Began.

The self-made millionaire was being interviewed, and was told it was understood that he had begun life as a newsboy.

"No," he replied. "I began life as an infant."

Never Quit.

"In the old days doctors used to bleed patients for most of the diseases."

"They still do, my boy; they still do."

A Fixed Habit.

Smith—"Has your son any fixed habit that worries you as to his future?"

Jones—"Yes. He fights about ten rounds every morning with the alarm clock."

A Matter of Reach.

Bacon: "The Bank of England makes enough paper money each year to reach around the world."

Egbert: "That's queer. Very little of it reaches me."

Ready for Practice.

Professor—"If a person in good health, but who imagined himself sick, should send for you, what would you do?"

Medical Student—"Give him something to make him sick, and then administer an antidote."

So Different.

Gerald: "The elephant is a peculiar animal."

Geraldine: "That's so; he hasn't any collection of hotel labels on his trunk."

The Effect of Moonlight.

It was at the seashore and they were sitting on the beach while the moon shone beautifully on the surging waves.

"What effect does full moon have upon the tide?" she asked, looking sweetly up into his face.

"None," he replied, as he drew closer to her, "but it has considerable effect upon the un-tied."

A Difficult Thing.

Of ready wit was the Archbishop of Canterbury at a great example. He was going in with a number of other clergymen to luncheon after some great ecclesiastical function, when an unctuous dignitary observed, "Now to put a bridle on our appetites!"

Precision.

When a speaker's figures are too precise, one inclines to doubt them. Life is like the sugar planter in Hawaii who, taking a friend to the edge of a cane-field, said:

"That negro over there, George, is just 71,004 years old."

"Why the four?" George asked.

"I've been here four," was the reply, "and he was 70,000 when I came."

His Choice.

The public meeting they was being visited by [illegible] "Well, my dear," she said to him, "what languages have you decided to take up here? I have decided to take up Flatish," he replied. "Flatish!" said his mother. "Why, Flatish—Why, it's hardly worth it," she said.

A Dream That Failed.

She: "I dreamed last night that you bought me a new hat for a present."

He: "Well, that's the first dream of a hat you ever had that didn't cost me money."—Sydney Bulletin.

Hewitt: "Do you think long hair makes a man look intellectual?"

A Planting Chance.

"By Jove, I am glad to see you looking so gay and festive!" said the Old Friend. "You were all in bed the last time I saw you."

"Yes," dismally replied Mrs. Brown, who had just taken a second husband; "but it wasn't a fast track."

The Secret of Happiness.

Mrs. Brown-Smith: "They must be very happily married."

Mrs. Jones-Robinson: "Why do you think so?"

Mrs. Brown-Smith: "Oh, they see so little of each other."

Different Now.

Dottie (reading about Cornelia): "Mother, are we children jewels?"

Modern mother: "No, darling. If you were, I'd pawn you all and go abroad."

As Usual.

"Did she tell her age?"

"Partly."

Prefers a Horse.

Mrs. Ryan: "They do be afther sayin' thot old man Kelly has got locomother ataxy."

Mr. Ryan: "Well, he's got the money to run wan av thim if he wants ter; but for my part, I'd rayther have a good horse anny day."

Poor Noah!

Noah disembarked.

"Since my wife conducted the last house-cleaning campaign, I can't even find the same mountains to sit on," he complained.

A Professional Applauder.

"Did you notice the palms of that young man's hands?"

"Not particularly. Why?"

"They are calloused like an iron worker's."

"That's easy to explain. He does lots of rowing in the summer, and in the winter he is usher in a New York theatre."—Charles A. Leedy, in Youngstown Telegram.

"Don't you consider my views on the question sound?"

"Well—most mostly sound."

"I fear I have made a mistake."

"Why?"

"He proposed in a taxi-cab. The minute I accepted he paid the fare and we got out and walked!"

She: "But you mustn't say you love me. You must only think it."

He: "But I don't think it; I only say it."

In the Same Box.

Stern Parent: "Look here, Mr. Sibby! You have been calling on my daughter regularly for six months. I think it is about time that I inquired as to your intentions."

Young Sibby: "That's exactly what I think! Either Mabel isn't able to muster up the courage to ask me or she has forgotten that it is nearly the end of leap year."

Mary: "How pretty Ida looks! She has just put the hooks into old Gotrox for two hundred dollars at bridge."

Alice: "Yes, she does look winsome!"

On board a P. and O.: "We're getting up a tug-of-war. 'Married versus Single.' You'll play for the married, won't you?"

"I'm not married. I look like this because I've just been seasick."

"Could you spare me a copper, sir? I'm trying to get back to my old mother. She ain't seen my face for years."

"I believe you. Why don't you wash it?"

The Husband's Comment.

Husband (with a sigh): "I wish I knew where we could get a document that would give us control of our child."

Suitor: "Your daughter, sir—well, er—that is—she told me to come to you; she says you——"

Pater: "Quite so—I understand. Let's see, are you Mr. Bronson or Mr. Wibbles?"

Suitor: "Why, I'm Mr. Hotchkiss."

He: "We have had a terrible scrap."

"And I came out ahead."

"No. I did. She accepted my apology."

AT THE CONCERT.

Musical Enthusiast (at charity concert): Ah! We shall hear more of this young man, I'm sure.

Sufferer: Not tonight, I hope.

His Mistake.

After the services were over, one of the congregation turned to his wife and said:

"On my way to church I picked up a button and put it in my change pocket, where I had a quarter."

"Gracious, my dear!" anticipated his wife, very much horrified. "And you dropped it into the collection basket by mistake?"

"No, confound it! replied her husband. "I put in the quarter."

Just the Same.

Knicker: "But you can't shoot before the season opens."

Bocker: "It makes no difference; I never hit anything, anyway."

Still Hopeful.

"What's that notice in the cellar?"

"Some one told Miss Unwed, at our Hallow'een party, that if she would walk down the cellar stairs backward and stand looking over her left shoulder, she would see the face of the man she is to marry."

"But this is the first of December!"

"I know it. She's down there yet."

Doesn't Mind the Bumps.

Sillicus: "The way of the transgressor is hard."

"The other day," said one, "I painted a little deal boards in imitation of marble with such accuracy that, on being thrown into the water, it immediately sank to the bottom."

"Faugh!" said another. "Yesterday I hung my thermometer on the easel supporting my view of the Polar region. It fell at once twenty degrees below freezing-point."

"All that is nothing," remarked the third artist, in conclusion. "My portrait of a prominent New York millionaire was so lifelike that it

Necessarily Healthy.

"Yes," said Mr. Blissgins, "my wife had hay-fever as usual this year, and my daughter had brain-fag from overstudy, and my son had insomnia."

"And wasn't there anything the matter with you?"

"No. There isn't any ailment that you can cure by going down-town every day and working on the books."

Squire: "Well, John, how did you enjoy the concert last night? Wasn't the chanticts good?"

John: "Well now, squire, Oi don believe Oi taxted on 'em. But that ats, it wor grand!"

A PAINFUL MOMENT.

Mother (sternly): "Tommy mate, I want to know just how serious are your intentions toward my daughter?"

Daughter's Voice (somewhat agitated): "Mamma! Mamma! He's not the one!"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A PAPER BULLET

It Was Fired With Great Success

By ALBERT KENYON

One evening during the war between the states, when we were lying in face of an enemy, I stole away from camp and in the darkness succeeded in passing the pickets. Climbing a tree, where I could hear if not see what the Confederates were doing, I heard so much going on that I believed they were preparing for one of those attacks just before dawn, the hour usually chosen for an intended surprise. I got down from the tree, choosing a moment when the coast was clear, and, crawling through underbrush, retraced my steps, got safely through the pickets and returned to my own lines. There I made myself known and, making for my captain's tent, told him the whole story.

He was too much impressed with the importance of getting it to the general to reprimand me for leaving camp without permission and hurried me to headquarters. It was midnight, and all were asleep there. But the captain called an aid, and the aid awakened the general, who gave orders that the command should be called (without beating the long roll) and formed in line of battle behind such natural defenses as the location afforded.

At 3 o'clock—dawn did not come till nearly 4—we heard the tramp of men and when their shadowy forms appeared astonished them with a storm of lead and iron that drove them back in confusion. They returned, but were again driven back, after which they retired to their camps.

This sally of mine gave me all the adventure I wanted for the rest of my term of service, for it made me the general's chief scout. I almost always went out for information in uniform. In the first place, I preferred being captured or shot to being hanged for a spy, against which death my uniform was a protection. I have ridden into the enemy's lines rigged as a Federal trooper, acknowledged myself to the people as such and was not believed. "You can't come that on us," they would say. "You're one of Mosby's men." When I would deny this they would insist that I had adopted the Yankee uniform for secret service.

After one of our fights, in which neither side seemed to have got an advantage, I was sent into Confederate territory with a view to determining whether the enemy were taking steps to continue the fight or withdraw. But a far more important object was to carry an order to General B., on our flank, to join in a simultaneous attack without command in case I found the enemy inclined to retreat. If I found them in good condition to renew the fight and preparing to do so I was to destroy the order, and if the reverse I was to deliver it. It was written on tissue paper, giving details of time of attack, etc., and rolled into a ball about the size of a pistol bullet. I carried it in my bolster in order that I might have it ready to throw away or destroy in case of expected capture.

I went out, as usual, in my blue jacket with yellow cavalry facings, my carbine slung to my saddle and a revolver at my hip. I emerged from our lines into a wood, through which by the general's direction a skirmish line had been sent to determine whether it was occupied by the enemy. It was free, and after riding through it for half a mile I came to a clearing. Before entering upon it I looked over what was in front of me, for, being on an eminence, I could see quite a distance. There were no camps in sight nor any large force, only stray bands, mostly cavalry. So I started out, intending to ride forward, keep my eyes open and be guided by circumstances.

Descending a slope through a cornfield, I struck a road leading southeastward, the direction in which the enemy were supposed to be. I could see approaching bands or persons and directed my course so as to avoid them. One would have had to come near me to see that I wore a Federal uniform, for mine was by no means a new one—rather dingy, in fact—and needed close inspection to tell whether it was Confederate or Union. So, while I saw all I cared to see, no one saw me with sufficient distinctness to know that I was a Yankee soldier.

I rode on over low ground till I came to a ridge from which I could see the Confederate camps. A wagon train was headed southward. If it was loaded with supplies that meant that the enemy were preparing to retreat. If the wagons were empty it meant that they were engaged in hauling supplies to the army; that they had brought a load and were returning for another. I could see the white line of the road over which they would pass and that it made a turn not far from where they were. By riding across fields I could intercept them. I pushed forward and, taking them on the flank, rode along by them toward their rear.

"What yo' doin' in that uniform?" called a teamster.

"Took it from a Yank killed in the fight yesterday," I replied. "My butternut suit was ragged. And look at the boots! I never let a Yank git away with his boots, especially if he's dead."

"I'll give you a hundred dollars for 'em."

"Not much. I got all the money I want, but only one pair o' boots."

It was plain that the wagons were full of supplies, not only by the power required by the mules to haul them, but through the front or rear openings in the covers I could see the property stacked up inside.

Having learned all I wished to know, I continued my way to the rear and of the train, then turned into a wood, where I lost myself for awhile. It was now my object to ride northeastward to General B.'s corps and deliver my order. While I was waiting I heard a rumble and a creaking in the road and recognized sounds made by artillery. If I had needed further evidence of retreat this would have confirmed my opinions, for the next thing to suppose a retreating army moves is its heavy guns—that is, unless pressed so hard by an enemy as to need them for defense.

The direction I was now to take forced me to cross the road I had just left. Preferring to move through woods, I kept on among the trees as long as possible, then turned into the road, having a stretch of a quarter of a mile before me before striking other timber. While making this interval I heard the quick thud of horses' hoofs behind me and, turning my head, saw a troop of Confederate cavalry coming. I turned into the wood on the north side of the road, and, though I did not alter my gait, I continued my course. I heard a "Hello, thar!" from the troop, but, pretending not to hear kept on. As I disappeared in the wood there came a sharp "Halt, you, thar!"

I must make a quick decision. In Federal uniform I could not expect to deceive an officer as I had deceived a teamster. I would be obliged to give an account of myself and would doubtless be detained. If the general's orders were found on me my Federal uniform might not save me from the gallows, for, although it was simply an order, it was evident that it was based on my observations of Confederate movements. I was certainly not on a direct line between the Federal general who had written it and the officer for whom it was intended. This would prove me a secret service man.

All this was but a flash in my brain. My decision was made upon the importance of getting the order through. If I succeeded it would give our troops a great advantage; if I failed a fine opportunity would be lost. I determined to run for it. Having passed out of sight, I put spurs to my horse and, though I was obliged to dodge the trees, made good progress. I was in hopes that those who had seen me would not consider me of sufficient importance to chase. But these hopes were blasted by hearing one or more horses crashing through the undergrowth behind me.

A lightning flash before me indicated that the wood had no great extent and I would soon be in the open. It was evident that I must soon fight or surrender. While I was thinking about it I came to the end of the wood and entered a field. Soon after doing so I looked back to see by how many I was pursued. But one man thus far had left the wood. I rode on at a breakneck pace for about half a mile, then looked back again. Only the one pursuer was in sight. This decided me. I determined to fight.

But, realizing that I was more likely to be taken alive than killed, after drawing my revolver I took the message from my bolster. What would I do with it? If I threw it away the man chasing me would see it and look for it. I stuffed it in the muzzle of my pistol, then, reining in my horse, I faced him toward the Confederate. He was within a hundred yards of me at the time and, drawing his weapon, came on. My horse was standing still, which enabled me to take a good aim. When he came within range we both fired almost simultaneously. His bullet cut the edge of my ear, though I did not know it at the time. My bullet pierced his brain.

No sooner had the man fallen from his horse and I saw blood oozing from his forehead than I bethought myself of the situation. If no more Confederates came for me and I could find the dispatch I might yet carry it to General B. I calculated that on account of its light weight it had not gone more than a few yards from my pistol and, calculating the direction of the wind, began to hunt for it. Seeing a bit of paper, I took it up and found it to be the dispatch. It had been partially opened by pressure against the atmosphere. Had it not been for this I doubt if I should have found it, since in its globular form it was very small and blackened by powder.

My first act after finding it was to look to see if any more pursuers were emerging from the wood. None appeared. Noticing C. S. A. branded on the trooper's horse, I decided to take him instead of my own. I also took his hat and his belt, the latter having the same letters. He wore no coat or I would have taken that too. But I threw away my own coat and, mounting, rode away at a gallop.

The change of horse and belt served a good purpose. As soon as I got away from my dead enemy I slowed down and rode at a moderate pace. I took to roads and passed a number of citizens and soldiers, but the brand on my horse and the letters on my belt were a sure protection. I soon made ground occupied by neither army and by noon rode into General B.'s camp and delivered my dispatch. After reading the instructions General B. acted upon them at once and attacked the enemy in force. My own commander heard his guns, and, joining him, the two made a complete rout, capturing many prisoners and stores.

In my chest of war relics I have my paper bullet, which General B. afterward gave me, and it is of course more prized than any other of my souvenirs.

High Praise.

MONEY IN CHINA.

No Fixed Standard and All Currency Is In a Hopeless Tangle.

Money interest on loans in China varies from 24 to 36 per cent. Oftentimes it is even more than this rate. The struggle among Mongolians for mere existence is furious and severe. While the country is one rich in undeveloped resources in the form of mines and agricultural possibilities, yet the people, taken as a whole, are poor.

The prevailing currency of China has consisted of brass coins, with a square hole in the middle for stringing them together. These coins are about the size of an American five-cent piece, on the average, though there are additional coins which measure even one and a half inches in diameter. These latter sizes, for the most part, are very old. It is not uncommon to run across coins in daily use among the Chinese money changers minted [illegible] the Tang dynasty, nearly 1,000 years ago. The smallest unit of money value in China represents one-twentieth of our Canadian cent.

Until very recently the various provincial mints in the 18 provinces would make their own coins without any regard to a definite standard of value for the other Chinese sections. There was no standardized weight. One provincial mint would give its coins an arbitrary value. Its coins might be a trifle short on weight. In another Mongolian province a mint would turn out its own coins fixed with its own arbitrary value as to size and weight.

So it has been going on in the Chinese currency department for many centuries. Values, weights, sizes, standards are all mixed up into a hopeless tangle. There can certainly be no greater "Chinese puzzle" than to decipher the exact value of Chinese money. An utter lack of a fixed monetary standard gives the money changers a golden harvest, and makes the valley merchants suffer losses either way they do business, for they lose if they buy, and they lose if they sell to any other merchant possessing money in a different province.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS
Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

DEPLETING OUR STOCK.

U. S. Cattle Buyers Are Taking Everything In Sight.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11.—That the already inadequate herds of western Canadian cattle are suffering very grave depletion, and in many cases will soon be totally wiped out through the operations of American buyers who have come here to secure stockers and butchers' cattle since the passing of the Democratic tariff measure, is a statement made by prominent local shippers.

Nearly less than 70 cars of western Canadian cattle have been shipped across the international boundary from western points since the coming into effect of the tariff last Monday morning.

American Buyers in Ontario.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 11.—Since the Wilson-Underwood tariff has gone into effect across the line extensive shipments of cattle have been made from Brockville to the New York and Buffalo markets. Four hundred head were exported yesterday to New York and 200 head will be sent to Buffalo the beginning of the week. The buyers are from northern New York points.

Queen Dedicates Warship.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A cable from Madrid to The Tribune says: President and Mme. Poincare, accompanied by King Alfonso, Queen Victoria, the Queen Mother, the Premiers of France and Spain, and a large suite, left yesterday in a special train for Cartagenia, where Queen Victoria will dedicate the new warship Espana. The King and President Poincare will then review the Spanish fleet.

STOMACH TROUBLES! DUE TO ACIDITY

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralise the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralises the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids.—M. F. P.

Success Attends Inauguration.

PEKIN, Oct. 11.—The utmost success attended the first inauguration of the president of the republic of China yesterday, when Yuan Shi Kai was inducted into the office of chief executive. The entire ceremony passed off without the slightest hitch, and was succeeded by a brilliant review of troops, at which the exercises were conducted excellently.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 11.—A general holiday was declared here yesterday in honor of the Chinese Republic. All the ships of the foreign fleet present in Chinese waters were dressed with flags.

Douglas' Saying About Vermont.

Stephen A. Douglas, who was born at Brandon, Vt., originated the oft-quoted saying, "Vermont is a good state to emigrate from."

This double edged saying which contains a compliment and a knock, is a good example of Douglas humor which always had in it a peculiarly Vermont quality. It is said that Douglas' actual words were these: "Vermont is a good state to be born in, a good state to be educated in and a good state to emigrate from." This made the remark more of a "knock" than it is in its usual and more customary form. But when Douglas uttered it the audience of Vermonters received it with roars of laughter.—New York Mail.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR HAIR BEAUTIFUL

Ten Minutes Home Treatment Works Wonders, Stops Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff and Makes the Hair Soft, Brilliant, Lustrous and Fluffy.

Better than all the so-called "hair tonics" in the world is a simple old fashioned home recipe consisting of plain Bay Rum, Lavona (de composed), and a little Menthol Crystals. These three mixed at home in a few minutes, work wonders with any scalp. Try it just one night and see. Get from your druggist 2 oz. Lavona, 6 oz. Bay Rum and ½ dr. Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and pour in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add the Lavona, shake well and let it stand for an hour before using. Apply it by putting a little of the mixture on a soft cloth. Draw this cloth slowly through the hair, taking just one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair and scalp of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully soft, lustrous and fluffy. To stop the hair from falling and to make it grow again rub the lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Apply night and morning. A few days' use and you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. They will be locked on your scalp as tight as a vise. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease in ten days you will find fine downy new hairs spreading up all over your scalp, and this new hair will grow with wonderful rapidity.

Any druggist can sell you the above. The prescription is very inexpensive and we know of nothing so effective and certain in its result.

THERE IS HAIR BEAUTY AND LUXURIANCE IN EVERY BOTTLE OF HERPICIDE

Did you ever have a dealer offer you a large bottle of something and tell you it was a better remedy for the hair than Newbro's Herpicide and cheaper because in a larger bottle

What? Certainly we knew you had. Many other people have, too.

What would you say to that same dealer were he to tell you a silver dollar was worth more than a five-dollar gold piece because it is larger.

Such an attempt, being a reflection upon your good sense you would probably say some rather pointed things to him. You would be justified. Your self-respect would demand it.

Well, there are just as many good reasons for the difference in size between those bottles as there are for the difference in size between the silver dollar and the five dollar gold piece.

The truth is that the large bottle isn't half large enough.

There is more virtue in a half pint of Newbro's Herpicide than in a gallon of some of the so-called hair preparations.

There is a dollar's worth of results in the bottle of Herpicide, but do you know what is in the other?

No? Then why buy it? Your judgment, intelligence and the experience of your friends, if not your own, cry out against it.

You know when you go into that that store Herpicide is what you need and want.

You KNOW that Herpicide is "the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ.

You KNOW that Herpicide eradicates dandruff.

You KNOW that Herpicide stops falling hair.

You KNOW that Herpicide makes the hair light, fluffy and beautiful.

You know these things in the same way you know that the five dollar gold piece, notwithstanding its size, is more valuable than the silver dollar.

Then insist on having genuine Herpicide.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

TAX RELIEF URGED.

Big Deputation Presents Its Case at Toronto.

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—The Provincial Government was approached yesterday afternoon by a representative deputation from Ontario counties and certain sections of the Assessment Act were suggested for revision. Two things in particular were urged as pointing towards relief—the assessment at a specific value per mile of "structures, substructures, superstructures, rails, ties, poles and other property on railway land," and an increase in the provincial supplementary revenue tax on railways.

Twenty-nine counties and one township appeared under the auspices of the Municipal Railway Taxation Association before Hon. Messrs. Hearst, Foy and Duff, and presented their claims for recognition. In the absence of the Premier, and Hon. Mr. Hanna, the Attorney-General stated that the matter would be taken up in the Cabinet as soon as possible and they would find what could be done.

The members of the deputation were introduced by K. W. McKay of St. Thomas. William Brass of Grey County laid the facts before the Ministers. He began by showing that the Government had always exhibited a willingness to equalize taxes throughout the province. The present situation, where the rural taxpayer was bearing the major portion of taxation in comparison with the railway corporations should appeal to them as needing to be changed. The supplementary revenue tax, he argued, ties in the province, county councils was aimed to obviate this condition but it was not far-reaching enough. With the rapid growth of municipal were facing the serious problems of meeting necessary revenues.

Lloyd George Opens Fight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A cable to The Tribune from London says:

"David Lloyd George's great land fight begins to-morrow at Bedford. The Chancellor of the Exchequer's speech will be the signal for battle all along the line. The Unionists, as well as the Liberals, however, have a land program, for the votes of the farmer and the agricultural laborer cannot be ignored by either party.

The Unionist policy, of which Lord Lansdowne is the protagonist, is to make the tiller the owner of the soil he tills. He will then be a propertied person and a Unionist. The Liberal policy is to let the farmers remain tenant, with his interests safeguarded. He will then be antagonistic to landlordism and consequently a Liberal.

MILLENIUM NOT YET.

Britain Cannot Act as If Reign of Peace Were Here.

MONTREAL, Oct. 11.—Naval armament, Britain's burden and the duty of the British dominions in this regard were topics discussed by the Rt. Hon. Herbert L. Samuel in the last public address of his present visit to Canada, delivered before the Canadian Club yesterday afternoon.

"The question of world peace," said Mr. Samuel, "brought up the idea of the possibility of war and the necessity of preparation therefor. The greater the power of the British Empire, the greater its duty to be pacific. The present policy of the Imperial Cabinet was one of amity toward every nation of the world. But,' qualified Mr. Samuel, "though we may work for a reign of permanent peace, we cannot act as though it had already been secured. In the words of George Meredith, "England cannot invest her all in the millenium and be ruined if it delays to come. We cannot trust fleets and armies as though they were unnecessary.

"We, who are charged with the duty of Imperial Government, sincere lovers of peace, though we feel that we should be doing less than our duty if we failed to maintain at what ever point may be necessary such guarantees of the security of the Empire as may be demanded.

RAID ON DOCTORS.

Suffragettes Seek Vengeance For Return to Forcible Feeding.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The doctors of London have been made the first victims of the vengeance of the militant suffragettes, whose anger has been aroused by the decision of the Home Secretary, Reginald McKenna, to resume the forcible feeding of their sisters, who start hunger strikes when convicted of outrages.

A band of women yesterday raided Harley street in the west end of London, which is almost entirely occupied by the offices of specialists. The women smashed windows right and left all along the street.

The secretary of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant organization, says yesterday's attack on this medical centre is merely a commencement of the women's protest against the revival of the torture of forcible feeding.

Will Sail Incognito.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Pankhurst will not leave for this country on the steamer La Provence to-day as had been arranged as she has heard she is likely to be detained by the immigration authorities here, according to a cable message received yesterday. She will take another steamer and sail under an assumed name, "to test the efficiency of male government."

Tug at Port Nelson.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—The Marine Department received word yesterday by wireless telegraph from Port Nelson that the new dredge, which left Toronto in August, had safely reached Port Nelson in tow of the tug Belleventure." The voyage from Toronto to Port Nelson took forty-two days. The dredge will be immediately put into operation deepening the channel leading to the Hudson Bay Railway terminal.

Chatham Gets Industry.

CHATHAM, Oct. 11.—This week the National Forging Co., an American concern, decided to establish a branch factory here, and the deal has been satisfactorily closed. They will employ 50 hands at the start. The industrial committee is now angling for another American industry, with good chances for success. A proposition has been accepted and a bylaw will be placed before the people for ratification.

Commission Will Resume Tuesday.

KINGSTON, Oct. 11.—The prison reform commission will resume sessions on Tuesday, but these will last only three days, as J. P. Downey, one of the commissioners, has to leave in three days' time, and an adjournment is necessary.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if you eat meat regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralise the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Falling off in receipts at primary points gave considerable buoyancy today to wheat. Largely in consequence, the market closed steady at a net advance of ⅛c to ¼c. Corn showed a good gain of ¼c to ⅝c advance over last night, and oats, a setback of a shade. In provisions, the outcome ranged from unchanged figures to 12½c decline.

Kaiser May Try To Lift Cup.

HAMBURG, Oct. 11.—Emperor William yesterday ordered from Max Oertz, the well-known yacht builder of this city, a new schooner to replace his present yacht Meteor, and her success will have an important bearing on the question whether Germany will challenge for the America's Cup with a cutter designed by Oertz.

The new schooner for the emperor is to be built at the Krupp works at Kiel, and probably will have less water line than her predecessor which was forced to concede heavy time allowances to her competitors.

The emperor has the fullest confidence in the ability of Max Oertz, and ordered the new boat without waiting for the launching of the new yacht under construction by Herreshoff for Robert H. Tod, of the New York Yacht Club.

Midland Carries Bylaw.

Midland, Oct. 11. — Voting took place yesterday on a bylaw to authorize a loan of $60,000 to a company establishing a malleable iron works in Midland. The bylaw was carried by a vote of 569 to 54. Mayor H. J. Craig heads a band of workers who got out the vote, is well satisfied with the result. The company is to erect a large concrete plant and will employ 150 men from the start.

Had A Stroke Of Paralysis

And Found a Cure in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is always better to prevent serious diseases of the nerves. There are many warnings, such as sleeplessness, irritability, headaches and nervous indigestion.

Prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia only come when the nervous system is greatly exhausted. Even though your ailment may not yet be very serious, there is a great satisfaction in knowing that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will cure paralysis in its earlier stages.

Mrs. R. Bright, 215 Booth avenue, Toronto, writes: "Two years ago my husband had a stroke which left him in a weak, nervous condition. He started taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and we saw the good results almost immediately. They have made a new man of my husband and we cannot speak too highly of them."

Aged Preachers in Germany.

The shamefully inadequate provision made for the support of the aged ministers of the gospel of most denominations in this country is in marked contrast to the superb provision made for them in Germany. There, it is stated, the young minister gets a minimum salary, usually $500 and a parsonage. This salary is increased every few years until at sixty-five the minister, even if he has changed his parish, receives $2,500, the largest compensation permissible to which is to be added the use of the parsonage and certain fees given him. At sixty-five the minister can withdraw on a pension if he shall so elect or if the parish shall so desire, or he can continue by general consent five years longer. On withdrawing he receives as a pension for the rest of his life two-thirds of his last and highest salary. On his death his widow receives an adequate pension for the remainder of her days and also each of her children until their sixteenth or eighteenth year.—Christian Herald.

DISLIKED AGREEMENT

Power Committee of City Council Decline to Accept Proposed Street Railway Agreement for Joint Use of Poles

GENERAL DISCUSSION

"Throw it in the waste-paper basket"; "Burn it up!" These and a few other acrimonious suggestions were precipitated in the direction of the proposed agreement for joint use of poles between the Peterborough Radial Railway Company and the City at Friday night's meeting of the Power Committee. The agreement concerns the removal of the suspension wires supporting the Street Railway power line and other paraphernalia from the present wooden poles on George and Charlotte Streets to the combination iron tubular poles as used in connection with the Hydro Electric scheme of street lighting. Ald. Johnston, Chairman of the Committee, presided. With him were His Worship Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen Gordon, Duncan and Buller.

To Eliminate Wooden Poles.

Some time ago when the Power Committee decided to install ornamental iron poles in connection with the down-town street lighting system, it was arranged to procure a combination iron pole, capable of carrying the magnetite arc lights and also the guy wires supporting the trolley wire. The latter provision was made in order to eliminate the wooden trolley poles now in use on George and Charlotte Streets. It was understood that the City would bear the difference in cost between the single iron pole and the combination poles. The latter are several feet longer than the former and are especially adopted to the purpose required. The Peterborough Radial Railway Company agreed to undertake the work of changing the wires from the wooden poles to the iron poles: In order, as it was stated, to protect their own interests, and have recorded some definite agreement respecting the use of the Hydro poles, a written agreement became imperative. The proposed agreement materialized a few days ago and on Friday evening was presented to the Power Committee, who decided to wait upon the directorate of the Peterborough Radial Company with a view to having the document modified.

The Agreement.

Whereas the Railway has built and is operating a street railway along the public streets of the City of Peterborough, and, under a franchise granted to it for that purpose, has the right to erect poles along the streets of the said City for the purposes of the street railway.

And whereas the City is desirous of erecting a street lighting system on the public streets of the City, and has requested the Railway to abandon its present poles upon George Street, from McDonnel Street to the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks near Wolfe Street, and upon Charlotte Street, from George Street to Bethune Street, and to use in the place and stead thereof, the metal poles, which are to be provided by the City, for stringing its suspension wires, feeder wires, ground wires, and other apparatus used for railway purposes, and which poles are also to maintain and carry the City's street lighting system.

Now therefore this agreement witnesseth that in consideration of the premises the Railway doth agree to abandon its present poles used for its street railway purposes upon George Street, from McDonnel Street to the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, near Wolfe Street, and upon Charlotte Street, from George Street to Bethune Street, and to remove all wires and fixtures therefrom, and to use the metal poles belonging to the City for stringing its suspension wires, feeder wires, and other apparatus used for railway purposes, as hereinafter provided.

1.—The City covenants and agrees that it will erect metal poles along the parts of the streets hereinbefore mentioned, the poles being of tubular metal, and of such height, weight, and size as shall be satisfactory to the Railway for its uses in conducting its street railway. Said poles shall be erected in a manner satisfactory to the Railway and shall be provided with substantial, proper and convenient means of attaching suspension wires, and any other necessary wires or attachments. Said poles shall also be located and erected along straight sections of trolley wire, so as to give suspension points at intervals of not more than 115 feet at the maximum, while at all curves, turnouts, intersections, switches, etc., poles shall be located, installed and erected to

ECK TURNS UP ALIVE

Comes Out of the Bush to Learn That He is Supposed to Have Been Buried at Peterborough

WHO WAS THE VICTIM?

"Returned from bush to-day and learned of my sad death. Kindly convey sympathy with all for this disappointment, for I am still alive and far from feeling dead."—Telegram from James Vincent Eck.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 10.—After being positively identified as the remains of James Vincent Eck, son of a wealthy resident of Harrow, near London, England, a body was buried in the Roman Catholic Cemetery at Peterborough on Wednesday. To-day definite proof was established that Eck is still alive, and occupies a position at the Holinger mine at Timmins, Porcupine.

Tattoo Mark Was on Arm.

When the tidings came from Peterborough that a farmer named Bell had identified the body of the man killed at Lakefield by an automobile as MacDonald, by which name Eck was known in that locality, relatives of two other missing men withdrew their claims because of the fact that Bell asserted that a tattoo mark of a certain design on the arm would prove it was Eck's body; the shirt sleeve was turned up and the mark was there. When word came to St. Catharines that the body was being shipped to the medical college at Toronto, Mr. R. F. Robinson of this city, and his brother-in-law, L. Singleton of Cobalt, met at Toronto after receiving word from Eck's father to bury the body in this country. They found the corpse at the University at Kingston, took it to Peterborough, and personally saw that a respectable burial was given.

Message From Eck Himself.

To-day Mr. Robinson was surprised beyond description to receive the following telegram from Eck, from Timmins, Ont.:

"Returned from bush to-day and learned of my sad death. Kindly convey sympathy with all for this disappointment, for I am still alive and far from being dead."

To guard against any possible hoax, Mr. Singleton, who is still visiting Mr. Robinson, sent an inquiring telegram to Manager Robbins of the Hollinger mine at Timmins, who replied confirming the fact that Eck is unquestionably alive.

May Have Been Wrong Arm.

Both Messrs. Robinson and Singleton were dumbfounded as well as delighted with the tidings. The remains answered every known point of identification. Mr. Robinson stated tonight that he was doubtful whether the tattoo mark was upon the correct armor not, but the correctness of the design and every other feature was so absolute that he came to the conclusion that his memory was not perfect in regard to the arm.

He has notified the Crown Attorney at Peterborough that the buried body must be that of some other man than Eck.

Mr. Robinson deems it extraordinary that some person in Timmins, where there are many who must be acquainted with Eck, did not inform the authorities that the man was alive before such disposition of the body was made.

The body was buried in St. Peter's Cemetery on Wednesday, Rev. Father Cotey officiating. It was positively identified as James Vincent Eck by Mr. R. F. Robinson of St. Catharines and L. Singleton of Cobalt, two intimate friends of Eck's, who accompanied the latter to this country.

Now Eck turns up alive at Cobalt and the mystery has deepened again. The body was first identified as Ephriam Windover, but this was disputed by Windover's relatives. Then a man named Wm. Junkin stated that the body was that of Wm. Richardson, who had been working in Carew's lumber camp. Afterwards W. A. Bell of Smith township, identified the body as that of Eck, who had gone under the name of McDonald while working with him. This identification was accepted by the coroner's jury and confirmed by Eck's friends. And now comes Eck's telegram from Cobalt.

LINER BURNS TO WATER'S EDGE AND HUNDREDS OF LIVES ARE LOST

Steamer Volturno is Destroyed and Many Immigrants Are Burned in Plain Sight of Other Steamers Whose Crews Were Unable to Help Owing to the Roughness of the Seas --Doomed Passengers Could Be Seen Fighting Desperately.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LIVERPOOL, ENG., Oct. 11. — In plain sight of the Steamer Carmania and several other big ships, the Steamer Volturno, of the Canadian Northern Royal Line was burned to the water's edge in mid-Atlantic yesterday, with a loss of from two hundred to three hundred souls, nearly all immigrants from Rotterdam to New York. This is gathered from meagre reports sent in form the Carmania's wireless. It seems that fire broke out aboard the Volturno at 4.50 yesterday morning. Ten steamers responded to the "S.O.S." signals of distress. By that time the flames had pretty well advanced, and many of the seven hundred passengers and crew on board had been picked up by rescuing steamers. In the meantime the remainder were fighting the flames and making agonising signals to the steamers nearby to come for them in lifeboats. Heavy seas were running, however, and it was impossible to reach the side of the doomed ship. The steamers stood by all day yesterday in the hope of giving aid, but the roughness of the ocean increased. Survivors on board the Volturno could be plainly seen fighting desperately, as the flames pressed them towards the stern. When night fell, in the glare of the other liners searchlights, there was a sudden burst of flames amidships on the Volturno. This morning there was nothing left but a smoking hull.

TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 11. — The Canadian Northern offices have received no official word of the Volturno disaster, although owned by this line. The vessel was under charter to an Uranium company, and was operated by them between Rotterdam and New York and Halifax. Nearly three hundred passengers were to have landed at Halifax according to the steamer's schedule, to-morrow morning, being booked through to Western Canadian provinces mostly. Mr. A. C. Vaughan of the Canadian Northern here said this morning that the Canadian Northern, although owning the boat, had no interest in its operation except as general agents here. It was a small steamer, built in 1908 and bought by President Mackenzie, but never used by the Canadian Northern.

Captain Barr, of the Carmania, has wirelessed that the Captain, several engineers and other officers of the Volturno have been saved by various rescuing steamers, but only 521 in all have been picked up.

Canadian Northern officials value the boat at four hundred thousand. She was insured for three hundred thousand.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 11.—Revisions of the wireless reports give the total number of burned to death or drowned on the Volturno, as 136. The tragedy took place Thursday instead of Friday. She was commanded by Captain Francis Inch, promoted to the position two months ago. Her tonnage was 6,036.

A Ghastly Spectacle.

The spectacle of a great vessel being consumed by fire with hundreds of souls on board of her, surrounded by a fleet of huge lighted hulls, crowded with thousands of spectators, aghast but unable to help, owing to mountainous seas, is unrivalled in the tale of ocean disaster. All that could be done by the would-be helpers was to throw overboard from their vessels dozens of lighted lifebuoys and stand by in the hope of picking up some of those who had been cast into the sea. Captain Barr then sent a lifeboat under the stern of the Volturno and took off eleven passengers. Other captains followed and the survivors taken from the Volturno, as well as those picked up in the only two Volturno lifeboats that got away during the fire were distributed among the rescuing liners. From Thursday noon the Carmania stood by helpless on account of the terrific storm and mountainous waves until early Friday, the last of the surviving passengers and crew were taken off.

Gallant Attempt at Rescue.

At 9.30 Friday morning the Carmania was alone with the burning liner until the Grosser Kurfuerst and the Seidlits came up about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The other seven rescue ships arrived shortly afterwards. The Carmania's lifeboat, in charge of First Officer Gardiner, returned to the Carmania, which he succeeded in making without loss of life or broken limbs among the members of his boat's crew.

ANNUAL MEETING OF NICHOLLS ALUMNI

The annual meeting of the Nicholls Alumni was held on Friday afternoon at 'Coleman's.' The following officers were elected:

Miss M. Ferguson, President; Miss Fanny Dixon, 1st Vice-President; Miss Rosamond, 2nd Vice-President; Miss Wood, Treasurer; Miss Mowry, Secretary. Miss Brown was appointed local representative of the "Canadian Nurse."

Following the election of officers and transaction of routine business, the graduates of Nicholls Hospital entertained the recent graduates to afternoon tea. The recent graduates comprise the following: Miss Rosamond, Miss Crowe, Miss Wood and Miss Walsh.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The Y. W. C. A. entertained the Normal and Model students last evening in the gymnasium of the "Y." The entertainment took the form of a school, suitable prizes being awarded the smartest and most clean pupil. Refreshments were served when school was over, after which "School Days" was sung and everyone went away reporting one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent.

Vesper service will be held in the "Green Room" of the Y. W. C. A. on Sunday at 5 o'clock. This is a most attractive home-like service for all who feel inclined to spend a half-hour with us Sunday evenings. Mrs. Mansell will deliver the address, on Sunday, Oct. 12th, and Mrs. Thomas Cruickshanks will provide the music. "His Name Shall Endure Forever, His name shall be continued as long as the sun."

ATHLETICS WIN THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP

New York's Last Hope Matthewson Was Out-pitched by His Veteran Rival Plank To-day and the Mackmen Won the Decisive Game by 3 Runs to 1---Only Two Hits Off the Left Hander.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Conie Mack was fairly at the brink of winning the third baseball championship of the world when the Athletics took the field against the Giants this afternoon. The Giants stood before the Mackian sluggers with every gun spiked save one, Mathewson. The weather was dark, cloudy and threatening, the attendance about thirty thousand. The line-up:—

Philadelphia—E. Murphy, r.f.; Oldring, l.f.; Collins, 2b.; Baker, 3b.; McInnis, 1b.; Strunk, c.f.; Barry, s.s.; Shang, c.; Plank, p.

First Innings.

Athletics—Murphy singled. Oldring forced Murphy, Matty to Fletcher. Collins singled to right, Oldring going to third. Baker flied to Burns, Oldring scoring on the throw in and Collins going to second on Burns' throw to McLean, which was wild. Collins out, Hersog to Doyle, when McInis bounded to the third baseman. One run, two hits, one error.

Giants—Hersog out to Murphy by a running catch. Doyle out, Barry to McInnis on as sharp a bit of fielding as the series has produced. Fletcher flied to Oldring, who backed up against the bleacher fence to make the catch. No runs, hits or errors.

Second Innings.

Athletics—Strunkout, Doyle to Merkle. Barry flied to Murray. Schang singled, the ball hitting Matty's glove and deflecting to Fletcher. Plank popped to Hersog. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Burns out, Baker to McInnis. Shafer fouled out to McInnis in front of the stand. Murray out, Plank to McInnis. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

Athletics — E. Murphy singled through short just out of Fletcher's reach. Oldring was safe on Doyle's muff of his hot grounder. Collins out sacrificing, Merkle unassited. Baker was safe and Murphy scored when Merkle attempted to tag Baker on the line, missed and threw to McLean too late. Baker gets credit for a hit. McInnis flied to Burns, Oldring scoring on the throw in. Strunk out, Doyle to Merkle. Two runs, two hits, 1 error.

Giants— McLean flied to Oldring. Merkle lined out to Collins. Mathewson received an ovation when he came to the plate. Plank grinned and got the infield close in. Mathewson out, Barry to McInnis. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Athletics — Barry out, Fletcher to Merkle. Schang flied to Murray. Plank flied to Fletcher, who made a pretty catch while running back. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Hersog fanned. Plank's first strike out. Doyle out to McInnis unassisted. Fletcher flied to Strunk. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.

Athletics— Murphy out, Doyle to Merkle. Oldring out, Doyle to Merkle. Collins flied to Shafer. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Burns lined out to McInnis who pulled down the drive while the smoke was still on it. Shafer walked, the first man to reach first for the Giants. Murray was safe when Plank dropped his high pop, which fell through his waiting mitt. Baker jolted the Athletics pitcher just at the moment the ball dropped, not seeing he was set for it. McLean singled to left centre, scoring Shafer, Murray being held at second. Merkle forced McLean at second, Collins to Barry and was doubled at first, Barry to McInnis. One run, one hit, no erros.

Sixth Innings.

Athletics—Baker singled to right on the first pitched ball. McInnis sacrificed, McLean to Merkle, also on the first ball pitched. Strunkout, Doyle to Merkle, Baker taking third. Barry out, Fletcher to Merkle. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Matty singled to right. Hersog forced Matty, Barry to Collins and was doubled at first, Collins to McInnis. Doyle flied to Murphy. No runs one hit, no erorrs.

Seventh Innings.

Athletics—Schang fanned. Matty's first strike-out. Plank out, Doyle to Merkle. Murphy walked, Matty's first pass. Oldring fouled to McLean. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Fletcher flied to Strunk. Burns out, Barry to McInnis. Shafer out, Barry to McInnis. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Philadelphia—Collins out, Doyle to Merkle. Baker out, Matty to Merkle. McInnis out, Fletcher to Merkle. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Murray out, Baker to McInnis. McLean flied to Oldring. Merkle out, Barry to McInnis. No runs, hits or erorrs. Once again in the eighth Plank was there and the Giant batters were not. Eight pitched balls disposed of them in this inning.

Ninth Innings.

Athletics—Strunk flied to Shafer. Barryout. Hersog to Merkle. Schang fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Giants—Candall batting for Matty, out, Collins to McInnis. Hersog flied to Barry in short left, Doyle, with two balls and one strike called, flied to Murphy, and the world's series was over.

PATROL THE OUTSKIRTS.

Last night two burglaries of grocer shops in the outlying sections of the City were committed, and in one case a grocer had goods to the value of $125 or more stolen. This is not a large amount in some ways, but it would meet the man's taxes, which he pays for, among other things, police protection, he does not directly get. It is not too much to say that burglaries of this kind, evidently by local amateurs, are suggested and facilitated by the absence of police protection. Rascals, who know that they will not be observed by the police, make bold to break into shops on the outskirts, and help themselves. If such fellows knew that policemen were on patrol, they would hesitate before they ran the danger of detection in their marauding expeditions. Our whole police force, except on their way to and from duty, are centred in the middle of the town. Of course there is much greater value there in the way of well filled shops to protect, but that is no excuse for utter neglect of the residence sections in the matter of police protection. If unruly and lawless characters knew that policemen were in the vicinity much of the petty thieving, lawlessness and insult to ladies and girls, which are now complained of, would not be committed.

Horse Stolen in Port Hope Figured in a Couple of Deals in Peterboro'

MAN ARRESTED

William O'Connor was arraigned in police court this morning before Magistrate Dumble on a charge of stealing a horse and buggy, the property of Meadows and Jordan, liverymen, of Port Hope. O'Connor pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily. He was remanded for a week. It is stated that the accused secured their horse and vehicle from Meadows and Jordan on Friday and proceeded to Peterborough where he succeeded in effecting a trade with E. Jones, a local liveryman. O'Connor received twenty dollars to boot. He then visited Gibbs' livery where he disposed of the whole outfit at approximately sixty dollars. Detective Newhall and C. C. Meagher picked the accused up late in the evening on the strength of his suspicious movements which he was unable to account for. This morning the police department were appraised of O'Connor's actions respecting the horse deal. Investigation revealed the fact that the outfit had been stolen and a charge to that effect was registered against O'Connor. He is also accused of stealing the suit of clothes which he wore in court this morning. O'Connor is said to hail from Belleville. The accused has hopes of inducing a couple of business men to furnish a bail bond of $1,000, and thereby secure his release. When he left Port Hope yesterday, O'Connor is said to have been accompanied by an elderly man named Bell. This man, it is said, was forced to leave the vehicle at a point between Port Hope and Peterborough. Meadows, of Port Hope arrived in town to-day at noon and obtained possession of the outfit.

ULSTER NOT A "UNIT".

Ulster is by no means unanimous in its opposition to Home Rule and in support of Sir Edward Carson's "provisional" government. The Ulster Liberal Association issued a manifesto on Wednesday announcing that the Ulster Liberals would disregard the authority of the proposed Provincial Government and claim the protection of forces of the Empire in defence of their liberties, "which would be imperilled by the success of anarchistic movement led by Sir Edward Carson". There is nothing astonishing in this. Of the thirty-three constituencies of Ulster seventeen send supporters of Home Rule and sixteen opponents, a majority of one in a province that contains a large majority of Protestants. This shows that even in Ulster very many Protestants favour home rule, and do not take kindly to the "provisional" government of Ulster, composed of dukes and landlords. It would seem that the Ulster agitators, led by Sir Edward Carson, cannot claim to speak for all the Protestant electors and claim that Ulster is a unit, or justify a rebellion against constituted authority, representing the will of a vast majority of the people of the United Kingdom.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

President Wilson of the United States yesterday pressed the electric button that exploded a thousand charges of dynamite, opening the Panama canal from ocean to ocean, and thus technically completing a work which is a monument to United States' engineering skill and enterprise. It needs little prevision to estimate the immense influence the completion and operation of this great ditch will have upon the commerce of the world. While the United States can, and does do, many mighty big things in a mighty big way, it seems to be capable of doing some mighty small things in a mighty small way. And one of these small things is the imposition of preferential canal tolls in the interests of United States' shipping. It is true the United States has spent 375 millions of dollars in completing the Panama canal, a little over three dollars per head of its population, and that is held to be some justification of imposing differential tolls. But Canada has spent, and is spending 150 millions in building canals, about $20 per head of her population, and our canals are toll-free to the United States and the world. In proportion of population, the United States would have to spend 2,000 millions on the Panama canal to financially equal what Canada has done in building her toll-free canals. But the United States has a big president, a man worthy of a great nation, and we may expect form the mettle he has already shown, that under him the idea of favouring United tSates' shipping in the matter of the Panama canal will be practically reconsidered.

WHICH IS IT?

The Montreal Herald has entered a damage suit for $100,000 against Sir Hugh Graham of the Montreal Star, charging him with conspiracy to cripple and injure the Herald and put it out of existence. This suit means one of two things, a thumping big advertisement for the Montreal Herald and the Montreal Star, and incidentally the Toronto World, around which, in a business sense, the "conspiracy" revolves, or it is a valid charge for cause. At this stage it is inopportune to canvass the merits of the action or to express an opinion one way or the other in regard to the culpability of the accused knight, Sir Hugh Graham is a man of great activity and enterprise of long duration. He has been a tower of strength financially and journalistically, to the Conservative party for many years, faithful and true to its interests, but not always in true ways. As far back as 1891, Sir Hugh expressed his zeal for the Conservative cause by ousting the great Toronto Globe, by publishing a bogus edition of it in the interests of the Conservative party. From that time his zeal has shown itself substantially. He figured in one election campaign in a very liberal manner—we don't remember the exact figures—under the nomme de plume, or nomme de geurre, or nomme de graft, of "Zandrang," or Zandring, or something like that. His faithfulness endured until the elections of 1911 when, as Mr. Bourassa says, Sir Hugh financed the Nationalist end of the Conservative campaign in Quebec, and to good purpose — even persuading Conservative candidates to stand aside and leave the field to the Nationalists —for the Nationalists, with Conservative aid, carried twenty-two seats and the Conservatives four, by Nationalist help, making the Borden Nationalist-Conservative contingent from Quebec twenty-six. Sir Hugh Graham could well say with Aeneas, when loading up Queen Dido, "et quorum par magna fui." He is credited with providing the pinews of war. It was perhaps in gratitude for past favours, and, judging by precedent, for favours to come that Mr. Borden recommended Mr. Graham's name for decoration with a knighthood. This is not to say that he is guilty of what the Montreal Herald charges him with. If he did what the Herald charges, he is not overtly guilty — it would be a mere matter of habit if political considerations were involved But British justice holds a man innocent til he is proven guilty, and Sir Hugh has the benefit of the doubt.

CHATEAUGUAY TO-DAY.

Polling is going on in the Chateauguay by-election to-day. This has been a Liberal constituency since Confederation, and will continue to be so unless extraordinary and illegitimate means are effective in preventing a free and honest expression of public opinion at the polls. There is nothing in the record of the Borden Government for the past two years to commend its candidate to popular support. In this province we don't know how the Conservative alliance with the Nationalists will look to the voters of a Quebec constituency, but it is pretty certain that the Nationalist clamours against Canada doing anything in the way of naval defence have lost their hold. The electors will see how they have been deceived; how villainously the Liberal naval policy has been misrepresented, and how completely the Nationalist movement is a mere political game, worked in the interest of the Conservative party—the Nationalists to help the party to the possession and retention of power in consideration of sharing the spoils. There is nothing in the record of Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden to commend a change of vote to the electors of Chateauguay. He cursed the Liberal government for its extravagant expenditure, and himself has doubled the expenditure in less than two years. He advocated and promised civil service reform—a non-partizan service, where appointments would be made by merit and not on account of political colour. We all know how such promises have been not only neglected, but that the civil service has been corrupted, prostituted and made the instrument of the application of the spoils system in a way that never obtained in Canada before. In no way has Mr. Borden shown himself to be more than a petty politician with a keener eye to party advantage than to statesmanship—the public interest. Even the good things he attempted to do he has neutralized by striving to make them an instrument of party advantage. In its whole career in office the Borden Government has done more to call for condemnation than for commendation and on the merits of its record, no Liberal constituency is going to change its allegiance. If Chateauguay should go Conservative to-day such a result will be solely due to the most gigantic corruption of the electorate. The Conservatives will have to buy the county. And there need be no lack of funds. A party that could command funds to finance Nationalist elections in 1911, need not lack for funds; for in the case of the big interests in whose pay it is, common gratitude would counsel a slight financial return for the favours of a government which has bravely stood by the big interests and conserved their opportunities to gain undue advantages at the expense of the people.

THE CANADIAN CLUB OF PETERBOROUGH.

The Canadian Club is to be congratulated on having for its guest at its opening meeting for the season, on Thursday evening next, Mr. Charles R. McCullough of Hamilton, the founder of Canadian Clubs. Mr. McCullough, who is a forceful and fluent speaker, will address the members on "Twenty Years of the Canadian Club," for it is now twenty-one years since Mr. McCullough suggested the idea to his friend, Mr. Sandford Evans, who assisted him in carrying out his plans, and became first President, Mr. McCullough remaining secretary until the success of the venture was beyond question. Now Canadian Clubs are an National Institution and every town of any size as well as every city in Canada has its Canadian Club, holding meetings regularly during the winter season, listening to speakers on subjects of national interest and learning at first hand of the development of the different sections of our country.

The cost of membership is only one dollar per season, and any British subject is eligible. Meetings are held in the Y.M.C.A. and are preceded by an informal dinner, the cost of which is 50 cents. Membership tickets may be had from the folowing members of the Committee: D. Walker, principal of the Normal School, W. H. Munro, J. F. Harvey, V. J. McElderry, G. O. Cameron, B. D. Hall, A. H. Stratton and W. R. Morris, or Mr. Hainsworth at the Y.M.C.A. It is hoped and expected that there will be a large turn-out of old members at the first meeting, and in addition that there will be many new ones.

A daily paper tells us that long distance racing is "on its last legs". Quite appropriate condition, that.

IS MILLING MONOPOLY AN ELEMENT IN MAKING THE COST OF LIVING HIGH?

The relation of transportation costs to the price of foodstuffs is causing a lot of discussion all over the country, and many curious and significant facts are coming to the surface. The wheat and flour duties especially are under fire. By some it is held that excessive railway and ocean freight rates prevent the Western grain-grower from geting good prices for his wheat, and force the Eastern and European consumer of wheat and flour to pay excessive prices for those commodities. A faction of the Conservative party wants our wheat and flour duties thrown off because it is believed that would permit of the competition of American railways and steamship lines in carrying our export wheat and flour.

The transportation interests do not intend to take the sins of all the interests on their shoulders without protest. In a letter to be found elsewhere in this issue Mr. John Corbett, who speaks from the ripe knowledge acquired during twenty-eight years' service as foreign freight agent of the C. P. R., defends the shipping conference, and says the miling monopoly is one of the worst in Canada. He adds: "As was pointed out in a paragraph in a Montreal evening paper the other day, Canadian flour is much cheaper in London than in the industrial centres of Canada."

There seems to be no doubt of the truth of Mr. Corbett's assertion. The Montreal Telegraph, discussing St. Lawrence freight rates a few days ago, said:

"In connection with this subject we are faced with a curious fact. Despite the claim that the freight rates for grain and flour are exorbitant, flour and bread made from Canadian wheat sell cheaper in Great Britain than in Canada itself. Actually you can buy Canadian flour in England at a cheaper price than you can buy it in Montreal, the ocean shiping point. To bear this out with a recent instance, we give the following prices obtained for flour in three important markets on September 12th of this year, the unit of quotation used being the Canadian, per barrel of 196 pounds:

Grade	Winnipeg.	Montreal.	London.
Top	$5.00	$5.00	$4.18
Patent ...	4.80	4.90	4.06
Bakers ...	4.00	4.10	3.60

"It would appear that an enterprising Canadian might profitably import Canadian flour from London. This might also help to solve the westbound freight problem, which is one of the crucial factors in the whole situation."

Even that thick-and-thin protectionist paper, The Belleville Intelligencer, is staggered by these facts, which prove that the consumer of "protected" flour in Canada pays the duty of 60 cents a barrel not only on the flour he imports, but on the flour milled in Canada from home-grown wheat, and asks:

"How is this? The wheat from which the flour is manufactured is grown in the Northwest, purchased in the Northwest, freighted from the Northwest some 5,000 miles to England, and insured, manufactured into flour, placed upon the market and sold, with the dealers' and manufacturers' profits added, cheaper than it can be purchased in Canada. How is this done? There are but one or two conclusions at which to arrive. First, that the speculator and manufacturer in England are philanthropists—which is not likely—and furnish flour to the consumer at a small or no profit; or that the speculator and miller in Canada are reaping enormous and unjustifiable profits in the sale of flour to the consumer."

The Intelligencer begins to see the truth as through a glass darkly. May we hope for Sir Mackenzie Bowell's aid in securing the abolition of the food taxes that enable the millers to get high prices for flour at home while selling it cheaply to the Britisher who imports food duty-free from any country that has food to sell? The Intelligencer thinks "there is a nigger in the wood pile." Is the Ethiopian not hiding in the flour bin?

Hambourg Concert Company

A large, influential and thoroughly appreciative audience, comprising most of the leading lovers of good music, in Peterborough, congregated yesterday evening at the Hall of the Conservatory of Music, to listen to and enjoy the truly musical treat provided by the Hambourg Concert Company.

This talented trio are under the immediate patronage of their Royal Highnesses, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Princess Patricia and his Honour, the Lieutenant-General of the Province and Lady Gibson.

The programme opened with a trio in B flat by Schubert, the instrumentalists being Mr. Jan Hambourg (violin), Mr. Boris Hambourg ('cello), and Mr. Edouard Hesselberg at the Grand piano-forte. This Allegro Moderato was so magnificently played throughout as to call forth rapturous applause from the delighted audience. This performance augured well for the balance of the programme. The tone of Mr. Jan Hambourg's violin was what one might really term exquisite.

Mr. Boris Hambourg followed with a Sonata on the 'cello. This curious and ancient piece of music was written by Pietro Locatelli who flourished between A.D. 1693 and AD. 1754. The artiste almost made his fine-toned instrument speak. Needless to say, this really artistic performance was enthusiastically encored. If it were possible, the encore was even a more artistic production than the previous rendering.

Mr. Edouard Hesselberg followed with two piano-forte solos by Chopin and Schubert-Tausig. This performer received an ovation, for he had already shown his capabilities as an accompanist. At the conclusion of the two numbers assigned to him on the programme, an encore was loudly demanded, and acceded to.

Whether as a pianiste or accompanist, Mr. Hesselberg is a finished artiste. Too frequently the arduous and sometimes thankless duties of accompanist are not adequately appreciated. Anyway, Mr. Hesselberg will have no cause to complain of lack of appreciation by the Peterborough audience of last evening. Whether in his fortissimo or pianissimo passages, he proved to be absolutely master of his instrument.

Mr. Jan Hambourg the entranced his audience with his rendering on his violin of the three numbers as per programme. It would be a really difficult task to decide which of these three items pleased the spell-bound audience most, so hearty was the well deserved applause meted out to each number. At the termination an encore was so loudly demanded that the musician could not do otherwise than comply with the compliment expressed.

The Finale an Elegy—In Memoriam—a trio in D minor, was as will be profitably understood, a dirge, replete with lovely intonations, mediations and cadences, and was heartily applauded.

It was positively refreshing to note the entire absence of "musical fireworks" or exaggerated theatrical action so often affected by less competent musicians. Needless to say that the conclusion, the artistes were again and again called 'before the curtain' to receive the plaudits of a delighted audience.

To Mr. Gliddon, the Director of the Conservatory of Music, thanks are due for having provided so finished an entertainment.

The following is the complete programme:

the number and in the position requierd by the Railway, in lieu of which the Railway will continue to use its own poles

2.—The City also covenants and agrees that if at any points on the parts of the streets above mentioned, the City does not desire to erect or install lamps, but at which poles are required by the Railway, that the City shall erect plain tubular metal poles of such height, weight, size and manner as are required by the Railway. The said poles to become an integral part of the Railway system.

3. The City doth covenant and agree that it will bear all expenses of whatsoever nature or kind that the Railway may be put to in changing the Railway's system on the parts of the streets above mentioned, in the matter of poles, suspension wires, feeder wires, ground wires and all other changes incidental thereto, from its present condition to a condition wherein the metal poles provided by the City are used. The City further covenants and agrees to pay the Railway at the rate of $10.00 per hour per "line" of cars, for each hour or fraction thereof that the traffic on each "line" is wholly or partially interfered with for loss of revenue and interruption of traffic during the period said system is being changed. It is further provided that the City agrees to pay such bills of the Railway for making said change as it presents, within ten days after presentation.

4.—The Railway shall, so soon as the transfer above mentioned has been made, and upon obtaining the written consent and cocurrence of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, Limited, and the Otonabee Power Company, Limited, who have the joint use of the said wooden poles, remove said poles no longer required. The cost of removing said poles and delivering them at the pole yard on London Street east, to be paid by the City.

5.—The City shall bear all extra expense and cost to the Railway in case the Railway shall desire to carry trolley feed wires, power transmission wires, ground wires, or signal wires, on the poles furnished and erected by the City, or to make use of the said poles in any similar way for the necessity of carrying on its business, provided, however, that if the City does not desire to permit the Railway to carry feed, power, ground or signal wires or other apparatus on the said poles, it shall supply an alternative route equally as safe, suitable and satisfactory to the Railway as over the said poles, and shall bear all extra expenses incurred by the Railway over and above the expenses that would have been incurred if the Railway's present poles had been used for such purpose, and it is agreed that the evidence that the Railway produces as to what amount constitutes such increased expense shall be accepted by the City as final and binding.

6.—Whereas at the present time the Railway has feeder wires erected on poles of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limted, as short cuts to points of their system where they desire to have feeders applied, and it is possible that the City is going to purchase the plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, in which case the City agrees that if they do take over the Peterborough Light and Power Company's lighting system that they will permit the Railway to run feeder wires or power transmission wires for the purposes of the street railway only, on any distribution system poles, free of charge, that may be the property of the City, and the Railway agrees to erect and maintain such wires.

7.—The City hereby releases and agrees to save harmless the Railway from (a) any and all claims whatever for damages to either person or property due to the presence on any poles used of electricity, or the leakage through same of electric current. (b) Any damage to lamps or connections or other apparatus, not the property of the Railway, installed on or in said poles, or hindrance or interference with the operation of the said lamps or apparatus which it may be alleged is caused by operation of the street railway or any occurence thereon, either regular or accidental. (c) From any loss, injury or damage however caused to any property, person or persons whomsoever by reason or in consequence of, or resulting from the use of said poles by the Railway, and shall at all times wholly indemnify, defend and save the Railway harmless from any and against all claims, costs and proceedings of every kind and nature whatsoever which may be made or taken in respect of or arising out of any such injury, loss or damage.

8.—The City shall for the period covered by the Railway's franchise, and by any extensions thereof, paint, keep in alignment, re-install for defects in material or looseness of joints or footings; provide new suspension wire and other attachments and insulators, and pay for their renewal on the poles, (work to be done by the Railway or by arrangement with it); and otherwise to completely maintain said poles free of all expense to the Railway, in a manner that they can be most economically and conveniently used [illegible] railway, of which the Railway will be the sole judge.

9. Should any pole or poles become defective for street railway purposes for any cause in the opinion of the Railway, it or they shall be replaced by the City without delay on written notices from the Company that same should be replaced.

10. The railway shall have the free use of poles for advertising or other purposes in the same manner as it would use its own poles.

11. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to surrender any rights or in any way contravene or mitigate against the Railway's franchise, as granted to it by the City and dated the 14th September, 1903.

12. The City covenants and agrees that in making any changes to its street lighting system it will not disturb or in any way interrupt the service of the Railway, and that the employees of the Railway shall at all times have access to the said poles for the purposes of the Railway only.

13. Wherever used throughout this agreement the words "the City" and "the Railway" shall be deemed to extend and apply to the respective successors and assigns of the parties hereto.

A Higher Tribunal."

Mayor Bradburn suggested the possibility of meeting the directors of the Company with the object of effecting some modifications. Some of the members were inclined to ignore the agreement altogether. Ald. Built was in favour of taking the matter before a "higher tribunal."

"There are only two clauses in the agreement which might be considered reasonable," said Ald. Johnston. "One is that the City assume the cost of changing the wires and the other clause relates to the matter of giving the Company access to the Hydro poles."

Mayor Bradburn threatened to take the matter before the Dominion Railway Board. "If the Railway Board declines to consider our application," said the Mayor, "we will get something through the next session of the Ontario Legislature. We are not going to be held up this way when we are willing to give the Company some thing better than they have got now."

Something with a Tail.

"You might get something with a tail to it, like you got the last time you went after special legislation," observed Ald. Gordon. The latter suggested that the City take the matter up with the Street Railway people with a view of effecting a compromise, if possible.

"We might see the Secretary of the Dominion Railway Board," offered City Solicitor Hall.

"They are simply trying to tie us up," said Ald. Duncan.

On motion of Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Buller the matter of endeavouring to effect a compromise with the Company was referred to a Committee who will be delegated to wait upon the directors of the Company, in Toronto.

WOODALL WILL BE DEPORTED

Has Only Been in the Country a Few Days

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT

Relief Officer Miller was of the opinion that Thomas Woodall was a fit subject for deportation. Woodall was charged in the police court this morning with being drunk and disorderly. Accused denied the allegation very strenuously and pleaded to be sent back to a country where they would use him decently and not try to "execute a man" for a slight deviation from the straight course. Woodall could only remember having had one glass of beer. "I am very sorry, sir," he vainly pleaded. Mr. G. N. Gordon suggested deportation proceedings. Relief Officer Miller, was put in the witness box, and asserted that Woodall arrived in Peterborough on Monday last. He applied to the Relief Department for assistance and was supplied with a meal and incidentally obtained work with the Peterborough Radial Railway Company. Mr. Miller stated that the accused was destitute and showed a strong dislike for work.

"You needn't rub it in so thick," put in the accused. "You don't want to execute a man."

The Court decided to execute an arrangement whereby Woodall will be returned to the land from whence he came.

Ticket Saved Him.

Dnaiel Murphy's railway ticket to Toronto saved that individual from a police court fine and possibly a term in gaol. According to the testimony of P. C. Reid accused was apprehended on Hunter Street last evening in a state of intoxication. "Better let him use his ticket," suggested the Magistrate, when Murphy announced that he had a ticket for Toronto.

Was Remanded.

Norman Hur was remanded for six days. Accused who is only eighteen years of age, was charged with vagrancy. He informed the Court that he had been working for a man named Revoy in connection with a game that figured in the Midway of the Toronto Exhibition, and later in the Peterborough Police Court.

Incriminated a Bartender.

"Back again, are you?" was the greeting a local youth received from the Court this morning. The youth addressed pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk. Accused, who is under seventeen years of age, incriminated a local bartender, when he was examined as to the source from which he procured the liquor. One bartender in the Hotel in question refused to serve him, but a man doing business at the northern limits of the bar performed the necessary service. The accused volunteered some evidence respecting a bartender whom he alleged supplied liquor to a policeman in the back yard adjacent to the hotel. The constable's name was not mentioned and the informant was interrupted in his anxiety to unfold the lurid story. He was remanded for six days. An effort will be made to locate the bartender who supplied the liquor during the interim.

WHAT MAKES A COMPLEXION?

The season's programme of evening parties, social events, etc., is before you. Why not look your best? Why not ensure a good complexion? Matter of time and perseverance only if you will use Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face, each night, acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action makes the capillaries and blood vessels work, and the vigourous circulation, thus started, carries away secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow deposits are thus removed. The yellow tinge gives place to the pink of health.

Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? Zam-Buk builds up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts!

OBSTACLES AHEAD

Special to the "Examiner."

DUBLIN, IRELAND, Oct. 11.—(Special cable).—There are great obstacles ahead of John Redmond's speech to-morow at Limerick. The leader's remarks are being keenly anticipated by Liberal and Nationalists as likely to clear the air of rumours of dissension in Asquith's ranks. Much will depend on the tone Redmond assumes. There are organizations at Limerick ready to start a riot immediately he develops too hostile or belligerent an attitude. Special forces of constabulary have been ordered to give effect to law and order. Sir Edward Carson has changed his plans regarding the proposed Sunday campaign and wil lrest at Belfast, where the Protestant clergymen are nearly all preaching against Home Rule to-morrow in special services.

Many a man insists that there's only one head to his family, but he decides otherwise when he has to pay for his daughter's hats.

Peterboro' Men Were Acquitted

Herbert Landry and Lavergne Killingbeck of Peterborough were honourably acquitted of any complicity in the burglaries that were enacted in Lindsay a few days ago and remanded on a nominal charge of vagrancy. This was disposed of in the Lindsay Police Court, recently. Both Landry and Killingbeck were able to give a satisfactory account of themselves on the night of the burglaries referred to.

The Lindsay police have nothing further to report in connection with the recent burglaries in Lindsay, and the belief is growing that the thefts were committed by the same parties who entered several stores in Orillia.

An attempt to rob several Hastings business places was made on Wednesday night of last week. Lambert's hardware store was broken into by forcing the windows,, and a quantity of safety razors, knives and other goods to the value of about $100, stolen. The thieves also entered Baker Bros. general store, where they were discovered, but escaped.

Several persons saw the two burglars after they left Baker Bros.' store. The men tried to get into Coughlan's drug and jewellery store, but as the telephone exchange was there and a night operator on hand, they only succeeded in removing a little of the putty from the window panes.

Escaped in Automobile.

It is said the thieves made their escape in an automobile. Word has 'phoned to Norwood about 3 o'clock in the morning to be on the look out for them. The Lindsay Chief of Police and a number of citizens, who have been on the alert lately on account of the recent burglaries here, were soon on the watch, but nothing was seen of the plunderers. If they went that way they must have gone through before the message was received.

Yesterday Chief Chilton received information from Orillia Police Chief concerning the operations of the burglars in that Town. The thieves entered four places in Orillia—a dry-goods store, hardware store, C. P. R. up town office and grocery store.

Chief Chilton also received the chisel and knife, which were found here and which were forwarded to Orillia, where they were identified. This proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that the thieves operating in Lindsay last Friday morning were in Orillia Wednesday night.

REV. M. F. FITZPATRICK GOING TO CALGARY?

It was reported to-day that it was practically assured that the Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick, parish priest at Ennismore, will go to Calgary to assist Bishop McNally. The latter announced in his sermon at the consecration of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, that Bishop O'Brien had promised him a priest to help lighten the burdens of the Bishop of Calgary's diocese. It is expected that the announcement will be made in a day or two.

WILL BUILD AT ONCE

It is understood that the Toronto Savings and Loan Company are making arrangements for the re-building of what is known as Barrie's corner. Mr. Might anticipates that he will have his store reoccupied before many months. The accident was most unfortunate but now that no one is held responsible, building operations will no doubt be rushed.

Tag Day Is Next Saturday

Ladies Are Preparing for a Busy Time

One week from to-day is Tag Day. Nearly every one in the City is familiar with the significance of the occasion, but for newcomers to Peterborough during the past year it might be well to mention what it means. It is the way the energetic and public spirited ladies of the City have of raising funds to maintain anld carry on the work of the Children's Aid Society. This will be the fourth year in which a day has been set aside for the purpose of raising money by selling tags. Each time a considerable sum has been secured by the sale of the little pasteboards that the young ladies will again so kindly invite you to buy next Saturday.

As tag day, this year, comes within a day of Thanksgiving, a greater amount than ever ought to be the result, as there will no doubt be a big crowd in the City, out of town people coming to spend the holiday with friends here.

The Crab as a Fisherman.

The crab sometimes catches a fish, and it catches it without hook and line. It lies in wait, perhaps in some creek, with its claws extended in front and open. Perhaps a school of dillies comes along, and it may be that a killie on the outskirts of the school may swim unsuspectingly along through the clear water between the upper and lower parts of one of the motionless open claws of the crab. When it is well within them the claw suddenly snaps together, and that particular little killie goes no farther.

Fish Have No Eyelids.

Goldfish do not close their eyes because they have no eyelids. There exist in fishes no genuine eyelids, but in some (mackerel and sea mullet) there is a transparent film over the anterior surface of the eyeball, and in certain sharks there is a nictitating or winking membrane that is regulated by a special muscle.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

SIR EDWARD CARSON—At Bally Castle—The above is the latest picture of the anti-Home Rule leader in Ulster, addressing the crowds which come to hear him on the great subject of the day.

SIRES AND SONS.

President Wilson is said to dote on charlotte russe. Vice President Marshall loves cherry pie, and Secretary Bryan is fond of cantaloupe.

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, chosen as the new American minister to China, has been professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin since 1901. He was born in Milwaukee in 1869 and was educated in Berlin, Rome and Paris.

Henry Clews is one of the few American men of business who have been translated into nobility by foreign potentates. He is embellished with the imperial decoration, the highest honor the emperor of Japan may confer upon a foreigner.

Sir Samuel Walker Griffith, chief justice of the high court of Australia, now on a visit to England, is the son of a Welsh Congregational minister and was taken to Australia at the age of nine. He was called to the Queensland bar when he was twenty-one.

Major General James Madison Drake reappointed historian of the Army and Navy Medal of Honor Legion, has held that position for twenty years. During that time he has written 1,500 sketches of the valor of his companions. He is a veteran newspaper man.

Smoking Postmen of Korea.

A decidedly quaint character in the Korean postman, says a writer in the Wide World. You come across these gentry in the morning, delivering the letters. They appear to recognize the dignity of their office and fulfill their duties in a very quiet and grave manner. In wet weather he dons his "rain clothes" to protect him from the heavy showers. Over his white kaftan he wears a light mackintosh, provided by a thoughtful government, while his head is covered with a waterproof hat made of oil paper. He is further fortified against the wet by an umbrella. Like most Koreans, the postman could not possibly work without his pipe and as he strolls from house to house he is invariably smoking. The letters are carried in a leather satchel strapped to his back. This individual may be taken as a typical example of the dignified characteristics of these interesting people. They are tall—over a head higher than the Japanese—well built and fair-complexioned.

Education Notes.

Practical work in sewing, cooking and other household arts is required in all English schools for girls above the infant grade.

In Minnesota the need for trained teachers of agriculture and domestic science is so great that the School of Agricultural Technology at the state university has taken for its main work the preparation of teachers for these subjects.

The Ohio State university has introduced an apprentice course in animal husbandry that includes two years' study at the university and two years of practical work on a stock farm. The students are paid for their work while on the farm. The plan has interested a number of the leading stockmen of Ohio and other states, and they are co-operating with the university in carrying it out.

Curtains and Curtain Drapes

The Finest of New Materials, Procurable by the Yard or Made up into Curtains Complete.

Surely every housekeeper will agree that no window can be complete without a Curtain. And whether it be a modest scrim at 11½c a yard or a handsome silk,—without a Curtain any room is unfinished, and looks it.

Then, seeing that so large a share of the attractiveness of our home interiors depends upon the Curtains and Drapings, let us interest you by telling how we are providing Curtains of artistic beauty, yet withal, modestly priced.

Trimmings of all descriptions, also double extension, and other kinds of curtain rods, are stocked in this department, with everything that is necessary in hanging curtains.

In our own workrooms, under the personal supervision of a capable decorator, we make up Curtains of every style and description.

The charming bedroom scrim, made up in Lambrequin style, is completed here at prices commencing at $1.79, while the heavy portiere Curtains cost proportionately to the material in them.

We assume all responsibility, by taking measurements, making the Curtains and hanging them. Moreover, very gladly will we estimate the cost of any proposed decoration. Some of the fine Curtainings employed are as follows:—

Plain and Brocaded Silks of Elegant Appearance, the two tone shades of Old Rose, Tobacco Brown and Nile Green, being very rich. These are from $1.25 to $2.50 per yard.

Mercerized Poplin is very popular, being 50 inches wide and in shades of Green, Brown, Red, Champagne, and Old Rose. Curtains of this fabric can be made plain or with fancy brush trimmings, the price varying according to the length of the window. The average cost, however, is about $2.50 complete.

Of the heavy drapings, that are procurable in any colour, there is All Wool Monk's Cloth at $1.35 per yard, single and double faced Velour from $1.50 and up, while Tapestries offer a wide field of choice at almost any price one wishes to give.

R. C. BRAUND'S STORE LOOTED BY THIEVES DURING THE NIGHT

Mr. R. C. Braund's store at the corner of Park and Albert streets, was looted some time during the night and goods to the value of $100 or more were carried away.

Mr. Nelson Routly's store at the corner of Park and Brock streets, was also entered and the till relieved of 200 coppers. Apparently nothing else was taken. Entry was gained through the side door on Park street. It had been locked on the inside and the key left in the lock. It seems that this key had been forced out and the lock easily turned.

WERE GREEDY AT BRAUND'S

The looting at Braund's was of the old time variety. It looked as if the thieves had a sack which they endeavoured to fill. Some of the goods missed are $45 worth of rings, $12 worth of watches, $18 dollars worth of watch chains, from $5 to $20 worth of cuff links, together with purses and other articles.

A window in the lane off Albert street was broken in and the thief or thieves practicaly cleaned out a show case near the front of the store. Mr. Braund is not sure whether other articles were taken or not.

BURGLARIES NUMEROUS

The appears to be an epidemic of robberies among the stores away from the front streets. A few weeks ago three or four were entered and small sums of money taken.

WILL REMOVE TO PETERBORO'

Lindsay's paving policy for the year 1913 came to a satisfactory conclusion on Thursday evening. The contractors, Messrs. Foley and Gleeson, are busy shiping men, horses and apparatus to Peterborough, and on Monday will be in a position to commence the work of laying on Hunter Street the top surface, which consists of two and a half inches of asphalt. Lindsay contracted the paving fever early in the spring and before the season was over it had reached a high state of germination. The original contract grew from 18,000 yards to 38,000 yards.

On George Street.

The work of fulfilling the Peterborough contract is progressing. Work was begun on George Street a few days ago. The main thoroughfare, between Simcoe and Brock Streets, is practically out of commission as far as traffic is concerned. The Peterborough Radial Railway Company are rushing to completion the construction of their new roadbed. This finshed, the road on either side wil lbe graded, and the actual work of laying the pavement commenced. A slightly heavier pavement will be laid on George Street, consequently the work will take somewhat longer to complete than was the case with the partially completed stretch of pavement on Hunter Street.

Will Meet In Toronto

The Dominion Railway Board will meet in Toronto on Monday in connection with a list of cases that await a decision. Three items of interest to Peterborough will come before the Board. They concern the matter of opening De Laval street for traffic across the G.T.R. tracks, the question of permitting the C.P.R. to construct a railway siding across King street near the river, and the matter of having the C.P.R. telegraph poles on George street removed, and the telegraph cable placed in a conduit.

It is altogether likely that the City will be represented by His Worship Mayor Bradburn, City Solicitor Hall and City Clerk Armstrong.

The matter of having the proposed street railway agreement re the joint use of poles amended will be taken up also.

JEWISH SABBATH WILL BE OBSERVED

By Hebrews Residing in Peterborough—Day of Atonement Commenced Last Night

The Day of Atonement, considered to be the holiest day in the Jewish calendar, began last evening at sunset. The Hebrews in Peterborough and the world over will observe a complete fast from sunset Friday evening till star-rise Saturday evening. Services will be held throughout the day, and the devout Hebrews will pray almost the entire day, forgiving their enemies and all who have wronged them during the past year, and asking God to forgive them for all the evil they themselves have committed during the same period of time.

According to biblical injunction the Day of Atonement is to be observed by confession of sin, but while confession of sin brings forgiveness of sin to man from his Maker, things between man and man are not forgiven until redress is made. The Day of Atonement is therefore the occasion of the cessation of quarrels and feuds, and is known as the Sabbath of Sabbaths when Hebrews are at peace with all the world. Prayers in the places of worship are intoned in plaintive, penitential, sombre tones on this occasion. The Day of Atonement is a fast day, and Hebrews the world over touch no food from Friday evening till Saturday evening, and spend all of Saturday in the synagogue.

PETES WERE BEATEN 13-1

Lost To-day's Junior O. R. F. U. Game at Toronto

Special Wire to The Examiner.

Varsity Grounds, Toronto, October 13. — In a drizzling rain the Parkdale Juniors defeated the Peterborough Juniors in a championship O. R. F. U. Junior fixture on Varsity campus this afternoon by a score of 13 to 1. The winners also led at half time by 11 to 0. The visitors appeared to be disorganized and were completely outplayed, in the initial half, but put up a stuborn battle in the 2nd half and held Peddlers to 2 to 1 score. The game was free from roughness, only one player being penalized.

The field was treacherous and slippery.

The teams:

Parkdale—Half backs, Brent, Sparrow, Burroughs; flying wing, Wagner; Quarter, Tuthill; Scrimmage, Raymer, Swalm; Austin; Inside Wings, Kelk, Cutts; Middle Wings, McPherson, Delaporte; Outside Wings, Kavers, Walker.

Peterborough — Half Backs, Gibson, Kirn, Minorgan; Flying Wing, Dwyer; Quarter, Breckenridge, Scrimmoge, M. Turner, Eccles one, Webb; Inside Wings, F. Turner, J. Davidson; Middle Wings, Langley, Rogers; Outside Wings, Flowers, Mullhagen.

Noble replaced Mullhagen and Long replaced Flowers for Peterborough in the second half. Referee "Ack" Hunter. Umpire Grimshaw.

HOW ILLUSIONS OF THE MOVIES ARE CREATED

Men Made to Walk on Ceilings and Fall From Dizzy Heights

"Trick" photography was known before the birth of the motion picture. The "spirit" photograph, as used by the confederates of spurious mediums, is familiar to all. Thomas Hardy made effective use of a delusive photograph in one of his novels. But it is through cinematography the camera has reached its highest development in the art of creating illusions for the delusion of the spectator.

The skill reached by operators in this form of camera manipulation has enabled them to attain results that seem to verge on the miraculous, even when the methods they employ have been thoroughly explained, and seem wholly miraculous when the spectators remain innocent of knowledge of those methods.

To enumerate even the most striking of the illusory pictures that have been presented to the public would be impossible here; to attempt to give detailed exposition of the methods by which the illusions were created would require a volume, not a newspaper column.

The tricks had their beginnings in a mechanical peculiarity of the moving picture camera. The photographs, each one inch wide and seven-eighths of an inch deep, are taken on a continuous moving film. The makers found that the apparatus could be stopped at any point so that each picture might be taken separately or a group together, or that substitutions and changes in the scene might be made between the exposures.

When the manufacturers realized these possibilities, the earlier styles of trick pictures began to appear thick and fast. A French magician named Malies originated the so-called magical pictures, in which persons and objects appeared or disappeared in an instant. Of course, these were merely placed in or removed from the scene while the shutter of the camera was closed between the photographs.

Then the trick of substitution was brought to perfection. It has survived as one of the best of the devices. In the picture of the "Great Train Robbery," for example, a dummy was substituted and thrown from a moving train in place of the living fireman who had been knocked on the head with a piece of coal. In later pictures this substitution was carried to such perfection that the spectators fairly rose in their seats in excitement. Two men seem to be fighting on the edge of a high wall of a castle. One overpowers the other and throws him from the parapet to the ground far beneath. A dummy has been substituted for the living performer so neatly that the illusion of the fall cannot be detected in a scene of startling realism.

By other devices known to the picture man the impossible marvels of "Alice in Wonderland" have been made possible, the widely fantastic imaginings of Lewis Carroll have been transmuted into realities and children unfortunately afflicted with precocious scepticism, who may have doubted the truth of the story as they read its pages, have been diverted from the dangerous path upon which they were entering and restored to the proper mental sanity of childhood by seeing Alice actually going through her strange adventures before their very eyes.

By still other devices the fathers of those children have been enabled to see John Paul Jones and his men on the blood-stained deck of the Bon Homme Richard again fight and conquer the Serapis.

In this latter picture the sea and sky were actual. That is, a motion picture camera was taken on the ocean and a film made of an unobstructed horizon. Then models of the two warships, each about four feet high, were constructed and placed on rockers. Each of the miniature black guns protruding from their portholes had behind it a cup for holding powder, which was exploded by electricity. Then the sea scene was placed in a camera in the studio and exposed for a second time. The placing of the little battleships so that they should be precisely on the horizon of the sea view already taken was a matter of focussing and of the most painstaking calculation.

When all was ready, mechanics gently rolled the ships to and fro on their rockers, the powder flashed from the guns and electric fans made the sails bulge and the smoke curl as the sea view was again exposed to the light. This battle scene was quickly followed by the scene on the deck of the Bon Homme Richard, built full size in the studio, with a hundred or more men in combat.

Many scenes representing actors going through various performances while walking on a ceiling with head downwards. Yet the explanation is very simple. In all such scenes the actor goes through the performance while walking on a floor painted to look like the ceiling. The ceiling is painted to look like a floor and fastened to it, all upside down, of course, are tables, chairs, and other furniture. The picture when taken has merely to be reversed.

READING AND ITS PLEASURE

By MR. F. M. DELA FOSSE

BIOGRAPHY—PART I.

By F. M. Dela Fosse.

At present the chief interest of patrons of all libraries centres in Fiction. Presumably this will always be the case, but whilst there is small hope that this department will ever be relegated to the background in favour of other branches of literature there is great satisfaction to be found in the fact that there is an appreciable decrease in the patronage extended to it and a noticeable increase in that extended to others. During the present year this has been very patent to observation in the Peterborough Library, and it is gratifying that it should be so for there is much of the highest value and interest to be found on the shelves if people will only take the trouble to look for it.

It is very far from the aim of the writer, however, to attempt to belittle the value of Fiction. It is and always will be an abiding necessity in the lives of most of us to have something to turn to that will tend to ease our tired brains and cast our thoughts into channels far removed from the stress and strain of daily toil. But there is reason in all things and there is no more necessity for a continued diet of fiction for the mind than there is for a continued diet of pork and beans for the body. It has been stated on good authority that there is at the present time in stock in the storehouse of a well-known New York publishing firm no less than 350,000 copies of the popular novel, "The Winning Of Barbara Worth," and it seems to me that there is something inexpressibly saddening in the fact that a work like this, excellent as it undoubtedly is, should sell in such tens of thousands whilst thes tupendous labours of philosophers, poets essayists, and others sell by tens. To-day I was examining the books in the Biographical section of our Library, and was astonished at the number that had evidently never been taken out for reading purposes. Some of these, in fact most of them, had been purchased years ago, and afforded mute but eloquent testimony to the fact that the taste of the purchasers had been very far in advance of the taste of those to whom they were catering. Take for instance that encyclopaedic work "The Lives of the Lord Chancellors" (10 vols) and "The Lives of the Chief Justices of England" (6 vols). Whenever I look at these works they seem to me to assume quite an aggressive and sinister individuality, holding up their heads in high and mighty manner among their more gaudily bedecked brethren of a younger generation as if insistently demanding as their right a fair measure of recognition from the public.

Now, it is far enough from my thoughts that everybody should make it a point of necessity to read either of these ponderous works. They are neither of them of a character to appeal to the general public, but nevertheless, they are distinctly of a type to appeal to a far larger public than is at present aware of their existence. "The Lives of the Lord Chancellors" gives a short account of everyone who has held that high office from its inception to the time of Lord Brougham. It furnishes us with a knowledge of the origin, functions and jurisdiction of the office. But, apart from all this, there is very much in the volumes that should prove entertaining reading for those whose tastes do not lie exactly in the line of constitutional law or politics, for biography is more interesting than history to the average individual and even though the story of the holders of the Great Seal is in reality the story of the British constitution as well as of British jurisprudence there is enough of the personal element in it to enchain the mind of the reader.

I confess that until I took up the introductory volume I was in blissful ignorance of the fact that St. Swithin had once held that high office. He was the second Lord Chancellor of England, so that he has claims to renown beyond the glorious reputation that clings to his name, or the fact that he was one of the tutors of Alfred the Great, and the introducer of the payment of "Peter's Pence" in England.

"The Lives of the Chief Justices of England" deals with quite as eminent a body of men as the Lord Chancellors, and is just as interesting and instructive. It comprises the period between the time of the institution of the office by William the Conqueror to the year 1854, which marked the death of Lord Denman.

In the same category as regards lack of patronage may be mentioned "Captains of Industry" (2 vols); "Industrial Biography," by Smiles and "Lives of Eminent European and American Mechanics." These three works have to all appearance never been taken out of the Library. In the light of this fact it is amusing to read in the preface of one of the volumes that "thanks to the more general diffusion of knowledge and the light of Christianity, mankind are beginning to appreciate the labours of those to whom we are indebted for our present unparalleled state of intellectual and social advancement." These books are intensely interesting and grown-ups and juveniles alike will find in them food for both thought and recreation, a combination that is somewhat difficult to find in much of our present day literature.

This Will Soon Banish All Objectionable Hairs

(Modes of Today)

Beauty specialists have discovered a new and simple method for ridding the skin of obnoxious hair or fuzz and inviriably, but one application is required to obtain the desired results. A paste is made with powdered delatone and water and applied for 2 minutes to the hairy surface, then rubbed off and the skin washed and dried. This treatment removes every trace of hair and leaves the skin firm and smooth. Disappointment will be averted if you buy the delatone in an original package.

FINE WATCH REPAIRING

Cheap watch repairing may appeal to some, but generally speaking experience proves work done cheaply is generally done poorly, and in the end is the final ruin of a good watch. We have first-class workmen and do only high-class work. No other place can do any better. Our charges are no higher than others, for good work. If you have a good watch you will find it economical to have us do your repairing.

De Laval Plant Is A Model Of Modern Factory Equipment

Factory and Office Buildings Are Substantial, Compact and Elegant---Beauty and Utility Combined in Adequate Proportions--Conveniences Are the Last Word in Modern Ideas---Energy, Enterprise and Business Ability With Courtesy Manifested by Executive Heads.

The citizens of Peterborough have followed the developments of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company's plant from the day of the announcement that fifteen acres had been purchased at the northwest corner of Lansdowne and Park Streets for the factory's site. The steel framework outlined the additions of the buildings which gradually assumed material form with the completion of the brick-work. It was apparent to those who followed the work that the company proposed to spare no pains in making their Peterborough branch thoroughly modern and efficient. There were also early indications that utility was not the only objective in the preparation of the plans.

As the De Laval plant emerged from its chrysalis its beauty was manifested in the compact arrangement of the departments and the manner in which they have been situated on the property, the level stretch of lawn extending back from the street line, the perfection of finish carried out in the facade, the harmony that pervades the block of buildings and in the dignified and artistic lines of the office building. A wide, generous lawn sweeps along the front, sufficient evidence in itself that the appearance of the plant received careful attention and that the De Laval Company is financially strong enough to make its Peterborough branch one of the most handsome industrial plants in the country.

The Offices.

Unquestionably, the offices are the finest in the City, and very few establishments of a similar kind in Canada surpass them. A glance at the accompanying reproduction illustrates the neatness of the exterior, but it conveys little of the beauty. A cream Milton pressed brick made especially for the Company, is used in the walls. This, with the white cornice and the marble portal gives a bright, clean appearance that is very appealing. In the marble slab over the entrance the words "De Laval" have been chiselled. Inside the door are marble stairs and in fact the entire vestibule has been done in this material.

Oak and Mahogany.

The wood work and furniture throughout this building is entirely of the best selected quarter-cut oak, with the exception of the Manager's office, which is finished with mahogany and the furniture is of the same wood. The colours used in the wall finish are a rather dark cream and a light chocolate, which with the oak woodwork produces a subdued and restful tone. The flooring is of hardwood but the stairs are of oak.

The reception hall into which the visitor enters and from which the various rooms lead, has a floor of interlocking rubber that is said to be exceedingly durable. At the left is the switch board of the Company's private telephone connecting all the departments and shops and also having direct connection with the City and long-distance lines.

Indirect Lighting.

The system of indirect lighting is employed throughout the office building. The rays from powerful tungsten lamps of from 60 to 500 watts are reflected to the ceiling, and are thus diffused evenly and indirectly. Working under this light there are no shadows. The lights are grouped in large brass fittings which are suspended from the ceiling by brass chains of the same finish.

Buildings Fire Proof.

All the buildings are fireproof and are equipped with a complete automatic sprinkler system. Every room in the office is provided with this equipment, which also extends throughout the factory. The ventilating system is of the most modern type. There is a large ventilator over the hall on the second floor, which provides a general ventilation for the building. In each room there are small ventilators and the windows have the "Ideal" ventilating equipment which permits any desired degree of fresh air to enter a room without creating a draught.

The Heating System.

The offices are heated by what is known as the thermostat controlled radiation system from a steam-heating plant. The control is combined in a thermometer. Thus if 70 degrees of heat is the temperature desired, a little pointer at the base of the thermometer is moved to the number 70, and there you are. Aladdin's lamp could scarce surpass the magic of present-day conveniences.

The Disposal of the Rooms.

There are three stories in the office building. The basement at present contains a vault room and is largely used for storage purposes. The ground floor has already been referred to in part. At the right of the entrance and just off the reception hall is a reception room, nicely appointed and provided with reading material. The entire north end is the large sales room. At the south east corner is the general manager's office and the purchasing office. At the south-west and is the accounting and cashier's office.

On the second storey there is the Directors' or Board room, the cost department's office on the east and south west sides and entire north end is devoted to the office of the engineering department and the office of the cream separator manufacturing department. On this floor there is a rest room for girls with the special provision of a floor grating connected with the heating system for the purpose of drying skirts that may become damp by snow or slush. The lavatories on both floors have furnishings that are not excelled in the hotels of the large cities.

Have Spring Water.

During the excavation work on the property a natural spring was uncovered. The water was tested by Dr. McPherson who pronounced it pure. It is now pumped for drinking purposes into the office and into every department. At the left hand side of the entrance to the sales room there is a sanitary drinking fountain, the kind that Alderman Duffus wants for the City, and if you ever happen to visit the De Laval office try the fountain.

Officers of the Company.

The De Laval Dairy Supply Company is the largest manufactory of cream separators in the world, and the Peterborough branch is but one link in the chain of factories that stamp products with the name "De Laval." In Canada the company works under a Canadian charter from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mr. Ralph Stoddard is president of the company and Mr. W. R. Breyfogle of this City is vice-president, treasurer and general manager. The sales department of the local office covers Canada from Manitoba to the Atlantic. Mr. J. A. Robinson is secretary of the company. Managers of departments are as follows:

Mr. C. D. Cook of silo and gas engine sales.
Mr. G. A. Evans of the creamery department.
Mr. R. C. Read of separator sales.
Mr. J. A. Robinson, cashier.
Mr. W. S. Hall of the purchasing department.
Mr. J. Walter Fitzgerald of the billing department.
Mr. F. H. Dawson of the draughting department.
Mr. E. J. Ruiter, superintendent of creamery goods and silo factory.
Mr. Jos. French, superintendent of the separator factory.
Edward Ide of the forwarding department.

The Montreal branch is in charge of Mr. R. N. Mitchell and Mr. W. D. Terron. Western Canada is generally managed from Winnipeg by Mr. F. J. Weed who is responsible for his staff of assistants.

Where the Work Is Done.

The new building on the south side of the property is the cream separator building. The middle building directly at the rear of the office building is a general warehouse, and the building on the north side comprises machine shops, wood working shop where silos and churns are made.

What the Company Produces.

The De Laval Cream Separator is the leading product of the factory, and is literally shipped in thousands from the Peterborough plant. But the activities of the company do not cease there. The Ideal Green Feed Silo has already made a big name for itself and this end of the business is rapidly increasing. The Victor Churns are made in all sizes, some having a capacity of 1,000 lbs. of butter. A beautiful white enamelled dairy churn has been manufactured by the company for Sir Henry Pellatt, who is equipping a model dairy. The dairy equipment for Sir Wm. McKenzie's dairy at Kirkfield was also supplied by the De Laval company. These are merely individual orders of a special nature and do not in the least indicate the general business of the company. The Alpha gas engine is one of the finest on any market, and is not the least important of the company's achievements. Practically everything connected with the dairy business is made in the Peterborough shops. Cream pasteurizers, milk testers, can dripping stands, milk vats and so on. The company directs continuous attention toward facilitating the dairy business and evolving inventions that will be practical and time and labour saving.

Some Details of the Plant.

The company has its own miniature railway conecting all the shops and the lumber yard. There is a central turn table for switching purposes.

The three shops are being equipped with a system of electric lighting that is costing $8,000. The work is being done by the Watson, Flagg Company of New York city.

One of the facilities for the receiving and forwarding departments is the depressed siding by which trucks are run into the freight cars at the ground level.

There is one-half a mile of standard gauge tracks on the De Laval property. Surely an extensive railway yard for so young a company.

How Shavings Are Used.

An exhaust system is employed in the wood working department and the shavings from each machine are carried by a draft, some to the storing vaults and the rest directly to the furnaces. This equipment can be seen at the rear of the factory. The surplus shaving are baled by a special machine and are sold for various purposes.

In the engine room there are two 125 h.p. boilers and a Westinghouse high speed engine. In all these departments there is som uch that might be said that a volume would scarcely accommodate it. The tall chimney is the very finest in the City and is an illustration of the De Laval Company's ideals. It is 110 feet high and is built of radial interlocking brick. The construction was carried out by the Hiene Chimney Company of Chicago. It was built at a cost of $2,500.

Special Fire Equipment.

Although the buildings have the sprinkler system there are several hose houses with 1,200 feet of hose. The hydrants placed at different points are enclosed in wood houses and are ready for any emergency. Should the City's water pressure ever fail the company can provide an equal pressure by their own resources. Between the middle and north buildings a large oil house will be built for the clarification of oil. The tanks are now being manufactured by the Wm. Hamilton Company.

Mr. Fred Roy stated that the lighting of the shops is as perfect as in any studio.

The stenographic force totals about fourteen expert young ladies who are kept very busy.

So much for the inanimate buildings and equipment of modern ideas in machinery and conveniences. It might be remarked that the Peterborough branch is particularly equipped with a personality which has already made itself felt in Peterborough. There have been sufficient evidences of business alertness, and despatch, and those who have had dealings with any of the officers or department heads know that unfailing courtesy and consideration is not overlooked.

The citizens of Peterborough are proud of the De Laval Company which has been directly responsible for the latest real estate developments in the south end. The company has surpassed its building promises and has given the City a strong industrial establishment, and has set a new standard of beauty and utility in factory buildings.

THE SALES DEPARTMENT.

This Photograph was taken from the Northwest Corner on the Ground Floor. All the Furniture and Woodwork is of selected Quarter Cut Oak. Each Department Head has two Stenographers. The Stenographic Equipment is of the latest type. Note the Lighting and Fitting Equipment.

GUY BROTHERS COMING

On Thursday evening next, Oct. 16th, Guy Brothers Celebrated Minstrels will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, and it is one that can be depended on to please the patrons. Mr. Geo. R. Guy always carries a first-class production, and this season will retain the name won years ago. This Company is the oldest on the road, this making the thirty-ninth year of continued success. The minstrel shows of to-day are made up to last one year, while Guy Brothers will live forever, as they always have a clean, refined and wholesome performance, and one which you can go to and enjoy a good hearty laugh. Thirty-five people are carried to make the company complete, and they are the best of soloists, musicians, acrobats, jugglers, dancers and comedians in the business. Every one will be pleased to hear good music and the kind put up by Guy Brothers' famous Silver Concert, Band and Orchestra is always of the very best quality. Don't miss seeing this attraction next Thursday evening, Oct. 16. Secure your reserved seat tickets now. They don't cost any more.

The death of the last of the John Brown captors having been followed by the passing of the last of the Lincoln bodyguard, it's hard to tell whether the next turn belongs to the last of George Washington's slaves or the last of the Trenton girls who kissed Lafayette.

The health commissioner of Chicago refuses to let his subordinates send out a bulletin warning against the danger of kissing. He says there is really no danger in kissing unless you are caught at it. There is something almost human about an official with ideas like that.

The secretary of agriculture is showing the farmer how to raise crops, and the secretary of the treasury is showing him how he may pay for the gathering of them. Now, if the interstate commerce commission will show him where the railroad cars are to come from all will be well.

BABY'S OWN SOAP

Many happy Mothers

are using Baby's Own Soap in the nursery not merely because they themselves were washed with it, when infants, but also because experience has shown that no other soap will help the skin so much—make it so white, so smooth—be so pleasant to use—and cost as little.

Baby's Own Soap is best for Baby and best for you.

Imitations and substitutes are made as cheap as possible; Baby's Own is as good as possible. 94-13

ALBERT SOAPS LTD., Mfrs., MONTREAL

WORLD'S FINEST RUBY.

King George Is Possessor of Famous "Tribute of the World."

Among the British crown jewels is the famous ruby known as the Timur ruby, the oriental name of which is Khiraj-i-Aham, "Tribute of the World." This is the largest spinel ruby known, weighing a bit over 352 carats, uncut but polished. It is thought to have come from one of the old ruby mines of Badahshan.

This famous jewel has had a varied and most romantic history. The earliest records concerning it indicate that it was seized, together with many other precious stones, by the Ameer Timur, commonly called by European historians Tamerlane, when he plundered Delhi in 1398.

At his death the ruby descended to his son, Mir Shah Rukh, and in due time to his son and successor, Mirza Ulugh Beg. At this period, however, the Tartar empire was on the verge of dissolution. During one of the wars between the Tartars and the Persians, the ruby fell into the hands of the kings of Iran. Shah Abbas I., the greatest of the Safavi kings of Persia, who, acting with the British forces, took the island of Ormus from the Portuguese in 1622, was a devoted friend and ally of the Mogul Emperor Jehangir, and presented the ruby to him in 1612. At that time the gem was inscribed with the names of Timur's son and grandson and of Shah Abbas himself.

There is a story to the effect that when Jehangir's favorite wife, Nur Jehan, remonstrated with him for spoiling the gem by his inscription, he replied: "This jewel will more certainly hand down my name to posterity than any written history. The House of Timur may fall, but as long as there is a king this jewel will be his"—meaning, of course, that the possession of so rare a stone would always remain with the suzerain of Hindustan.

And it is a fact that, throughout all the vicissitudes of Indian history, this prediction has been fulfilled.

The last of the Delhi emperors to inscribe his name was Mahomed Farukh Siyar. During the reign of his successor, Nadir Shah invaded India and sacked Delhi (1793). His loot, carried away to the then capital of Persia, Lepahan, included the Timur ruby, as shown by a cryptic inscription of the style affected by the Persian scholars of the day. The date is that of the Hejira era and corresponds with A.D. 1740.

The latest name on the jewel is that of Ahmad Shah, commonly known as Abdali or Durani, who, at the time of Nadir Shah's assassination in 1747, held an important command in his victorious army.

When he heard of the murder he attempted to seize the throne, but succeeded only in securing a large amount of booty, which he took with him when he marched south at the head of his troops and founded the kingdom of Afghanistan. On his death in 1772, his son, Timur Shah, succeeded to the throne of Kabul, and the ruby eventually passed to the latter's youngest son, Shah Sujia.

On his expulsion by Dost-Mohamed, he took refuge in the Punjab, and Maharaja Ranjit Singh forced him to surrender both the Koh-i-noor and the Timur ruby.

On the annexation of the Punjab, in 1849, the board of administration took over all the state jewels.

These were all displayed in the Exhibition of 1851, and when this came to an end the court of directors of the East India Company presented the ruby to Queen Victoria.

Belfast Harbor Enlarged.

The Belfast Harbor Board has approved a scheme for providing additional fitting-out wharfs for shipbuilding at a cost of over $350,000. It was stated that Belfast last year would have the largest tonnage of new shipping ever seen in any harbor in the world.

Newcastle United have four goal-keepers, each of whom has had experience of First League football, viz., Lawrence, Blake, Wilson, and Alderson.

"Tinker" Davis, the Welsh International, has given up football so that he can devote himself more to the business in which he and Bob Crompton are partners.

Whilst at practice for Chatham, F. Preston, a left back, fractured his ankle. Last season three players suffered serious mishaps on the same ground.

Of the Barnsley eleven who made history by running into the Cup final for the first time, a decided minority now remain on the club's books. The survivors of the Cup eleven beaten in the Goodison replay versus Newcastle United are: Downs, Utley, Bartley, and Tuffnell.

Grimsby Town have signed on a promising young forward in Joshua Burkinshaw, of Kilnhurst, a brother of the two Burkinshaws who play for Sheffield Wednesday. He plays either inside-right or inside-left, is fast, fairly clever on the ball, and a good shot. He should develop into a serviceableforward, for he is barely 18.

Barnsley have obtained the signatures of two more players as the result of the form shown in the recent trial games. The new men are Frank Ruddlesdin, a nevhew of the famous Wednesday half-back. Ruddlesdin, who is a native of Hoyland, is only 19, and he can take any position in the middle line. The other player is Frank Rhodes of Shiregreen. He is 21, and plays at centre-half.

Jack's Lake Party Off For The North

This morning a large contingent of the Jack's Lake Fishing Club left for their lodge on Jack's Lake, where for the next two weks they will fish and shoot partridge. The following went out to-day: Messrs. Alex. Elliott, W. H. Denham, W. J. Thompson, R. M. Glover, Col. Harry Ward, Port Hope; Mayor Bush, Port Hope; Mr. Perricke, Pittsburg; Robt. Hicks, W. E. Lech, Bert Rose, and E. B. Boswell.

Next week the party will be joined by Messrs. A. H. Stratton, C. E. Pennyfather, W. R. Morris and Don. Fraser, and T. P. Coffee, of London.

CHIEF BENDER AND WALLY SCHANG—The battery who won the fourth game of the series for Athletics yesterday.

GIANTS FINISHED STRONG BUT COULD NOT OVERCOME ATHLETICS' BIG LEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.— What promised to be nothing more difficult for the Athletics to-day than a pleasant romp to victory, turned out to be a ball game after all. The Athletics won and now have three victories to one for the Giants. They are only one game away from the world's championship. The score by which they won to-day was 6 to 5, but yet in the ebb and flow of fortune the fact that the Mackian sapers had at one time a lead of six runs did not alter the fact that before the game was over it came about that the difference between victory and defeat for the Athletics hung on an occurrence of hair line fineness.

The Giants were six tallies behind and runless when the seventh inning began. Into that inning and the next they merged practically all the hitting they did and plucked five runs so abruptly that the question changed from: What will the Athletics win by, to, will the Athletics win?

To-day's strife in which the Giants appeared to sorry a vantage for six innings, was one of queer twists and turns. On several occasions the slightest variance from what did happen to what might have happened would have beaten the Athletics and won for the Giants. Outplayed and outgingered and lagging painfully for a greater part of the game, the Polo folk were not so greatly removed from victory as the game turned out.

Not that the Athletics didn't play the better game and didn't deserve to win; the victory was theirs by virtue of a shade of superiority—in batting, fielding, pitching. The pertinent fact that the Athletics' fielders handled two vicious line drives splendidly was just as much eloquent of skill and rapidity of action on their part as was the fact that the minutest difference in the direction of those drives would have won for the Giants, or, at least, put them on even terms. It was work of high class and next to instantaneous action by the Athletics which enabled them to cut off those drives; it was rough on the Giants to have the savage slams turned against them.

Two Great Fielding Plays.

A wonderful nab of a line drive from McCormick, Oldring being the one who did the catching, foreclosed on a New York run in the fifth inning. A still more important play was the feat of Chief Bender in knocking down a fierce liner from Fletcher's bat in the eighth inning and blighting a rally, which as it was, produced two runs. On the other hand, the Giants were not entirely destitute of four leaf clovers in this inning, for a wicked liner by Burns struck fairly on the foul line. Continuing the recital of how the ifs cut in here and there, what took place in the second inning was of important bearing, and this particular succession of events has to do with cripples. Snodgrass started the game, giving way later to Herzog and forcing McGraw back to the combination of talent which he has used most in the series. Snodgrass, by reason of his lameness, failed to get under a fly in the second. The maker of that Texas leaguer was McInnis, and he scored. He scored because Merkle's weak ankle gave out on him as he was about to take a foul from Barry. The result was that Merkle dropped the foul. Barry is just the sort of appreciative chap to make the most of such an opportunity. He at once drove a two-bager to left and scored McInnis.

While on the subject of Barry, it may be mentioned that he was, with his bat, the centre of the Athletics' attacking force. He made three hits, and journey to the home shrine with three runs. The lower end of the batting order did the business to-day. Collins and Baker were in the background, McInnis, Strunk, Barry and Schang formed a four-man combination which bore the brunt of the home team's offensive operations.

Two innings of attacking animation were not enough for the Giants. By that time the Athletics, who did not wait for late stages to show their hand, had driven Demaree to cover and worked in enough of their sharp outbursts of walloping to have a winning supply of runs. The game was won by the American Leaguers in the first half, in which they did all their batting.

For the fourth time in the series, Mack made no changes in his battle-front, while McGraw made several. Bender was in better form than on Tuesday, and for six inings held the Giants to two scattered hits. In the next two his confidence was considerably rocked, his cock-sureness was taken from him, for two singles, a two-bagger, a three-bagger and a home run went stinging across the landscape in that period. Capt. Danny Murphy ran out on the field, jacked up the surprised Indian, and he settled down and held the Giants safe to the finish.

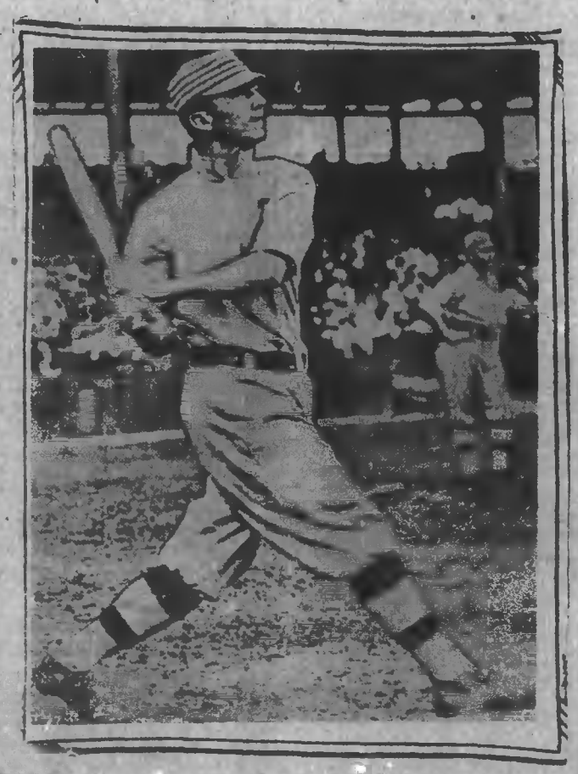
That writer evidently believes the Fair to be an annual accident.



BAKER—Of the Athletics—clouting one of the home runs that made him famous.

Annual Meeting Of The Lindsay Curling Club

Officers and Skips Named for the Ensuing Year—The Big Bonspiel

LINDSAY, Oct. 10.—The annual meeting of the Lindsay Curling Club was held at the Peel Street Rink, there being a goodly attendance of skips and other members. Enthusasm was at its height, and it is expected that the season of 1914 will be the best in the history of the Club.

Officers for 1914.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:
Patron—J. Carew.
Hon.-President—R. Butler.
President—F. J. Carew.
Asst.-Treasurer—E. Gregory.
Secretary—J. M. Knowlson.
Asst.-Secretary—W. E. Reesor.
Treasurer—J. D. Flavelle.
Asst.-Treasurer—F. Gregory.
Chaplain—Rev. J. W. Wallace.
Rep. to O. C. A.—J. D. Flavelle and W. E. Reesor.
Managing Committee—J. D. Flavelle, G. A. Little, T. A. Fisher.
Ontario Tankard Skips—J. D. Flavelle, G. A. Little.
District Cup Skips—R. F. Thomas, G. G. Beall.

Skips for Next Season.

Fees Raised.

Owing to the financial standing of the Club it was deemed advisable to raise the fees of skips and vice-skips, thus making the fee $10 for skips and $8 for vice-skips. The fee for first and second stone players remains at $6. It is hoped that by this means the Club's financial status will be improved.

Competition Rinks.

On motion it was decided to give the tankard and district cup rinks skips the privilege of selecting their own rinks for the above competitions, the said selections to be submitted to the Management Committee for ratification. The old reliables, Messrs. J. D. Flavelle and G. A. Little wer re-elected to fight the Ontario Tankard games, while Messrs. R. F. Thomas and G. G. Beall were given the honour of entering the District Cup competition.

The Big Bonspiel.

It was decided, by motion, to hold Lindsay's first big bonspiel which is open to all parts of the world, on Tuesday, January 13th. The event, it is expected, will spread over the entire week, and already inofrmation is to hand that there will be a large number of outside rinks present.

How the Cigar Was Named.

The word cigar is derived from the Spanish cigarral, which means garden. When tobacco was introduced into Spain the inhabitants planted it in their gardens. When offering the weed to a friend, a Spaniard would frequently say: "It is from my garden" ("Es de mi cigarral"). Through misunderstanding on the part of foreigners the expression was corrupted and cigarral was supposed to refer to the tobacco. The word was in time shortened to cigarro and finally became cigar.

Light Sovereigns.

Whenever the Bank of England gets $1,500,000 worth of gold coins the money is sent in a batch to be weighed at the Mint. Since the order for the exchange of light gold coins came into force—in 1892—over a hundred million sovereigns and half-sovereigns to the value of many millions have been taken out of circulation. The average depreciation in the value of light coins is about five cents. The loss to the Mint by waste and sweepings, which, by the by, are sold by auction, is sometimes close on $5,000 a year. When some furnaces at the Mint were pulled down one year, 30.917 ounces of gold and 31.23 ounces of silver were recovered from the sweepings and the old bricks. In the sweepings from other portions of the building were found 52.95 ounces of gold and 270 ounces of silver.

Silent Lawyer.

Sir W. Grant, Master of the Rolls, was a very silent man in society, and yet one of the most patient of judges. The story is well-known of his hearing an elaborate and lengthened argument, for two days, on the meaning of an Act of Parliament, and when the counsel finished simply saying, "Gentlemen, the Act on which the pleading has been founded is repealed."

On one of his visits to Bath he rode out a few miles into the country, accompanied by some friends. The only observation that escaped from him was in passing a field of peas.

"Very fine peas."

Next day he rode out with the same friends and was equally silent, but on passing the same spot he muttered, "And very finely podded, too."

The Last Cornet.

The death occurred suddenly from heart failure recently in England of Maj.-Gen. F. M. Kenyon-Stow, of Brighton. He joined the 19th Hussars in 1863 as a cornet, and was actually the last cornet to be gazetted. He was afterwards transferred to the 5th Dragoon Guards, which regiment he commanded from 1882 to 1887. He was a keen soldier, and was when gazetted the youngest major-general in the British army.

VATICAN FINANCES.

Pope Pius' Administration Stands for Order and Economy.

While it is impossible to secure accurate figures regarding the finances of the Vatican, certain general facts are known. Since Pope Pius X was elected pope in 1903 the temporal administration of the Vatican has been perfectly organized, and the system is now known to be better managed than any of the former Holy See governments.

During the first years of the pontificate of Leo XIII. Pope Pius' predecessor, reorganized and consolidated the Vatican finances. Money previously invested abroad was deposited in Roman banks. Local industrial and building securities were purchased, and despite the failure of the Bank of Rome, which entailed a considerable loss of money, the Vatican finances flourished. But Leo XIII spent money lavishly. He supported many convents and monasteries, built churches, contributed generously to foreign missions, aided charitable institutions and helped the poor. His court cost him a great deal, and poor priests flocked to Rome from all parts of the world, the pope supporting them.

During the last years of Pope Leo's long pontificate the Vatican finances were badly administered. No accounts, no cash books, no balance sheets existed, and when Leo died the Vatican accountants were nonplussed. Everything was in a mixup.

When Pius X became pope he at once laid plans for cutting down expenditure to bring it on a level with the income. Aided by his energetic young secretary of state, Cardinal Merry del Val, he abolished the Congregation of Relics, dating from 1600 and composed of 30 cardinals, 14 prelates, an archivist, a secretary and many clerks—a costly establishment with few duties, which was merged into the Congregation of Rites. The abolition of other sinecures followed. Many salaries were reduced, a host of perquisites suppressed, subsidies to Catholic newspapers limited and an audit office created to control the expenditure of every department. Even the papal army did not escape Pope Pius' sweeping reforms. The Noble Guardsmen were reduced from 70 to 40, the 200 Palatine Guards, intended for parade duty were brought down to 100, and the picturesque uniform designed by Michael Angelo barely saved the Swiss soldiers from extinction.

Gradually everything has been reorganized on an economic footing, and the papal government is now running very smoothly. It is estimated that the annual revenue of the Holy See amounts to about $2,000,000, one-half of which is derived from Peter's pence, this contribution coming voluntarily from the faithful throughout the world. Either collected by the bishops or else offered to the pope by wealthy Catholics who received an audience with his eminence. The outer revenue comes from invested papal money, the interest of funds invested by former popes, the rent from the buildings owned by the church and the fees for various services performed and documents issued in the course of everyday ecclesiastical business.

All the salaries of the members of the papal court and the many employes are paid by the pope. He is the only person in the Vatican who gets no salary, but simply food and lodging, and although he has complete control of immense sums of money, his living expenses do not amount to more than a dollar a day.

Pius X during the time he was a priest, bishop and cardinal, saved some money, and this now he is spending to keep his sisters near him in Rome. His brother Angelo is still a postman at LeGrezie, a village near Mantua, and his pay is half a dollar a day.

Joke of a Sultan.

The sultan of Turkey once played a joke at the expense of some medical experts at Constantinople. When the plague broke out in his capital the sultan asked if anything was known as to the cause. On being informed that it was to be found in the state of the drinking water, he called at once for six empty bottles, which he had filled in his presence, all from the same one of the palace wells, placed his own seal upon them, and then, without divulging their community of origin, handed all six to a prominent analyst. To his amazement the report sent in was that four of the samples contained plague microbes. The fifth was merely putrid water, and the sixth was quite pure. Abdul Hamid calmly shrugged his shoulders and kept his thoughts to himself.

The Rea of Suggestion.

Richard Mansfield once said that when he was a lad in London he often nearly starved. There was a certain bakeshop where he would go and feast upon the odors coming from the door. That boyhood notion gave him the idea of putting those lines in his play, "Beau Brummel," about "dining on the names of things"—a suggestion he used with powerful dramatic effect.

This idea of suggestion has done many a good deed. About ninety years ago a thirsty man walked up Wall street—I understand the habit of getting a thirst no longer prevails there, or maybe it is only the manner of allaying it—and pumped a tin cup full of water from his own well. "Not so good as I used to get from my father's well," or something to that effect he remarked to his wife. "A pretty idea for a song," said she, and so he sat down and in an hour wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Votaries of Church Bells.

The church bell has its votaries. Tennyson sang of "the mellow lin-lan-lone of the evening bells." And do you remember that experience of "Henry Ryecroft?" "I once passed a night in a little market town where I had arrived tired and went to bed early. I slept forthwith, but was presently awakened by I knew not what. In the darkness there sounded a sort of music, and, as my brain cleared, I was aware of the soft chiming of church bells. Why, what hour could it be? I struck a light and looked at my watch. Midnight. Then a glow came over me. 'We have heard the chimes at midnight, Master Shallow!' Never till then had I heard them. And the town in which I slept was Evesham, but a few miles from Stratford-on-Avon. What if those midnight bells had been to me but as any other and I had reviled them for breaking my sleep?"—London Chronicle.

Such Is Civilization.

When you come to reflect on it there are some odd things about our Canadian civilization.

We haul poor Chinamen into police court for playing a quiet game of fan tan, but we license racing clubs to do gambling on the wholesale, with the odds all against the player.

We prosecute the same Chink for pulling at an opium pipe while we share in the revenue derived from the sale of tobacco and whiskey to white men and women.

We have police who get after gypsies who read hands on vacant lots, but allow the same thing—or worse—to go on in parlours of houses in residential sections of our cities.

We prosecute a man who drives a lame horse, but allow deformed and suffering human creatures to be shown as curiosities at our fall fairs and circuses.

Some go to burlesque shows to see girl in tights, and then come out on the street and holler if we get a glimpse of a girl's ankle revealed by a slit skirt.

Some women wear one-piece bathing suits, and others, whose figures are not quite so fine, denounce the fashion.

Yes, when you come to think about it for a moment, we modern and civilised folks are a trifle inconsistent.

Overspecializing Specialists.

A technically trained engineer has constantly to combat a tendency toward narrowness of view point if he desires to cultivate a wide mental horizon. He has to avoid a complete absorption in detail to the exclusion of the larger relations of his work if he will advance along broad lines, and still he must not neglect details which are essential. The man with the capacity to see the unusual and the significant, the chap with imagination and enterprise enough to look at the relations of his own duties to the welfare of the concern as a whole is the one selected to go higher when the inevitable changes of industrial life come.

Overspecialization often leads to undue emphasis upon the importance of individual tasks in given departments, to a lack of interest outside immediately vital responsibilities; to long continued employment at stated compensation perhaps, and not seldom to final replacement before middle age is past by men with less experience in single grooves, but with better comprehension of interdepartmental relations and the ability to make effective use of men with limited ideas.—Power.

Brazil's Wonderful Tree.

The most marvelous tree in the world is the Carnahuba palm, which grows in Brazil. Its roots produce the same medicinal effect as sarsaparilla. From parts of the tree wine and vinegar are made. Its fruit is used for feeding cattle. Of the straw, hats, baskets, brooms and mats are made. It is also used for thatching houses. The pulp has an agreeable taste, and the nut is sometimes used as a substitute for coffee. Its stems afford strong, light fibers and serve also for joists, rafters and other building materials. It yields a saccharine substance, as well as a starch resembling sago. Of the wood of the stem musical instruments, water tubes and pumps are made. From the stem a white liquid similar to milk of the cocoanut may be extracted. Moreover, salt is extracted from the tree and likewise an alkali used in the manufacture of common soap.

Globular Lightning.

Professor Thomson says of this rare phenomenon, the reality of which has frequently been called in question that, after having been for a long time in doubt about it, his doubts have disappeared. The nearest he has ever come to observing a "lightning ball" was the hearing of its explosion. The ball itself was seen by a friend, who happened to be looking in the right direction when Professor Thomson himself was looking another way. No rational hypothesis, he says, exists to explain such a phenomenon, as there is nothing in the laboratory which closely resembles it. From descriptions the balls appear to vary from one inch to one foot in diameter. When they disappear there is usually an explosion, generally with slight damage. Some have been described as entering buildings and going out of a door or window.—London Spectator.

Reputation and Character.

Lawyer (examining jury)—Do you understand the difference between character and reputation?

Juror—Reputation is the name your neighbors give you; character is the one they take from you.

Perfectly Natural.

"I am not surprised. He never did have good table manners."

$710 WAS AMOUNT OF THANK OFFERING

The annual Thanksgiving meeting of the W. F. M. S. was held in St. Paul's Church yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance at the meeting and an interesting programme was conducted. A paper was read by Miss Dickson on "A Few Thoughts on Thanksgiving". Mrs. Dickson rendered a solo. A paper on "The Aim of Our Foreign Missionary Society" was read by Mrs. Pogue and Mrs. Mason gave a reading. The success of the meeting is shown by the offering of $710, which was the largest yet collected.

DIRECTORY OF OPPORTUNITIES.

It is a good plan to take the time to acquaint one's self with the opportunities that are presented through the Examiner Want Columns.

Keeping close track of the "Wants" means being in touch with chances that are well worth while.

Opportunities for employment, for renting, for selling, for buying, for exchanging—chances for investment—all are enumerated from time to time in the "Want" Columns of the EXAMINER.

WASN'T FASCINATED WHACK-THE GUTTY.

The relative merits of golf and of baseball were being discussed the other evening, when Franklin MacVeagh, former secretary of the treasury, told of Smith's experience in playing Scots plaid shinny.

Smith, according to the former secretary, had a friend who was an enthusiastic golfer. He was continually lauding the sport to the skies, and finally induced Smith to clutch a sheaf of clubs and accompany him to the golf links.

"Shake, old man!" delightedly cried another golfer, extending the fraternal claw on meeting Smith a few days later. "I knew you would come to it! I am certainly glad that you have joined the jubilee!"

"No more in mine," was the disappointed reply of Smith. "One afternoon churning up the west wind with a stove poker is enough for me."

"You don't know what you are missing, man," returned the other, with a pitying expression. "Golf is the greatest game on earth!"

"Game!" said Smith. "Golf isn't a game. It's simply a poor excuse for a long walk!"

Mrs. Billington Whipped Her Nine-Year-Old Niece With Tears In Her Eyes

Read the Bible to Her Occasionally---Judgment Reserved in Case of Mrs. Alice Billington Who Was Accused of Ill-treating Her Niece--Child's Body Showed Effects of Abusive Treatment--Cases in the Police Court This Morning.

Mrs. Alice Billington, who was accused of having caused grievous bodily harm to Edith Payne, a nine-year niece, appeared in police court this morning before Magistrate Dumble. Defendant pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried summarily. Mr. V. J. McElderry appeared for the defence and Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution. Mr. E. L. Goodwill was present in the interests of the Children's Aid Society, in whose custody the child was placed some days ago. A large number of witnesses were examined, at the conclusion of which judgment was reserved.

Concert in the House.

High County Constable Cochrane, local agent of the Children's Aid Society, received three telephone calls on Wednesday night last to the home of Mrs. Billington, 545 Sherbrooke Street. When he arirved at the house he found a concert going on in one portion of the house, and the little girl, upon whom it is said bodily harm was inflicted, washing dishes in the kitchen. The girl was known as Edith Payne and was said to be a niece of the defendant. The latter followed Mr. Cochrane into the room where the dish-washing operation was in progress. Witness asked the little girl if she had been hurt and received a reply in the affirmative. Witness then informed Mrs. Billington that he would remove the girl to the Shelter, which he did as soon as the necessary preparations were made.

Dr. Amys was called in to examine the girl upon her arrival at the Shelter. He observed a number of severe wounds on the girl's body, including a bad wound on the breast, extending under the right arm. The arms from the shoulder to the wrist also showed the effects of abusive treatment. The wrists showed marks indicating that they had been tied together. The wounds, which had been made recently, asserted witness, were made with an instrument about an inch or an inch and a quarter wide.

Struck With a Dipper.

Cross-examined by Crown Attorney Wood, witness described the treatment she received at the hands of her aunt. She had been despatched to the store on the Tuesday night previous to her removal to the Shelter, with strict injunction to hurry up, in lieu of which a whipping would be administered. Witness bared her arm in court, disclosing a number of abrasions. Witness swore that the whiping was administered on Wednesday morning, while she was tied to the bed. This was accomplished with the aid of a long strap. A stick and a dipper had been used on previous occasions. The latter was responsible for a severe wound sustained to the head. Witness described an incident which occurred last winter, when she was tied to the bed and a severe whipping administered. Witness on that occasion was forced to remain in bed from Tuesday until Friday owing to the severity of the treatment, combined with indisposition. Witness, who has resided with Mrs. Billington for about five years, could not recall the number of times that she had been whipped.

Medical Testimony.

The wounds were so numerous that Dr. Amys, who examined the girl following her removal to the Shelter, submitted his report in the form of notes. The skin on the childs body was very red and infected with blood, indicating severe wounds inflicted by some flexible apparatus. The skin was cut in some places and the blood was oozing out. The side of the left chest and left hip, left elbow and forearm showed the effects of the severe treatment. One inch wide marks were plainly visible on some parts of the body. An old scar an inch and a half in diameter was located on the breast.

To Crown Attorney Wood, Dr. Amys offered that the wounds evidenced very severe treatment. The wounds were distributed all over the body and constituted unreasonable treatment for a child of immature years.

Edith Payne, who was recalled, stated that the whipping was administered on the bare skin. The same strap as produced in court on a previous occasion was used. This Mr. Cochrane described as a breechin strap belonging to a set of harness.

Mrs. Lena Donaldson, a neighbour of Mrs. Billington's, was next called. She was not present on the night in question, but recalled previous instances when the child was beaten.

Mrs. Mary Watson gave similar evidence.

"The child has come to me within the past month and complained of ill-treatment," said Mrs. Sadie Harper. Witness referred to a severe wound on the child's head, said to have been caused by a dipper.

Evidence For Defence.

Mrs. Alice Billington, defendant in the case, was the next witness called. Witness stated that she was an aunt to the child by marriage and had occasion to whip the child several times. She had whipped her with tears in her eyes, and read the Bible to her. Witness always whipped the child with a strap or a gad off the tree. Witness admitted tying the child up on one occasion. She regarded the whipping as a cure for several of the bad habits, said to be possessed by the child. Mrs. Bilington said that when the child came to her from her former home, she was ridged from her ears to her heels.

"She was obedient?" thundered Mr. Wood.

"Not always," replied witness.

"You set the child to washing all the dishes?"

"I helped her."

"That was a sample of her obedience?"

"Yes."

"On a good many occasions you whipped her severely?"

"Yes, for lying and self abuse."

Witness swore that she was in court on a previous occasion and was instructed by the Magistrate to whip the child,

Counsel's Remarks.

Mr. McElderry, in submitting the case to the Court, held that very deplorable conditions existed in respect to the case. He inferred that the defendant might have been animated by a religious mania for the child's welfare and asked the Court to consider that fact.

His Worship in reserving judgment, ordered that the child be delivered to the Children's Aid Society. "The Court," he said, "was slow to interfere in the claimed authority of a parent in the government of a child. He affirmed that the woman showed lack of judgment and discretion in the government of the child in question.

Fined $10.75.

William Lavery was mulcted to the extent of $10.75. He was convicted on two charges, one of being in an intoxicated condition while in charge of a horse and vehicle, and another charge of cruelty to a horse belonging to Dr. Robinson, a local livery owner. Accused was fined $2 and costs on the first charge and $5 on the second indictment. Options of fifteen days in gaol were given in each instance. Lavery drove through the south end of the City yesterday afternoon in a manner that attracted the attention of Andrew Forest. The latter made an attempt to stop the horse which Lavery was driving and had his foot run over as a consequence. The Police Department was then notified and Lavery's arrest followed. Forest swore that the horse was being driven at a pace of about fifteen miles an hour. This Lavery denied, claiming that the animal was incapable of travelling ten miles an hour. An employee of the Livery testified to the condition of the animal when it was returned to the stable.

One side of the horse was covered with ridges, caused by a generous application of the whip.

Pleaded Guilty.

"I'd sooner go to gaol than go back to Toronto," asserted James Corbett, who was charged with trespassing on the property of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Corbett entered a plea of guilty and was fined $2.00. Corbett has a brother in Toronto who is willing to pay the accused's fare to the Queen City. The latter declined to accept this offer and preferred the sentence of the Court. I think you had better go home to your mammy" suggested Magistrate Dumble as he imposed the fine.

160 PUPILS ON THE ROLL AT MAY'S SCHOOL

New Orange Hall Nearing Completion and a Number of Houses Are Under Erection—Suburb is Growing

A visit to May's Corners, in North Monaghan, just outside the City, shows considerable real estate interest and a general development of this settlement. It is on the southerly outskirts of Byersville and is rapidly filling up.

Among the new buildings is a new Orange Hall on Lansdowne Street, almost opposite the new school. The hall is a fairly large one and it is said to anticipate the formation of a lodge in that neighbourhood. The exterior work of the building is well advanced and the whole building, it is said, will soon be ready for occupation. Mr. Edward McGregor is the contractor.

Mr. Richard Evans and Mr. Geo. May are building houses on Lansdowne Street, outside the City limits.

The new school has 162 pupils and the present accommodation is reported to be taxed to the utmost. There are two roms still to be equipped, but it is not expected that this step will be necessary this term.

The attendance of so many children indicates the growth of the section, and it is admitted that the enlargement was made none too soon.

BAPTIST CONVENTION ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The twenty-fifth annual convention of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec will begin in the Murray Street Baptist Church on Wednesday evening next, at 8 o'clock. It will be interesting to note that the sessions are open to the public, who will be well repaid for attendance, for many important subjects of common concern to Christians of all denominations will be discussed by men of unusual eminence both clerical and lay.

ELECTRICAL EXPERT WILL BE SENT TO PETERBOROUGH

Dominion Railway Board Considered the City's Request That C. P. R. Telegraph Company Be Compelled to Remove Three Telegraph Poles From George Street.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—The request for an order from the City of Peterborough compelling the C.P.R. Telegraph Co. to remove three telegraph poles from George street, which interfere with the new paving was considered and left standing by the Dominion Railway Board to-day until the question is investigated more thoroughly.

Mr. Angus McMurchy, solicitor for the C.P.R., expressed their willingness to put the wires on the buildings if something more than a verbal consent could be obtained, but this was not forthcoming.

They objected to putting in small sections of their lines underground as this was extremely dangerous, but they were willing to consider a proposition to put their leads underground in the whole city. Otherwise it might be necessary to remove all their instruments to their station.

Mayor Bradburn and Solicitor Hall were not prepared to accept any alternative, and Chairman Drayton informed them that an electrical expert would be sent to investigate the difficulty.

"It will save you the cost of employing an electrical engineer," he remarked.

The construction of permanent pavements in some of the cities and towns of Ontario has resulted generally in a great deal of difficulty with the telephone and telegraph companies. Berlin's troubles, similar to those of Peterborough, were spiritedly discussed before the board only yesterday.

The C.P.R. to-day, before the Dominion Rialway Board, obtained permission to construct the tracks to the freight shed in the yards in Peterborough across King street, and are allowed to change the alignment and grade of the other tracks across the same street.

SORROWFUL SCENES ARE WITNESSED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 13.—The offices of the Uranium Line here was crowded with Russian and Polish Jews when the wireless messages from the rescue ships, containing the names of survivors, were received this morning. When the lists were posted up there was an immediate rush to inspect the names. Moans of sorrow and exclamations of relief burst forth in a babel of tongues as the watchers learned of loved ones saved or resigned themselves again to endure the tortures of hope deferred. On of the most pitiable cases was an intelligent young Russian Jew, Saintsky by name.

"Is there any word of mine betrothed, Ina Baltaska; she was coming to marry me?" he asked for the tenth time. As there was not he burst into the bitter wailing of his race. The story is told that the wireless operator of the "Volturno" dreamed a week before the tragedy that it would take place. He asked to be transferred, but was laughed at. He lost his life.

Captain Barr of the Carmania, refused to say a word about the Volturno until the Carmania reached Liverpool and he has delivered word to the Cunard Company, when the Carmania landed here this afternoon, the first vessel from the scene of disaster.

TO DESTROY THE HULK OF VOLTURNO

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 13.—The British Cruiser "Donegal" was to-day despatched by the British Admiralty to find and destroy the burning hulk of the "Volturno," which is regarded here as a serious menace to navigation. Owing to the fierce gales on the west coast of Britain, the steamer "Carmania," with the survivors and the complete story of the ill-fated "Volturno" aboard was unable to land at Queenstown, Ireland, as expected. She is proceding to Fishguard, from whence the news and a list of the survivors is eagerly waited.

MAY BE AN EARLY SESSION OF HOUSE

Special to the "Examiner."

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—It is rumoured here that the Government victory in Chateauguay may induce them to bring on an early session in November. The report here is to the effect that Parliament will be reassembled on the third Thursday of November, but there is no confirmation. The Government has not made up its mind yet.

CHILD SETS FIRE TO A HOUSE

Examiner Special:

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 13.—Charles Agar, aged 2 years, set fire to his father's frame house, and was burned to death in the flames, which totally destroyed the house, to-day. Five other small children were saved.

YOUNG MAN ATTAINS HIGH K. C. POSITION

Mr. J. H. Quinlan Has Been Elected Grand Knight of the Prince Albert Council of the Knights of Columbus

Mr. J. Harry Quinlan of the Prince Albert, Sask., branch of the Bank of Ottawa, and formerly of the Peterborough branch, has been elected Grand Knight of the Prince Albert Council of the Knights of Columbus. Mr. Quinlan has been unusually honoured in this respect, for it is not often that the position of Grand Knights is conferred upon a man so young in years. His appointment is an indication that he has made many friends since leaving Peterborough. Mr. Quinlan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Quinlan, Charlotte Street.

Transfer Of Liquor License

Referred to in the Pulpit by Rev. Mr. Pogue of St. Paul's Church

Rev. R. Pogue, Pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, made pulpit reference yesterday to a petition that is being circulated throughout the City in support of a license transfer that is awaiting the decision of the License Comissioners. Mr. Pogue contended that the license in question, if transferred, will enable the holder to transact a much larger business. It was upon these grounds that the proposed transfer was objected to. Rev. Mr. Pogue contended that anyone who signed the petition would, in an indirect way, be contributing to the growth of the liquor traffic, and the evils incidental to it. He advised those who had already signed the document to reconsider their action.

$30,000 Blaze At Parkdale

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Oct. 13.— The freight sheds at Parkdale, and fourteen box cars were burned this afternoon in a fire with mysterious origin, which did thirty thousand dollars damage.

C. P. R. MAY DOUBLE TRACK THROUGH CITY

The intention of the Canadian Pacific Railway to double track its main line running out of Toronto in the direction of Montreal via Peterborough is indicated in a number of aplications for grade crossings, which will be considered by the Board of Railway Commissioners at a hearing to be commenced at the City Hall, Toronto, to-day. Several matters of importance to Toronto are set for hearing by the board. The revised route of the Canadian Northern Railway across the north part of the city is filed for approval, and the desire of the Grand Trunk Railway to install seven additional tracks across Spadina Avenue at grade to its new round-house will be further discussed.

A complaint will be heard from Sam Sharpe, M.P., and the municipalities of Campbellford, Hastings, Stirling and others regarding the train service of the Grand Trunk Railway between Toronto and Peterborough.

SPECIAL OFFERING

Of Ranges and Heaters by Campbell & Best

The attention of our readers is directed to-day and during the week to Campbell & Best's display advertisement of ranges and heaters, which will be found on another page. This very special offering should prove of great interest to the thrifty buyer just at this time. Coming as it does at the very beginning of the season, when many housekeepers are debating as to the advisability of buying a new stove, or of making the old one do for another year," it should assist very materially in making the decision an easy one. The well known high standard of the ranges and heaters handled by this firm should also be a determining afteor in making this week's sale a memorable one, from the standpoint of both seller and buyer.

CHATEAUGUAY.

It is to be regretted that Hon. Sidney Fisher, the Liberal candidate, has been defeated in the Chateauguay by-election; but it is a matter of congratulation that he waged a clean, honourable campaign, something that cannot be said of the methods employed on behalf of his opponent, who under the circumstances has less to be proud of than the man he has technically, but not morally —rather, immorally—defeated. The more victories Mr. Borden has of this kind the nearer he is to defeat. There is patent public evidence that Mr. Borden's candidate and his associates declined to contest the election on public and political issues. There is less public, but incontestably abundant, evidence that the most flagrant and vicious methods of corrupting the electorate were pursued; that bribery so universal as to escape secrecy was used to win the cause of Mr. Borden's candidate. The buncaneering modes employed on behalf of Mr. Borden in by-elections, of which he cannot be ignorant, involve so much national disgrace, and so imperil the public welfare, that Chateauguay election should, as it doubtless will be, made the occasion of an exhaustive investigation, before an election court, even if it shall require weeks to present the evidence of the corrupt methods employed to win the contest.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Examiner congratulates Mr. Robert Fair of the Golden Lion dry-goods establishment on the occasion of the completion of his thirtieth year in business in Peterborough. He is not only entitled to rank as a veteran in the business, but is entitled to credit for the quality of his business methods that have won him success. He has not only been conspicuous as an enterprising, sound, steady-going business man of high character, but as a public spirited citizen, whose ambitions and abilities have not been entirely absorbed in the solution of the problem of business success. Genuine public spirit, the right recognition of the relations of business enterprise and civic progress, are what conduce to the up-building of a city The fact that an advanced and progressive community makes for the good of business justifies the recognition by the true business man of his double responsibility. Mr. Fair's relations to the press have been another distinguishing feature of his enterprise and success. For the past thirty years The Examiner has carried Mr. Fair's advertisement, and whatever share it has, in this regard contributed to his success, has been compensated by the share he has contributed to the civic progress whose extent, has with the cooperation of other merchants and business men, amplified and strengthened the constituency to which the press must look for its substantial support. The Examiner congratulates Mr. Fair on the occasion of his thirtieth business birthday, and hopes the success and credit he has won in the past, may be continued in amplified measure for many years to come.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Though it may be high treason to suggest such an idea, there is a noticeable political similarity between Canada and the United States. Within the past two years both countries have changed political complexion, but there the similarity fails. Both changes hinged upon economical policy, and both changes were practically brought about by the respective appellants to popular support. Both changes were founded on specific promises. In one case they have been largely fulfilled, in the other they have been neglected, or ignored, or broken. It is two years since the Conservative party and the Nationalists combined to defeat the reciprocity proposals, based on a general demand for wider markets and lessened cost of living. Yet, not a step has been taken in substitution of the defeat of an arrangement that would have helped the attainment of both desiderata. True, Mr. Foster, the Minister of Trade and Commerce, has negotiated the West Indian treaty, but the value of this is lessened by the inadequate provision for making it effective. True, Mr. Foster has spent months in circumnavigating the globe in an alleged effort to widen the Canadian market—with the other side of the world — while we have a natural market at our very doors, with which under barbaric tariff conditions, we do a trade of more than 300 million dollars a year, one-third of our total trade. Yet, all that Mr. Foster has done is to see things. He has come home to lecture upon all he apparently got in is long tour—"Glimpses of the East". So far as helping Canadian producers and consumers to respectively larger markets and reduced cost of living the record of the Borden Government, in its two years of office, is a blank.

During the same period a new government has been given the United States, and its head has carried out the Liberal doctrine of keeping pre-election promises. The Democratic party promised tariff revision in the interests of the people and at the first opportunity they have kept their word—the reduction of tariff being specifically upon the articles entering into the food and living supply of the people. Cattle, sheep, swine, coal, fish, leather, boots and shoes, harness and agricultural implements, cream, milk, eggs, bacon and all kinds of fresh and smoked meats from being taxed more than 25 per cent. have become absolutely free. So far as taxation is conducive to the high cost of living and its potency to this end is undeniable, as we in Canada know to our cost, the United States consumer is entirely free from this influence, with a free schedule in nearly all the articles that enter into the living requirements of the people.

In the matter of nearly all its pre-election promises the Borden Government has failed. It has not even been true to its own supporters. Many deluded Ontario electors followed the furiously flapped flag to the polls in the interests of returning the Borden Government, which was to be a bulwark and support to the considerations dear to the ultra-loyal and ultra-Protestant heart. They have been deceived. They have seen the Borden Government form a political alliance with the only disloyal and anti-imperial element in Canada—the Nationalists; they have had to see three of the most important portfolios of His Majesty's ministers put into the hands of Nationalists with the same anti-British, anti-imperial sentiments as the man made deputy-speaker, who boasted that his compatriots owed little to the flag through which they had "had to shoot holes to breathe the air of liberty." This is what the devotees of the flag have got—it was not what they voted for. One cannot be astonished that Mr. Borden and his colleagues have not kept their promises to the country; they have not kept faith with their friends—they have betrayed and disappointed those who placed them in power, whose meek submission to outrage, however argues less for their fidelity to principle than to party.

A LOGICAL SEQUENCE.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association preaches and pays for a policy declaring that manufacturing industries cannot be developed under free competition. This means that we must have a protective tariff at the Great Lakes to fence out the "cheap labour" products of Eastern Canada before we can have any factories in the Prairie Provinces. The Grain Growers, however, are opposed to this policy of splitting up Canada. They would remove the tariff entirely and make the cost of production so cheap for legitimate industries that foreign competition would be impossible. That is the policy every good business man follows in his own business. Civilization has now advanced to the stage where common sense should be applied in national business affairs.—Grain Growers' Guide.

A PROFITLESS JOB.

Two patrons of a noted Ontario creamery, both members of a cow testing association, at the end of last year had these records to study. Mr. A. milking eight cows, sent a total of only 1,360 pounds of fat. Mr. B. with only five cows, sent 1,777 pounds.

Dairymen in other sections are invited to consider what this means. A. had three cows more than B. to milk and feed all year, but received a smaller income than B. by quite ninety dollars. Nor is that all, for the three extra cows consumed feed worth at least ninety dollars more, making another ninety dollars that he was "out."

But one step further: A. worked hard milking those three extra cows, spending probably 200 hours more than B. on a thankless and profitless job. The cows were worth something as an investment, but it is doubtful if they returned any interest on it; some allowance should be made for depreciation even of this wonderfully inefficient cow "plant"; then stable accommodation had to be provided for them; and the general care of the herd called for some expenditure of thought and skill on the part of A. as general manager of his establishment.

The deductions are plain; however comforting a "guess" may be as to whether a cow, or a herd "pays," there is nothing to take the place of actual dairy records. Further, whatever the production of a herd may be, comparisons with other annual records should be made in order to see if improvement is possible.— Dairy Department.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER IN CHATEAUGUAY.

The veteran Liberal leader has spent more time in the Chateauguay campaign than he is usually able to give to a single constituency. This has been made possible by the holding of the bye-elections on different days, and it has been made advisable on account of the sinister influences at work to defeat the Hon. Sydney Fisher. Money in abundance and liquor in profusion have been taken into the county and to-day will prove whether the loose fish among the electors of Chateauguay are capable of resisting the two-fold inducements to prostitute themselves and mar the splendid Liberal record of nearly half a century.

As usual Sir Wilfrid has found himself under the necessity of calling public attention to the assaults made upon him because of his race and his religion. One feel sconstrained to ask, with a sense of humiliation, whether the time will ever come when men will by common consent and with common decency leave these two subjects out of political discussions in Canada. The Liberal leader was able to tell the electors of Chateauguay that when, against his own judgment and his own wish, he was chosen leader of the Liberal party in 1887 the great majority of that party was made up of English-speaking Protestants, some of them having seen much longer service than he had. They unanimously insisted on his acceptance of the trust, promising him their united and hearty support. And nobly has that promise been fulfilled. A whole generation of Liberal Parliamentarians has come and gone, and he has never had any reason to complain of lukewarmness on the part of his followers any more than they had occasion to charge him with incompetence or ineptitude. He led the party for ten years in opposition, and for fifteen years in office before his defeat in 1911, with a skill, a good fortune, and a magnanimity unprecedented and unparalleled in the history of Canada. No wonder the French-Canadians are proud of such a record; no wonder the English-speaking Canadians vie with them in their appreciation of their common leader.

It is a common assertion that the Liberals were defeated in 1911 by the reciprocity agreement. Every well-informed observer of current events knows better. They were defeated partly by a disgraceful alliance between the English-speaking Conservatives and the French-Canadian Nationalists, and partly by an expenditure of money more lavish than had ever before taken place in this country. The alliance referred to still subsists, as shown by the fact that there are three Nationalist members in the Borden Ministry. The managers of the eelction campaign in 1911 had all the money they needed, and they have enough of it left for use in seeking to debauch in turn Chateauguay. East Middlesex, and South Bruce. The day of retribution, as Sir Wilfrid assured the electors of Chateauguay, will come whatever the result of the election there; but it will come all the sooner if these three fine constituencies will spurn the Western freebooter and his diabolism when they have a chance.—Globe.

TRIAL NOW A FARCE.

Bellias Prosecutors at Kiev Use Perjury to Convict.

KIEV, Oct. 13.—The first session in the trial of Mendel Beilias, charged with the murder of the boy Jshinsky, occurred toward the end of the sitting Saturday night, when a woman witness directly charged the notorious Vera Tchaberlik with trying to induce a boy witness to perjure himself and give false testimony against Beilias.

The witness swore that on the first day of the trial, while in the witness-room, she heard Vera Tchaberlik instructing the boy to say that when Eugene Tchaberlik and Ushinsky were at play in a brick field Beiless chased them, seized Ushinsky and dragged him away.

The boy refused to give such testimony, saying that he would testify to the contrary, and would tell the court what Vera had said to him. The witness declared that six other witnesses could corroborate her statement.

Several policemen testified to the finding of the body of the murdered boy in the cave, but showed lack of memory when pressed for details, or asked to reconcile their ovidence with their statements made at the preliminary examination.

One of the policemen, Leatchinsko by name, was unable to identify a piece of cloth eighteen inches by six, pierced in places as though by a sharp instrument, as having been cut from the murdered boy's clothing.

A newspaper writer, Ordinsky, gave an account of a meeting in a restaurant between several newspaper men, a former detective named Vigravoff and Vera Tchaberlik, the alleged leader of a band of thieves, who were reported in some quarters have murdered Ushinsky for the purpose of causing a "pogrom" in Kiev. He heard Vera state that Ushinsky had been killed by relatives. "No one present," he said, "endeavored to persuade Vera to assume the guilt."

DEPUTY STEPS OUT

Frank Pedley Resigns From Indian Affairs Department

LAND DEAL WAS CRITICIZED

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—It is officially announced that Frank Pedley, deputy superintendent-general of Indian Affairs since 1902, has resigned, and that Duncan Campbell Scott has been appointed to succeed him. The salary connected with the position is $5,000 a year.

Investigations have been under way for some time into the administration of Indian lands, and the reports made to the present Minister of the Interior, who is superintendent of Indian affairs, would indicate that officials in the service were interested in a syndicate which purchased certain Indian reserves which they had in charge.

Mr. Pedley has been deputy head of the Indian Department for many years and was subjected to severe criticism five years by George H. Bradbury, M.P. for Selkirk, and other Conservative member in connection with the surrender of the Indians of their title to the St. Peter's Reserve, near Winnipeg.

Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, declined last evening to comment on the rumor that Mr. Pedley's resignation had any connection with the interior report recently filed with the Interior Department by Special Commissioner T. R. Ferguson.

Mr. Ferguson was appointed some time ago by the Dominion Government to inquire into the administration of the public domain for many years back.

The transaction occurred some twelve years ago before Mr. Pedley was connected with the Indian Lands Department and when Mr. I. A. Smart was deputy minister of the interior. It is charged that the lands were sold to a syndicate which shortly after sold them at a profit of $80,000. There is no charge of dishonesty against any one, but it is believed that by greater vigilance, a better price might have been obtained.

Duncan Campbell Scott, a son of Rev. William Scott, was born on August 2, 1862. He was educated in a Canadian common school and Stanstead College. In 1879 he entered the Canadian civil service and in 1893 he was appointed chief accountant in the development of Indian affairs, which position he held until the present time. Mr. Scott is a well-known Canadian poet, who has been for many years in the Indian Department, and his promotion is well deserved.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Rumors are current and appear to be well-founded that the C.P.R. is going to make Woodstock an important divisional point.

The commission of five doctors appointed to examine into the sanity of George Smith, alleged bigamist, in jail at St. Thomas, pronounce him sane.

Five Chatham youths were arrested on a Pere Marquette train Saturday on suspicion of being implicated in the burglary at the Dresden Fair on Friday.

Timothy L. Woodruff, former Lieutenant-Governor of New York State, died last night. He had lain in a critical condition for nearly two weeks after a paralytic stroke.

Word was received last night of the death, at Uxbridge Saturday of Anson Button, in his 93rd year. Mr. Button was one of the best known men in Uxbridge and vicinity.

The fainting of a woman in a crowded synagogue at Chodorow, Galicia, caused a great panic. Hundreds of women, rushed to the doors and sixteen of them were crushed to death.

Three-year-old Elsie Sawdon, 65 Sydenham street, Toronto, is now at the Hospital for Sick Children, as the result of drinking liniment which was composed chiefly of carbolic acid. She will recover.

A party of suffragettes disturbed the service in St. Paul's Cathedral in London yesterday. They persisted in chanting appeals to the Almighty for their "sisters being tortured by forcible feeding in Holloway Jail."

Prince William Friedrich of Wied decided to-day to accept the nomination to the throne of the independent state of Albania, after he had had an interview with King Charles of Roumania, according to a special despatch from Bucharest.

An earth shock, accompanied by distant rumblings, was felt in Messina yesterday. The disturbance lasted about ten seconds. It caused considerable alarm, but no serious damage. The frequency of the shocks keeps the inhabitants in constant anxiety.

"THE MEDIATOR"

By ROY NORTON

"Do you happen," he asked, "to know a woman by the name of Marthy Higgins? Widder she is, or just the same, because she and Higgins didn't get along none."

Holliday frowned thoughtfully at a stuffed owl that was the chief decoration of his bar, and took a long time to answer.

"Nope," he replied; "I don't know as I know her. She don't never drink in my place.

Lish hastened to give her character.

"Oh, she's a real teetot'ler," he declared. "Leastwise, that's what Hig gave me to believe. She's not a drinker. She's a cook. Yes, siree. She cooks at some place called Canady Hill Mine."

"Likely-lookin' old girl? Kind of a blonde, with weepy eyes, about fifteen hands high?"

"Never saw her."

"Well, there's some sort of a she-woman up there cookin'. Makes the best dried-apple pies anybody's ever made, so old Channel Smith told me. He's minin' up near there, and he ain't never forgotten his early trainin'. He was from away down East, Chanel was, and the way he hankers for apple pie is somethin' awful. Pore old Channel! Been burrowin' into the hill up there for more'n forty years, expectin' to find an ancient river bed that'll be solid gold. Never spends no money except for apple pie."

He shook his head sadly, and Lish thought perhaps it was because he regretted the frailty of pie expenditure when the money might have been more virtuously squandered in the Happy Home. He arose to the defence of Channel Smith.

"Can't see as he ain't got a right to spend his money on pie," he began, "if his taste—"

There was a sudden commotion outside the door. Growls, howls, whines and barks blended into a mad crescendo of sound. He rushed to the door, and looked out; to discover a lively dog fight in progress, with two combative mongrels snapping and tearing in an excited ball that bounded backward and forward over a ten-foot space. The whole camp appeared to have awakened to the occasion, and doorways were filled with men who hilariously enjoyed the entertainment. Some of them were hastening for a closer view, and by shout and hisses encouraging the combatants.

Lish ran out and tried to separate the animals. He reached down to get one of the dogs by the legs, but lost his footing, and fell forward. The dogs fought farther away, and out toward the end of the trough, where the pack burros stood watching them with an interest scarcely less than that of the townsmen. The burro, Jack, laid back his ears as they came toward him, suddenly switched his hind quarters, and landed a vicious double-heeled kick on the fighters that lifted them into the air like a rocket, and parted them most effectively. They landed on their feet in agony of surprise, and, yelping the complaint of their injuries to the heavens, bolted madly away in opposite directions.

"Now you see what you done!" exclaimed an angry voice behind the prospector, who turned to discover a burly, red-faced, angry individual frowning at him. "One of them was my dog. He goes to lick another dog, and you butt in. It wa'n't none of your business! Then you shove 'em over till the mule of your'n, bein' as big a fool as his boss, lams 'em with his heels. For two cents I'd kick you twice as hard!"

The crowd had closed up in the pleased expectation that a man fight would satisfy the unfilled longings for a dog fight, and evidently they regarded the outcome as certain, much to the disparagement of the newcomer.

"Pshaw, pardner, you don't want to feel that way about it," remonstrated Lish. "I don't like fightin' of any kind. Most of of all I hates to see poor dumb brutes tear at each other just because they don't know better. Why, man! You don't mean to say you believe in fightin', do you?"

The almost plaintive drawl of his voice appeared to aggravate the owner of the dog to further anger, for he shook his fist under the sun-burned nose of Lish, and threatened to grasp that unoffending protuberance between his hard fingers and twist it.

"That's got nothin' to do with it! If you hadn't gone and tried to grab my dog's legs he'd made sausage outen that other hound in just three shakes of a lamb's tail.'

The prospector's hands were still at his sides, and apparently he proposed to adhere to a line of pacification.

"Jack and me's just alike," he drawled calmly. "We dont believe in quarrelin'. He just naturally had to do all he could to keep the peace, and that was his way of doin' it."

Some of the crowd began to jeer the advocate of peace, and indulge in camp witticisms at his lack of spirit; but he stood unmoved, while the owner of the dog, emboldened by his attitude, or perhaps longing for a clash, called him all the names in his vocabulary, thereby proving that his selection of epithets was remarkably ugly.

"Take a wallop at him, Bill," advised one of the bystanders, addressing the belligerent one, and at the same time nudging the man nearest him, who grinned hopefully.

"No, don't do that, Bill," objected Holliday, who stood on the vantage ground of the steps of the Happy Home. "Let him alone."

The man called Bill turned around to address a few pithy remarks to Holliday; and, taking advantage of the lull, Lish steped out to the open space beside the burros. He noticed that the hitch on the older animal threatened to become loosened, and started to tighten it. Just then Bill, loath to let his meek prey escape so easily, stepped around the end of the trough and hauled off and kicked the wondering Jack.

"Take that for kickin' my dog!" he shouted, as the burro, unused to such roughness, shied violently to one side. And then the loungers lost sight of the burros in what followed.

The advocate of peace catapulted through the air like a bomb fired out o fa Fourth of July mortar. He appeared to leave the ground in his progress, and soar upward in order to land his full weight against the prominent red jaw of the man called Bill. He came so hard that the spat of his impact sounded like a snap of a whip, and his rapidity was something so remarkable that Bill had no time to lift his hands for defence; yet, so big was his bark, that he did not fall, but reeled backward trying to recover his dazed, astonished wits, and gather himself for hit own protection.

Even this proved a futile hope, for so amazing was the quickness of the newcomer, that before he could even poise himself he was struck twice more, with bone-breaking, heavy, nerce, agonizing blows that drove him back like a meal sack battered by the onrush of a practicing goat. His legs showed signs of weakness, his knees seemed to have lost their support, and his body began to sag groundward, but that did not mitigate his punishment, for the prospector poised himself with professional proficiency on his feet, appeared to calculate his distance, time his blow, and carefully aim it, and then, quite deliberately but firmly, landed it deftly on the unprotected chin.

The big man's hands flew upward, and nothing but the fact that he was already half down prevented him from striking on the back of his head as he took the ground, a limply, sprawling mass of brawn and bone.

The crowd in sheer bewilderment gave suppressed but excited exclamations. There was a moment's stillness, in which time the newcomer stared at his prostrate tormentor as if to satisfy himself that his part of his task was over, and then looked up at them.

THOUGHT IT WAS CANCER OF STOMACH

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., JAN. 25th, 1910

"For many years, I suffered torture from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited food constantly and lost 25 pounds in weight. I was afraid the disease was Cancer.

I read about "Fruit-a-tives" and the wonderful cures this fruit medicine was making, and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say "Fruit-a-tives" has cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say "Thank God for "Fruit-a-tives"

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment.

Mrs. Clements, 13 Strange Street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. It worked like magic and proved a God-send to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

"BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER"

Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves. Thinness of the blood, or anaemia, is common in young ladies as well as all. Especially is it the case with those who work in the confined factories or those who are shut up indoors in other kind with a cold blood, or the poisons of the system, or enfeebling carbonic (acids) gas. This blood, or lack of good blood, may be traced to some in anaemic people they have been caused by lack of good fresh air breathed into lungs, or by poor digestion or dyspepsia. Sometimes recently suffer intense pain over the heart which is most likely caused by indigestion. Whatever the cause, there's just one thing sure that you can trust to—Something that it has given satisfaction for over 40 years.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

is a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It then assists the body to manufacture rich red blood which feeds the nerves—nourishes every organ of the body. The poisons which cause all the blood and nerve troubles are then fast driven out of the body. Thus you feel clean, strong and healthy. Don't accept a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." You can obtain Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery Tablets, as well as the liquid, from druggists, or send 50 cents for trial box by mail, prepaid to R. V. or Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BACKACHE A WARNING YOU SHOULD HEED

It is One of Nature's First Signs of Kidney Troubles, if Neglected, Serious Diseases May Follow.

When the kidneys are clogged up and inactive, nature has a way of warning you.

Backache is one of the first symptoms. You may also be troubled with disagreeable, annoying bladder disorders; have attacks of lumbago or rheumatism; become nervous, tired and feel all worn out; puffy swellings show under the eyes or in the feet and ankles; and many other symptoms are noticed. If they are neglected, dropsy, diabetes, or Bright's Disease, which so often prove fatal, may result.

It is not only dangerous, but needless for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, when a little Croxone now will quickly and surely end all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for all such troubles than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the clogged up pores; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter and sift the poison out of the blood and drive it from the system.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to end the worst backache, relieve rheumatic pains, or overcome urinary disorders.

A RECEPTION AT GEORGE ST. CHURCH

Rev. Mr. Peever and Mrs. Peever Honoured by the Congregation

The Rev. and Mrs. R. G. Peever were honoured Friday night by the congregation of the George Street Church, when a reception was held for them in the lecture room of the Church.

Over four hundred guests attended during the evening. These were introduced to Mr. and Mrs. Peever by a committee from the congregation, and were received by the former during the first part of the evening. The reception commenced at 8 o'clock, and when it was nearly nine, the chairman, Mr. D. W. Dumble, called the gathering to order, and the programme was presented. This was thoroughly enjoyed, the musical numbers being of the highest order. Brief addresses of welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Peever were given by Mr. D. W. Dumble the Rev. C. N. Clarry of St. James Church, the Rev. C. C. Cragg of Mark Street Church, and the Rev. T. J. Mansell, of Charlotte Street Church.

After the programme, dainty refreshments were served in the class rooms. These had been prepared by the ladies of the congregation and were voted delicious by the guests.

The room was very prettily decorated in red and white for the occasion. The ladies, who undertook this, effected a pleasing transformation of the spacious room. Sabria and bouquets of red cannas figured prominently in the decorations.

The programme, most successfully rendered during the evening, was as follows:

Selection—S. S. orchestra.
Chairman's address—D. W. Dumble.
Violin solo—Miss Mignon Telgmann
Ladies' quartette—Mrs. C. Telford, Mrs. E. Telford, Miss Pearl McKee, Miss Roxie McKee.
Address—Rev. Mr. Clarry.
Selection—S. S. Orchestra.
Address—Rev. Mr. Cragg.
Solo—Mr. James Browne.
Address—Jev. Mr. Mansell.
Address—Rev. Mr. Peever.
Solo—Mrs. Renwick.
Selection—S. S. Orchestra.

MORRIS IS ELECTED

He Defeats Hon. Mr. Fisher in Chateauguay by 144 Votes

CORRUPTION WAS RAMPANT

ST. MARTINE, Que., Oct. 13.—Chateauguay county, which since confederation, 44 years ago, has been represented in Parliament by a Liberal, in the bye-election on Saturday elected James Morris, Conservative, a resident of the county, by a majority of 144 votes over Hon. Sydney Fisher of Brome.

The vote was probably the heaviest ever polled at a Dominion election, averaging at some of the polls upwards of 94 per cent. It is estimated that throughout the constituency over 80 per cent. of the electors on the voters' list cast their ballots.

At one poll in this of 127 on the list, all but four voted.

The successful candidate motored through three of the principal villages of the riding after the election, and in an interview here stated he believed the result an approbation of Premier Borden's naval policy and record.

"The race cry which was touched on by speakers for my opponent," he said, "had no effect whatever on my French-speaking friends, who form two-thirds of the population of the county. I consider the men accompanying Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who hurled insulting epithets right and left as well rebuked by the electors."

Mr. Fisher said he considered the election one of the most corrupt in his experience. For two weeks, he said, he had seen evidences of crookedness and thought he would be thoroughly justified in entering protest.

Sir Rodolphe Lemieux said: "The loss is all Chateauguay's and all Canada's."

Majorities by parishes:—

	Morris.	Fisher
St. Jean Chrysostome..	56	..
Chateauguay	19	..
Sturbain	..	13
Ste. Clothilde	..	20
Ormstown	1	..
St. Sacrament	2	..
St. Martine	39	..
St. Antoine L'Abbe...	3	..
St. Philomen	..	16
Aggregate majority..	198	49
Majority for Morris, 144.

The detailed vote by polls is not yet available, except in two or three instances. In three polls of Chateauguay parish, which even the Conservatives expected Mr. Fisher to carry by good majorities, Mr. Morris had a majority of 19, carrying Chateauguay basin and Woodlands respectively by 8 and 46, while Chateauguay village gave Mr. Fisher a majority of 5. In St. Martine at poll 19 Mr. Morris had a majority of 26 and at poll 20 a majority of 13.

PARTRIDGE SAID TO BE PLENTIFUL

The partridge season opens on Wednesday, Oct. 15th, and from various reports received, it is evident that the supply of this game is unusually large this Fall. Autoists skimming along the side roads in Smith, Douro and other townships have stated that the birds were out on the road in places and narrowly escaped the car's wheels. You can find partridge within five or six miles of the City if you know the right direction. If you are a lover of the sport, and know the warning "drumming" and whir of partridge wings, you will be out into the woods on the first opportunity.

Local Delayed By Spread Rail

The Lindsay G.T.R. local, due here this morning at 7.55, was detained two hours and forty-five minutes west of Beats' station. The cause of the delay was due to the rails being spread. No. 21, which leaves here at 8.20 a.m. for Lindsay, journeyed via Millbrook, thus escaping the damaged track. The rails were soon righted and traffic is again fully under way.

SHIPMENTS OF CATTLE LARGE

Buyers Have Been Busy and Number of Cattle Going Out Has Been Unusually Large

The number of cattle shipped from Peterborough and its vicinity during the past week probably set up a new mark in local shipments. At least, it is a long time since a similar activity was shown by drovers and farmers. Not only have the shipment from Peterborough been large, but Lakefield, Keene, Hastings, Fraserville, Indian River and other points have seen considerable activity, and men in the business state that it will continue for some time.

The price for heifers has fallen off practically a cent a pound since Saturday, an indication that they are not strong just at present. Steers are bringing a good price, however. Some of the drovers are shipping direct to Buffalo. It is practically impossible to secure figures showing the exact number of cattle shipped from this district, but it is a larger number than the average man would expect, and is an indication of the effect of the new market. It was stated to-day that Mr. H. P. Kennedy recenly secured an order for sixty cars of cattle for Pennsylvania. Messrs. John F. and Wesley Thornton and Messrs. Morris and Brown have been making the most of the new demand and their shipments have been unusually heavy.

BISHOP O'BRIEN VISITS THE CHURCH OF SACRED HEART

The second Pontifical mass celebrated in the Church of the Sacred Heart was sung on Sunday morning at 10.30 mass by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien. The previous Pontifical mass was celebrated by the late Bishop O'Connor upon the occasion of the formal opening of the Church. Bishop O'Brien was assisted by Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien, as deacon, Rev. Father McAuley, sub-deacon, and Rev. Dean McColl as priest of honour.

In the evening Pontifical vespers were sung by His Lordship, assisted by Rev. Father Meagher as deacon, and Rev. Father McAuley as sub-deacon. The pastor, Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien, gave benediction. In the evening Bishop O'Brien preached his first sermon since his consecration. The Church was crowded, and His Lordship signalised his return to the pulpit which he formerly occupied as Pastor with an eloquent sermon on "The Blessed Virgin. Why We Should Honour Her." His Lordship pointed out that God had chosen Mary to be the mother of His Divine Son, thereby bestowing upon her an honour which mankind could not duplicate, and at the same time indicated the reverence and honour which man should show the Mother of the Son, the mother of the Redeemer of mankind.

CHRONIC COLDS

Are Contracted by Changeable Weather. A Simple Remedy.

Sudden changes are particularly trying for old people or those who suffer from a weakened, run-down condition, chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, but if such persons would only apply common sense methods in the treatment of their condition, much discomfort and suffering might be avoided.

The most essential thing to do is to build up strength, enrich the blood, increase vital resistance and to accomplish this nothing equals Vinol, our cod liver and iron tonic.

Mrs. M. J. Grimes of Springfield, Ohio, says: "I was badly run-down, nervous and weak, and while in this condition I contracted a heavy cold and rheumatism. Vinol was recommended and I am happy to say it cured my cold and restored me to health again."

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds should try a bottle of Vinol. We will return your money if it doesn ot help you. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, Peterborough.

Said Farewell To Reverend Father Meagher

The following is from the Campbellford Times:

Rev. Father Meagher Transferred to St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough.

On Friday evening a very pleasant function took place in St. Mary's Club rooms, Front street, when the members of St. Mary's congregation assembled together to make a presentation and farewell address in order to mark their appreciation of Rev. Father Meagher, and the services he rendered them during his curacy here. On the motion of Mr. P. J. Anderson, seconded by Mr. John O'Sullivan, Mr. D. J. Lynch was appointed chairman of the evening.

The following musical programme was rendered:

I—Instrumental Selections — Miss Marguerite Anderson.

II—Solo—"Mother Machree," Miss Henrietta Heenan.

III—Instrumental Solo—Mandolinette, Miss Margaret McManaman.

IV—Solo—"Ireland I Love You," Miss Annie Meagher.

When the musical programme had concluded Mr. D. J. Lynch, on behalf of the congregation, read the following address:

To Reverend Father Meagher, Campbellford, Ontario.

Reverend Father,—The members of Branch No. 98 of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, and the parishioners of Saint Mary's Church of this town, take this opportunity of expressing to you our deep sorrow for the conditions that oblige you at the call of your Ecclesiastical Superiors to sever your relations with us.

Though your stay in our parish has been of comparatively short duration it has been long enough to create a bond of love and affection between us.

Coming as you have come from the home of our forefathers we recognize in you the spirit of piety and the zeal that has ever characterized the priesthood of Ireland, so dear to the memory of her children so matter in what part of the world Providence may have placed them.

In conclusion permit us to present you with the accompanying testimonial which we trust you will accept as an earnest of the love and esteem in which you are held by us all.

Signed on behalf of the parishioners of Saint Mary's Church, Campbellford, and the members of Branch 98 of the C. M. B. A., this 10th day of October, A.D., 1913.

D. J. LYNCH,
JOHN O'SULLIVAN,
P. J. ANDERSON,
H. BLACK.

In thanking the people for the kindness extended to him not only that evening, but during his labours amongst them as priest, Father Meagher surpassed himself in the eloquence and sincerity of his words. The truism that there is no real eloquence except that which comes from the heart was well exemplified on this occasion. When Father Meagher had resumed his seat Rev. Father Whibbs, P.P., made a very happy speech in the course of which he extolled the many sterling qualities of Father Meagher, and the good work he had done since coming to Campbellford. He regretted very much his departure from amongst them, wished him every success, and assured him of a hearty welcome to Campbellford whenever he wished to visit the scene of his former labours. Father Meagher has been connected with St. Mary's Parish for the past year and a half and has endeared himself to his own and the non-Catholic people of Campbellford and expressions of regret are heard on all sides at his departure. Owing to a dearth of priests at St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was obliged to recall Rev. Father Meagher to a wider field of labour there. He left for his new duties on Saturday morning.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTEND FASHIONABLE WEDDING

Which Was Solemnized in Brantford on Wednesday Last

The following is taken from the Brantford Expositor of Oct. 8. A large andf ashionable wedding took place this afternoon at Zion Presbyterian Church, when Miss Mary Watt, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs Thomas Watt, became theb ride of Mr. Fred Popplewell. The ceremony, which took place at 3:30, was performed by the bride, assisted by the Rev. G. A. Woodside, pastor of the church.

Through arches of evergreens and yellow 'mums, the bridal party, headed by their little flower girls, little Miss Muriel Watt, niece of the bride, and Miss Margaret Watt, a cousin, fairy-like apparitions in their long frocks, black butterfly hats, coloured sashes and feeling gravely their responsibility, entered to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, played by Mr. David Wright, brother-in-law of the groom, and took their placesu ndera h uge floral bell.

The bride was given away by her father, and looked radiantly charming in her wedding gown of ivory Duchess satin, trimmed with Duchess lace, court train of brocade, lined with myriad rows of French laces, one corner being held back coquettishly with a lover's knot of orange blossoms and seed pearls. Her veil of lovely creation of fine French tulle, trimmed with seed pearls and embroidered in lover's knots, was held in place by a bandeau of rhinestones and peals, with trailers of orange blossoms falling over her fair young shoulders. To complete her costume she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids' dresses were of French crepe, effectively draped, the bodices of shirred net with bolero of shadow lace, and trimmed with lace butterflies and pearl tassels. Their novelty butterfly hats with streamers of black velvet giving a distinctive effect to their gowns. All carried huge bunches of yellow crysanthemums.

The maid of honour was Miss Margaret Gould, of Uxbridge, cousin of the bride, a petite brunette in buttercup yellow, the bridesmaids being Miss Alma Knapman, of Peterborough, cousin of the bride, and Miss Madeline Ward, of London, in Nile green. Miss Lottie Large, Brantford, and Miss Ann Burdon, of Toronto, gowned alike in buttercup yellow, and all wore the groom's gift of bar pins set with jewels to correspond with their individual costumes.

Mr. Hilton McKay performed the offices of best man, while the ushers were Messrs. Harvey and Thomas Watt, brothers of the bride; Mr. Howard Harris, Toronto, and Mr. Spencer Large, cousins of the groom, who received pearl tie pins. Dainty little beauty pins were presented to the flower girls, who also carried exquisite baskets of flowers. All through the beautiful marriage service the organ sang out sofely the strain of the benediction nuptiale, — exquisite bridal music. During the signing of the register Mrs. Joseph G. Watt of Virginia, Minn., sister-in-law of the bride, sang Woodforde Findenn's beautiful "Flower of All the World." The soloist was also presented with a bar pin, the gift of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 70 Alfred street, where Mr. and Mrs. Watt and Mrs. A. A. Popplewell, mother of the groom, received the guests.

The house was very prettily decorated with smilax, ropes of Cupids, hearts and bells, while the many beautiful gifts were arranged artistically on tables in the living room. The dejeuner was served in a marquee on the lawn and was very tastily arranged, the decoration corresponding with the bridal colours, white and silver.

The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace of pearls and aquamarines.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Popplewell will reside at 151 Brant avenue.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont. writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Double Wedding At Ennismore

Two very pretty weddings were celebrated at Ennismore on October 7th when the two youngest daughters of Mr. James Scollard were united in the holy bonds of matrimony—Miss Ettie to Mr. James Killen, and Miss Fanny to Mr. Patrick O'Connor. Both young men are residents of the township.

To the strains of the "Lohengrin" wedding march, played by Miss Agnes Scollard, the brides entered the church on the arms of their father, who gave them away.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, parish priest, who immediately afterwards celebrated mass for the happy couples, at which they were given the nuptial blessing and received Holy Communion.

During the offertory Mr. William Bell sang in excellent voice Bingham's Ave Maria.

At the signing of the register Miss Irene Delory of Toronto, sang very sweetly an O Salutaris.

Both brides were very modestly attired in neat and appropriate costumes. Miss Ettie's gown was of a pale blue satin, with over dress of embroidered chiffon, a white plush hat with blue French ostrich plume, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Fanny wore a pale yelow satin, with over dress of hand embroidered chiffon. She also wore a white plush hat with two shaded yellow French ostrich plumes, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

These two young ladies are among Ennismore's fair daughters, while their husbands are very highly respected and esteemed by the whole community.

Many friends accompanied them to the church to witness the sacred rite, and pray for their future happiness and prosperity.

All then repaired amidst the congratulations of those present to the home of the brides' father to partake of a sumptuous dinner there prepared for them.

The guests from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hoolihan, and little daughter, Eleanor, Grand Rapids, Minnesota. Mrs. Hoolihan wore white satin with over dress of black and white chiffon. County Auditor Spang, wife and boys, Grand Rapids, Minnesota; Mrs. Spang wore Alice blue satin with Bulgarian trimmings. Miss Irene Delory, cousin of the brides, from Toronto, wore gold satin with French tunic of chiffon embroidered in gold beads.

Miss Agnes Scollard, sister of the brides, Grand Rapid, Minn., wore pale blue satin, with Irish point lace, and pearl trimmings.

Both young couples will reside in Peterborough and will be at home to their friends after November 1st.

Twice Proven Cure for Nerves

Irritable, Hysterical, Sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restores Health.

There is a message in this letter for thousands of women who are suffering from broken-down nervous systems. Sleepless night, much irritability over little things, spells of dizziness and nervous sick headaches are among the symptoms.

You may not realise the nature of your ailment until nervous prostration comes upon you. But, in whatever stage you find yourself, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is ready to help you.

Mrs. W. J. May, 88 Annette Street, Toronto, writes: "Some years ago I suffered from nervous trouble, and took Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which completely cured me. About six months ago I received a shock which again shattered my nervous system to such an extent that I was irritable and hysterical, and could not sleep nights. I began to use the Nerve Food again and was not disappointed. Improvement was apparent from the first box, and now I am entirely well."

A PATHETIC COMMUNICATION

Peterborough Girl Supposed to Have Been Captured by White Slavers

Special to The Examiner:

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Oct. 11.—Police Chief Cadin, of Syracuse, received in his mail Friday afternoon a pathetic communication from Mrs. H. A. Jobe of 890 Park street, Peterborough, Ont., requesting him and the Syracuse police authorities to use their utmost efforts to locate her daughter, Hazel Jobe, aged 16, who has mysteriously disappeared from her home in Syracuse and who is believed to have been enticed away by white slavers. Chief Cadin is doing his best to secure some clue to the Peterborough girl's whereabouts.

REV. FATHER FITZPATRICK STAYS

It will give large pleasure to know that Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, parish priest of Enniskmore, has elected to stay with his old parishioners. To appreciate Bishop McNally's reference in the consecration sermon to Bishop O'Brien's giving his consent to a priest from his diocese being translated to Calgary, it is understood that Bishop O'Brien left the matter optional with the priest referred to, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick and it is no surprise that the latter has shown the amiable weakness of standing by his old friends. Whatever there may have been of temptation to accept the promotion involved in his going to Calgary, it was neutralized by the entreaties of his friends in the parish and elsewhere. They did not wish to lose so good a friend, who had done so much for the upbuilding of the parish and who had endeared himself by his personal and kindly qualities to every parishioner. Nor did his friends in the parish and those not of it, wish to lose his genial presence and valuable citizenship. When affection and appreciation were thrown into the scales against a natural ambition and undoubted preferment, the former sent the balance down and so Father Fitzpatrick stays with his old friends with whom it is hoped he will spend many happy and useful years.

ANNIVERSARY OF GILMOUR MEMORIAL CHURCH CELEBRATED

Anniversary services were held on Sunday at the Gilmour Memorial Church and were attended in the morning and evening by large crowds, the capacity of the Church being overtaxed. Rev. F. A. Conners, of the Park Street Baptist Church, preached at both services. His subject in the morning was "Mutual Helpfulness," and in the evening "Time and Eternity." In the course of the former, Rev. Mr. Conners emphasized the necessity of taking Christ as our ideal and of striving to follow that ideal as closely as possible. Rev. Mr. Conners made a good impression. Rev. Mr. McLaren, the pastor of Gilmour Memorial Church, occupied the pulpit at Park Street Church in the evening.

This evening the anniversary celebration will be concluded by a fowl supper and concert. The ladies of Gilmour Memorial promise a splendid supper, and a large crowd is expected. Supper will be served from five until after eight.

London Globe Changes Hands.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Globe, which claims to be London's oldest evening newspaper, has again changed hands. It has been acquired by a syndicate formed by E. D. Blumenfeldt, formerly of New York, later London correspondent of The New York Herald, and now managing editor of The London Daily Express.

The Globe is to be run in connection with The Daily Express. Like The Daily Express, it is ultra-Conservative and Imperialistic.

It was purchased five years ago by Hilderbrand Harmsworth for $430,000.

DEPUTIES RELEASED.

Huerta Thinks Better of Arrest of Congressmen.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—State department advices from Mexico City late yesterday announced that the 110 members of the Mexican Chamber of Deputies who were thrown into prison Saturday night by order of President Huerta, were released yesterday.

Huerta's arrest of 110 delegates of the Mexican Congress, followed by the prorogation of both Houses of that body, has put administration officials here in a state of anxiety. No one attempts to disguise the view that the developments of the last 48 hours in Mexico City has precipitated what probably is the most serious situation since Huerta took office.

It was pointed out that conditions were similar to those immediately preceding the abdication of Porfirio Diaz.

With most of the troops in the north fighting the rebels Mexico City is left with a comparatively small garrison.

The situation is regarded here as warranting the United States in maintaining a considerable naval force at Vera Cruz and Tampico.

Huerta's action in suspending the sessions of Congress is regarded merely as preliminary to a declaration of martial law which will make almost unlimited his power over the capital and enable him to secure a strong and capable Parliamentary party to support Gamboa. Huerta's candidate for the Presidency at the elections on Oct. 26.

Mexico is Anxious.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 13.—Provisional President Huerta's coup Friday night whereby he rid himself in a spectacular manner of the legislative bodies of the Government and constituted himself dictator of the Mexican Republic has left the city in a state of tense expectancy.

INQUIRY RESTRICTED.

Dr. Edwards Protests at Exclusion of Evidence.

KINGSTON, Oct. 13.—As a result of the decision of the Government to restrict the prison reform inquiry to five years back, Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P. for Frontenac, says that this will prevent the bearing of two-thirds of the charges he has preferred against Deputy Warden O'Leary and Dr. Daniel Phalen. Dr. Edwards scored the Government severely for making the restriction, and states that the investigation held seventeen years ago under the old Government went into records of the officials twenty years back. Dr. Edwards says that when the commission resumes its session to-morrow he will have something to say.

Dr. Edwards has made formal charges against H. H. Wilson, hospital overseer at the penitentiary, charging him with gross and wilful neglect of duty. Still another official is charged, but the name has not been given.

Evidence to be given by W. S. Hughes, inspector of prisons, will have to do when he was chief keeper of the prison for ten years. J. L. Whiting, K.C., Kingston, has been retained as counsel for Deputy Warden O'Leary and Dr. Phalen.

Militants Whip Jail Doctor.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Militant suffragettes Saturday attacked and nearly maltreated Dr. Francis Edward Forward, the deputy governor and chief medical officer of Holloway jail, where so many of them have been imprisoned.

Dr. Forward was walking along the street when he was assailed and he was heavily belabored and bruised before he was able to make his escape. Two women caught hold of him and held him while a third beat him with a horsewhip.

The suffragettes accuse Dr. Forward of being responsible for the forcible feeding system, which he denies.

FOUR-FIFTHS SAVED

But 136 of Volturno's Passengers Perished in Storm

LINER FLEET SUMMONED

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Not since the Titanic sank has Europe been so thrilled as by a wireless message Saturday telling of the burning of the steamship Volturno in mid-Atlantic, with a loss, so far as is at present known, of 136 lives, and the rescued of 5[illegible]. The survivors are now aboard a fleet of steamers summoned by the Volturno's call for help, some of which are bound eastward and others westward.

The Volturno sailed from Rotterdam on Oct. 2 for Halifax and New York. According to the official statement, she carried 22 first-cabin passengers, 538 steerage and a crew numbering 96.

The rescue ships reached the scene of the disaster in plenty of time to save all, but for hours stood by the blazing vessel, impotent because of the storm, to reach the agonized men, women and children crowding the after part of the ship, and within a stone's throw.

All night long Thursday the lifeboats made a desperate effort to get alongside the Volturno but the waves beat them back again and again, and not until the storm abated, at daylight Friday, did the rescuers succeed in removing the survivors from the doomed ship. Even now only the fringe of one of the most thrilling tales of the sea is available. Exactly how the rescue was effected is not known. The Volturno was well equipped with boats, sufficient, the agents say, for a thousand people, but the boisterous sea or lack of boat drill, or panic among the passengers, prevented the successful employment of them.

The rescue ships were able to lower lifeboats, but apparently most of the boats launched from the Volturno were smashed or upset and the occupants drowned. Two of the boats, crowded with passengers, are reported to have got away from the ship, but a search for them has proved fruitless, and they have practically been given up as lost.

The steamer Carmania, bound from New York to Liverpool, was 75 miles away when the call for help sounded, Captain Barr, ordering full steam, in spite of the gale, drove through the seas at twenty knots an hour, and was first of the fleet to reach the burning vessel. She was followed by the Minneapolis, Rappahannock, Czar, Narragansett, Devonian, Kroonland, Grosser Kurfurst, and Saydlitz at various hours throughout the day. But, try as they might, the rescuing vessels could get neither line nor lifeboat to the Volturno, the forward part of which was almost hidden by a dense cloud of smoke when the Carmania arrived.

The burning steamer lay in the trough of the sea, pounding helplessly, with her propellers fouled by the boat's tackle. The terrified passengers were huddled together as far as it was possible to get from the flames, while throughout the day the officers and crew fought desperately with whatever appliances were at hand to hold the fire in check.

But night came on, and the seas abated only slightly. The circle of steamers kept their searchlights playing and waited patiently within the danger zone for the first moment when they might again launch the lifeboats.

The hopelessness of the situation was manifested at nine o'clock in the evening, when a great explosion tore away part of the upper works, and flames burst from the engine room. Nothing remained a swifter of how long the Volturno would stay above the water.

Meanwhile several of the terrified passengers, wrapped in life buoys, dropped over into the sea. One of them was taken aboard the Carmania. It may be that others found a haven with other vessels of the fleet, but some undoubtedly were swept away.

When day broke the Volturno was still afloat. The gale had moderated and the seas had calmed down. From almost every one of the encircling steamers lifeboats were sent out, and into these the women and children were lowered first. Several trips were necessary before the survivors were removed to a place of safety.

It is pointed out as a remarkable coincidence that the Volturno about four years ago made a notable rescue in a great storm in mid-Atlantic of the crew of a French vessel, Captain Harrison, who then commanded the Volturno, was decorated by the French Government for his daring act.

No Canadians On Board.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Indications are that there were no native-born Canadians or Americans on the steamship Volturno. A nearly complete passenger list received here from Rotterdam showed practically all on board were immigrants, Russians, Dalmatians, Poles and a few Germans, mostly bound for Canada.

Village Nearly Destroyed.

LACROSSE, Wis., Oct. 13.—A violent wind storm which swept over southeastern Wisconsin Friday night caused the death of several persons and heavy property damage.

A report from Tomah, Wis., said the town practically had been wiped out and several persons killed. Other towns reporting damage to property were Mauston, Union Centre, Hillsboro, Wonewoc, Lavalle, Elcro Friendship, Arkdale and Beloit.

CHARGED WITH STABBING.

One Man Is In Jail and Another In Hospital at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Oct. 13.—John Merriott is in the General Hospital in a critical condition, the result of being stabbed, and his brother-in-law, John Coughlin, is locked up in the police station charged with doing the stabbing.

Merriott received several knife wounds. One cut in his back required seven stitches, and three stitches were necessary to close another wound on the forehead. A piece of the end of his nose was cut off by the knife.

The affair, it is alleged, was the climax to a family feud, which has been going on for some little time. Friday night, John Coughlin was at the police station and swore out a warrant for the arrest of his brother, Thomas Coughlin, charging him with assault and battery. Thomas was gathered in by the police on Saturday afternoon, and at ten o'clock that night the police were called to take in charge John Coughlin on the stabbing charge.

Charged With Drowning Man.

WIARTON, Ont., Oct. 13.—Emerson Darragh, Owen Sound, is under arrest here, charged with having [illegible] Charles Jones overboard from [illegible]ch in Colpoy's Bay, Monday [illegible]g. Jones was drowned and his [illegible] has not been recovered.

The information was laid by Thos Finning, who was also in the launch. The charge will be heard here Monday, before Police Magistrate B. B. Miller.

Workman Falls Seventy Feet.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 13.—William Roberts, a bricklayer, fell 70 feet from the roof of the Electrical Development Co.'s power house here Saturday afternoon. When workmen picked him up it was thought he had been killed, but after being unconscious for an hour it was found that he had sustained only a severe shaking up. A ligament in his left foot had been sprained and he was taken to the General Hospital.

NEW HARVEST HYMN

The appended harvest hymn is from the pen of Mr. David Moore, foreman of the book-binding department of the Review Printing Co. It was sung both morning and evening at George Street Methodist Church yesterday, and added much to the musical part of the services. It is as follows:

Come let us now uniting
Our thankfulness to prove Unto the Lord our Father
Sing a glad song of love—
Lift on the wings of music
Our hearts in rapturous praise
And thank Him for His goodness
In these glad harvest days.

Oh, surely we should praise Him,
Who His great love have known,
In joyous adoration
Bowing before His throne;
Beseeching still His blessing,
Who, form his boundless store
Hath blessed our loved Dominion
From farthest shore to shore.

Each fertile hill and valley
Hath heard the Master's voice
And yielded forth its increase
That we may all rejoice;
The orchard and the vineyard
Have given their fruits again,
And harvest fields far-reaching
Poured forth their golden grain.

Then on this day of gladness
Which doth His love proclaim,
Shall we, our vows renewing,
Honour and praise His name.
Striving by all His blessings
His gift in us to prove,
Join in a cheerful service
And give Him love for love.

PLAYING FOR WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Examiner Special:

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 13.—The champion women golfers of Canada, Britain and the United States are here to-day to compete for the National Women's Golf Championship. Miss Muriel Dodd, the holder of British and Canadian titles, is expected to make a strong bid. She has already won her preliminaries.

Sage Tea Darkens Hair To Any Shade

Don't Stay Grey! It Darkens so Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

The Want Ad. presents a means by which honest and thrifty men communicate with each other quickly and at trifling expense. Try a "Want" in the Examiner.

PLANK'S PITCHING TOO MUCH FOR GIANTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The completion of the conquest of the Giants was attained by the Athletics to-day, when they carried their crusade to the Polo Grounds for the third time, and won their fourth victory of the series—three in the stockade of the Giants, one on their own homestead. The score of the final game was 3 to 1. It was another contest of skill, endurance and nerve between Mathewson and Plank, and this time, Plank rising supreme to what he avows is his farewell appearance in baseball, did the more effective work. He held the Giants to two hits.

The one run off Plank was made on an error, with adequate fielding by the Giants the Athletcis would have had but one run. Mathewson was never at any time behind his opponent in stamina and nerve but allowing more chances for runs so conducted his part in the warfare as also to provide chances to prevent any runs whatever. Two runs were presented to the Athletics by fielding inefficiency, to have accepted the opportunity to prevent the other one would have entailed the acceptance of a difficult chance.

Lost Game in the Third.

The Giants tossed away in the third inning what chance they had to win through a manual error by Doyle and the mental failure of Merkle to grasp a simple opportunity. Still, with inability to hit Plank, which was only two hits removed from nil, their outlook for victory was at all times hazy and obscure.

A leading development of the series went to show the intrinsic strength of the Athletics in first string men, was the fact that they used no more than nine men in any one game. The Giants had to go to the reserve stock for help in every game of the five. The Giants used an average of twelve men a game, though this was partly due to injuries. In that they didn't have a single regular disabled the Athletics were lucky. Still, they won with a good deal to spare. Their success was clean-cut and decisive.

PETERBOROUGH BEATEN 13 TO 1 BY PARKDALE JUNIORS

The local junior O. R. F. U. team was beaten in Toronto on Saturday by 13 points to 1, in a game with the Parkdale Juniors. The game was played at 'Varsity Stadium as a curtain raiser to the Toronto-Parkdale senior game, and was pulled off in a drizzling rain. Parkdale ran up eleven points in the first half, but the Petes finished strong and held the Paddlers to two points in the second period, while they scored one themselves. Dr. McPherson was unable to go, Minorgan taking his place on the half-line. Bartlett, who played on the wing line the week before, was also out of the game. The line up was as follows:

Parkdale—Half-backs, Brent, Sparrow, Buroughs; flying-wing, Wagner; quarter, Tuthill; scrimmage, Raymer, Swalm, Austin; inside-wings, Kelk, Cutts; middle-wings, McPherson, Delaporte; outside-wings, Kavers, Walker.

Peterborough — Halves, Gibson, Kirn, Minorgan; flying-wing, Dwyer; quarter, Breckenried; scrimmage, M. Turner, Ecclestone, Webb; inside-wings, T. Turner, Davidson; middle-wings, Langley, Rogers; outside-wings, Flowers, (Long), Muffenhagen, (Noble).

Collegiate Beaten At Lakefield

The Collegiate Institute Rugby team journeyed to Lakefield on Saturday for a friendly game with a picked team and were beaten 15 to 9 in a hard-fought game. The Collegiate team, the youngest and lightest that has ever represented the Institute, were outweighed greatly by their older opponents and as the wet field and slippery ball mitigated against their speed, they were at a disadvantage. The Lakefield team, whose line-up included three of the masters of the Grove school, led by 15 to 0 at half time, but the Collegiate finished strong, bagging nine points by good kicking in the last period. Heber Rogers, captain of the Collegiate team, was in Toronto with the junior O.R.F.U team and Richardson played centre half and acted as captain in Saturday's game. M. McKensie, of the Lakefield school, refereed the game.

The Collegiate line-up was as follows:

Flying wing—Eastwood.

Halves—Smythe, Richardson, Horsfield.

Quarter—Stratton.

Scrimmage — Carruthrs, Huycke Cann.

Wings— Canniff, Knox, Stevenson, Jobbitt, Macdonald, Austin.

CREW SEIZED BOATS.

Volturno's Captain Drove Them Off With Revolver.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—That the sailors of the Volturno behaved badly in the face of danger is revealed by the story of Walter Printepoint, a German third class passenger who swam to the Carmania. He says:

"The captain behaved splendidly as did the officers, who were British I am sorry to say the crew, who were [illegible] and Belgians, behaved very badly. The people rushed about wildly. The crew began to think that they ought to have first place, and instead of quieting them they made [illegible] charge [illegible] boat, but, [illegible] he wanted the women a[illegible] children saved [illegible] there in the boat were members of the crew.) They lowered a boat too fast, as it touched the water it was [illegible] and broke in two and all were drowned. Meanwhile others of the crew were attempting to launch a second boat, I cannot say who was in charge, but I know that after the chief steward had thrown some provisions into the boat he jumped in himself. There were men, women and children in this boat. There was a big sea running. The boat was broken against the ship's side and all were drowned. Then two boats were launched ships. Three other boats, which were aft, were put out. The fourth [illegible] was in one of them, but I cannot say which. At this confusion [illegible] oars broke and the occupants were thrown in the water and drowned or killed.

"When the captain saw what had happened he cut the tackle of the other boats so that they could not be launched. The crew rushed up from below and refused to go back. The captain got out a revolver and drove them below, but not long after, as the fire was spreading, they had to give up and [illegible] engine. As soon as the [illegible] came right the captain made all the women and children go to one side and the men to the other side. He was compelled to leave the [illegible] and go [illegible]

At a recent meeting of the Scottish Football Association a letter was read from the English governing body with reference to laws 7 and 10, which deal with the position of an opponent when a free kick is being taken. The F.A. advised that they had ruled that in all cases, including a goal kick or a corner kick, the distance must be ten yards. The secretary of the Scottish Association was instructed to reply that in accordance with the finding of the council on August 12th the laws must be worked as read, which means that in the case of goal and corner kicks an opponent can approach within six yards of the kicker, but in all other cases the distance must be ten yards. Thus the two countries will work differently.

M'Donald, Dundee's left half, was obtained from Kirkcaldy United. He is a younger brother of John M'Donald, the ex-Ranger who went to Liverpool, and is now with Newcastle United.

James Stewart, of Newcastle United and now of Glasgow Rangers, opposed Scotland in 1907 and 1911, and Wales in 1907. He had League caps against Ireland in 1910-11, and against the Southern League in 1910.

Bob Templeton has not yet regained his place in the Fulham first team. He met with an injury in a recent match, which incapacitated him.

"Kiltie" Cameron, late Blackburn Rovers and Bolton Wanderers, is doing grand work for Bury at centre forward. The Coatbridge man is a rare all-rounder.

Minter and Middlemiss of Tottenham Hotspur, were each guaranteed $1,750 and also the proceeds of the reserve match v. Woolwich Arsenal. Lucky men!

Blackburn Rovers have taken about $10,000 for season tickets alone, and their 'gates' are also on the up grade.

A winning team means financial prosperity.

The Irish League play the following team against the Southern League at Dollymount Park, Dublin, to-day — Scott (Shelbourne), W. M'Connell (Bohemians) and Gibson (Belfast Celtic), M'Cracken (Belfast Distillery), Clifford (Linfield), and Ferrett (Glentoran), Smith (Belfast Distillery), and Bowser (Belfast Distillery). The finals in the ladies' championship was played on Friday, Miss Jean Harstone winning from Mrs. Matthews, with four up and two to go.

In the finals for the consolation prize, Mrs. Gardiner won from Mrs. Aylmer with two up and one to go.

The finals for the Stratton trophy were played on Tuesday, Mrs. Gardiner winning from Mrs. Aylmer.

On Wednesday, a picnic luncheon will be held at twelve o'clock, after which a match will be arranged. All ladies of the club are invited.

All beers are not alike. Kuntz's Old German Lager, for instance, is different. It's brewed by a more costly process. And the flavor is "Old German." A glass tells the difference.

White sheep give more wool than black sheep—there are more of them

REMINGTON stenographers do more of the world's work than other stenographers—there are more of them.

Nature only knows why there are more white sheep than black.

All the world knows why there are more Remington operators than others.

REMINGTON is the machine in which the most operators have confidence—and the machine which gives them the confidence to make good.

REMINGTON is the machine in which the majority of good business schools have confidence—the confidence to turn out competent, efficient operators—the thing on which the very life of those schools depends.

REMINGTON is the machine in which business men and business houses have confidence—because the big majority of good stenographers are Remington trained and "go to work the first day without breaking in."

12,500,000 Remington letters mailed in the United States every business day in the year

Isn't that the answer to the question, "which machine?" for your office?

Throughout the world Remington is a synonym for typewriter efficiency. It is the voice of the business world.

BRICKS BETWEEN RAILS.

Paving work on George Street was commenced this morning. The heavy rails have been laid by the Street Railway Company and the laying of concrete between the rails was begun to-day. This will be topped with bricks. This section of the work is the Street Railway Company's contribution to a permanent main street.

TEA AND SHOWER.

The second annual Tea and Preserve Shower will be held by the Ladies' Aid Society for the beenfit of Saint Joseph's Hospital, at Saint Alphonsus' Lyceum, Simcoe Street, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, October 15, 1913. Admittance, gentlemen, silver collection; ladies, one or more jars of preserves. All are cordially invited to attend. 2d-86-8-t

THE NEW RAILS.

A citizen called into the Examiner and made the enquiry as to whether the new rails now being laid by the Radial Railway Company would stand up through the pavement, or be flush with it. He was afraid that they would stand up about an inch or more and thought if that was the case, it was not just the way to lay the rails.

WAS WELL RENDERED.

The anthem, "Remember Me, O Mighty One," was very effectively rendered by a male chorus in St. Paul's Church on Sunday evening. Mr. John Allan, leader of the choir, has succeeded in bringing the choir up to a high standard of efficiency as evidenced by the quality of the special music that is involved form time to time.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ashley and baby, Peterborough, are guests of Mr. Ashley's parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Ashley.—Napanee Express.

Dr. G. S. Cameron and Mr. Gerald E. Rackman left last night for St. John, New Brunswick. Dr. Cameron expects to return about November 1.

Miss Henderson, who has been visiting friends and renewing the associations of her former place of residence, returned home to Oshawa this morning.

Madame Lee of No. 414 1-2 George Street, has returned to her duties after spending a pleasant vacation in New York State, and studying the new American fall styles.

Mrs. S. C. Warne (nee Ida Mulholland) will receive for the first time since her marriage, at her home, 466 Gilmour Street, on Wednesday, October 15th, from 4 to 6.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Wesley H. Collier (nee Jessie Lightfoot), will receive for the first time since her marriage on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 15th, from 4 to 6:30, at her home, 405 Walton street. Mrs. Lightfoot will receive with her.

WEDDING BELLS

CARR—BRIGHTMAN.

The wedding was quietly solemnized on Saturday of Miss Mildred A. Brightman, daughter of Mr. Thos Brightman, of Peterborough, to Mr. Edward T. Carr, of the Quaker Oats office. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jas. Rollins at the residence of the bride's father. The young couple were unattended. They left after the ceremony on a honeymoon trip in the United States and will reside in Peterborough on their return.

BREAULT—ARMSTRONG.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart, this morning, at half-past seven, when Miss Dorothy Armstrong, daughter of the late Dr. Armstrong, of Hanwell, England, became the bride of Mr. Percy Breault, son of Mr. J. H. Breault, 77 Ware Street, City. There ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McAuley, in the presence of only the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss M. Armstrong, while Mr. W. Brogden of New York, supported the groom.

After the ceremony the happy couple and friends gathered at the home of the groom's father, where a delightful dejeuner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Breault will reside on Elm Street.

MARRIED.

ROE — ABERNETHY — In Peterborough on Monday, Oct. 13, 1913, Miss Elsie Abernethy, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Abernethy, of Campbellford, to Mr. Charles A. Roe, of Campbellford, by the Rev. T. J. Mansell, Charlotte Street Church.

"SOME HA'E MEAT, AND CANNA EAT"

So Bobby Burns tersely describes the rich, but still poor, dyspeptics. But their case is not now so desperate as when Burns wrote. For the man who has the food now can eat without suffering for it, if he just follows the meal with a Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablet.

These remarkable tablets banish the troubles of the chronic dyspeptic—the man who is bilious—the sufferer from heartburn, gas on the stomach or occasional indigestion. You can eat hearty meals of wholesome food—and digest them, too—if you take Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets.

Compounded by expert chemists, after probably the best formula known to medical science, they are quick and certain in their action, giving prompt relief from all forms of stomach trouble, toning up and strengthening the digestive organs and bringing about permanent cures.

A man is no stronger than his stomach. Fit yourself for your best work by taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. 50c. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 144

HUERTA IS WARNED

Deputies Must Not Be Harmed Says U. S. Government

GERMANY SENDS WARSHIP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—After a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan yesterday it was announced at the White House that telegrams had been despatched to both John Lind, at Vera Cruz, and Charles O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City, to make representations to the Huerta Government that the United States would look with displeasure upon any injury to the Mexican deputies now under arrest.

It has been left entirely to Mr. Lind's discretion whether he should return to Mexico City to impress those views on the Mexican authorities, but Charge O'Shaughnessy has been directed to address himself to the Minister of Foreign Relations and make it plain that the United States attaches "the greatest importance" to the arrest of the deputies and is keenly interested in what will be their fate.

President Wilson told callers yesterday, that with the present state of affairs, he did not see how a constitutional election could be held in Mexico. So far as the immediate policy of the United States is concerned, it was made plain by the President yesterday that there would be no departure from the original position that the Mexicans should settle their own affairs. There are no plans for any increase in the number of American warships in Mexican waters.

The Government here has practically abandoned all hope of seeing an election or treating any further with Huerta as an individual. There is a disposition in administration circles to await the course of events, with the hope that the factional lines will be so tightly drawn as to bring about a natural adjustment without outside interference.

German Ship To Go To Mexico.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—The Foreign Office here reached the conclusion last evening that the existing situation in Mexico is such as to necessitate the presence of a German warship in Mexican waters.

The cruiser Hertha, which is now being used as a school ship, will be selected as the most available warship for duty along the eastern coast of Mexico. She is now cruising in New England waters.

A cruiser from Europe scarcely could be chosen for this work, as the German squadrons have been depleted by the withdrawal of cruisers for the service in the Mediterranean owing to the recent hostilities in the Balkans.

TRAGEDY OF NORTH.

Prospector Either Slew Himself or Was Murdered.

COBALT, Oct. 14.—A prospector whose identity has not yet been established has been found dead, half way between Dane Station, on the T. & N. O. Railway, and Larder Lake camp, with a bullet through his heart. A revolver lay within a few feet of him. He was found Monday night by Jim Crowes, another prospector, lying beside the road, quite dead.

A stage passing in the morning saw nothing of him.

The man is 27 or 28 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches in height, light complexioned and weighing about 150 pounds. His body is being left where it was found until the coroner arrives.

There is nothing to indicate whether the man was murdered or fell by his own hand.

Opposed To Bunny Hug.

KINGSTON, Oct. 14.—One of the societies of Queen's University is opposed very much to what it terms "fancy" dances, which include the bear dance, bunny hug, etc., and at a meeting passed a resolution prohibiting such dances at any of the functions held by the society. It asked that these dances be barred at any of the big dances or social functions during the college season.

SAVED BY OIL SHIP

Steamer Narragansett Lulled the Waves Around Volturno

RESCUE HOPELESS BEFORE

FISHGUARD, Oct. 14. — Arthur Spurgeon, who Monday sent Trinteschi's graphic story by wireless and described the rescue work around the burning vessel, supplemented his despatches with additional details yesterday.

"The story of what took place on board the Volturno before the arrival of the Carmania," he said, "probably will not be known until Capt. Inch makes his official report. Some say the boats were launched in an orderly manner; others declare that a panic took place, resulting in the taking over of the boats by the fear-crazed crew after the fire got out of control. It seems to be agreed that there were 120 souls in these boats, all of whom were killed or drowned. The Carmania passengers were told that not more than one-third of those in the boats were women and children.

"The night aboard the Carmania was one never to be forgotten. No one got more than snatches of sleep. Some prayed for the souls in peril. All were racked with heartbreaking anxiety. Our utter helplessness was appalling. The finest fleet of liners that ever gathered in one spot in the Atlantic were practically impotent, even with their splendid equipment, to render aid on account of the great waves.

"At daybreak the gale moderated, and then a miracle occurred. It resulted in the salvation of the Volturno's crew and passengers. When Capt. Barr sent put a call for a tank steamer there came back a reply from the Narragansett: 'We will be there with the milk' (the sea name for oil).

"On the arrival of the tank, huge quantities were pumped around the Volturno, making it safe for the lifeboats to approach. It was a stirring spectacle when the great liners put off their boats, which danced over the shimmering, oil slimmed waters to the work of rescue. And soon the Volturno was left a derelict."

T. T. Watson of Philadelphia, another of the passengers on the Carmania, said that the chief credit for saving those on the Volturno was undoubtedly due to the oil ship Narragansett. "Only a few good swimmers," he declared, "would have survived from the ill-fated ship had not the Narragansett made free use of oil to calm the terrible waves.

"When the Carmania arrived, Capt. Barr recognized at once that it would be almost a hopeless task to attempt to save the Volturno's human cargo without the use of oil, but with a daring amounting seemingly to foolhardiness, he instructed First Officer Gardiner to lower a small boat. This after terrible buffeting regained the Carmania with only three oars intact. After this miraculous escape Capt. Barr did not again attempt to launch a single boat. Hence, our ship saved only one passenger, who swam to her.

"Shortly after we arrived the Carmania tried both fore and aft oil sprays, but without effect on the mountainous waves. Then the captain sent out wireless calls in all directions for an oil ship, and his efforts were rewarded by an answer from the Narragansett. The Grosse Kurfurst and other diners got in as close as possible and lowered lifeboats. They took aboard several persons who had jumped from the Volturno, and the work was greatly facilitated by the steam pinnace of the Grosser Kurfurst, which had stayed out all night. At once the Narragansett began to spray oil about the doomed ship, and the waves subsided as by magic. Soon the small boats were enabled to run alongside the liner and take the clinging people from the ladders. The rescue work was over in a very short time. Eleven liners formed the boundary around the film of oil, and the survivors were hoisted aboard the various steamers without trouble."

La Tourraine Has Forty-Two.

HAVRE, Oct. 14.—A wireless despatch from La Touraine, which is expected to reach here at eight o'clock this morning, was received yesterday by the agent of the French Transatlantic Line, saying that ten children, several without parents, two women and three of the crew are among the forty-two survivors of the Volturno on board.

Those saved by La Tourraine were composed of 16 Austrians, 12 Russians, seven Germans, two Italians, two Dutch, one Bulgarian, one Roumanian and one of unknown nationality.

Cornwall Theft Cases.

CORNWALL, Oct. 14. — James Grundy and his wife appeared before Judge O'Reilly yesterday afternoon and elected to be tried by a jury. The prisoners are charged with stealing and receiving goods from the residence of J. R. Duquette.

Another charge, of stealing four chairs from the verandah of John McMartin, was to have been pressed against Grundy, but owing to McMartin's absence the case was postponed for a week.

Prisoner Resentenced.

GUELPH, Oct. 14.—Earl Schwier, who escaped from the Central Prison two years ago, but who was recaptured last June, and subsequently pleaded guilty, was brought before Judge Chadwick yesterday for sentence. He was given six months in the Central, with an additional indeterminate sentence, conditional on his behavior.

TWO ARE DROWNED.

Fire Rangers Upset In Rapids, Try To Swim Ashore.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—The waters of the Nipegon River, in northern Ontario, claimed the lives of two members of the provincial fire ranging force on Saturday afternoon last, details of the tragedy reaching the Department of Lands and Mines yesterday. Walter Scott Burns, a young man from Toronto, and Deputy Chief J. D. Copley were the victims, and although strenuous efforts have been exercised the bodies have not yet been recovered. A large staff of men is now employed under the direction of Chief Bliss, dragging the river.

WALTER S. BURNS.

According to the tale received at the Department, the tragedy occurred while a party of rangers who had completed some telephone work up the river were en route to camp. Their canoe upset in the rapids and Copley and Burns instead of clinging to the craft tried to swim ashore.

All Lost In Wreck.

NOME, Alaska, Oct. 14—The gasoline schooner Nora, which sailed from St. Michael's a few days before the big storm of last Sunday having on board Herbert Quisler, his native wife and three boys, and several others unknown, was wrecked on the beach at Simrock and all lost. Four bodies have been found.

LEADER IS RESCUED

Suffragettes Force Police to Free Sylvia Pankhurst

FIERCE BATTLE IS FOUGHT

LONDON, Oct. 14.—After a fierce struggle the police arrested Miss Sylvia Pankhurst at Bow Neaths, in the east end of London, last night, where she was making a speech. But when they got her outside the building, with the intention of placing her in a taxicab and rushing her to Holloway Jail, the militants attacked the police so savagely that they had to let her go and she escaped.

Miss Pankhurst, who has an uncompleted term of imprisonment to serve, was not recognized until she threw aside the disguise which enabled her to elude the police and enter the building. She was warmly applauded as she stepped on the platform, but had been speaking only a few minutes when detectives, accompanied by a body of uniformed police with drawn truncheons, entered the hall and made a rush for the platform.

The audience rose to their feet, and chairs began to fly through the air, the invaders being the objective point. Some of the people in the galleries even dropped benches on their heads. The police gained the platform, and for ten minutes a desperate battle waged, the officers using their clubs freely, and those on the platform utilizing chairs as weapons.

The police succeeded in dragging Miss Pankhurst down to the floor of the house while reinforcements cleared the hall. Outside, the struggle was renewed with greater fury. Men and women were thrown down and trampled upon. Concentrating the attack on the policemen who had the militant leader in their grasp, the women, with the assistance of several men succeeded in tearing her from their grasp, and she slipped away. Some of the women afterwards complained of having been thrown down and kicked by the police, and many, after the fracas, were seen nursing bruises. Miss Zella Emerson of Jackson, Mich., whose imprisonment caused such a furore several months ago, was one of those injured. Mrs. Lee, who presided at the meeting and took a conspicuous part in the attack on the police, was arrested.

Miss Pankhurst later announced her intention to address a meeting at the Poplar town hall to-night.

To Interrupt Royal Wedding.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—"Every effort will be made to call attention of the notables at the royal wedding on Wednesday, to tortures which the women of England has suffered for the enfranchisement of their sex."

In these words the militant suffragettes at a meeting last night promised to take advantage of the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife "for the good of the cause."

Miss Annie Kenney, one of the noted leaders of the militants, who has been on hunger strike since her arrest on Oct. 6, was released last night after threats had been made at a meeting of the militants in the afternoon that if she was not freed, the militants would bombard the Home Office and camp on the Right Hon. Reginald McKenna's front steps until they could find some way of getting at him.

MUST GO TO SCRAP HEAP.

Ancient Coaches on Middle Division of G.T.R. Condemned.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—A deputation headed by Mr. Sam Sharpe, M.P. from Uxbridge, Markham, Campbellford, Hastings, Stirling, and other points on the Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway, scored a point over the company at yesterday's session of the Dominion Railway Board in the City Hall.

Mr. Sharpe declared that abominable conditions characterized this section of the G.T.R. system. The road bed was dangerous, the railway coaches antiquated, there was discrimination of freight rates, late delivery of freight, and a poor railway service. The people objected to the coaches on the ground that they were "cast-offs," which would not be tolerated on other points of the road.

Chairman Drayton ordered the company to relegate the coaches to the scrap heap, and instructed Engineer Mountain of the board to gather information respecting the other complaint of the deputation.

ALL SAVED BUT ONE.

Boy Rescues Four Children But Baby Brother Is Burned.

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 14.—During the absence of the parents, who were both away from home working yesterday morning, Charlie, the two-year-old son of Albert Agar was burned to death in the house, which was completely destroyed by fire.

Five children, ages ranging from a five-months' infant, were left in charge of the eldest, a boy of 12. When he discovered fire in a storeroom by the crying of one of the children, he got all the children outside to safety with the exception of Charlie, whom he could not find in the dense smoke. Neighbors arriving early on the scene also made heroic efforts to find the child, but the fierce flames drove them back. The little charred body was later found in the smouldering debris.

The family came from England to St. Thomas five years ago, and yesterday lost everything they had gathered together since their arrival.

SHOT BY DAUGHTER.

Father Accidentally Killed By Discharge of Revolver.

WINGHAM, Oct. 14.—A shooting accident, which resulted in the death of Harvey McDowell, who lived in West Wawanosh, about seven miles from Wingham, occurred Sunday night about seven o'clock.

McDowell with his children had just returned home after spending the afternoon at the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Charles Campbell, who lived a short distance away.

He had just changed his clothes and as he entered the dining-room his little nine-year-old daughter pointed a revolver at him, saying: "Hold up your hands, Daddy." As she said this the revolver went off and the bullet entered McDowell's left side, just below the heart, killing him instantly.

McDowell had been hunting coons on Saturday night, and left the revolver on the sideboard, where the girl found it. He was about 35 years of age, and his wife died about 18 months ago. He leaves three children, the oldest being nine years of age.

"THE MEDIATOR"

By ROY NORTON

"I really don't know what would have happened to this feller called Bill if I'd hit him when I was angry," he said apologetically. "Pshaw! It's too bad! And, by the way, have any of you other fellers got a notion he'd like to kick one of my burros? I sure hope there ain't, because I'm a man of peace. I hate quarrelin' worse'n a rattler hates a hair rope!"

He looked them over mildly, and yet with such a promising air of readiness should any of them tender the suggested offence, that they backed away a little bit, and stood watching him.

"Well," he drawled, "they ain't no use in my standin' here this way, like a man with a mule instead of a chip on his shoulder. I reckon I'd better 'tend this feller Bill. I'm always right sorry for a man I have to hit. I couldn't do much for the last one before this, because all we could do was to send him to the morgue."

He walked over and got his arms beneath the shoulders of the fallen Bill, and dragged him as carelessly as a bale of hay to the water where the spring guttered through the iron pipe as carelessly as if nothing had happened. He hoisted the ensanguined Bill's head to its edge, and then doused it into the water, and, jerking the bandanna handkerchief from his own neck, used it as a sponge to repair the wreckage.

Bill gave a gasp, opened his eyes, and stared in bewilderment around him. Even then he retained some of his spirit.

"Did that mule of yours kick me?" he asked, and then, as his wits came back: "Oh, no! It warn't the mule, after all. It was you!"

He sat on the edge of the trough, and the crowd snickered softly, but calmed itself at the fiercely inquiring look swept over it by the prospector.

"I seem to remember that you hit me with somethin'," Bill went on, "and I reckon it must have been an ax."

There was another instant's silence as his wits returned more fully, and then he looked up and grinned sarcastically, though with difficulty through his puffed lips.

"It's the most astonishin' thing," he said to his conqueror and good Samaritan, "how many fool mistakes a feller can make. Any time after this I get a fool hankerin' to kick another man's mule, I'll pick out one belongin' to a cripple!"

The prospector saw that the man was able to administer to his own wants, and calmly walked away to his burros.

"Come on, boys," he said; "let's go and find a corral somewhere."

As if they understood him, they obediently followed him down the street, leaving the gaping crowd in front of the Happy Home.

"This," said the prospector mournfully, as he halted at a turn of the road, and looked back down the street, "is a peaceful camp, I don't think! And I've been two years comin' to it, just because I'm a forgivin', peace-lovin' sort of a cuss, that's dead sick of always havin' trouble for a bunk mate. Pshaw!"

CHAPTER VII.

The Red-Haired Girl to the Rescue.

The man who owned the corral told Lish that Bill thought he "was some punkins with his fists," and added that any man who got the best of Bill would receive av ote of thanks from the peace-loving part of the camp, or a monument if he valiantly failed to subdue that strenuous disturber. The prospector, who was busily throwing off the hitches from his burros, smiled, but said nothing of his own battle with the camp ruffian. He doubted from the awed manner in which the corral-owner spoke of the redoubtable Bill whether he would accept any statement of conquest made by a man without bruises, scars, callouses, or teeth-marks to prove strife.

"I thought when I come here," sadly commented Lish, "that this Peaceful Hill was like what it's named."

"Oh, she's quiet enough," replied the corral man, lounging against the fence. "That is," he added guardedly, "she's peaceable enough from four in the mornin' to four in the afternoon. You see, Big Bill and his gang goes to bed at four in the mornin', and sleeps until four p.m. After that this-here hill ain't so dadbinged quiet as she might be. She just naturally boils and bubbles, and howls and roars, the howlin' and roarin' gettin' good by midnight, and best by two o'clock in the mornin', then dyin' away into whispers as this here Bill and his crowd gets too sleepy or drunk to keep it up."

The prospector was pulling a tarpaulin over his packs where they rested beside the fence, and the corral man added ruminatingly: "There's only one person in this camp ever got the best of Bill. That was the Widder Callahan. She began with a rollin' pin, and ended with a brick and a beer bottle. They really hoped, for about three days, that she'd caved in Bill's top works; but there warn't no such luck."

"But what does he do for a livin'?" queried Henley.

"Him? Warks a spell now and then. He's got a patch of placer ground somewhere, so they say, and him and the two or three that are his real pardners goes away and works it. All the rest that hangs around him does so because he's right free with his money. This camp was all right till this gang came, and it looked as if when one came another drifted in, till himeby there were a dozen, and there warn't no livin' with 'em."

Still the newcomer smiled thoughtfully.

"Well," he said, "I'm right glad I ain't got no trouble nor hard feelin's with any of 'em. If there's any one thing I hate above everything else, it's quarrelin'. That's all right for animals. They don't know no better. They're just the way the Lord Almighty made 'em; but with men it's different. I s'pose to-morrer, bein' Sunday, they'll keep quiet?"

"Quiet? Huh! They don't know nothin' about Sunday. Maybe you're alludin' to the meetin'-house. Well, it don't have no influence on 'em. Most always they makes it unpleasant for the meetin'. We only have 'em once a month now, since this gang came. They say the next time the circuit-rider comes up here in this part of the Sierras they're a-goin' to put an end to this church business. I dunno. Mebby they will."

"When does this circuit-rider reached come again?" asked Lish, with mild interest.

The corral-keeper stopped, and figured for a long time, making calculations on his fingers.

"That's to-morrer, too," he decided at last. "Now about fodder for them burros?" He dropped back into business again.

"All they can eat," was the prospector's reply. "And the best you got. They're friends of mine, specially that Jack. I've had him quite a spell; but Pete, the other one, I ain't got so well acquainted with. Only had him a month or two. He's a queer cuss, without any initiative and referendum—just sort of tags along, and I ain't had the heart to tell him to go about his business and hustle for himself. He seems so sort of helpless. Now, Jack there's got more individuality. Why, say! I'll bet he kicked me a hundred times the first year I had him. I sure do like that burro. If ever he gets a vote he'll be a Populist. Got ideas of his own, you see, and ain't scared to say so. Look at this now. Here, Jack! Come over here."

The burro, who had been rolling over and over to straighten the sweated hair, shook himself, cocked his ears forward, and advanced to his owner.

"I'm goin' now, Jack," said the prospector painstakingly, "and I'll be around to-morrer. Just keep peaceable, but kick the devil out of any one that goes near them packs. Give me a kiss."

The burro appeared to look at the packs from the corner of his eye, then lifted his soft grey nose up, and mazaled the tanned face held toward him.

"See that?" called the prospector delightedly. "He knows. I heard him whisper: 'So long, David Elisha Henley. Keep sober.' It's been four year since I reformed, but he's always cautionin' me. When I was boozin', him and me used to fight like a bunch of wildcats. Now we're both peaceful."

He gave an affectionate hug to the burro's neck, walked over, and bestowed a pat on the other one. "Just so's his felings wouldn't be hurt," he explained, then leaped over the corral fence and sauntered away toward the business street of the camp.

The camp seemed livelier now that the evening was drawing down, and the sun losing itself behind the high fringe of red woods which bordered it on the west; but it was a quiet stir that did not belie the name of Peaceful Hill. A group of urchins played marbles in the middle of the street, and shouted, boy-like, at three smaller chaps who strove to emulate horses and driver by stirring up a cloud of dust with their dirty little bare feet and legs. Over on the grass in a vacant lot a cluster of little girls holding hands filed beneath two others, and droned in shrill, childish unison: "London Bridge is falling down, falling down, falling down, my fair lady!"

The prospector, with a sympathetic smile on his face, thrust his hands in his pockets, and watched them as the bridge came down, and the captured one was led away to whisper whether she would rather have a gold church or a gold bridge, to come back and join the side of her choice. He watched the tug of war, laughed aloud at the childish screams of delight when the side of the golden bridge won, and shook his head sadly.

"Lord!" he exclaimed to himself; "I'd like to play in that game, too; but I reckon they'd be scared of an old cuss like me."

For an instant it seemed that he would go over and ask permission to participate; and then, as if thinking better of it, he reluctantly continued his march. He reached the place where cinder paths beneath shade trees gave way to more pretentious board walks and straggling business buildings; now a grocery store, again a little butcher shop, a barber shop with a faded pole, and a saloon; a blacksmith shop with the smith inside singing in a loud, mellow voice, timing himself to the creak and whine of his big leather bellows; another saloon which had pool tables in front, and then the stage office, and so on until he came to "Peaceful Hill Inn. Lodging for Man and Beast. He went inside, but not without attracting attention from the men who lounged with chairs tilted against the rail on the little verandah that creaked and rattled when they moved.

"How much are rooms and grub?" he demanded of a man behind the desk, who was combing his oiled hair with due precision, in front of a small mirror. The man took another look to see if the line passed cleanly down the centre, adjusted the two bangs on the sides of his forehead with mathematical exactness, then turned round.

"Get it fixed all right?" casually inquired the prospective guest, with a show of solicitude.

The clerk tried to look haughty, but was compelled to melt in the warmth of the friendly grin.

"Six bits for a room, and two bits a meal," he said, ignoring the question.

"If I'd know they was that cheap I'd brought Jack up here with me," declared the guest, accepting the proffered pen, and leaning over a register that had been furnished by some advertising agency and showed signs of long wear. He inscribed his "David Elisha Henley" with much deliberation, and bestowing particular pains on the "curleycue" under the final "y." It was plain that he was quite proud of his signature.

"Go upstairs and bunk in the room clean down at the end of the hall," said the clerk, and the guest tramped upward and followed the directions, to find himself in a room with two windows looking out over a scene of sunset splendour, in which deep canons, noble gorges, and royal forests spread away into profligate space.

"This Californy's the Lord's farm, I sort of think," he said to himself. "And this camp up here in the Sierras is just about right. I've been chasin' peace for two years, and, by the great horn spoon! I'm goin' to catch up with it and twist its tail till it bellers, right here!"

He washed the dust of the mountain roads from his face and bared torso with loud splutterings, and then sat by the window till the clangorous call of a cracked bell warned him that supper was served, after which he wandered down and fell into the current of men that led toward the dining-room.

Already it was half-filled with men who were unmistakably miners. One table was filled with men who were apparently different, and he shrewdly suspected them of being engineers, assayers, clerks, and bookkeepers.

A red-headed girl who chewed gum and carried prodigious trays laden with heavy crockery jerked her head toward him, and said: "You can set down here, mister, if you ain't got any other place."

He took the seat indicated by that jerk of the red head, and found himself back of the table devoted to the select. The girl came in and asked him in one rapid-fire sentence what he wanted by saying: "Steakhamandeggsmuttonstewandhash," and he caught the last word in time disastrous inquiries by saying "Hash." Almost immediately she returned to him and fairly bombarded the table in front of him with a multitude of little dishes which thumped and rattled on the table with the rapidity of cards dealt by the hands of a professional gambler. He fell to eating with zest, but could not help overhearing the conversation at the next table.

"Yes, sir," one man said, "this here stranger just naturally started in on that Bill, and what he did do to him ain't down in no county history. Some says he kicked, bit, scratched and yelled all at the same time, and he winds up by goin' over to the blacksmith shop and gettin' a four-pound strikin' hammer to finish breakin' Bill's face in. Bill is sure a tame man for a week or two to come!"

There was a guffaw of laughter, which was interrupted by a warning hiss.

"Look out! Hre comes some of his gang!" Lish heard an admonishing whisper, and looked up to see three or four men, whose faces were familiar, entering the dining-room.

He thought they must have been present at that afternoon set-to, but refrained from staring at them as they took seats and scowled around them. It did not dawn on him that they feared lest their prestige in Peaceful Hill had suffered through the ignominious and swift defeat of their renowned leader. Indeed, in his homely way, all he was thinking of at that moment was whether onions or garlic tasted better in hash, and how it compared with chili con carne. There was none in the room with a greater appetite than his and none who enjoyed his meal more, for he had not halted for lunch in the day's climb over the rugged mountain roads to his goal of happiness.

One after another the other diners departed, some of those at the select table politely saying, "Good-night, Maggie," to the red-haired girl, who, now that the rush was over, began to show signs of content, and no longer wiped streams of prespiration from her face with a dish towel. Lish was still alone, and still eating industriously. He had finished two "helpings" of everything in the bill of fare, including dessert, and was now calmly eating the last of the bread in sight. Maggie approached him.

Varicose Veins And Itching Piles

Usually Arise From Same Cause — Relief and Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Nearly everybody knows of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the most effective treatment for piles or hemorrhoids that medical science has been able to compound. So much suffering and misery arises from this ailment that one is not long in telling his friends when he has found an actual cure. This accounts for the enormous sales of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This letter tells of relief from the suffering of varicose veins by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Many suffer from this trouble, not knowing the comfort to be obtained by the use of this great soothing ointment.

Mrs. R. J. Evans, 187 Munro Street, Toronto, writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years. I have been troubled with varicose veins, and find it the only thing that gives relief. For every purpose when a soothing, healing ointment is needed there is nothing so good as Dr. Chase's Ointment." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Analyzing a Name.

When Poincaree, the famous mathematician, was formally received into the French academy Frederic Masson in welcoming him gave the desirable mathematical tinge to his address by questioning the correctness of the name. Geometrically, he said, the notion of a square point was intolerable. Therefore it was obvious that "point carre" could not have been the true derivation of the name. It must have been "pont carre." The philologists took M. Masson seriously and began poking around in their musty records for a better original source than either "point carre" or "pont carre." And they soon found it in the person of Petrus Pugniquadrati, a student of record in the year 1403. Furthermore, in 1418 a French namesake of Pugniquadrati appeared in the person of one Jehan Poingquarre. From all of which it seemed plain that the original Poincares were not square points, but clenched fists.—New York Post.

Dust in Flour Mills.

It has been many years since there has been an explosion of flour dust resulting in serious loss of life and great property damage. This is due to the fact that millers have learned more about the explosive nature of finely powdered material, and the former carelessness in providing receptacles for the dust has been succeeded by a system of dust catching and disposal which makes a flour mill perfectly safe from this danger. In old fashioned milling methods flour dust was turned into a room provided for the purpose, but large quantities were allowed to accumulate on the mill floor and become distributed over the machinery. When these deposits were disturbed the atoms floated about in the atmosphere, creating danger from fire and making it difficult for workmen to breathe. Asthma frequently resulted from this condition, and incipient explosions were not infrequent.—North Western Miller.

"Bob White" Likes Music.

A baby quail was captured and brought to the house. The large cage provided for him stood upon a square of oilcloth, and this was little Bob White's ranch. The door of his house was always open, but he seldom wandered beyond the limits of his own domain. One thing invariably tempted this little recluse to venture forth, this was the sound of music. Like a small boy racing after the band, the moment the tones of the piano reached his quick ear he started on a run, and the quick pat-patting of his tiny feet announced his approach. He would circle about the piano and, with a fluff fluff of his short wings, mount to the keyboard. The little square corner at its end was his opera chair, where he cuddled down contentedly as long as the music continued, at times expressing his appreciation by a contented soft, purring sound.—Suburban Life.

Money Value of a Woodpecker.

The slaughter of migratory birds is surely followed by the increase of destructive insects. Among the best of the farmer's bird friends are the woodpeckers, especially the redheaded members of the species. In proof one careful observer says: "A pair of them nested in a dead cottonwood tree near my uncle's orchard one year. One day I watched them through a pair of opera glasses. The young birds were about half grown. The parents made ninety-six trips in one hour, each time with a worm. It is safe to say that they saved ninety-six apples in that hour—a box worth, say, $1. If the birds worked ten hours a day they were worth $10 to my uncle, or in the three weeks the birds were in the nest $210. Can a farmer afford to kill a woodpecker?"—Youth's Companion.

For Handling Rush Orders

DOES the "busy season" find you unable to cope with the increased volume of business? Do the orders pile up to the general confusion of your men and the disorganization of your plant? You may hope to catch up with your orders by putting on an extra gang, or working an additional shift, but how about the RUSH ORDERS? Are they filled, or do you simply let them wait until the inevitable wire comes with instructions to cancel?

Rush orders are, if anything, more important than the regular willing-to-wait routine business. To refuse them indicates poor service, slovenly methods, inefficiency. To handle them promptly means grateful customers who will not readily forget your helping them out when they needed the goods in a hurry.

Rush orders pay well. You simply cannot afford to ignore them.

An Otis-Fensom Freight Elevator will enable you to economize both time and labor. It will increase the efficiency of your working force, eliminating the necessity of hiring extra help or working expensive night shifts during the busy season.

Rush orders may be filled promptly and satisfactorily, and profits increased through the greater volume of business handled.

INSECT TREE KILLERS.

Forest Ravages Stopped by a War Upon Bark Beetles.

By a prompt campaign against a flourishing colony of bark beetles on the Ochoco national forest, in central Oregon, the government is eliminating a danger which threatened to destroy millions of feet of timber.

Some authorities claim that the amount of timber killed each year by insects is equalled only by the annual loss from forest fires. Among the most destructive of these insect enemies are the bark beetles, one of which, the mountain pine beetle, is responsible for most of the damage on the Ochoco forest. This deadly little beetle is less than a quarter of an inch in length, but bears the ponderous scientific name of Dendroctonus monticolae Hopk. which, being interpreted, signifies killer of the mountain pine tree, discovered by Hopkins.

Its methods of operation are interesting. The mature beetle bores through the bark of the tree and excavates a gallery in the inner living bark and in the outer surface of the wood, in which it lays its eggs. When hatched each young larva, or beetle grub, channels into this growing portion of the trunk, feeding upon the inner bark. When full grown the larva, after passing through a dormant or pupal stage, becomes a beetle. This beetle then drills out through the bark in July and, emerging into the world, seeks a fresh tree and starts a new generation. With this "chain letter" method it soon infests a large area. The galleries or channels of the larvae girdle the tree and kill it, and the beetle's operations is "fully discovered, as it was in the Ochoco forest, by a patch of red-brown dead pine trees in the midst of a mountainside of green.

In fighting this forest scourge the method recommended by the bureau of entomology is followed. The simple removal of the bark of infected trees between October and July, while the larvae are still in the tree, is sufficient to kill them. The lumber may then be sold while it is yet sound. On the Ochoco forest, however, there was no market, and the forest officers found that the cheaper and more effective method of control was to cut the trees and burn them before the new broods of beetles could emerge. In 1912 the infestation was given a decided check by the cutting of 3,500 trees. This summer forty-two laborers in charge of a forest officer cut more than 40,000 trees. As a result of these vigorous measures the government apparently has the beetles under control.

IMPROVED BROILER

Revolves on Pivot and Meat Can be Done on Either Side

An improved type of broiler for gas ovens has been invented. It can be moved up and down in the oven and turned about so that the meat is done equally on both sides. The broiler proper is pivoted to a framework that moves up and down in grooves on the inside end walls of the oven. By a lever outside this framework is operated. Like most broilers it is in two hinged sections that receive the meat between them. When they are locked the device can be revolved at will. A removable drip pan sets in the lower portion of the framework to catch the drippings from the steak, or chops, or whatever the meat may be. The advantage of being able to move the broiler up and down is that you can get it close to the flame or some distance off, according to whether you want it done quickly or slowly.

ORIGIN OF PAINTS

Ground up Mummies Furnish a Beautiful Brown Color

In order to furnish the innumerable delicate tints of paint required by artists, manufacturers have nowadays to ransack the world. Even mummies are called into use. Mummies are usually preserved in the finest bitumen, and this ancient bitumen has, in the course of centuries, turned the mummies a leathery-brown tint. It has been found that when the bitumen and the shreds of mummy are ground down by machinery, a beautiful brown pigment is the result—exactly the tint required for painting certain shades of brown hair.

Sepia is one of the commonest of artists' paints. It is a deep brown in color, and comes from a source equally strange. It is prepared from the black, inky fluid discharged by the cuttle-fish to blind and baffle its enemies.

Prussian blue is prepared from horses' hoofs, and is made by fusing the hoofs with potassium carbonate.

Raw sienna is soil from near Sienna in Italy. Burnt sienna, another common tint, is simply the same earth burnt.

The majority of pigments for making colors—that is, the dry powder—are obtained from minerals, but many pigments come from the animals kingdom. Cochineal, for example, comes from the dried bodies of insects. A kind of pitch is also used for certain pigments.

There can no longer be any doubt that John Armstrong Chaloner is sane. He has announced that never again will he live in New York.

The French war office is training eagles to attack possible enemies in aeroplanes. German aviators will now take lessons in swatting eagles.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels predicts that "airships will become an important arm of the navy." Mixed metaphor—he meant wing no doubt.

The Calcutta prisoner, who picked the pockets of his police captors and then left them on a moving train, forgot something. He might have taken the train and the policemen too.

All the diggers who are upturning cities thousands of years old report finding records of complaints of the higher cost of living. It began with the beginning and will continue to the end.

MELANCHOLY WOMEN

Should Profit by Mrs. Hurley's Experience—Her Own Story Here Told.

Eldon, Mo.—"I was troubled with displacement, organic inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased once a month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world.

"After I had tried most every female remedy first, without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

The Hot Bath.

The usual objection to hot baths is that the bather takes cold unless he goes straight to bed as soon as he has dried himself; otherwise, so they say, he goes on perspiring and takes a chill. Now, this is due not to having had a hot bath, but because the water was not hot enough when the bather got out of it.

Hot water has the same effect as cold in bracing up the sweat pores and preventing them from continuing to pour out unnecessary perspiration. Lukewarm water, on the other hand, leaves the skin lax and moist, and it is then that people are liable to chills; hence the popular idea of running in some cold water before the bath is finished is a mistake, as it brings about the very conditions we are anxious to avoid.

The best temperature at which to take a hot bath is 100 degrees F. or just below that. If more water is added afterward it should be hot, not cold, so as to maintain the temperature at the same level. With the aid of these precautions it will be found that drying is a simple process, and the skin is left in a delightful state without any undue perspiration to follow.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

Points for Mothers

Your Daughter's Room.

When your daughter reaches the age of twelve or thirteen it is time to refurnish her room. The simple furnishings of the nursery should be replaced with others more suitable to the girlish fancy. The accessories play an important part in the furnishing of a bedroom, and here the clever needle worker has a chance to display her talent to advantage.

Of utmost importance are the window draperies, for much of the beauty of the room depends upon them. Next to the window hang curtains of scrim, net or barred dimity, bordered with a frill. To make these use a width of the material for each side of the window, and to this join a plaited frill or scantily gathered ruffle of the material. If preferred, this may be edged with lace. Do not make the curtains longer than the window sill, for it detracts from their effectiveness to hang below.

From cretonne, casement cloth or figured madras fashion the overhangings. If cretonne is selected, form each curtain from a width of the material and border it with a fancy cotton braid, sold in the upholstery department for this purpose. Hang the curtains from the narrow brass rods and hang a plaited valance across the top.

Purchase a suitable flower design and cut out the motifs, neatly appliqueing them to the casement cloth. It is an easy matter to border the curtains with bands of flowered cretonne cut from a striped design. When cutting out the strips of material allow a half inch beyond each stripe for turning under. Baste the strips to the curtain and finally stitch with the machine at the extreme edge of each side. For summer there is nothing prettier than the bedspread, pillowshams and bureau scarfs of flower sprigged dimity. Choose a fairly good quality and measure the bed, allowing material enough to hang over the end and sides. Join the widths with bands of lace or stitch them together neatly on the machine. To the sides join a scant ruffle of the material edged with narrow lace.

The pillowshams are made from squares of the dimity bordered with a ruffle. If you care to make these more elaborate use several rows of lace insertion to trim the bedspread and shams. Make the bureau scarfs of the dimity and border them with bands of insertion and lace. These can be made the exact dimensions of the dresser top or to hang over the sides. Next the dressing table should be fitted with all the dimity embroidered accessories, among which are numbered the pincushion, handkerchief, hair ribbon and glove cases.

Babies and Spectacles.

Do you wish the baby to wear spectacles when he gets older? Foolish question? No, not exactly. Watch the mites when they go a-riding in their perambulators and goearts and you will perhaps understand.

A baby's eyes are like twin moths—they cannot resist a bright light. Where the light is there the little eyes are invariably turned. And so when baby goes outing is it not natural that he should turn his eyes skyward to the brightness? What, think you, must be the effect upon such tender eyes when we who are grown up could not face the glare unceasingly for a single hour?

For this reason it is well to see that the perambulator top or the little sunshade is adjusted so as to give full protection from the light. When the little one is older and not so easily kept in the protecting shade he should wear tiny embroidered sunbonnets, as the close fitting cap affords no protection whatever. The baby hats which come with brims will, of course, answer the same purpose as the sunbonnet.

Let the Youngsters Romp.

When playing with children remember that a good romp is excellent for them and that noise is seldom harmful unless the little ones are hypersensitive in impressions and apt to get overexcited. Let them play what games they like and plenty of them. Their games have a way of merging automatically into each other as soon as they begin to pall. You may be sure that the children will not play a game any longer than they want to do. Children are almost as fond of make believes as their elders are, and if they want to dress up do not prevent them. When they have taken the trouble to don weird raiment, help them to sustain their illusion.

His Own Hooks.

In teaching children to be self helpful we do not always make it as easy for them as we might.

A row of long hooks in a child's closet enables him to hang up his own garments. A drawer divided into compartments for gloves, handkerchiefs and other belongings helps him to remember "a place for everything and everything in its place," and, being the proud possessor of his own toilet articles, goes far toward giving him at an early age the self respect that goes hand in hand with personal cleanliness.

"Oh, come into the garden, Maude!"
We heard our neighbor shout.
The rain, it seems, and the sun's beams
Had brought a radish out.

Try This Home-made Cough Remedy

Costs Little, But Does the Work Quickly, or Money Refunded.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with 1 cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the sugar syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You will find that this simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else ever used. Usually ends a deep-seated cough in 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, croup, chest pains, bronchitis, and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.

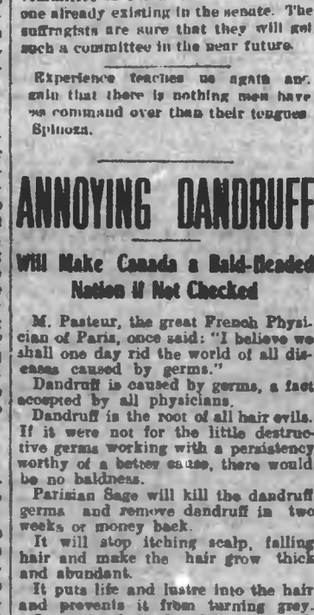
Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural pine elements, which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Woman's World

Mrs. De Voe, President of National Council of Women Voters.



MRS. EMMA SMITH DE VOE.

Official representatives of 4,000 enfranchised women voters in ten states recently gathered at the national capital to petition congress for the immediate passage of a constitutional amendment providing for nation wide woman suffrage.

This was the first meeting of the National Council of Women Voters since the society was formed in January, 1911, by Mrs. Emma Smith De Voe of Tacoma, Wash., who is now its president.

For months and even years suffragists have approached congress in many and varied ways asking for a federal suffrage amendment. But most of the women who have come before have been seekers after the ballot.

The present representation of women told the government the other day exactly what they wanted done when Miss Jane Addams, Miss Helen Todd of California and other women voters went before the house rules committee asking for the creation of a suffrage committee in the house similar to the one already existing in the senate. The suffragists are sure that they will get such a committee in the near future.

Experience teaches us again and again that there is nothing men have so command over them their tongues Spinoza.

ANNOYING DANDRUFF

Will Make Canada a Bald-Headed Nation if Not Checked

M. Pasteur, the great French Physician of Paris, once said: "I believe we shall one day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

It will stop itching scalp, falling hair and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning grey.

It is the hair dressing par excellence, daintily perfumed and free from grease and stickiness. It is the favourite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of fascinating hair.

Comes in large 50-cent bottle at the Warne Drug Co. and leading druggists and toilet goods counters everywhere. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package.

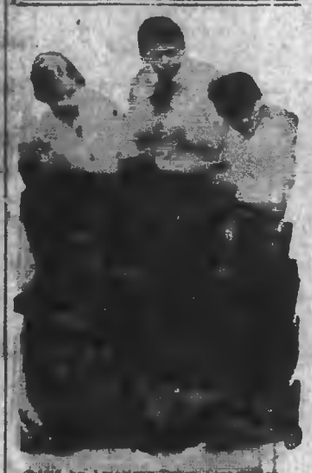
For the Children

New York Boys in a Pie Eating Contest.



©1913, by American Press Association.

Not long ago Mrs. Finley J. Shepard formerly Miss Helen Gould, gave a mothers' outing on her estate at Tarrytown, N. Y. Mothers and their children from the poorer districts of New York city were the invited guests. All sorts of amusements were provided for the young folks, of whom there were a large number. Swings, merry go-rounds and seesaws interested the girls and small boys, and for the larger boys a pie eating contest was one of the main features. The contestants were seated on a stone wall, and at a signal from the judges the eating began. Pies of the most luscious kinds were handed out, and the number stowed away is said to have been prodigious. The girls, too, had all the pie they wanted, but of course they were too polite and dainty to enter into a contest. Such feelings, however, did not deter the boys from eating all the pie they could in the shortest possible time. The boy who ate the most was of course, the winner.

A Flock of Geese.

Quack, quack, quack! What's all this commotion? Just a silly flock of geese, and yet that noise saved a city

There had been a great battle between the Gauls and the Romans, and the latter had suffered defeat. That was nearly 2,300 years ago. That battle took place on the banks of the river Allie, eleven miles from the city of Rome. A portion of the defeated army took refuge in a little city called Veii The rest of the army fled to Rome and took refuge in the capitol, which was situated upon a hill, one side of which was a precipice.

The Romans had devoured nearly everything eatable in the citadel except a flock of sacred geese dedicated to Juno. These fowls were housed in the temple devoted to that deity, and they set up a great quacking when the enemy began to approach. The reverence and piety of the Romans were rewarded. The geese by their cries awakened Marcus Manlius, who sounding the alarm, rushed to the spot where the foe was approaching over the sharp brow of the hill, and with the assistance of his comrades dashed the Gauls down the precipice, killing all who had undertaken the surprise.

Shortly after this episode the Roman soldiers who had taken refuge in Veii came to the assistance of their brethren in Rome, and a desperate battle was fought, in which the Romans were victorious and the Gauls were driven from the city. Truly a great result to come from so trifling a thing as the outcry of a silly flock of geese.

Prophecies.

Provide each player with a sheet of paper and a pencil and instruct him or her to write at the top of the page, "I prophesy that," and add on the next line the name of any person present or of any person of note who may be thought of. The top of the page must then be folded over, so that the writing is concealed, and passed to the right hand neighbor, who must write a prophecy, fold the sheet over again and pass it on. The next one writes a date in the not very distant future. Then the papers must be collected and read aloud. There will be as many prophecies as there are guests, and three persons help to make each one. Here is one that was made at a recent game:

I prophesy that Mrs. Pankhurst
And the mayor of Philadelphia
Will ride a tandem motorcycle
At the Panama exposition.

Cat on a Derelict.

The rescue of a solitary white cat from the derelict Norwegian bark Glenmark in the Atlantic was reported on the return of the British cruiser Donegal to Plymouth with the bark in tow. The bark, which was abandoned at sea, was found by the cruiser after a four days' search.

Maddened by thirst, the cat bit a bluejacket who tried to stroke it. But after being given milk it became friendly and now is the pet of the Donegal's crew.

The Stones of Gowrie.

"When the stones of Gowrie come to land, the Day of Judgment is at hand." This old saying, which is familiar to many generations of Carse of Gowrie people, is being much discussed at present. The river Tay, owing to the prolonged drought, has narrowed so much that any moment the "stones" may be found on dry land. Only a few feet of water circle round the base of the "stones," and some of the aged inhabitants, who cling tenaciously to the beliefs of their ancestors, shake their heads dolefully as they hobble along of a morning to see if the "stones have come to land."

ELECTRIC JUMPS.

Sphere Spark Gaps Better Than Needle Point Measurements.

By measuring how far an electric current can jump through the air from one piece of metal to another electricians can determine the voltage of a current, and it is by setting a current to making broad jumps and then scoring the feat with a tape measure that the very high voltages used nowadays are ordinarily measured. But the judges of these athletic feats have recently determined that the electricity jumps much more surely from some marks than from others, just as a man is not likely to jump so well from a mud spot as from firm ground.

Spark gaps, as these jump measures are called because of the great electric spark that jumps across the gap, have been made of needle points. Now it has been found that if metal spheres are used and the electricity made to jump from one to the other the result is more accurate, and sphere spark gaps are replacing the needle point jumps.

Even with spheres to jump from, the athletic electricity is not entirely satisfied unless each sphere is as big in diameter as the jump the current is expected to make. With such spheres the spark of a current of 500,000 voltage will break down when the spheres are a little more than fifteen inches apart.—Saturday Evening Post.

Difficult Telephone Work.

Though nearly 800 miles of telephone wire has been put up in Abyssinia the contractor who is doing the work for the government has to encounter unusual difficulties. Tropical rains wash out the poles, white ants eat away the parts in the ground, and when iron poles are substituted for wood the natives steal them to make tools of. Monkeys find the wires delightful swings, while elephants use the poles as scratching posts and often knock them down. Lastly, the jungle grows so fast that a party of men is kept constantly employed in cutting away the young growth.

The Englishwoman.

Women cannot be lawyers in England, but they can be queens, marshals, champions of England, sextons, churchwardens, constables, workhouse governors, returning officers, overseers of the poor and sheriffs of ashes. And yet the objection of the law society to a woman entering the legal profession is that she is not a "person." Certainly when English law entitles her to fulfill so many functions she cannot be called a "nobody."—Rochester Post-Express.

Marconi announces preparations to connect North and South America by wireless, having secured a fifty year concession from Brazil for a service to New York. This, with the government's plans for a transcontinental service by way of Chicago, should usher in a new era in wireless on this side of the ocean.

A Unique Distinction.

There are few mayors whose family connection with the borough over whose destinies they preside goes back as far as the year 1200, but such is the case with Councillor Robert Cater, the mayor of Huntingdon, Eng. Mr. Cater is a member of the ancient body of freemen of the borough, and the present is the fourth occasion on which he has filled the mayoral chair. He is the proprietor of an ironmongery business, one of the chief establishments of the town. This particular business was founded by his father, who set up for himself on £6 advanced him by an elderly maiden lady in London. Trade grew and the business prospered exceedingly. The lady fell into poverty, and as soon as Mr. Cater heard of it he settled on her an annuity, which she regularly received until her death at the age of ninety.

A "Fine Old Woman."

At a reception one evening a gentleman came to Mrs. Siddons and said, "Madam, I beg your pardon for asking so rude a question, but in consequence of a wager allow me to ask your age."

She replied, "Seventy-eight years old."

"Hang it," said he, "I have lost." And he abruptly went away.

Mrs. Siddons immediately said, "Puppy!"

"Very true," I observed, "but why did you tell him you were so old?"

She replied: 'Whenever a lady of an uncertain age, as it is termed, is asked how old she is, she had better add ten or more years to her age, for then the inquirer goes away saying, 'What a fine old woman!'"—Journals of Sir George Stuart.

West Africa Now Leads.

The Rand will have to take a back seat as a gold producer. An esteemed contemporary reports the gold production of the Ashanti mine, in West Africa, in June, at 9,798 tons, and that of the Abosso mine, in the same country, at 8,049 tons. At this rate West Africa will be this year the greatest gold producer on record. In order that the value of gold may not depreciate too fast, and that Prof Irving Fisher may not have another fit, we hasten to add that the West African gold is extremely low grade; the 9,798 tons produced by the Ashanti being valued at $165,000 only.

Famed For Her Dancing.

Countess Lambsdorff, who in her youth was an enthusiastic dancer, states in her memoirs that prior to her marriage she attended 225 balls, and after her wedding 537 more. At the different dances she received eighteen offers of marriage. This was before her marriage. Afterward 272 men sent her love letters, and a hundred of her admirers threatened to shoot themselves in their despair. The number of dances which the countess takes to her credit is stupendous. Altogether she took part in 2,934 square dances, 4,500 waltzes and 600 polkas, her partners numbering 1,700. Of the latter she describes 1,200 as stupid, 300 tiresome, 120 offensive, 22 nice and 3 witty. Countess Lambsdorff estimates the total distance danced by her at not less than 16,000 miles.

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE WEEK CABLED FROM LONDON AND BERLIN

Tennis and Golf Matches, in Which Americans Win, Engross Berlin Society

Mrs. A. M. Thackara Distributes Prizes in Latter Event and Holds Her Last Reception in German Capital Before Leaving with Husband for Paris.

BARON VON KLEYDORFF TO GIVE CONCERT TOUR

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Oct. 11.

SOCIETY has been deeply engrossed with outdoor sports this week, but, unfortunately, there were strong clashing interests as by an unlucky coincidence the big October tournament of the Red and White Tennis Club at Grunewald and the autumn meeting of the Berlin Golf Club were proceeding simultaneously.

But in spite of the elimination this necessitated, great crowds followed the progress of the two tournaments, and on the day of the finals, which were played off in brilliant autumnal sunshine, both golf links and tennis courts presented a scene of the greatest animation. Of late years the Anglo-Saxon element, to which the golf club owes its organization, has been outclassed by the German.

But notwithstanding this fact Americans were more conspicuous in the tournament and captured the majority of the prizes, which were presented by Mrs. A. M. Thackara to the American winners. Dr. George Webster won the scratch prize, Dr. Charles Hartley the Squiers cup, Mme. E. Kugemann the woman's handicap, Dr. George Webster and Mr. George Martin took the foursome. Mr. Frederic Warren the bogey competition and Dr. George A. Kennedy the approaching and putting competition.

EARL GRANVILLE QUITS CLUB.

Earl Granville, Councillor of the British Embassy, resigned this week from the vice presidency of the club, as he soon is to be transferred to Paris. Among those present at the prize distribution were Captain Hugh Watson, Dr. and Mrs. George Webster, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kugemann, Frau Otto Eysler, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Williams Wile, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Davis and Dr. and Mrs. George Martin.

At the Red and White Tennis Club the excitement was great throughout the week owing to the participation of all the best known German champions. The chief struggle for supremacy lay between Herr F. W. Rahe and Herr O. Froetsheim. It was the former who won the open singles club championship and the championship of Berlin. An Australian team, composed of Mr. B. H. Reid, Mr. C. W. Hicks and Mr. A. W. Joce, also participated in the tournament.

The prizes were distributed by Princess Frederick Leopold of Prussia, attended by Countess Bredow. Prince Karl Friedrich, an ardent tennis enthusiast, was present, as also Count and Countess von Alvensleben, Earl and Lady Granville, Commander and Mrs. Gherardi, Mr. Willing Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ruddock.

BARON VON KLEYDORFF LEAVES.

Baron and Baroness von Kleydorff, the latter being formerly Miss Paula Beach, of Chicago, gave a large supper party after a recital, in which Baron von Kleydorff made his farewell appearance previous to leaving for America to enter upon a concert tour.

He is no stranger to the American musical world, as under his stage name of Egenieff he sang throughout the country several seasons ago in Mr. Savage's English production of "Parsifal." He will be accompanied on his tour by Dr. Jence Kerntler, the Hungarian composer and a pianist of distinction.

A marriage in the German aristocracy of interest to Americans is that of Fraulein Annette von Munchhausen to Baron Hans von Vignau, chamberlain to the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. The bride to be is the third daughter of Baron von Munchhausen, and her mother was Miss Hawk, of Milwaukee, who has large property interests in New York.

Mrs. A. M. Thackara was receiving on Thursday for the last time previous to leaving for Paris. The American Ambassador and several members of the staff were present, as well as many persons well known in American and German society.

Mathern Palace Soon To Be Sold

Mansion's History Is Traced to King Meurig, Who Ruled in the Sixth Century.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

MATHERN Palace, in Chepstow, Monmouthshire, is to be sold by private treaty, having been placed in the hands of Messrs. Collins & Collins, No. 21 South Audley street, for the purpose.

The title of the house has descended from the days of the episcopal lords Marchers, and it implies a certain grandeur in no way reflected by the place as it is to-day. Mathern Palace takes one back to somewhat legendary days in Welsh history, and the spirit of romance which gave the story of Arthur tinges the origin of Mathern as a fiame place.

It is related that Arthur's father, Meurig, ruled the land of Gwent as the sixth century was drawing to its close. It was on the Wye bank, where six hundred years later was to arise the stately Cistercian house of Tintern, Meurig won a great and decisive victory for his folk and for his faith at the sacrifice of his own life. The land around passed to the Church, and the place of the martyrdom of this British saint has ever been known as Merthyr Tewdrig, or Mathern.

A thousand years later an antiquarian Bishop of Llandaff declares that he discovered Tewdrig's tomb. The bones not in the smallest degree changed, the skull retaining the aperture of a large wound, which appeared as if it had been recently inflicted.

The stream that runs through the parish is still known as Meurig's.

After the advent of the Normans the lords of the manor were more often English than Welsh; but it is to Bishop de la Zouche that is due most of the existing fabric of Mathern Palace, though some of its features recall the style of the first of the Tudors rather than the second of the Lancastrians; but when its present owner, Mr. H. Avray Tipping, acquired the property, in 1894, so much of the building had disappeared, and what was left was in so ruinous a condition, that it did not afford any clear evidence when or how it was altered by the successive prelates. The gatehouse that gave admission to the outer court was certainly erected by De la Zouche. The way in is the old one, but arch and tower are gone, except that there can still be seen the remains of an iron hook on which swung one of the great doors, and the stone doorway into the newel stair which gave access to the rooms above. That De la Zouche was its builder is seen from inscribed stones that came from it and are now in the museum at Caerleon. They declare it to have been built in the year 1419 A. D., in the reign of King Henry V.

Most of the refectory is gone, though one of its high windows—four-lighted, arch-headed and transomed—is in the remaining portion, now used as a dining room.

PROFIT IN TOBACCO GROWN IN ENGLAND

Mr. Arthur Pullen-Burry Invents Movable Hothouses in Which to Cultivate the Plants.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

THERE ar efortunes to be made by tobacco growing in England. At any rate that is th eclaim put forward by Mr. Arthur Pullen-Burry, of Rectory Farm, Sompting, near Worthing, who has invented a system of forced cultivation of the plant by which he is able to produce crops of high quality tobacco several times in the course of the year.

Briefly the system consists of large movable hothouses which protect the plant in its various stages of growth, and especially at the time when the "gum" gathers on the leaves.

A number of persons interested in the cultivation of tobacco, who were invited to inspect his system, saw the contrast in size between plants grown in the open and those under the movable hothouses. Put in the soil at the same time, those under glass were more than five times the size of the others, and their value more than correspondingly increased.

There is, of course, nothing new in growing things in hothouses. The value of this system lies in the fact that huge structures, 100 feet long by 60 feet wide, including boiler, tank and heating pipes, are moved bodily from point to point on concrete traverses over the various beds, as occasion requires, by the mere turning of a wheel—as easily turned as the handle of a barrel organ.

The inventor asserts that all the tobacco is grown at a profit, and the houses are used all the year round.

THE WOMEN? LOOK FOR THEM AT THE QUEEN'S

Rebuilt London Theatre Will Have Club Facilities and Tango Teas in Afternoon.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

FEMINISM has taken another step with the reopening of the improved Queen's Theatre. The play itself, called "This Way, Madame," is appropriately named, but the appeal of the theatre to the woman who likes her rights is that it will encourage strolls for women between the acts.

Messrs. Mark and Sydney Blow, who are managing the new theatre, are the saviors of women from the desolation of the interval. Grateful women playgoers will no doubt give them an ovation and remember them in their prayers No longer will it be almost compulsory for a woman to remain wedged in a stall, smiling bravely or yawning desperately, according to her temperament, waiting till the returning escorts, trying to look as if they had not enjoyed their little excursion, come pushing back.

"There will be an orchestra in the foyer as well as the one between the footlights and the stalls," said Mr. Blow, "and we want the lady patrons to stroll out between the acts and enjoy it just as much as the men.

"We shall follow the Continental rule of having our theatre open all day We want the public to drop in just when they feel inclined, as they would in a club or restaurant. There will be an orchestra to listen to, and on certain afternoons tango teas will be arranged."

LONDON IS IN THE CALM BEFORE THE STORM; ROYAL WEDDING SURE TO BRING A RUSH

All Arrangements Have Been Made for the Event, Which, in Its Ceremonial, Will Be Simple—Popular Hostesses Have Now Ended Their Round of Entertaining in Scotland.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

LIKE the calm before the storm, London has been very quiet for a week, but next week will see a rush from the country for the royal wedding. Of course it will be only a favored few who will be actually present, but because it is such a great event everybody who is anybody must be here for the rejoicings and the numerous entertainments that will be given on the occasion.

Everything of interest during the last week or so occurred in the country. For instance, the wedding of the Hon. Victoria Sackville-West—whose pet name, "The Kidlet," was brought so prominently before the public in the recent great Scott will case, and is likely to stick closer than ever—and the first October meeting at Newmarket, many who had been in Scotland and on the Continent coming for the opening day. Perfect weather, more like summer than autumn, favored the day of the Jockey Club Stakes, which will be remembered for the sensational defeat of Mr. August Belmont's Tracery.

Many women wore summer dresses, though it was apparent that red and orange undoubtedly are the fashionable colorings for autumn, and more of them are expected to be seen as autumn advances.

The Duchess of Newcastle wore a coat skirt of purple trimmed with a black braid.

Lady Barbara Smith, who accompanied her, was dressed quietly in blue serge and a black hat.

Lady Cadogan wore dark gray with a black and white hat. Her stepdaughter, Lady Sophie Scott, was in black cloth with a black velvet hat trimmed with white wings.

SOMBRE GOWNS WARM.

The Countess of Arran looked well in her toilette of olive green broche with a boa of silver gray ostrich feathers.

The Countess of Limerick wore a dress and a long cloak of sapphire blue broche and a big blue hat, but those who wore sombre dresses looked and felt overwarm.

The Hon. Mrs. Rochefort Maguire also wore a coat and skirt of cream serge strapped with dull lavender.

On the whole the simplicity of dress was particularly noticeable. The newest toques that appeared were those made of black velvet with the brim turned up in front something like the bow of a gondola and from this springing a big black aigrette of some artificial plumage.

It is with deep regret that the King and Queen will leave Balmoral at the conclusion of their holiday [illegible] even though they are coming [illegible] more than usually interesting occasion. The monarchs are devoted to their Deeside home, for it is at Balmoral that the home life of the royal family is most in evidence. The King, like his late father, is a simple country gentleman and excels in the part. The Queen is no less at home at Balmoral than the King. She has been described by a genial old Scotchwoman who frequently has seen and spoken to the Queen during her sojourn at the castle as "juist the leddy sa a leddy." The Queen acts the part to perfection and sees to the needs of her household. She calls on the cottagers, discusses their business and remembers their children by name the same way as her predecessors, Queens Victoria and Alexandra. She never fails to take a daily walk accompanied by Princess Mary and often by the King, yet she always manages to do a great deal of [illegible] each day.

The [illegible] week the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, Count Albert Mensdorff, who has just returned from his vacation, passed partly in Switzerland and partly in Moravia Count Mensdorff is a distant relation of the royal family, and in that capacity will attend the marriage of Prince Arthur, but not as a member of the Corps Diplomatique.

The King and Queen will arrive at Buckingham Palace from Balmoral tomorrow morning, and they intend to remain in London for three weeks. Then they will proceed to York Cottage, where they will pass the most of their time until they leave for Chatsworth early in December, though before this they will have passed a few days with the Earl of Durham and Lady Anne Lambton at Lambton Castle for shooting.

While the King and Queen are in residence at York Cottage the King will enjoy a day's shooting with Cora, Countess of Strafford, and Mr. Martyn Kennard at Houghton Hall at the end of October. The shooting here is extremely good, and the King has been here annually for several years.

Both the King and Queen have many engagements for their stay in town in addition to those in connection with the royal wedding. Upon the day of their return, for instance, they will be present at the charity matinee at the London Coliseum that has been mainly organized by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt.

Arrangements for the royal wedding are now all settled. It is officially announced that the Princess Royal, mother of the bride, is to be associated with the King in supporting the Duchess of Fife, who will be given away by the King. The bridegroom's supporters will be the Duke of Connaught and the Crown Prince of Sweden. The five bridesmaids will be all royal—Princess Mary, Princess Maud, the sister of the bride; Princesses Victoria Helena of Teck and the little daughter of the Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck.

AT THE CEREMONY.

The King and Queen will drive from Buckingham Palace without an escort, and the bride and her mother will drive privately from Portman Square to St. James' Palace, while the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, with Prince Arthur and other members of the royal family, will walk to the palace from Clarence House.

At St. James' the guests, who will number two hundred and fifty, will include the King and Queen of Norway and members of the diplomatic corps. The ceremony will be the simplest, no change being made from the ordinary wedding service. The Prince and Princess will leave later in the afternoon on a honeymoon, their destination being kept a secret.

It is still doubtful, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary, whether the Duchess will accompany the Duke of Connaught back to Canada after the wedding. She is recovering wonderfully, but there still is fear of a relapse, and it is well known by her medical advisers that the climate of Canada does not agree with her.

Count and Countess Laszlo Szechenyi will soon return to their Hungarian home, where they will pass the winter. The Countess, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt before her marriage, is now quite well again, and her baby daughter, the third, is spoken of as a very pretty child. The Countess has been passing the summer in Surrey, where she and the Count rented a charming old Elizabethan house, Great Tangley Manor, near Guildford. So pleased were they with their holiday here that they have decided to return next year and have taken the place for three months in the summer.

Grand Duke Michael and Countess Torby have many friends among the American set in English society. Mrs. John Magee, who is one of them, had the Russian Grand Duke and his beautiful wife at Erie House for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Magee are better known perhaps as social lights in the Riviera, where they are regular sojourners during the season and where they are notabilities in their own set at Cannes and Monte Carlo. Mr. and Mrs. Magee have entertained in Scotland before now, and this season they were fortunate in obtaining Erie House again from Sir Alexander Baird, as in those days there was much competition for suitable Scotch properties among the American hosts.

LONDON HAS NEW CLUB FOR TEACHING TANGO

Will Open in November as Place Where Members Can Dance All Night.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

ARGENTINA tango teas and the teaching of the Brazilian Maxixe dance, are to be the features of a new West End dancing club, which will be open to members practically all day and night. There also will be a class for the teaching of the two dances, as well as others of a similar character.

The date of opening the club has been provisionally fixed for the beginning of November, and the best Continental musicians, acquainted with the special dances, have been engaged for the orchestra.

Mr. F. H. Payne, chairman of Earl's Court Limited, who is the originator of the idea, said that in support of the scheme he has received scores of letters from all parts of the country. The premises will be in the heart of club and theatre and hotel land.

"It will not be a night club in the ordinary acceptance of the term," he said, "in fact it will be no more a night club than the Carlton or the Reform, which are already open all night. It will be a club to provide the members with entertainment and with facilities for dancing.

"A feature will be the tango teas, and during supper there will be a high class cabaret entertainment, including an exposition of the latest forms of dancing, the Argentina tango, the Brazilian Maxixe, and ragtime, by the finest performers to be found. After supper the rooms will be available for dancing by the members personally.

"I have been fortunate in securing two dancers, each of whom I believe will create a great sensation. One is an Argentine gentleman, who is a member of a very good family named Marquis. He has danced these dances from his childhood. The other is an English lady, Miss Clayton, who has never before appeared in public. Their performance of the two principal dances will, I am sure, dispel the idea that they are indelicate, if not indecent. As a matter of fact, when danced as they should be, they are the most fascinating and graceful movements imaginable.

"An essential feature of the club will be the cuisine, which will be in the hands of the famous Gustave, late of the Savoy.

"I evolved the idea because I found when I opened the Olympia Skating Club, and from my association with people who usually go to the hotels for supper, that there was a strong desire for some place of the sort where they were not obliged to finish their evening at half-past twelve or be turned out, with nowhere to go except places in which they would meet undesirable people.

"Arrangements will be made for temporary membership of a week or a month to suit transatlantic and other travellers, and during the daytime there will be classes at which members may learn the dances properly."

"I can," she answered sweetly, "but the young man I am engaged to assures me that I won't have to."

Substitute Clay Birds for Live Ones in Shoot

Sportsman Arranges Traps on His Estate, Releasnig Imitation Birds That Fly Faster Than Partridges When Levers Are Disturbed, Providing Sport for His Friends.

ONLY WAY TO SCORE IS TO SHOOT QUICKLY

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

THE partridge shooting season, like the grouse, is proving a great disappointment owing to the unfavorable hatching period and the long drought, which killed off many young birds. But Mr. Basil Toser tells in the Daily Express of a clever device of "one of the best game shots in England, a gentleman who has travelled largely and done much big game shooting," to provide sport for his friends.

Shooting at clay pigeons, the same as used at English pigeon shooting contests, may not sound very exciting, but this "sportsman" stocked the hundred or so acres of his little estate, which is mostly hilly, with many banks and hedges, a good deal of undergrowth, several small covers and a number of root fields, with clay birds.

Starting off on their shooting expedition, "we had not walked more than ten paces through the rough stuff," writes Mr. Toser, "when half a dozen 'birds' rose almost simultaneously—three flew straight at us, two skimmed away over the tops of some gorse bushes, the sixth swept right across the line of guns, being finally smashed in mid-air by a clever left barrel from the gun on my right when it was fully seventy yards away.

"There was nothing to pick up, of course, so the moment we had all reloaded we continued our cautious walk.

"'Tchick!'

"A brace of 'birds' had risen ten yards behind us. A fusillade of seven shots greeted them, but they sank down in some long grass, untouched and well out of range. Before we had proceeded another five yards a covey of eight 'birds' rose, each flying in a different direction and at a different angle; some were smashed, but three at least escaped. After that, the 'birds' rose in ones and twos until we had walked about thirty yards, when another covey sprang up at our feet, all, as before, flying in different directions."

"'But how are the traps sprung; what makes them go off?' one of the guns inquired.

"'I thought that would puzzle you,' our host said with a chuckle. 'The traps are sprung by wires attached to little levers hidden in the undergrowth and practically flush with the ground, and if you step within a yard or so of one of these levers it will be depressed sufficiently to pull the wire attached to the trigger of the trap and so release the "bird."'

"Each trap is connected with several levers, so that if you don't tread on or near the first lever, the probability is that you will tread upon the second, or the third, or the fourth, and the instant you do that the 'bird'—or a brace of 'birds' as the case may be—flashes into the air. The greatest difficulty I had was in arranging all the levers so that one or other of the guns must tread upon them, or on most of them.

"Our host told us he found that the best load to use in a 12-bore gun for the clay bird is about thirty grains of E. C. powder and an ounce of No. 7 shot, and that the best way to 'kill' the birds is to shoot as quickly as possible.

"'The waiting game is useless for clays,' he said. 'The only way to make a good score is to snap at them the instant you catch sight of them, for these artificial birds get out of shot so much faster than live birds do. I have arranged on my shoot days that all the traps shall be reset by my men while we are at lunch, and the angles of flight changed, so that in the afternoon we shall be able to get an equally good shoot while returning over the same ground.'"

Every Home Can Have Good Art

Opening of the Dorien Galleries in London Brings Artist and Patrons Together.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

THE opening of the Dorien Galleries at South Kensington inaugurates an experiment in the world of art which is arousing widespread interest. The Dorien Galleries, which owe their inception to Mr. Adrian Gordon, Mr. Ernest H. E. Cox and Mr. E. J. Grasen, mark the first serious attempt in England to bring the artist and the people into touch.

Mr. Adrian Gordon, who briefly outlined to your correspondent the objects aimed at in the opening of the galleries, remarked that there was no feasible reason to prevent beautiful things from being brought into any home in England at the present time—save the obstacle of the middlemen.

"Unfortunately art has been cornered by the purely commercial person in England. Anything which possesses intrinsic artistic value to-day, from a picture to a couch or candlestick, is immediately seized by the intermediate shopkeeper, with the result that the buying public is obliged to pay at least fifty per cent over the price which would be charged them if they bought from the artists direct.

"The object of the Dorien Galleries is largely to abolish this artificial scale of prices.

"If the people deal through the Dorien Galleries they will be able to furnish the household with at least a dozen objects for a sum of money which, if expended through the medium of the ordinary shopkeeper, would only give them a trinket or a miniature."

A large number of most eminent artists of the day have arranged with Mr. Gordon to place their works on sale at the Dorien Galleries, with the object of convincing the people of England that they can obtain the best in modern art at an expenditure below the sum which the ordinary shopkeeper would describe as "cost price."

The whole scheme has been designed on the broadest sphere. The public will be able to obtain anything from an antique bedstead to a Christmas card. Should the venture be a success, it is considered that it will entirely revolutionise art furniture and decorations in England, besides bringing some of the finest pictures by modern artists within the reach of very many who have up to the present been unable to possess objects on which they have set their hearts, owing to the prohibitive prices set up by the middleman.

Preparations are on foot for an exhibition of Blake's drawings, to be opened at the Tate Galleries next month. The display will be opened on October 15, and will replace that of the pre-Raphaelite pictures at present on loan in the gallery.

Judging from the response already received from collectors of Blake relics, it is likely that the exhibit will be the most representative ever held, and all interested in Blake will have a unique opportunity of seeing the greater part of his extant works.

Besides [illegible] water color paintings and tempera prints, there will be a number of books which Blake himself printed and bound. Nearly all the Blake relics now with in England, were few having yet found their way to America. Consequently those who are collecting the exhibits have not far to seek.

Among those who are lending a number of pictures are Mr. Graham Robertson, who possesses an interesting collection at Witley, Surrey, and Mr. John Linnell, who, among other pictures, is lending a portrait of Blake, painted by his father, the famous artist, who was acquainted with Blake in his early days.

It is not generally known that the Tate Gallery possesses some half dozen paintings by Blake as part of the permanent collection. At least two of these are examples of the artist's best work. One is a water color representing David being "rescued out of many waters." The other is a drawing of a fairies' dance, with Titania and Oberon in the background. In the first there are shining cherubims, such as Blake alone could have conceived, while in the second the dancing fairies have the same spirituality and wildness as are met with under another form in "Songs of Innocence."

TILLINGS' IS ROMANCE OF A LIVERY STABLE

Famous London Bus Line Began with One Gray Horse and a Trap.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 11.

TILLINGS, Limited, who were responsible for the motor bus strike, are a firm whose history is one of the romances of South London.

Some sixty years ago, when Peckham was a rural village, the late Thomas Tilling started as a livery stablesman with one gray horse and a trap. This small venture was the foundation of the biggest livery business in the world.

Mr. Tilling later commenced an omnibus service from the corner of Rye lane to Gracechurch street, in the City, the original fare for which was half a dollar return, and the dark green busses were very popular for many years.

One interesting feature was the "Express" bus, which, drawn by four horses used to call round at the private houses of its regular patrons each morning before starting for the City.

The next venture was the "Times" bus, of light green color, which plied between Rye lane and Oxford Circus, a four horsed bus, the conductor of which use to blow a post horn.

Other bus services followed in quick succession from and to the various suburbs, while a large carriage business was also being developed.

For many years the Tillings have supplied the horses for the Lord Mayor's Show, the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, the Army, and at the present time for the Territorials.

Three years ago they had 7,500 horses in their stables. Notwithstanding the advent of the automobile, they still have 5,000 and these include 700 grays, said, to be the finest collection of its kind in the world.

The present heads of the business are Messrs. Richard and Harry Tilling, sons of the founder. The former was quick to see the possibilities of the automobile and can claim the distinction of having run the first public motor bus on the Oxford Circus route.

The firm now own more than two hundred motor busses and have one of the largest fleets of automobiles in London. They are also contractors to the Post Office for automobile mail vans.

Mr. Richard Tilling, however, still favors the horse and may be seen most evenings driving his [illegible] up Rye lane on his way home from business.

Safe Assumption.

Apropos of a marriage that threatened to turn out badly, a society woman uttered an appropriate and very true epigram.

"So Mr. Blanc," she said, "is saying at the club that he's sorry he ever married."

Then she smiled and added:

"Well, when a man tells his friends he's sorry he married it's safe to assume that his wife is sorry too."—New York Tribune.

"How do you want your eggs?" asked the waiter.

"Soft boiled," replied the man, who dislikes the cold storage system. "And see that I get 'em that way. Those you served me yesterday morning were merely tinkered."—Washington Star.

ERRORS OF DEATH-BED REPENTANCE

Sins of a Lifetime Cannot Be Got Rid of by a Prayer.

A MUCH MISUNDERSTOOD TEXT

It Has Encouraged Sinners to Continue In Sin—It Is Folly to Think That the Murdered Sinner Goes to Eternal Torment, While the Murderer, Because of a Death-Bed Prayer, Is Called to Heavenly Glory—A Misplaced Comma Led to the Error—In Conjunction With Other Errors.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 12. — Pastor Russell delivered an address here to-day, taking for his text Jesus' words to the dying thief, "Verily I say unto thee this day, thou shalt be with Me in Paradise." (Luke 23:43.) He declared that few of the Master's words had been so misunderstood as has this text, and that few had produced so terrible a fruitage of sin.

The influence of the text, the Pastor declared, is greatly increased by the unscriptural thought that the dying sinner passes into everlasting torture. Those under the spell of that false doctrine cannot be reproved for wishing to escape from its terrifying influence. As the drowning man grasps at a straw, so those whose hopes for their dead are being help up by this error, grasp at the narrative of the thief, and hope that their departed experienced a momentary repentance said "Jesus, forgive me" and straightway was carried to Paradise. The absurdity of the proposition is crowded out by the mingling of the hope with their love for the deceased.

Well do I remember conducting a funeral service which was interrupted by the wails of the widow. The husband had been shot by an assassin's bullet in a distant mining region. He had died not being a member of a church, and by no means a saint. The poor widow's wails, I afterward learned, were caused by the thought that, not having had a moment's warning, the murdered man had failed to say, "God forgive me," and thus to gain Paradise.

Who can blame the poor woman for the absurdity of her reasoning? Had she not been taught so to think by all the great creeds of Christendom? Had not her husband and herself been taking that very chance of having a moment for repentance before expiring? It is a shame that this wrong thought has been so long allowed to keep people back from making their peace with God in earlier life.

Let me not be misunderstood. I would not discourage a death-bed repentance, or any other. I would, however, have all to recognize that there are fixed rules of Divine Justice which forbid us to think that there is a hell full of unfortunates who died suddenly, with no opportunity for repentance; that there is a Heaven full of lucky murderers, thieves and vagabonds, who were carried to glory without any real change of heart, or character, but merely as a reward for momentary prayer. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Whoever sows a life of sin and self-indulgence will not reap glory, honor and immortality, but a more depraved disposition than that with which he was born.

The supposition that the dying thief asked to go to Heaven with Jesus as a reward for a few kindly words is a mistake. The supposition that Jesus promised that he would go to Heaven that same day is also a mistake. Jesus did not go to Heaven that day. Instead, He went to the Bible hell—Hades, Sheol, the tomb. He remained dead, St. Paul tells us, until the third day, when God raised Him from the dead by Divine Power. It was after His resurrection on the third day that He appeared to Mary and said, "I have not yet ascended to My Father and your Father, to My God and your God."—John 20:17.

The Bible tells that Paradise was lost through Adam's sin six thousand years ago; that it is to be restored as a result of Jesus' death; and the time of its restoration will be during the thousand years of Messiah's Kingdom. Since there was no Paradise when Jesus died, He could not have meant that the thief would be there with Him that day. The claim made by Jesus was that He was to be a King. The thieves had heard Pilate's question, "Art Thou a King, then?" They had heard Jesus' reply, that to this end was He born. But He added, "My Kingdom is not of this Age."

The thief caught the thought that the grand, kingly character beside him was probably the Messiah, the King of Israel. How to explain the circumstances of that dark hour he knew not, but he defended Jesus. Then with a measure of hope he said, "Lord, when Thou comest into Thy Kingdom, remember me." In other words, I believe that you are a King, and that somehow you will yet have a Kingdom. I have sufficient faith to ask you to grant a poor thief a blessing when you reach that Kingdom.

Jesus' reply should be carefully studied. In substance it was, Poor thief, I appreciate your words; and when My Kingdom shall be established, I will remember your kindness and will reward it. Notwithstanding this dark day with its unfavorable setting, I am really a King, and these experiences are necessary for Me, that I may enter into My Kingdom. Thus Jesus said, Be it as you have asked—I will remember you when I come into possession of My Kingdom. "Verily I say unto you this day, thou shalt be with Me in Paradise."

The difficulty has been with the wrong thought of the translators, and the misplacement of the comma. Punctuation is a modern convemence in all languages. There is none in the original Scriptures. The translators put the comma where they thought it should be, but evidently they made a great mistake. It would be thoroughly inconsistent to say that Jesus went to Paradise, when He had not yet ascended to the Father, and when the promised Paradise is to be established in the earth after the Second Coming of Christ, as a result of His Millennial Reign.—Revelation 21:4-5.

Placing the comma where we have done leaves the passage thoroughly in accord with all the Bible. That passage, properly understood, leaves not a shadow of Scriptural support to the thought that a prayer a moment before death would change the everlasting destiny of anybody.

Let us get back to the Bible. Let us get rid of the foolishness of the creeds. Let us remember that a dead man is dead, as the Bible declares. "His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; they come to dishonor, but he perceiveth it not of them." "There is neither device nor knowledge nor wisdom in Sheol (Hades, the tomb), whither thou goest"—whither all go.

But nothing in the Bible suggests that man dies in the same sense as the brute. There is no hope for a future life for the brute, but God's Word stands pledged for a future life for humanity. "There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and of the unjust." "All that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of Man and come forth."

The Bible tells that unless Christ had redeemed the life of mankind by the sacrifice of His own life, there would have been no resurrection of the dead. But from the foundation of the world God purposed a resurrection; and that Jesus should eventually be the Lamb of God, to take away the sin of the world. "As by a man (Adam) came death, by a man (Jesus) comes the resurrection of the dead; for as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive" —"every man in his own order."—1 Corinthians 15:21-23.

Jesus Himself, we read, was the first to rise from the dead—to be fully released from the power of death. Lazarus, Jairus' daughter, etc., were not resurrected in full, but merely awakened temporarily. They fell asleep in death again, and will have in their own due time the Divinely appointed opportunity for a resurrection.

According to the Bible, the Church will be the next in order, and will have a resurrection to spirit nature, similar to that of Jesus; hence the Apostle's desire to share in Christ's resurrection by having a share in His sacrificial death. "For if we be dead with Him, we shall also live with Him."—2 Timothy 2:11.

Next after the Church will come the resurrection of the Ancient Worthies, of whom John the Baptist was the last. Their resurrection was referred to by St. Paul in Hebrews 11, where he declares that "God has reserved some better thing for us (the Church), that they without us should not be made perfect."

St. Paul declares that in the resurrection every man will come forth in his own order, on band, or company. When the due time shall come for the awakening of the generation which crucified Jesus, quite probably both the thieves will come forth from death at or about the same time. Both thieves will receive the blessing purchased for them by the Redeemer's death—to be brought to a knowledge of the Truth, to be helped up out of ignorance, superstition, blindness—by rewards, stripes, punishments—if they will, to human perfection, lost in Adam, redeemed by Jesus.

But there will be a difference between the conditions of the two thieves. Both will be in Paradise; for the whole earth is to be a Paradise. The hardened thief may have had a less favorable birth, or a less favorable environment in life. Only the Lord, the great Judge, is able to know how much excuse should be made for him and how much penalty should attach to him.

The penitent thief will be much more favorably conditioned, not merely because he spoke some kindly words to the Master in His hour of tribulation, but especially because those words indicate that his heart was in a more just and tender condition. Additionally we are to remember that the Lord has especially promised that every good deed done to Himself, or any of His followers, shall receive a special reward. Any such sympathy or kindness would imply a condition of heart not far from the Kingdom; hence the promise of a special blessing for such good deeds bespeaks Divine recognition of principle and character.

It seems difficult to many to think of God's having a provision for the majority of our race in the future. Somehow, the impression has gone abroad that everlasting destinies are fixed at death. The only text ever quoted in support of this thought is a statement that "where a tree falleth there shall it lie." (Ecclesiastes 11:3.) Sure enough, the fallen tree cannot raise itself. And sure enough man, fallen into death, is equally powerless. There he would be forever were it not for the Divine arrangement for his awakening by the Lord Jesus Christ.

Many of us have been too free to believe that the penalty for sin may be entirely escaped by a simple word of prayer, and yet reversely have believed that there could be no forgiveness of sins after death. The only explanation of this persistent thought in the minds of the masses is that they were taught that destinies were fixed at death by the taking of the dying one over to a fiery Hell, or to a blazing Purgatory, or to a blissful Heaven.

After all, in confusion did we not once say that everybody, for a time at least, would be brought out of Heaven, Purgatory and Hell to attend a Judgment scene—quite contrary to reason and the Bible—a Judgment to determine whether any mistake had been made in regard to who had Heaven, who had Hell and who had Purgatory? How foolish we have been—how stupid, how inconsistent, how unscriptural!

Now we see that the dead are simply sleeping until the Morning, when all the sleepers will be awakened by Him who died for all. Now we see that no changes take place in the moral status of the dead as to Divine standards. He who forgave us our sins when we confessed them and forsook them is "the same yesterday, to-day and forever," and will be just as ready to forgive the world of mankind, when in due time He shall send them light and they shall believe and repent.

Surely there is no more reason why a sinner could not be forgiven in the future than that a sinner could not be forgiven in the present. When sinners are forgiven now, it does not mean that they obtain full release from some proper penalty for their sins—sickness, sorrow, pain. Nor will the forgiveness of sins in the future Age mean that no stripes will be put upon the transgressors. Jesus distinctly tells us respecting that future Age that then those who have sinned against knowledge, light, will be punished with many stripes, while those who have sinned with less light will be punished with fewer stripes. —Luke 12:47, 48.

Take for example the son of the widow of Nain, or others of those awakened by our Lord. We know little respecting their relationship to God. This widow's son may have been a good man or a wicked man; but the fact that he had been awakened from the sleep of death by the Master would certainly work no injury to him afterward in the matter of forgiving sins for which he might repent.

God's entire object in providing the Kingdom of Messiah and in restraining Satan and causing the knowledge of God's glory to fill the earth is to give mankind a better opportunity than is now generally enjoyed for repentance and reconciliation with Himself. Now, only the favored few can see, can hear, can understand. Then, all, from the least to the greatest, shall be brought to a knowledge of the Lord and His goodness, and unto Him eventually "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess."

Now we see by the light of the Bible that good and bad, civilized and heathen, all go, at death, to the Bible hell—to Sheol, Hades, the tomb. Now we see that all are waiting for the glorious Morning, to be ushered in by the Second Coming of Jesus. Now we see that only the few have yet had the light and blessing which determines their everlasting destiny, that the overcomers of this Gospel Age will be associated with Jesus as spirit beings in the Kingdom, while the overcomers of previous times will be associated with the same Kingdom as its earthly representatives. In their cases only will the Divine judgment have been settled.

The remainder of mankind, dying in more or less ignorance of God and His terms of acceptance of sinners, are to have their judgment, or trial, during the thousand years of Messiah's Kingdom. The willing and obedient shall be blessed and enter into life eternal. The disobedient, willful sinner will die the Second Death.

Jesus, in speaking of that coming Judgment Day of the world, declared that the Sodomites will be there, as well as the people to whom He preached. And significantly He stated that it would be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the Day of Judgment than for Chorazin, Bethsaida and Capernaum; for if the Sodomites had been privileged to enjoy the preaching of Jesus they would have repented in sackcloth and ashes.

From the Master's words we thus perceive how serious might be our misjudgments of the hearts of men. The people of Bethsaida, Chorazin and Capernaum were regular attendants of the synagogues—decent people, having a form of godliness, but knowing little or nothing of its power. They will have an opportunity also during the thousand-year Judgment Day of Messiah's Kingdom. If they will, they may then learn the lessons necessary and eventually attain everlasting life. But because of their greater privileges, the blessings they will enjoy in the future will be correspondingly curtailed; and it will be more tolerable for Sodom than for them.

Origin of Authors' Rights.

The first trace of authors' rights goes back, it appears, to the year 1655. A playwright named Quinault had written a piece named "Les Rivales." It was his first play, and he offered it to a strolling company of actors, who were not willing to risk more than fifty crowns on its purchase. Quinault then suggested that, instead of receiving a sum cash down, he should be given a ninth part of the receipts taken during the run of the piece. This bargain was accepted, and it proved to be the beginning of what was at first known as "the author's share," and subsequently "the author's rights." — London Standard.

Desert Sands.

There is a popular idea that deserts like the Sahara are the bottoms of ancient seas which have been lifted above their original elevation by geological forces. This notion is an erroneous one. Authorities contend that the sands of all the great deserts have been formed on the spot by the disintegration of the solid rocks on which they rest.

What the Postoffice Does.

The British postoffice will do many curious things. In Egypt it acts as carrier and collector. When sending goods to such places, provided they do not exceed $100 in value, the postman will collect the amount and remit it to the sender for the necessary fee in obtaining a money order. Then, again, letters may be delivered by telephone on Sundays, if sent in special envelopes provided for the purpose. Supposing, for example, that you in Sheffield write on Saturday to a friend in Oxford Street, London. In the ordinary way the letter would not be delivered till Monday; but under the above system it will be opened, and its contents telephoned to your correspondent. Then, again, if you are on the 'phone, you can send a message to a postoffice and it will be remitted to its destination by messenger for threepence for thirty words.

Byron's Queer Eating Habits.

Byron had strange habits with regard to food. "Don Juan" was written largely upon gin and water, and on other occasions he lived for weeks on six biscuits a day, often fasting entirely for forty-eight hours. One slice of bread for breakfast and a vegetable dinner kept him going in 1816, though at times he had to chew tobacco to keep down his hunger. Vinegar and water and a little rice was another of his experimental diets. But he had his moments of indulgence, and Moore tells of a supper at which he ate three lobsters and washed them down with half a dozen glasses of strong brandy.

Wages In Arabia.

In British Arabia a native laborer earns from 12 to 16 cents a day, on which he supports himself and his family.

Wages Go Up In Scotland.

Within the last two years agricultural wages in Scotland have risen at least $30 a year.

A Comparison.

Life is like swimming. He goes fastest and farthest who goes with the current.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use feed the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefit.

Nothing Like System.

"There's nothing like system," said a New York official. "System will accomplish the impossible.

"The director of a recent art show was a fine chap for system. One day he arrived at the show without his pass and the gateman, a stranger, held him up.

"'I have no pass nor ticket,' said the system exponent, 'but I am the director of the show.'

"'You'll have to produce your ticket, sir.'

"'But I tell you I'm the director—high mucky-muck—boss.'

"'I can't help it, sir; I'm forbidden to let'—

"'Yes, I know,' said the director impatiently, 'but, my good fellow, as the director, I give you permission to let me pass.'"—Washington Star.

Scientific Uses of the Radish.

An alcoholic solution of the skin of a red radish serves as an excellent indicator or test for acids and bases. In the presence of acids the colorless solution turns pink, while with bases—alkaline solutions—it turns yellow. It is well known that many plant extracts, such as litmus, and animal products, like cochineal, possess this property of developing marked colors with acids and bases, but no other indicator is so simply made.

$100,000 Bank Robbery Which Ended in Murder and Final Execution of Ringleaders

BY GEORGE S. DOUGHERTY,
Second Deputy Police Commissioner of New York.

WERE I called upon to relate the most thrilling episode in my career as a detective I could think of none to compare with the robbery of a little bank at Union, Mo.; the long and arduous search for clews to the identity of the robbers; the stirring chase that later followed; the hand to hand battle with the ringleaders and their subsequent conviction as murderers, at which function a [illegible] was in attendance, the whole town [illegible] out en fete to do honor to the occasion. I have read nearly every good detective story ever printed, but I think the facts as herein contained make even those heroes of fiction look like amateurs when compared to the deviltry of my pair of desperadoes.

I was seated in my office one morning, at a time when I was in charge of the Pinkerton agency in New York city, when this telegram greeted me:—"Vault and safe of First National Bank of Union, Mo., blown with nitroglycerine; loss $15,000 cash, $100,000 negotiable securities. Evidently work of first class yeggmen. No clews; description meagre. Undecided whether two or four men participated. More definite information later. Investigation progressing quickly and thoroughly."

Here was a job worth while. In fact, it was one that would make any one sit up and take notice. This message came from Chris. Murphy, the chief of our St. Louis agency, and in five minutes I had at my finger ends a minute description of Union, Mo., the scene of the robbery. This story wouldn't be worth reading unless the reader shared my knowledge of Union as it was then.

The Bankers' Directory tells one that Union is the county seat of Franklin, with a population of 1,500 and boasting of two banks—the Bank of Union, with a capitalization of $300,000, and the [illegible] Bank, capitalized at $200,000. The little town is about sixty miles from St. Louis, on the Rock Island, and its principal industry is farming. The town itself is one mile from the railroad, contains two hotels, a number of flourishing little stores and an "opry house." In the very centre of town and facing a quaint and pretty public square stands the County Court House. The sheltering shade of the square makes it a favorite rendezvous for the country folk, who ride or drive into town, and at the numerous hitching posts that stand around are to be found scores of mules and horses, the majority of them with a pair of saddle bags thrown [illegible] their backs. Occasionally a jug may be seen dangling from the horn of the saddle, to which it is tied, ready for its journey back to the farm.

At the lower end of the square and facing it stands the calaboose, or county jail, a low set, strong building with a number of small cells—no living quarters for keeper or jailer; no office, but a big stove, standing in the very centre, throws out heat for the entire structure. Windows alone furnish light for the interior, and through them filter rays from the sun, moon and stars, there being no artificial light in the structure. When the shades of night settle down the little jail is plunged in gloom and the prisoners can find solace only in slumber or meditation.

Directly opposite the jail stands the hardware store of Oscar Busch, above which Busch and his family, together with his aged grandmother, lived. Across the way from the store is the Bank of Union, the second floor of which a physician utilized for consulting room and living quarters. At this time Union had but few saloons and one street lamp. The hotels and saloons were dark at half-past ten o'clock every night and by eleven o'clock rarely could a light be seen burning in the town.

The interior equipment of the Bank of Union was modern in every respect, its safe and vaults as up to date as one would expect to find in a city ten times its size. The vault was a splendid type of the double steel, fire and burglar proof door augmented with a pressure bar. If a yeggman described it he would say the vault was a "double-decker" and the safe "harnessed," meaning the pressure bars were in place in addition to the ingenious combination time locks. Oftener than not the bank had between $90,000 and $400,000 in cash in its vaults and negotiable securities to the value of $150,000 safely locked within. The bank was a never ceasing source of wonder to the visiting farmers as they peeked through the bank windows every Saturday morning, and one and all took deep pride in its wonderful "fortifications" against "Yeggmen." If any of them hazarded the opinion that "that bank can be cracked" he would be set upon by an indignant mob which in chorus would cry, "It can't be did, by gravy."

Christmas the year of the robbery fell on Wednesday. At about half-past one o'clock on the morning of December 27 Mattie, the daughter of Mrs. Boerberger, who lived directly behind the bank, awakened her mother to say that a cupboard belonging to a near neighbor must have toppled over, as she had just heard a terrible crash which denoted the crumbling of crockery. At the same moment Busch, the hardware man, began seeing and hearing things. Distinctly he saw, as he peered from his window, a form moving about in the bank and every once in awhile a dark tear in would flash its rays through the bank windows. Busch raised his bedroom window to give the alarm.

No sooner had he raised his window, however, than a fusillade of bullets [illegible]

tled past his head and buried themselves in the walls of his bedroom. It seemed to Busch and the terrified inmates of his home that at least half a dozen men were shooting at once. He ran to a side window, which commanded an unobstructed view of the interior of the bank, and what he saw confirmed his worst fears. He was held spellbound at the celerity with which the man or men in that bank worked. Their movements were like those of cats, so quickly did they spring from place to place. Busch slipped down into his store, intending to get a shotgun and cartridges from his stock and open fire on the intruders. But evidently the alert and vigilant outside man, or "stickup," employed by the yeggs had divined his purpose, for in a jiffy the weapons of this man belched forth a pitiless fire, which was only drowned by an earsplitting roar that followed an explosion directly in front of the safe, all of which Busch could see as he peered from his window. Windows in nearby houses were shattered and men, women and children sprang from their beds in terror. In a second the whole town was awake, all mystified by the blinding blue and yellow flash that seemed to streak from the bank window and as quickly die out.

Smoke was oozing from the bank door and windows. The side door gingerly opened and the form of a man was seen to emerge. He evidently came out to get air and escape the deadly fumes and gases within. All the while the outside man kept up a pitiless fire from his two forty-five Colt revolvers and all those who had had the temerity to run into the street soon scurried for cover, as the bullets from the "stickup's" pistols whizzed by their ears. This outside guard was a determined, short, thickset little man, wearing a Stetson hat and a dark suit. Seemingly he took fiendish delight, even after the streets were deserted, in sending his bullets whistling through the windows, doors and walls of every house within range.

The man who emerged from the bank soon returned and after a lapse of a minute or two there was a second but less violent explosion, and then all was still for at least five minutes. At the expiration of this period a man was seen leaving the bank carrying a large bag. A dim light within the bank showed that its once and until now impregnable vault door was a crumpled heap and the inside wrecked beyond repair. The two men slunk off in the darkness under cover of a relentless fire from the guns of both and the bullets that the more courageous of the citizens fired from the haven of their homes went scuttling in their wake, but without taking effect. Subsequent events proved that had any of those citizens pursued the retreating burglars they would never have lived to tell the tale, for the yeggmen came with murder in their hearts and it was through no fault of theirs that at least a dozen innocent victims had not fallen pierced by their bullets.

When it was deemed safe the bank's cashier, accompanied by the Sheriff and a number of citizens, entered the bank to view the ruins. A glance showed that $15,000 in cash was gone, together with the more valuable of the securities. The bank was a member of the American Bankers' Association, which at that time was protected by the Pinkerton agency. The bank also was insured for $10,000 against burglary. The association at once instructed us that the bandits must be apprehended regardless of expense. This had been one of the most daring, wanton and brazen robberies ever perpetrated and it was determined that its authors should be seized and made examples of.

As soon as I was notified of the robbery I sent cipher despatches all over the country instructing our men to report themselves to the utmost to run to cover the perpetrators of this outrage. Little did I dream then that it ultimately would fall to my lot to seize them myself and, incidentally, in a fight that at any moment might have turned against me and cost my life.

Subsequent investigation by the swarm of detectives we sent to the scene proved that Henry Soph's horse had been stolen. It was found four miles from Union in an exhausted condition. It stood near the railroad tracks at the top of a steep grade. Its exhausted and winded condition and the sweat marks on its back indicated that two men had ridden it. Evidently the thieves had looked the ground over carefully, as well as timing themselves to a nicety, for in all probability they reached the top of the grade just in time to get aboard a creeping freight train, and leave for parts far distant. The detectives were unable to pick up a single clew to show in which direction the yeggmen fled or anything that might aid in their capture.

The investigation dragged along until the middle of January without results. At this time Charlie Schumacher, one of our best men, returned from Mexico, where he had been trailing a bank burglar. I detailed him to go to Union and start an investigation all his own, placing him in possession of the few facts I had gathered. Chris Murphy agreed with me that a persistent and clever detective should take up the trail from St. Clair, the point where the fugitives were supposed to have got aboard the train after their flight from Union. Schumacher went to the job with vim and snap and on January 29 he reported the first tangible clew so far acquired. He had traced two suspects from St. Clair to the little town of Stanton, which stood in the middle of a wild and desolate country. Furthermore, he traced, by dint of good detective work, the suspects to their boarding place in a mining camp. But they were only suspects, and he, single handed and alone and without warrants, didn't dare to make a move. He returned to Union and procured the necessary warrants and then, accompanied by several deputy sheriffs, returned to Stanton.

As the little posse approached the mining camp a door of the shack in which he had located the suspects opened and a volley of rifle shots rang out. Schumacher fell dead at the first volley, his body pierced with bullets. The deputies fled. The outlaws sped from their shack to the side of the dead man, and after appropriating his revolver riddled the slain detective's body with bullets from his own gun.

What a situation to face! To rob an American Bankers' Association bank of $115,000 and murder a Pinkerton detective! Who could these criminals be? Not the old-time professionals, who "planned up" the protected banks, and seldom, if ever, sacrificed life. The job was too big and too cleverly executed for ordinary yeggmen. The committers of these crimes must, therefore, have been up to date users of nitroglycerine, with the methods of train robbers.

Immediately after Schumacher was shot a new squad of Pinkerton detectives was despatched from the St Louis office to take up the search where he left off.

Co-operating with the local authorities, it was determined that one of the men who murdered Schumacher was "Bill" Rudolph, alias "Missouri Kid," alias "Bill" Andrews, and the other known only as Fred Lewis. Rudolph was a native of the Purbois River, Missouri, section. Lewis was unknown there. Both had landed near the Rudolph homestead before Christmas from Texas. Lewis with a wound on his head. Little was seen of them about Stanton and nothing was known of their actual occupation. After the murder of Detective Schumacher, at the point of revolvers the two stole two horses and drove to the Frisco road, where they abandoned the horses, and all trace of the bandits, although search for them by detectives and a posse was made for several days, was lost.

At the deserted miner's shack the detectives, after an exhaustive search, found in a cistern a flour sack containing $413 in silver dollars, $15.50 in fifty cent pieces, $21.75 in quarters, $78.50 in dimes, $23.55 in nickels and some mutilated coins the latter evidently having been mutilated by the explosion when the burglary was committed on December 27.

In an old stove in the shack a crumple of partly burned paper was found, on which some vulgar poetry was written and signed "Willie Rudolph and Fred Lewis;" also "Fred Ladieu." On another piece of paper was written "George Collins" and on still another slip was found "Hartford, Connecticut."

When the Hartford (Conn.) clew was originally received little was thought of it. I sent two detectives there to investigate with the local police and they returned empty handed. But I was so eager to see these murderers captured that I decided to personally make the investigation at Hartford. There I was assisted by Garrett J. Farrell, now Chief of Police of Hartford, but then a detective, and Detective John Butler, who is now in charge of the Hartford Detective Bureau.

Some information had been procured indicating that Fred Lewis was at one time in the United States Army. He was supposed to have French blood in his veins. Every man known to have been in the United States Army prior to that time and originally from Hartford, Conn., was investigated, with the result that it was determined that several years previous George La Plant, sometimes called George Collins, had enlisted in the army and had been detailed in the Philippines.

It was in the latter part of February that this investigation was being conducted in Hartford. Fred La Plant was reported to have been seen in Hartford in the middle of February in company of another man, who answered the description of "the Missouri Kid." They had frequented saloons there, were well dressed and La Plant announced that he and his friend had made money in the purchase and sale of timber lands in Tennessee. This sounded very much like our quarry. The name was almost identical with the name La Dieu procured at Stanton, Mo. Tennessee wasn't very far from Missouri. The descriptions of the two men corresponded, and with detectives I sent from New York—Frank Davis and Jim Gaby—a continuous search was maintained in Hartford. We had [illegible] kinds of ideas where they might show up. Always visiting the saloons, the streets, public thoroughfares and sporting resorts, we got no definite information until Saturday, February 28. Then a saloon keeper told us he had seen the two men on Asylum street. By this time the newspaper men of Hartford were speculating on what we were doing there and thought that we were co-operating with the police in some private capacity in investigation, so they continually hounded and watched us.

I came near making a grave mistake here. I went into a telegraph office, wrote out a telegram and was about to send it when I observed one of the reporters directly behind me, but when I saw him waiting for me to file the telegram, and knowing he would try to determine its contents, instead of telegraphing I entered a booth and telephoned.

We kept up our vigil until two o'clock Sunday morning, March 2. I'll never forget that night. We got so wet from the continuous heavy rainstorm that we had almost decided to abandon the search until Monday, but I ordered the detectives to follow me and requested the detectives of Hartford to join me in the search on Sunday morning again, which they did, as I had concluded that if these bandits were in Hartford they would spend Saturday night, raining as it was, in some evil resort. These conclusions proved to be correct, for about four o'clock on Sunday morning we determined that they were in the resort kept by May Howard, in State street, and that several local acquaintances were with them. We divided ourselves into pairs. Farrell and I were to get Rudolph, Butler and Davis were to get Collins, and the others were to pick up the associates of both. We knew the men would undoubtedly be armed, and it was our intention to get them in the street, but our arrangements were upset, because Collins, or La Plant, and two strange friends, neither of whom answered the description of Rudolph, emerged from May Howard's house. Rudolph wasn't in sight.

Realising that if the men in the street were arrested Rudolph would get the alarm and probably elude capture, and further realising that any dangers to be encountered in the arrest should be faced by the Pinkerton men rather than the police, I entered May Howard's house, went to the second floor, and standing in the back parlor I saw Rudolph, who was struggling to remove from his waist a holster holding a .45 calibre Colt's revolver. I had a brand new .38 calibre Smith & Wesson revolver in my hand and could have killed Rudolph on the spot. I did not feel that it would be an even break to shoot him down, and I figured that to make a prisoner of him without killing him would be far more creditable, so I seized him, wrenching the gun away from him. In the melee my revolver got out of my hand. Rudolph was a young, powerful specimen of a countryman, more than six feet in height and weighing about 200 pounds. We grappled on the floor, first he on top of me and then I on top of him. We broke a piano stool, upset a stove and smashed a sofa in many pieces.

[illegible] little New York detective named [illegible]lie Meehan had presented me with a pony. I never carried anything of this kind, but for some unusual reason I had this billy in my overcoat pocket, and I remember that while Rudolph and I were still fighting on the floor for possession of either one of the revolvers I reached into my overcoat pocket and got the billy and threatened Rudolph with the use of it. This partly subdued him. Meanwhile the inmates of the resort, in various modes of dishabille, were screaming from windows and its attendants, or lonely men in the place, and the housekeeper, a buxom woman, began blustering me with anything they could lay their hands on and then attempted to get the prisoner away from me. I finally got possession of my revolver and that of Rudolph from the floor. I placed his in my overcoat pocket and "stuck" him up with mine. About this time Detective Farrell and the other detectives, who were having their own troubles with the prisoners on the sidewalk, after a furious battle there, came to my aid and Rudolph and the other prisoners were taken to Police Headquarters.

A search of Rudolph and Collins at Police Headquarters revealed $2,280 in the pockets of the former and $16 stowed away by the latter. Each had a fully loaded .45 calibre Colt pistol, as well as a box of cartridges. From memoranda found about them we arrived at the conclusion they had been living at No. 32 Allyn street. In searching these quarters we found $6,280 in gold and other money which brought the total amount recovered from them up to $8,000. In this room we also found all the fuses, detonators and necessary paraphernalia to crack a burglar proof steel vault and safe. Strangely enough, in Rudolph's trunk was poor Schumacher's gun and other firearms ready for quick work and action.

It was a gala day in Hartford. The news of the arrests spread like wildfire through the city. How they came to see the exhibits! Monday morning all the school children were permitted to view the guns and tools used by these young desperadoes. The "Missouri Kid" and "Black Frank," as Collins was called, became heroes when the Sheriff arrived to escort them back to Missouri. He boarded a ferryboat in Jersey City for New York, and one would have thought he was in the centre of the stage of a big theatre, so deep was the interest manifested in him and his prisoners. Some of the Iron Mountain men came along to help transport the prisoners West. Garry Farrell and I also accompanied them. Augustus Thomas, the playwright, and his son were on the train with us going West, and the former wrote stories for the St. Louis newspapers about the bandits. Reporters, photographers, staff artists, sob sisters and others joined us in Indianapolis to have good stories ready upon our arrival in St. Louis. When St. Louis was reached 10,000 persons were at the station to see the shackled yeggs when they arrived. A suffocating jam here was all along the street from the railway station to the Four Courts prison, where the yeggmen were taken. Chief Kiely, like an Irish warrior in all his regalia, was there with his troop of mounted men and hundreds of men afoot to escort us to the prison. Our stay in St. Louis was brief, for we soon started out for Union.

But Union was also the desperadoes. It was argued that the jail "warn't stout enough to hold them pesky outlaws." The District Attorney got on the job, and he might have been taken for a pocket edition of the martyred Abraham Lincoln. Sitting in the middle of his body, chewing his cud at all times, whittling quite some and saying little. His main help was Judge Booth, of Washington, Mo., especially engaged to assist in prosecuting the bandits. The Judge was a little fellow with curly chin whiskers. He chewed some and whittled a lot. But he knew Missouri and all other law better than Daniel Webster, according to those who professed to know him best. Cassius M. Johnston, the Arkansas member of Congress, had nothing on the Judge when it came to handing out knowledge. After their arraignment and commitment the prisoners were remanded back to the Four Courts prison in St. Louis for safe keeping, as their trial would not start until the middle of March. Their reputation as bad men had preceded them and their keepers were instructed to keep a sharp lookout on them at all times, even though no prisoner had ever escaped from this stronghold.

On July 6 following the entire country was startled to read of the daring escape of Rudolph from the impregnable prison in St. Louis. The "Missouri Kid" had climbed, like a monkey, to the skylight, sixty feet above, escaped to the roof and leaped sixty feet to the street, landing on his feet and walking off apparently without a scratch. Again the world search was on. The same week of the "Kid's" escape marked the beginning of the trial of Collins, alias Black Frank, at Union.

That trial will ever remain firm in my memory. Torrid weather, all the witnesses sitting on benches in Court House square. As they were required to testify the Sheriff—Tom Bruce—summoned them by megaphone from an upstairs window of the court house. It was like an old time baseball game—"August Riegel to the bat; Hiram Henhouse on deck, and Si Perkins to the hole!" Smoking was permitted during the trial. There wasn't a chance of any gunmen sticking the town up and taking Collins away. No, by ginger! Franklin county had appointed special deputies to parade the streets night and day, armed with Winchesters, and a wide awake Sheriff with a big shotgun sat opposite Collins' cell every night that outlaw was in the jail. He, Collins, was the determined looking little man with the Stetson hat who had done guard mount for the other chap on the night of the burglary, and Union's Sheriff took no chances of giving him another opportunity to display his marksmanship. On July 21 the jury found Fred Lewis, alias George Collins, alias Black Frank, guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced him to die on March 17 following.

It is strange how these criminal investigations work themselves out in time. The efforts to catch the "Missouri Kid," who escaped from the Four Courts prison, were vigorously pursued. It was believed Rudolph might follow his old vocation of safe cracking, and instructions were sent to all Pinkerton men in the United States and Canada to procure and forward to New York the photograph of every criminal arrested by them. The February following Chris. Murphy, who had started the investigation at Union Mo., nearly two years before, was in New York as my assistant. On Lincoln's Birthday of that year, with Robert A. and William Pinkerton, we were at the office to open the Western mail, give some instructions and put in a few hours' extra work. In the mail from Kansas City, in compliance with orders, came the usual contribution of photographs of crooks. Murphy had never seen Rudolph, but knew his likeness well. I was examining the mail when Murphy handed me one of the Kansas City pictures and remarked, "Isn't that the 'Missouri Kid'?"

Sure enough it was Bill Rudolph. He was described as Charles Gorney, arrested with Tom Rogers in a dense woods near Paola, Kan., early in February for safe burglary in Leonberg, Kan. He was sentenced to fifteen years in the Lansing State prison.

There was little difficulty in procuring the transfer of Rudolph from Kansas to Missouri, and he was in the Union jail to bid Collins goodby before the later was hanged in the afternoon of March 17. The Sheriff of Union had issued a great number of tickets of admission to the hanging, but the holders, from all over the country, did not show up until after dinner, although the hanging was set down for daybreak.

As the hour for the hanging arrived, the Sheriff, who was up for re-election, having satisfied himself that all of his constituents holding tickets were on hand, it was soon seen that Collins was the coolest man present. In a firm and clear voice, that could be heard by all present, he requested that the red coated band play "The Wearing of the Green" as the trap was sprung. He actually stepped upon the trap to see that it was in good working order just before the black cap was adjusted over his head and told the Sheriff not to be nervous and to make a good job of it. He died after embracing the Catholic faith.

Rudolph was convicted of murder in the first degree just fifty-five minutes after Collins was executed. When he left his cell in the morning to go to the court room Collins, his companion in crime, was alive. When he returned to the same cell in the afternoon, convicted of murder in the first degree, he glanced out of his cell window in time to see the jailers cutting down Collins' body and preparing to put it in the rude pine coffin that sat under him. But Rudolph never winced. Within a stone's throw of the bank he had helped to rob Rudolph was hanged two months later. Those who witnessed this second execution were a unit in declaring "he died a game man."

The next article by Commissioner Dougherty will describe the Clark Jewel robbery, the chase for [illegible] Cabanne and the recovering of $60,000 in securities by a city lot.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Jest That Recoiled

It Ended With an Unexpected Announcement.

By LOUISE J. STRONG.

Ellison had sometimes imagined what "might have been" had Millicent Waring been other than the only child of a multimillionaire—what would have been, rather, for he would have encompassed heaven and earth to accomplish it, and in his inmost heart he had felt that the accomplishing would not have been difficult.

At times wild pictures had presented themselves of the possibility of the beastly money taking the proverbial wings, opening for him the gates to paradise, but in his saner moments he derided such fancies, for with Mr. Waring to the fore there was not the slightest probability of such an occurrence. Instead, he had arrived at a condition where the wings were a necessity to himself if he would retain a rag of self respect. This cherished self respect was suffering considerably now in the yielding that had brought him back, and he had sternly limited himself to a week, even while calculating how often he might contrive to see her in the time without too greatly transgressing convention.

He was hurrying to his hotel to make himself presentable for an immediate call when, as he whipped into the broad, main avenue, a sight presented itself at which he reeled as from a blow in the face. Leaning limply against a doorway, he stared, muttering, "Impossible, impossible!"

His wildest imaginings had materialized before his eyes, but he scornfully rejected the suggested explanations of his reason, repeating again and again, "Impossible!"

He was unconscious of the passing throng and too deeply shocked and absorbed to feel surprise when a hand clapped him upon the shoulder and a hearty voice cried: "Hello, old man! When did you blow in?"

Ellison seized the speaker and drew him around the corner.

"Fred," he demanded, "is that Miss Millicent Waring? My eyes tell me so, but I cannot believe them."

"Sure, that's Miss Waring."

"But—but—good heavens, what's she doing in the confectionery shop?"

"Selling, same as other shopkeepers."

"But why? Of course I see she is selling, but why?" He shook the other vehemently.

"Necessity, I suppose, same as the other shopkeepers again," he grinned, winking at a newcomer over Ellison's shoulder.

"Necessity!" yelled Ellison. "You don't mean—you can't mean"—

"Better moderate your emotion, Ellison," the newcomer advised, indicating a bluecoat who was regarding them suspiciously.

"Of course, boys"—Ellison's voice was a murmur—"of course I know you can't mean that she is obliged to do it."

"Why not? Couldn't old man Waring come a financial cropper, same as thousands of others just as astute as he?"

"The world could come to an end," Ellison jeered, but his heart had set up a sudden pounding that dizzied him.

"Comes to an end every day, dear boy, for those money kings when their little card houses tumble. It's a new world for them and their families, too, after that."

"You bet!" exclaimed one of another couple of youths who had added themselves to the group. "Miss Waring is undoubtedly finding it a new world, all right."

Sundry sly winks and nods were exchanged by the four young fellows, acquaintances to whom Ellison had forgotten to give a greeting.

"Where's Mr. Waring?" he asked.

"Oh, he's around. He's plucky. He'll pull it off again some time in the near future, I reckon."

"She's pulling them in by the handful, too," said Hughes. "She seems a natural saleslady—has the gift for trade."

Ellison flushed resentfully. "But it cannot be pleasant"—

"Oh, her position has its unpleasant features, of course," Strean interrupted lightly. "Some of the 'climbers' snub her, and disapproval riots on all sides, but Miss Millicent carries it off well. She might have married—that is, I suppose so," he insinuated, with wicked eyes.

"Yes, she might have married while the old man's pile was intact," Forrest assented.

"But she didn't. And a wife with prospective millions and one with nothing but expensive habits and passable beauty are two very different things," Strean asserted.

Ellison turned a furious face upon him and half raised a clinched fist; then, mastering himself, he remarked, "I suppose that's the way the world sees it," and strode away.

The four rascals burst into exuberant delight, digging each other in the ribs and chuckling hilarously as he disappeared down a side street.

Ellison had no coherent thought at first as he tore along. The knowledge that the barrier between them was removed dazed him. But soon he began to turn things over in his mind, to even consider the possibility of his own thousands, which had seemed puerile before, now serving as a foundation for a new beginning on which Mr. Waring might build. The other, the infinitely greater possibility of winning Millicent, he tried to keep in the background until a proper hour for its consideration.

Having at last adjusted himself somewhat to the new conditions, he felt that he could trust himself to see her. They shook hands quietly. There was little opportunity just then for words, but there was a humorous yet eager glint in her eyes as she occasionally glanced at his earnest, preoccupied face while she served a bunch of school children.

The four conspirators let her into the secret and departed to spread broadcast the jest, the prank upon Ellison, whose sentiment toward Miss Waring was an open secret. And presently, by twos and threes and in squads, her old friends and former associates began to saunter by. Some purchased of her with simpering patronage, some with a cold nod of recognition, while others passed with haughty, sneering oblivion of her. Some of the smart youths inclined to a familiarity that almost amounted to rudeness.

Ellison noted it all, his heart growing hotter until it burst all restraint.

"Miss Waring—Millicent," he breathed with low intensity as they were alone for a moment, "I cannot bear this! It may be presumption, improper even, for me to speak here—I cannot help it! I am sure you have long known of my deep love for you, though you cannot realize how it is my very life and soul. I have had so little to offer I felt I could not presume to ask you to give up for me your luxurious position, to—but I can provide you with a comfortable home, and my whole life shall be devoted to"—

His stammering speech was interrupted by the laughing, bubbling crowd of conspirators, eager to witness his discomfiture.

"Ha, ha! Look at him!" "Oh, the easy mark!" "Has he offered you his purse, Millicent?" "Ha, ha! The idea of Mr. Waring"—"Failed!" "As if"—"Ha, ha!"

Unheeding the swirl, Miss Waring calmly began counting money from the drawers and piling it in heaps upon the counter. "There," she said at last, "$427.10. That means $854.20 for the hospital from you fellows. You folks who dared me to do this promised to double the amount I took in, you know." She beamed at them sweetly.

"My hat! I never dreamed you'd pull in so much!" gasped Strean. "It's sure up to us, boys! But, oh, Ellison, sonny! Ellison—you—you"— He doubled with joy. "Your face pays for it all! See it now, don't you? Catch on to it? It was such a chance as comes once in a lifetime! Oh, my! Oh, my!"

Ellison perceived and turned a blank, mortified face to apologize to Miss Waring, but she laid a gentle, restraining hand upon his arm and again addressed the gurgling, crowing crowd very sweetly, but distinctly, "I claim your congratulations upon my success as a saleslady, and"—(she blushed adorably)—"and also upon my engagement to Mr. Ellison."

ZAM-BUK CURED ME OF ECZEMA

Mr. Fred Mason, the well-known mattress manufacturer of St. Andrews, N.B., says:—

"I had eczema on my knee, which caused me terrible pain. The parts would itch, burn and tingle, and then when rubbed or scratched, would become very painful. When the knee got warm, it burned worse, and the itching and burning and smarting were almost unbearable. I tried various remedies, but got no better, so I decided to go to Montreal and take special treatment. I received treatment at the Montreal General Hospital for thirteen weeks, but at the end of that time I was not cured, and almost gave in. A friend advised me to give Zam-Buk a trial.

"Almost as soon as applied Zam-Buk stopped the itching and the irritation. I persevered with the balm, and it was soon evident that it would do me good. Each day the pain was reduced, the sore spots began to heal, and by the time I had used a few boxes of Zam-Buk I was quite cured.

"Since then Zam-Buk has cured blood-poison in my finger, and at a time when my finger was in such a terrible condition that I feared it would have to be amputated."

For eczema, blood-poisoning, piles, ulcers, sores, abscesses, varicose ulcers, bad leg, cold sores, chapped hands, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries and diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal.

Thief Proof Bulbs.

The thief proof electric lamp bulb is here, called into existence because of the growing habit of replacing dead bulbs with those unscrewed from sockets in a neighboring office or room. No locks are used, the principle simply being that once screwed in a socket they cannot be taken out without smashing them. Once a bulb burns out it may as well be smashed; so there is no loss by this method, but only the inconvenience occasionally that the owner is unable to put in temporary bulbs of higher candle power. The thief is completely foiled. A ratchet arrangement permits the screwing of the bulb into the socket, but prevents it from being unscrewed so long as the bulb is sound. To remove the bulb, the globe is broken; and a catch is then accessible, by means of which the ratchet may be released.—Exchange.

Train and Track.

The railway station at Galara, in Peru, is 16,084 feet above sea level.

There were 1,011 fatalities on British railroads last year, fifty-nine less than the year before.

A novel signaling system is being tried on German railways. Parabolic mirrors about eight and one-half feet long are fixed on an axle, on which they are revolved by means of electricity. They are "worked" during the day by sunlight and during the night are lighted up by electricity and are discernible at a great distance even during foggy weather.

LADY SWIMMERS.

There Are Now Many Athletic Mermaids Capable of Big Feats.

In these remarkable days her are swimmers—mere girls, many of them—to the number of a dozen at least, who would think nothing of undertaking a twenty miles' swim. Indeed, there is one lady, a dainty little woman who could not touch five feet on tip-toe, who would smile at such a simple feat; for Mme. Isacescu can recall the day, thirteen years ago, when she swam from Stein to Vienna, a distance of forty-eight miles, without once even wishing to leave the water.

And, as if this amazing performance were not enough, she followed it up with another little jaunt of thirty-six miles.

If this petite Hungarian lady can perform such a feat of endurance what may we not expect from such an athletic specimen of young womanhood as Miss Lily Smith, who combines the long-distance speed of Burgess or Wolffe with amazing staying power, a singularly cool head, and a immunity from the sea sickness which proves so fatal to many of her sex.

Miss Smith has many remarkable feats already to her credit. In a fifteen miles' swim through London she left a score of male competitors hopelessly behind, including several Continental champions; and among many other fine performances, she has covered twenty miles between Dover and Ramsgate in a choppy sea in seven hours. Miss Lilian smiles at man's vaunted superiority over her own sex; and certainly if any woman can demonstrate that she is man's equal in the water it is the "Water Lily" of the splendid physique and the stout heart.

Miss Smith, however, has several formidable rivals, notably Miss Annette Kellerman, the beautiful and exquisitely-fashioned Australian lady who made such a plucky attempt to cross the Channel eight years ago, and only abandoned it when overcome by sea-sickness, after swimming for six hours and a quarter.

Miss Kellerman draws a graphic picture of her sensations during this plucky swim. "Imagine yourself swimming hour after hour," she says, "apparently making no progress, indeed sometimes even seeming to be going back; while, try as you will to prevent it, gallons of salt water seem somehow or other to find their way down your throat. Imagine, too, the depressing effect of swimming hour after hour, and the awesome silence—a silence which literally seems to speak—in the long watches of the night, and you will understand why the crossing of the Channel appears an almost superhuman feat."

And these are but a few of the ladies who have demonstrated that they can perform feats in the water of which any man might pardonably be proud. Among others are Miss Vera Neave, holder of all ladies' records up to a mile, who thinks nothing of a swim from Richmond to Blackfriars; Miss Rose Thomas, who has done some magnificent swims in the sea at Margate and elsewhere; Miss Mabel Johnson, Mrs. Kathleen Roberts, and Miss Emily Ong, all of whom can hold their own with good men in a long-distance swim.

Nor must we forget Miss Littlewood, a hospital nurse, who has swum from Sunbury to Kew, a distance of sixteen miles, in eleven hours; or Miss Claire Parlett, who, at seventeen, swam thirteen miles in the Thames in eight hours and a half.

Cardamoms.

The flavoring spices known as cardamoms are not so well known in this country as they deserve to be. In Ceylon, Consul Baker noticed that nearly every tea planter devotes a patch to the cultivation of cardamoms as a side issue. In India the well-to-do classes make large use of them in flavoring curries, cakes and confectionery.

SLAVER SENTENCED.

John White Lured Pearl Martin Away Into the U. S.

CORNWALL, Oct. 13. — John White, a resident of Solvay, was sentenced to one and a half year's imprisonment in the Auburn, N.Y., penitentiary on a charge of white slavery, preferred against him by Mrs. Kate Martin of Milleroche, Ont., in the U. S. Court at Syracuse, N.Y.. U. S. Immigration Inspector G. W. Wood of Cornwall, was in Syracuse in connection with the case.

Mrs. Martin's daughter, Pearl, aged 14 years, was induced to leave home during the first week in September by a Mrs. Anterne of Massena, N.Y., who is a sister of White's. The girl was promised fine clothes and a good situation if she would go to the States. Mrs. Martin had been searching for her daughter ever since, and only located her a few days ago. Mrs. Anterne became frightened of the part she took and helped the mother find the girl.

White eluded the officers for some time, but was arrested by Deputy Marshal Smith in Syracuse, and his sentence followed.

Deaf Aged Man Killed.

GUELPH, Oct. 13.—Eli Stout, an old man of 50 years, was instantly killed while walking on the G. T. R. track near Rockwood Saturday morning, when he was struck by the passenger train which leaves Guelph at 9.40. Mr. Stout, who resided at Rockwood, where he at one time conducted a hardware business, was fond of walking, and at the time the train struck him he was crossing the bridge near Rockwood, and as he was very deaf, apparently did not hear the train coming. The deceased was a prominent man in Rockwood and well known in the district. He leaves two daughters, Miss Eliza and Mrs. Corran.

A Thief Proof Satchel.

Holdups in New York city have inspired an inventor to devise a thief proof satchel for bank messengers. In the satchel is a mechanism controlled by a combination lock that operates bells and a revolver loaded with blank cartridges. As long as the messenger holds the satchel in his hand the bells and revolver are inactive, but should he drop it or any one try to take it away from him the alarm would be instantaneous.

Nurse's Years Of Experience

Proves Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Best Treatment for Kidney and Stomach Troubles.

The trained nurse has even greater opportunities than the doctor himself to watch the action of medicine in specific cases.

For years the writer of this letter has been recommending the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills among her patients, and is firmly convinced that no treatment is so prompt and effective.

This is the most valuable evidence obtainable, and we believe that all who know Mrs. Duffy will appreciate it to the full, knowing that she would not recommend anything in which she had not the fullest confidence.

Mrs. Duffy, nurse, 35 Lewis Street, Toronto, writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for years, and recommend them to my patients for all disorders of the kidneys, liver and stomach. In all my professional experience I have found nothing better." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR, ITCHY SCALP, END THIS AT ONCE—25 CENT DANDERINE

Girls! Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Grow Luxuriant and Beautiful

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every article of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Dandering. If eventually—why not now?

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Hudson Bay Co.'s tug Primrose, reported lost with sixteen souls, is safe on the beach at Fort McMurray.

Eli Woodcock, aged 62 years, who had resided in Belleville since boyhood, was yesterday found dead in bed. Heart disease was the cause of death.

C. Bennett, one of Brantford's oldest residents, passed away yesterday aged 93 years. He was born in England, and his father was a captain in the British army.

Walter H. Rowan, superintendent of the Money Order Branch of the Postoffice Department at Ottawa, was drowned at Rigaud, Que., on Saturday while on a hunting trip.

The coroner's jury empaneled at Guelph to inquire into the fatality to Eli Stout, the old man killed on the track near Rockwood, returned a verdict of accidental death.

The British Government has begun the establishment of a chain of air stations for purposes of offence and defence. The first has been completed at Dundee, Scotland.

Mrs. H. E. W. Nicholson of Kingston will lose her right hand as the result of the accident Sunday night when she, her husband, daughter and Thomas Phillips came into contact with a live wire.

Yellow fever at Carmen and Campeche, both districts in Mexico, from which Americans refugees are coming to the United States, was reported yesterday to the U. S. public health service.

Rev. Amos Campbell and wife of Belleville commemorated the 50th anniversary of their wedding. Last evening in the Tabernacle Methodist Church they held a reception, which was largely attended.

A German aviator reports that he ran his machine into a shower of meteors. There are rocky roads, even in the sky lanes.

A woman's organization in Cincinnati has declared against slit trousers for men. This is not sarcasm; it is just plain retaliation.

These X ray shirts and X ray shoes of which the fashion pages tell may be fine for summer, but how about winter's chilly winds?

It is no surprise to learn that Americans are the greatest consumers of sugar in the world: we use a great deal of it in our politics.

Royalty Nearly Mobbed.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—King George and Queen Mary, who attended a command performance at a London music hall last night, had a narrow escape from being mobbed by suffragettes. The women, who had gathered in considerable numbers, made a lively dash for the royal carriage on its arrival at the theatre, shouting "Women are being tortured in prison."

They had almost reached the carriage when the police closed around, and, with defiant shouts of "Votes for women," were hurled back. The suffragettes were treated roughly by the crowd, but managed to escape arrest.

Trying Rings on Windows.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 13.—Distrusted fiancees in St. Paul have scratched so many show windows in testing diamond rings that the merchants have appealed to the police. Chief Martin J. Flanagan has had to order his men to arrest all persons loitering in front of plate glass windows. One merchant said he would have to place a piece of glass in front of his store especially for ring-testing purposes if the annoyance did not cease.

Boy Falls From Loft.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—While playing in a hay loft in a barn near his home at 160 Sackville street on Saturday afternoon, little Jimmie Lynah, aged 9, fell through a trap door to the floor below and sustained a fractured skull.

The little chap, together with several playmates, had been playing in the barn all day on account of the rain, and had several times climbed up into the hay loft.

The last time, however, he ventured too close to one of the hay shutes, lost his balance and fell. His life is despaired of.

GAME WARDEN FINED.

He and Taxidermist Had Prohibited Bird in Possession.

GALT, Oct. 14.—A novel case was tried at police court to-day. The local game warden came into possession of a rare specimen of insectivorous bird. Another warden discovered the bird at the taxidermist's and traced back the ownership. He promptly laid charges against both the officer of the law and the expert stuffer. The former's plea was that he had found the bird dead in the woods, which plea seemed to the police magistrate reasonable enough, it sometimes happening that a shooter picks up his game dead. The man employed to mount the prize thought he was safe, seeing that his customer was a game warden. Failing proof of actual shooting of the bird by defendants, they were convicted on the lesser charge of having it in possession, and both were fined.

British Soldier Best, He Says.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 14.—Lt.-Col. W. S. Buell, who accompanied the Canadian officers on the trip with Hon. Col. Sam Hughes, to England and the continent, has returned to Brockville. He speaks in high terms of the Swiss and French soldiers, the French cavalry being especially fine, but the British soldier excelled in all the manoeuvres.

Col. Buell stated that the chief general topic of the hour in Great Britain was the Irish situation, and the unanimous opinion was that the condition of affairs was most serious, indeed.

BREAKS A COLD IN A FEW HOURS—PAPE'S

First Dose of Pape's Cold Compound Relieves all the Grippe Misery—Contains No Quinine.

Don't stay stuffed-up!

Quit blowing and snuffing! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages; stops nasty discharge or nose running; relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Duty on Print Paper.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 14.—Customs officers throughout the country were notified yesterday by the Treasury Department to collect countervailing duties on all printing paper valued above 2 1-2 cents a pound imported into the United States. Since the passage of the old Canadian reciprocity act print paper from Canada when valued under 4 cents a pound has been admitted free of duty. The 2 1-2 cents value is now under the new law. Yesterday's order will result in the assessment of 12 per cent. plus the countervailing duty imposed by the country of origin of the paper above 2 1-2 cents a pound.

ERADICATES DANDRUFF; STOPS FALLING HAIR

Others Imitate and Make Similar Claims, But the "Genuine and Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer" is Newbro's Herpicide

The discovery of the dandruff germ as the cause of all hair troubles is not a recent event. Prof. Unna gave the germ theory to the world in 1887 and two years later Sabouraud by his experiments with a rabbit proved beyond a doubt the actual existence of this germ.

On the heels of this establishment of the germ theory came the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. This was the first and only remedy ever prepared in harmony with this theory.

There are other preparations for which the same claims are made as for Herpicide. But the thousands of enthusiastic users testify to the genuine merit of Newbro's Herpicide as a scalp prophylactic. It does as promised. For this reason it has long been known as the original remedy and the only one that is genuine.

Don't be fooled by preparations which are trading upon the marvelous success of Herpicide. Remember you take no chances with Newbro's Herpicide. It is absolutely guaranteed.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications at good barber shops.

The Herpicide Company, of Detroit, Mich., Dept. E., will send a sample bottle and booklet upon receipt of 10c. in postage.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Emerson Darragh To Be Tried For Manslaughter.

WIARTON, Oct. 14.—Emerson Darragh was committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter yesterday. Last Monday night Emerson Darragh, Stewart Haskell, Charles Jones and Thomas Fanning, Owen Sound, came into this port in a launch about 10 o'clock and left for Hyatte Point about two a.m., where their fishing grounds were located. Three of them, Darragh, Fanning and Haskell, had been drinking heavily. Jones, according to evidence given in court yesterday, was sitting at the cabin door with Fanning, and remarked that Darragh, who was at the tiller, was steering the boat all over the bay, and went back to take the tiller.

Fanning gave evidence that when he got there and was seated in a hunched position, he saw Darragh shove Jones overboard. This occurred at Four-Mile Point, and is a run of less than twenty minutes from Wiarton. Haskell last saw Jones sitting down, but being busy with the engine could not see what was going on, but heard some loud words. Fanning shouted to Haskell that Darragh had thrown Jones overboard. Darragh got up, looked around, told Haskell to run ahead and then turn around, which they did, but all they could see was Jones' hat. Jones could not swim. They remained there about ten minutes and called for Jones. It was very dark. They then returned to Wiarton and reported the facts to the chief of police.

Darragh, who was immediately arrested, was tried before Police Magistrate B. B. Miller here yesterday afternoon.

The trial will take place at the Fall Assizes in Owen Sound. Bail was granted. No defence was offered by Darragh. A few years ago he was manager of the Wolverine Fish Co. He, Haskell and Jones own the launch.

TO SECURE DATA.

Roads Commissioners Will Study Local Conditions.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—The Provincial Highways Commission is about to embark upon a series of meetings throughout Ontario in an effort to sense the pulse of the good roads movement, and to learn the individual demands of different localities. Six cities have been settled upon as the convention centres of older Ontario, and here it is the desire that the surrounding counties will assemble their delegates for instruction in the proposed program. It is possible that the commission will in this way gain the necessary material to permit of the House taking action when the Legislature re-opens in the spring.

The motive of all sessions will be educational, and they will be held both morning and afternoon and in the evening if necessary.

The program of meetings is outlined as follows:

Ottawa Oct. 28, representatives from the municipalities in the Counties of Carleton, Prescott and Russell, Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry, Lanark, Leeds, Grenville and Renfrew will be heard.

Belleville, Nov. 4, representatives from municipalities in the Counties of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Durham and Northumberland, Prince Edward, and Peterboro.

Hamilton, Nov. 11, representatives from Wentworth, Brant, Haldimand, Norfolk, Welland and Lincoln.

London, Dec. 16, representatives from the Counties of Essex, Kent, Lambton, Huron, Elgin, Middlesex, Oxford.

Inventor Leaves Nothing.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—Messages from Munich to the Berlin newspapers report that Rudolph Diesel, the famous inventor of the oil engine, who mysteriously disappeared from a steamer, between Antwerp and Harwich, has left his family in a desperate financial plight. It is alleged that Diesel's money was invested in a number of manufacturing enterprises that have not proven successful, and that realization of his position was responsible for his disappearance.

Hearing Is Postponed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 14.—The hearing of Harry W. Jones, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, before U. S. Commissioner Young was postponed yesterday until Nov. 5. His bond of $10,000 was continued. The charge against Jones is conspiracy to transport explosives illegally.

Jones was taken into custody here following the arrest and confession of George Davis, alias George O'Donnell, an iron worker, in New York. Davis was brought to this city, and it is expected will repeat his confession before the United States grand jury, which convenes here Nov. 11.

Bomb Explosion In New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Despite the recent round-up of Italians suspected of being responsible for most of the bomb outrages committed in New York, the East Side was disturbed yesterday by one of the most terrific explosions in years. An entire block was shaken and almost every pane of glass throughout the block was shattered. The grocery store of Candelo Gatto was wrecked. Gatto said he had received several black hand letters recently, but had ignored them. Two hundred and fifty persons were driven from their homes by the explosion.

I've written of the summer girl
More times than I can tell
And on her many charming ways
Have fondly loved to dwell.
I never met her till last week,
And hard 'twas, you'll agree,
But when I had been introduced
She'd scarcely speak to me.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely anoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 335 cars, comprising 7577 cattle, 483 hogs, 1444 sheep and lambs and 451 calves.

Exporters

Good to choice heavy steers sold at $7.35 to $7.60.

Butchers

Good to choice butchers' steers, $6.75 to $7.10; medium butchers, $6 to $6.60; common butchers, $5.50 to $6; good to choice cows, $5 to $5.65; common to medium cows, $4.50 to $4.90; canners, $3.50 to $4; bulls, $4.50 to $6.25.

Milkers and Springers

A moderate delivery of milkers and springers sold at about steady prices, ranging from $50 to $75, and one extra quality cow brought $110.

Stockers and Feeders

Prices for good to choice heavy feeders, 1000 to 1150 lbs., were firm, at $6.10 to $6.65; steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., $5.50 to $6.25; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., $5.25 to $5.75; eastern stock heifers, $4.35 to $4.80.

Veal Calves

Receipts were moderate and prices firm. Choice calves, $9 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $8; common, $5 to $6.50; rough eastern calves, $4.50 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs

A liberal run of sheep and lambs sold at about steady prices. Sheep, light ewes, 100 to 130 lbs., $4.50 to $5; ewes, 140 to 160 lbs., $4 to $4.25; lambs, ewes and wethers, $7.25 to $7.50; bucks, 75c per head less.

Hogs

Prices for hogs were 25c per cwt. lower. Selects, fed and watered, $8.00, f.o.b. cars, $8.25; weighed off cars, $8.65.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Oct. 13.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, receipts of live stock for the week ended Oct. 11 were 5000 cattle, 4800 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 1500 calves. For sale this morning, 3500 cattle, 3700 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 1200 calves.

Today's market was strong, and an advance of 25c per 100 pounds was shown. Trade was active, with sales of full carloads of common bulls at $4.25 to $4.50, and canning cows at $3.50 to $3.75 per 100 pounds. Indications are that the American buyers will clean up the market of the above class of stock.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for butchers' cattle, prices being firmly maintained under a good demand, but choice steers were scarce; in fact, there were none to be had. Sales of full loads of good steers were made at $6.35, and common steers at $5.75, while picked lots of good stock brought as high as $7 per 100 pounds. A few choice, heavy bulls sold at $5.50 to $5.75, and good at $5 to $5.25 per 100 pounds.

Altho supplies of small meats were large, a very firm feeling prevailed in the market, owing to the fact that there was a brisk demand from local buyers for sheep and lambs, as most of them are now providing for their winter requirements, and consequently an active trade was done.

Some of the drovers were asking an advance of 25c per 100 pounds for lambs but they failed to establish it.

A somewhat steadier feeling prevailed in the market for live hogs.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.35 to $7.50; do., medium, $6.25 to $7; do., common, $6 to $6.20; canners, $3.50 to $4.50; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.75 to $6; do., medium, $5 to $5.50; do., bulls, $5 to $5.25; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $80; do., common and medium, each, $45 to $70; springers $55 to $80.

Sheep, ewes, $4 to $4.25; bucks and culls, $3.75 to $4. Lambs, $6 to $6.75.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.75 to $9.

Calves, $5 to $10.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 6200; fairly active; good to choice, 15c to 25c lower; common 25c to 50c lower; prime steers, $8.75 to $8.85; shipping, $8.25 to $8.40; butchers, $7 to $8.35; cows, $3.50 to $6.75; bulls, $5 to $7.25; heifers, $6.75 to $7.50; stock heifers $5 to $5.25; stockers and feeders, $6 to $7.35; fresh cows and springers steady, $25 to $87.

Veals—Receipts, 900; native calves active, 5c lower, $8 to $11.70; Canada calves slow, $3.50 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 17,600; active and 10c to 15c higher; pigs 50c higher; heavy, $8.35 to $8.90; mixed, $8.35 to $8.90; yorkers, $8.25 to $8.70; pigs, $7.75 to $8; roughs, $7.90 to $8.10; stags, $6.50 to $7.50; dairies, $8.50 to $8.90.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 29,000; Sheep active and steady; lambs slow and 15c lower; lambs, $6.90 to $7.30; yearlings, $4.50 to $6; wethers, $5 to $5.50; ewes, $3.50 to $5; sheep, mixed, $4.75 to $5.15.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 21,000; market 5c to 10c lower. Beeves, $7 to $9.85; Texas steers, $6.25 to $8; stockers and feeders, $5.25 to $7.70; cows and heifers, $2.80 to $8.40; calves, $7 to $11.

If Tea and Coffee Don't Agree

Use

POSTUM

A Prominent Physician says:

"If on discontinuing coffee, you feel tired, languid, and 'out of sorts,' the coffee had better be forever discontinued, for you are on the verge of inebriety."

Thousands of people have taken warning and proved what was the cause of their headaches, biliousness and nervousness. (Tea contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

A great many former tea or coffee drinkers, feeling the need of a hot drink with meals, now use

POSTUM

A rich, nourishing food-drink, with a delightful, snappy flavour. Postum is made from prime whole wheat, and a small percent of New Orleans molasses. Contains no caffeine or any other drug.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum requires fifteen to twenty minutes boiling to bring out the rich flavour and value.

Instant Postum requires no boiling, but is made instantly by stirring a teaspoonful of the soluble powder in a cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste.

Drink it instead of tea or coffee,

418 Miners Doomed To Death in Terrible Welsh Mine Disaster

HUNDREDS KILLED BY EXPLOSION IN COLLIERY

Combination of Fire Damp and Dynamite Cause Terrible Catastrophe in Welsh Mine—Loss of Life Frightful.

FIVE HUNDRED CAUGHT

Special Wire to The Examiner.

CARDIFF, Wales, Oct. 14.—It is feared that from two hundred to three hundred miners have lost their lives in a terrific explosion at the Universal Colliery ten miles from here. The explosion came just after the day shift of nearly nine hundred men had gone down to work. It seems it was the combination of fire damp and dynamite and was the most far-reaching explosion in the history of mining in this part of the country. Several miners at the top of the shaft were instantly killed. The head of one man was blown from his shoulders as he stood twenty feet from the mine opening. At 2:15 p.m., 370 men had been rescued. The fate of the remaining 500 in the mine can only be guessed at, but it is regarded as certain that some are still alive. There is fierce strugling at the mouth of the mine for positions on the rescue gangs. Many of the women, wives and relatives of the men down in the mine are fighting for a chance to go down and rescue their loved ones. The police in charge are sending all but the strong men away.

CARDIFF, WALES, Oct. 14. — At five p.m. it was conceded by the mine officials that 418 miners in the lowest galleries of the mine will probably be doomed to death. The fire that followed the explosion spread to the intake air shaft, cutting off entombed survivors from fresh air. At that hour all the living miners had been taken from the shaft, together with a number of dead bodies. Colonel Pearson, Chief Government Inspector of Mines, is here with a detachment of regular soldiers from the Barracks, all working like Trojans to secure the release of miners. Altogether one thousand soldiers and civilians are engaged in rescue work.

CARDIFF, Wales, Oct. 14.—It was agreed that the death list in the great universal colliery disaster might be upwards of five hundred when the rescue was abandoned at 7.30 o'clock to-night.

READY FOR BIG CONVENTION

Delegates to Baptist Gathering Will Arrive Here To-morrow Night and Will Remain in City Until Next Tuesday

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Arrangements are practically completed for the big convention of the Baptists of Ontario and Quebec, which will open in the Murray Street Baptist Church to-morrow night, and which will bring to the City between 300 and 350 delegates from all parts of the two provinces. The delegates to the convention will arrive to-morrow evening and will be at the homes of those entertaining them from Wednesday night until Tuesday of next week.

The convention will open to-morrow night, when the feature of the programme will be an address from the President, Mr. A. A. Ayers of Montreal.

The public may attend the different sessions.

URGES APPOINTMENT OF ASSISTANT INSPECTOR

Medical Health Officer McPherson Brings the Matter to the Attention of Local Board of Health This Morning.

OTHER BUSINESS DONE

The feasability, if not absolute necessity of appointing an assistant sanitary inspector was brought to the attention of the Board of Health by Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., at the regular meeting of the Board, which was held this morning. The meeting, which was called for 9.30 o'clock did not assume material manifestations until 10 o'clock. The belated arrival of two members of the Board saved the situation at the eleventh hour, and the meeting passed from the subjective stage to measurable quantity. Those present were Messrs. W. H. Bradburn, G. H. Duncan, Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., and Sanitary Inspector Spence. Mr. Duncan was elevated to the position of acting chairman in the absence of Dr. W. H. Young. The former consented to accept the honour conferred for the balance of the year.

Another Inspector Wanted.

Better organization and a more consistent application of the regulations pertaining to the Health Department were two of the reasons advanced by Dr. McPherson in respect to the appointment of an additional sanitary inspector. The Medical Health Officer was also of the opinion that boarding houses should be licensed, so as to bring them under the direct supervision of the Health Department. Dr. McPherson would also have the plumbing inspectorate incorporated with the Health Department upon the grounds that it involves a question of sanitation. As it is, the present Sanitary Inspector is required to inspect certain defined classes of plumbing. Dr. McPherson suggested the advisability of having plumbing inspection placed under the control of the Health Department, in event of an Assistant Sanitary Inspector being appointed. The duties of the present Inspector includes the inspection of dairies, bakeshops, hotels and the general supervision of the City's garbage collecting system, in addition to the regular duties connected with the Department.

The matter was referred to a joint meeting of the Fire, Water and Light and Property Committees of the City Council.

Anti-Spitting Crusade.

The matter of enforcing the anti-spitting by-law through the medium of street signs designed to warn the public of the existence of an anti-spitting by-law was left over until next year. Prices on suitable signs were submitted by J. J. Turner and Sons, and several of the local hardware stores. The signs range in price from thirty-five cents to $1 each, according to quality.

Sanitary Inspector Spence received verbal instructions to notify Mr. W. H. Maure of the Peterborough Light and Power Company that the smoke nuisance, which is said to exist in connection with their gas plant on Simcoe Street must be abated. A number of residents who reside in the vicinity, have complained of the inconvenience by the odour of gas together with the large quantity of smoke that is emitted from day to day.

A Shipment Of Six Machines

Local Man's Invention For Straining Pulp

Mr. P. P. Westbye of this City, today shipped a carload of pulp machinery to the Donnacona Paper Company in Quebec. The shipment comprised six machines for straining pulp and weighed 35,000 pounds. They were manufactured by the Wm. Hamilton Co. The machine is Mr. Westbye's own invention. He has the patents in Canada, the United States, and the European countries. Five more machines are now in the course of manufacture.

WEDDING GUESTS ENTERTAINED BY THEIR MAJESTIES

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 14.—There was a gathering of 800 invited guests at Buckingham Palace last night, in the nature of a pre-nuptial family party in connection with the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife to-morrow. Their Majesties personally received the guests who all had an opportunity of inspecting the handsome array of plate and other presents. Among the cherished gifts to Prince Arthur is a plate service from the A. F. and A. M., of which he is a member.

A ST. CATHARINES SAIL-BOAT MYSTERY

Examiner Special:

ST. CATHARINES, ONT., Oct. 14.—A sailboat, with all sails set and partly submerged, was picked up on the shore of Lake Ontario at noon to-day. Nothing was in the boat to indicate ownership or whether a recent tragedy had happened. There was no name on the boat.

Men's Association Is Organized

A number of men gathered last evening at St. John's Rectory, and after pleasant social intercourse, the work of the Church was thoroughly discussed. It was felt that the present was an opportune time for a general advance, in which the men of the congregation should take an unmistakeable part. With this end in view it was determined unanimously to form a "Men's Association of St. John's" to press forward the general interests of the Church. The coming Dedication festival was discussed, and also the approaching Laymen's Missionary campaign, which it was determined to energetically support. Mention was given to the Men's Bible Class, which will be supported. The formation of a branch of the Anglican Young People's Association as an independent society was also urged.

The meeting was interesting throughout and considerable enthusiasm prevailed.

The officers of the Men's Association elected are as follows:

President—Mr. G. L. Cameron.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. W. E. Conway.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. F. Edds.
Treasurer—Mr. C. G. Graham.
Secretary—Mr. W. C. Ackerman.
Chaplain—Rev. Canon Davidson.

These officers, in conjunction with Dr. Holloway, Mr. C. F. Fee, Mr. F. Roy and Mr. Frank Linton were elected as an Executive committee. It was decided that a meeting of the Executive would be held on Tuesday, Oct. 21st, to arrange for the detail of the work of the Association.

A strong effort will be made to bring the men of the congregation into the ranks of the Association.

$2,500 ORCHESTRA FOR ROYAL HERE

Popular Theatre Will Surprise Its Patrons—No Change in Prices

The $2,500 orchestra for the Royal Theatre has arrived in the City and will be installed ready for use for Monday next, Thanksgiving Day, when it will be heard for the first time at 10 o'clock. There are eight pieces in the orchestra and there will be a decided treat in store for patrons of the Royal when they hear the music provided by the wonderful innovation. There will be no change in the prices and citizens of Peterborough should take the first opportunity afforded them of hearing the Royal's orchestra.

EVIDENCES OF A SECOND SUMMER

Belated Bloom of Various Kinds Speak of a Second Edition Of Summer

The editor's desk in the Examiner office looks like the remains of a flower show. Various trophies of the freaks of growth and bloom, due to the projection of summer weather into mid-October, "have been laid on the table."

Mr. W. H. Merrill has left in a branch of Columbian raspberry plucked from the garden of Mr. Robert Glover, 6 Lock Street. This branch shows blossoms, and maturing fruit in various stages, enough if full grown to make a pint of fruit. Scattered raspberry blossoms and fruit are not rare this time of year every season, but such an unusual and wholesale late bursting into bloom is very uncommon.

Mrs. Ernest Lawrence has sent in several branches of choke cherry trees in full second bloom, but slightly touched by last night's nipping frost One of the twigs bears a robust caterpillar bracelet.

Mr. Wm. Henry of the Children's Shelter, contributes a beautiful spray of second bloom of the Lonicera Tartarica, commonly known as the honeysuckle shrub. The original — or first crop of blossoms had been succeeded by the berries; these the robins looked after—and since the sharp frost of about a month ago, the fine weather and rains have put new life into the tree, and it was covered with an October crop of perfectly formed bloom.

While these expressions of nature's second growth activities at this time of year are remarkable, they will not let us forget that in due time—perhaps not very far distant—we shall be shivering in the cold winter and piling up profits for the coal merchants in a way that will perhaps make the coal bin break, not bloom, a second time—next spring.

HOURS EXTENDED.

Commencing Wednesday, Oct. 15th, the G.N.W. Telegraph Company's City office, located in the Grand Trunk Office, George Street, will perform its service from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Sundays, 9 to 10 a.m., 5 to 6 p.m.

WEEDING OUT THE WEAKLINGS

Prospective Changes in Composition of Mr. Borden's Cabinet—Supply of Nationalist Ministers to be Retained.

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—It is generally understood in Government circles here that Premier Borden intends to get rid of some of the weak brethren in his Cabinet at the earliest opportunity, and to bring in at least four new Ministers with a view to strengthening the Ministry, especially in regard to debating talent in the Commons and in platform oratory for the stump, in which the Cabinet is now admittedly weak.

Who Are to Retire.

The Ministers slated for retirement are; Hon. Bruno Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue; Hon. Louis Coderre, Secretary of State and Minister of Mines; and Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour.

Hon. Mr. Nantel is to be appointed to the Railway Commission in place of Hon. J. E. Bernier, whose ten-year term of appointment expires next February. Hon. Louis Coderre is to take a Quebec Judgeship, as was the original plan when he entered the Ministry temporarily instead of Mr. L. T. Marechal, K.C., of Montreal, after the retirement of Hon. F. D. Monk. Hon. T. W. Crothers will be cheerfully elevated to the Ontario Bench by Premier Borden at the earliest opportunity to make way for a Minister of Labour who can at least make some effort to command the favour of the Labour interests.

The Prospective Successors.

To succeed Mr. Nantel the young member for Dorchester, Mr. Albert Sevigny, is the probable choice. To succeed Mr. Coderre, the man in view is Mr. L. T. Marechal. To replace Mr. Crothers, as western Ontario representative in the Cabinet, the call is going forth to Hon. Adam Beck.

Pleasant Evening At St. Paul's

A very pleasant evening was spent last night at St. Paul's Church, when the Young People's Guild met to welcome the students of the Normal school and to give them a hearty reception to the City.

The students on entering were ushered by the young men of the Guild to the Guild room, who issued their card, upon which was written their name and then pinned on to their garment, a most unique device by which the students and young people might become acquainted. The students were then taken to the Sunday school hall, where they were received by the pastor and other officials of the Church. After the crowd had assembled, between three and four hundred of them, the meeting was opened by the singing of a hymn after which Rev. Mr. Pogue led in prayer, followed by an address of welcome to the students to our City by the pastor also. A musical selection was then presented by the orchestra, after which followed a vocal selection by Mr. Gordon Wright, a recitation by Mr. Logan, a musical selection by the orchestra, a piano solo by Miss Elsie Adam, after which a violin solo was rendered by Miss Laura Logan, and a peanut contest. Then ensued a card contest, after which refreshments were served in a most liberal manner and the meeting closed.

A HAVELOCK MAN LOSES HIS BANK ROLL

Railway Man Named O'Brien Is Held Up at the Point of a Revolver and Forced to Hand Over His Money

ROBBED IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—While crossing the railroad yards at the rear of the C.P.R. station in North Parkdale Saturday evening, Joseph O'Brien, a railroad man living in Havelock, was held up and robbed of a silver watch and money by two men, at the point of a revolver.

Mr. O'Brien was only a short distance from the station when the men called to him asking him to step over to where they were, which was in the rear of the Case machine works.

O'Brien did as asked and no sooner was he under the shadow of the building than one of the men produced a revolver, telling him to hand over his property. He gave up his watch and what money he had in his pockets. He was then told to go back to the station while the man vanished among the railway cars.

O'Brien immediately notified the night operator at the station and was sent to Parkdale police station where he gave a meagre description of the hold-up men. One, he said, was about twenty years of age, of medium build and dark complextoned, while the other was about twenty-four years of age, tall, and of slight build.

THE PRISONER'S CHOICE

A prisoner was brought before the bar in the criminal court, but was not represented by a lawyer. "Where is your lawyer?" asked the judge who presided. "I have none," replied the prisoner. "Why not?" queried the judge. "Because I have no money to pay one." "Do you want a lawyer?" asked the judge. "Yes, sir." "Well, there are Mr. Thomas W. Wilson, Mr. Harry Eddy and Mr. George Rogers," said the judge, pointing to several young attorneys who were sitting in the room waiting for something to turn up," and Mr. Allen is out in the hall.' The prisoner looked at the attorneys and after a critical survey, he turned to the judge and said: "If I can take my choice, sir, I guess I will take Mr. Allan."

Adam, a short talk was given by Mr. Keyes on his trip to Europe, another musical selection by the orchestra, a piano solo by Miss Elsie Adam, after which a violin solo was rendered by Miss Laura Logan, and a peanut contest. Then ensued a card contest, after which refreshments were served in a most liberal manner and the meeting closed.

CAPTAIN WAS LAST MAN TO LEAVE SHIP

Commander of the Volturno Jumped into the Ocean With His Clothes on Fire and Was Saved by Ship's Boat

STORIES OF SURVIVORS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

HAVRE, France, Oct. 14.—Ten little babies whose parents if alive are scattered to the ends of the earth have reached here on the French liner La Touraine, which arrived here to-day with the rescued passengers of the ill-fated Volturno. The steamship authorities are at a loss to know what to do with them, but for the present they will be tenderly cared for by the Nuns at the Orphanage here. According to the survivors the first and second class passengers claimed their right to be saved before the steerage passengers. They lost their lives when the lifeboats in which they were lowered were dashed against the side of the boat and fell to pieces. The sailors say they did not have to be driven to duty by their officers. They stood on deck till the shoes burned off them, then jumped into the sea. Captain Inch was the last man to leave the ship. With his clothing on fire he jumped into the ocean and with aid of a life belt he was picked up by rescuing ships' boats. The sailors say there was no truth in the rumour of a bomb explosion.

FALL ASSIZES COMMENCED THIS AFTERNOON

Only One Criminal Case to be Heard—One Civil Case Reached Hands of Jury Soon After Court Opened

$3,000 DAMAGE CLAIMED

A comparatively small docket confronted Mr. Justice Middleton at the opening of the Fall Sittings of the Peterborough Court of Assize. The brilliant October sun had barely reached its zenith when the proclamation signifying the formal opening of the tribunal was made. Among the members of the bar who were present was Messrs. F. D. Kerr, D. O'Connell, G. N. Gordon, R. E. Wood, and A. Grant, of the legal firm of Johnston, McKay, Dodds and Grant, of Toronto.

The Grand Jury, which was empannelled comprises the following gentlemen: Messrs. W. Collins (foreman), J. Browett, W. Coulthard, J. Carlysle, T. Hooper, A. G. Canaugthers, A. Cunningham, E. Desautel, E. Milburn, W. Oliver, J. Walker and W. Whitfield.

His Lordship addressed the Grand Jury as follows:

Foreman and gentlemen of the Grand Jury, I congratulate you upon the absence of any serious crime in the county. Only one case will come before you for consideration. The sheriff's returns show that there are a number of prisoners incarcerated in the county gaol for minor offences. So that branch of your duties will be comparatively light. The one case that you will have to deal with concerns a serious offence. It is the duty of the Grand Jury to conduct a preliminary enquiry to determine whether the accused shall be put on trial in an open court. Another function you will be required to perform is the inspection of the public institutions situated throughout the county. In connection with this inspection I would ask you to give special consideration to the matter of sanitation and fire protection. His Lordship instanced a case which occurred in Sault Ste. Marie some time ago when a prisoner was roasted to death in the gaol because the man who had the key to the premises was not at hand when the fire broke out.

The only criminal case on the list is that concerning Rex versus W. Parsons, a Belmont Township man, who is charged with a criminal offence. At 2 o'clock the Grand Jury retired to consider the evidence connected with the case and returned thirty-five minutes later, with a true bill.

The first case called was that of Benjamin Johnston versus Sidney Armstrong, which involves a claim for three thousand dollars damages and costs of action from defendant, who, it is alleged, wrongfully seduced plaintiff's daughter, Lilace Mabel Johnston. The defendant, who denied the allegation in the examination for discovery did not appear and no defence was offered.

Mabel Johnston, in the witness box, asserted that Armstrong was the father of the child. Mr. F. D. Kerr, who acted for the plaintiff, called one other witness, Benjamin Johnston, father of the girl, who gave corroborative evidence.

Mr. F. D. Kerr addressed the Jury and asked the Jury to fix an amount that would intimate their determination to preserve the sanctity of the home and the womanhood of the community.

"In this case, gentlemen," said His Lordship, in addressing the Jury "your duty is to fix a fair sum that will be sufficient compensation for the wrong involved."

The Jury then returned to consider their verdict.

IMPROVE THE WEATHER.

The business men of George street and the public who patronize them—or would patronize them if they could — are suffering, not without complaint, the necessary interruption of business caused by paving operations. It is felt that the interruption to business might be greatly lessened if there were two shifts put on the work—day and night shifts. With work of the kind it is suggested that it could be done by artificial light, and would be much more speedily finished if it were pushed day and night. We can't depend on good weather continuing; and many think it would be wise to make double use of favourable weather. It would be a ghastly thing if the present disrupted condition of the middle of George street were fixed permanently for the winter by a sudden advent of cold, freezing weather.

CATERPILLARS.

With the memory of the scourge of caterpillars last summer fresh upon us the subject has lost little of its interest or of force in the matter of the lessons taught us. This is an unusual season, with evidence, in many ways of a second summer. In another place in this issue there is an account of belated bloom of various kinds. One, the second blossoming of a choke cherry tree, has a lesson for us. On one of the twigs there is a robust caterpillar bracelet or egg deposit. The lesson to us consists in this. In these bracelets to be hatched in the first warm days of spring, is the danger of an immense crop of caterpillars next year. We all know that in many cases the destruction of caterpillars was neglected with the result that millions of these developed into the caterpillar moth that has laid tens of millions of eggs in the form of bracelets on the twigs of trees. If these bracelets—to be recognized in the form of a brownish ring — generally around terminal twigs—are collected and burned now we shall destroy countless numbers of caterpillars. If we do this we shall be doing wholesale what we shall find it impossible to do after the caterpillars hatch in the spring and begin to destroy every green thing, as they did early this season.

Another lesson in the choke cherry twig with the caterpillar bracelet involves the necessity of destroying these trees wherever found. They are the favourite nesting place of caterpillars. If they are destroyed root and branch another blow will be struck at caterpillar breeding. These trees are no good of any kind and the man who permits them to grow and help on the caterpillar pest should be—"beaten with many stripes."

NO PERIL; NO EMERGENCY.

Conservative journals of the jingo type are still harping upon the German peril—insisting on the grim determination of Germany to fight somebody. Now we have a cock and bull story of German purchasing agents invading France to buy horses for the German cavalry. There is nothing surprising in this. Germany wants horses, and buys horses where she can get them to suit her. This fact does not argue, as is argued by the jingoes, any particular war-like intentions. We have had the question discussed in Canada from time to time of breeding horses for the British cavalry. That did not mean that Great Britain was at once to plunge into war with somebody. Cavalry horses wear out, get old and die, and have to be replaced. The jingoes are always wanting an excuse for incurring military expenditure. It was the cry that Germany wanted to invade and conquer Great Britain, that gave rise to the "emergency" that Mr. Borden pleaded as an excuse for giving 35 million dollars to England to build battleships. There was no emergency because there was and is no hostility of Germany against England likely to lead to war. Germany and England are friendly because it is their interest to be so. Both nations are bound by ties of trade and by ties of royal family relationship, and there is no danger of either turning aside from making money to wasting money in war.

A Peterboorough gentleman who recently spent some time in Germany, took particular pains to find out what there was in the alleged hostility of Germany to Great Britain. In contact and conversation with all sorts and conditions of men, he found no trace of this German hostility towards Great Britain, but a desire for friendly relations for the sake of trade. There was some evidence of latent feeling against France, the smouldering remains of memories of the Franco-Prussian war of a generation ago. But as to England there was no expression of the hostility, of the excuse the jingoes advance to justify large military expenditures, in the interest of manufacturers of battleships, armaments and munitions of war generally. This jingo spirit has imposed the galling burden of militarism under which European nations are labouring. This same spirit in Canada, unfortunately uppermost for the moment, is responsible for mad expenditure of money on our militia, that might be better used in providing the means for national development in productive directions. We need a militia force for the country, as we need a civic police force to maintain order; but there is no need for an army bristling for fight, with not the remotest possibility of a fight. A reasonable amount spent on the militia is wise, but we don't need gigantic expenditures in the interests of militarism.

THE SAME KIND OF AGREEMENT

Mr. James Carruthers, one of the leading opponents of reciprocity, says there should be reciprocity in wheat. The Toronto News says it would be unwise to resist the demand for free trade in wheat. The Toronto World advocates it strongly on the ground that free access to the markets of the United States will break the C. P. R. monoploy. We welcome these distinguished converts to the doctrines which we preached in vain two years ago. But we cannot agree with the News when it maintains that no conversion is no conversion at all. It says:

> "If the trade agreement of two years ago had covered only free wheat it is not likely that the Conservative Parliamentary party would have resisted the proposal. Removal of the duty under existing conditions involves no compact with the United States, nor any limitation of the fiscal or legislative freedom of Canada."

There is no difference between the two agreements except that the agreement of 1911 covered a larger number of articles. That agreement did not limit the fiscal or legislative freedom of Canada. A letter from Mr. Fielding and Mr. Paterson to Secretary Knox accompanying the agreement, said:

> "Nevertheless it is distinctly understood that we do not attempt to bind for the future the action of the United States' Congress or the Parliament of Canada, but that each of these authorities shall be absolutely free to make any changes of tariff policy or of any other matter covered by the present arrangement that may be deemed expedient."

These are exactly the conditions under which the wheat and flour duties will be removed if the Government wisely adopts that course. If there is a compact in one case, there is a compact in the other. The real difference is that as the proposed agreement will be confined in so small a compass, it will not offer so many opportunities for misrepresentation and for misleading the electors. —Toronto Star.

HOW CONSERVATIVES CARRIED THE DAY IN CHATEAUGUAY

Worst Saturnalia of Bribery and Electoral Outrage in the History of the Country

It is regarded as certain that the Liberals will contest the election, even though the majority in Chateauguay, Quebec, on Saturday is 140, on the ground of wholesale corruption. It was the hottest conflict ever seen in the county, and it was the common remark by both French and English voters, "Never before in my life have I seen so many outsiders in the county."

Worst Campaign Since Confederation.

Fearing that legitimate methods would be insufficient, the Conservative machine has waged a campaign of wholesale corruption, the worst that has ever disgraced a Quebec election since Confederation. It has been openly stated throughout the county by Conservatives that "We will win this county if it costs us $100,000 to do it." The opinion of the voters on public questions has been sought by offering them public works more lavishly than any Government could dream of performing for a single county, and by buying of individual votes with sums ranging from five to thirty dollars, although it is commonly reported that as much as $200 has been paid in certain obdurate cases.

One of the surprises to Liberal leaders of the campaign is to find out the class of men who have been corrupted. In more than one case well-to-do farmers have accepted bribes.

His Conscience Tormented Him.

One pathetic case is that of a man who on the night previous to the election drove over to a neighbour's who was known as a strong Liberal, and threw a roll of bank bills on the floor, saying: "There it is; I have not had a minute's sleep since I accepted it. I cannot eat, and my conscience won't let me rest for having done such a thing. You can do what you like in the matter, but I want to feel honest again." His affidavit implicating Conservative workers has been taken, and affidavits of other men in the county acknowledging the receipt of bribes have been received.

Liberals Used Local Volunteers.

The Conservative party had the county flooded with paid agents, while the Liberals depended on the efforts of local members of Liberal Associations. These did yeoman service in whatever time they could spare from their own businesses or occupations.

Most Wholesale Corruption.

Almost every known form of corruption has been run down by the Liberal workers in Chateauguay as final arguments of the Conservatives in their last desperate efforts to defeat Hon. Sydney Fisher. The Liberal workers in the riding had a large staff of detectives watching the Conservative organization, and these, together with the leading Liberals of Chateauguay and Montreal have within the past ten days succeeded in running down what is declared to be the most wholesale system of bribery and corruption ever attempted in Canada.

No two-dollar bill sufficed for this campaign. The Government was determined at all costs to defeat Hon. Mr. Fisher, and the money travelled in bills of large denominations. Quotations for votes soon mounted to unheard of figures.

Evidence of Bribery Complete.

Already the Liberal workers have the sworn affidavits of several wealthy and respected farmers of Chateauguay to the effect that they were approached by Conservative workers who insisted upon bribing them to vote against Hon. Sydney Fisher and forced upon them large sums of money. These affidavits, in each case, are backed by the actual bills handed out by the Conservative bribers, so that the evidence is complete. The affidavits and money were on view on Friday and Saturday at the Liberal headquarters here, together with several hundred bottles of whiskey, which have been collected by Liberal workers from the wake of the Hon. Robera Rogers' gum-shoe artists in this "dry" constituency.

Further proceeding will be taken to expose the wholesale corruption practiced by Conservative workers, and it is by no means improbable that it will be traced directly back to the powers "higher up" sent out by the Government from Ottawa.

Have Absolute Proof.

"We have the most absolute evidence of the 'deliberate and wholesale corruption,'" declared Mr. C. M. Godard, Secretary of the Central Information Office of the Liberal party, when he returned to Ormstown yesterday morning after a night's work with the detectives.

"There has been a horde of Conservative workers going through the riding for the past ten days, and we lost no time in getting on their track. Our Liberal organization, working in co-operation with the local and Montreal Liberals, secured a strong staff of detectives, who have been on the trail of the illegal workers in every polling sub division. They have secured ample evidence of this campaign of crime.

Livery Hiring Failed.

"The Conservative campaign started with efforts to secure every available vehicle wherever the Liberal workers were at fancy prices. They failed because the Liberal farmers supplied us voluntarily with plenty of vehicles. Then the Conservatives fel back upon their familiar arguments of liquor and money.

"During the last twenty-four hours specific evidence has been handed me of several cases where men accepted money from Conservative workers. These men were disgusted at the brazen effrontery of the Tory bribers, and, after ostensibly accepting the cash, they came to our headquarters, turned over the money and made affidavits that it was given them for the purpose of buying their votes. And I can tell you money was not in small amounts. We have sworn evidence as to the time, the place, and the identity of the bribers.

Substantial Farmers Approached.

"The surprising feature is that several of these men who voluntarily came to us in this way are men of wealth, substantial farmers of Chateauguay; the last men in the world who would be likely to accept bribes.

"During only the last two nights," continued Mr. Godard, "we have run down no less than three hundred bottles of whiskey which have been brought into the riding for the purpose of corrupting electors, and we have a good supply of this whiskey as evidence."

THE EVIDENT BENEFIT OF UNTAXED FOOD PRODUCTS

The Underwood tariff gives our farmers better access to the American markets, but does not give our people the benefit of untaxed food. Some Liberal journals having pointed this out, the Toronto News says that they have made a change of front. As the Liberal papers were for nearly a year supporting an agreement which would have given us untaxed food as well as free access to the American market, the News is obviously wrong. If it will examine agin what was said during the reciprocity campaign, by itself, as well as by others, it will see that both aspects of the question were discussed; that the advocates of reciprocity advocated untaxed food as well as wider markets, while the News and other opponents of reciprocity advocated taxed food as well as restricted markets.

But our contemporary is somewhat hard to satisfy. It complains because, as it alleges, the Liberals did not advocate untaxed food. Then it says that The Star did advocate untaxed food, but that this position was taken under excitement, near the close of the campaign.

Here again our contemporary's memory is at fault. Two days after the agreement was announced, The Star discussed the question whether the farmer or the consumer would receive more benefit from the agreement. Our conclusion was that it would benefit both farmers and consumers, on both sides of the line.

That is what we still believe. This continent is an immense storehouse of food. Considering Canada and the United States for the present we have an area extending from the Arctic to tropical regions, and producing food of all kinds, under most varied conditions of season, soil, and climate. It is surely the part of wisdom to facilitate the transprtation of that food from the place where it is produced to the place where it is wanted. That is the object of building railways and improving the country roads. The News, we suppose, is not opposed to railways and good roads. It does not, when a good road is proposed, take the ground that if the road helps the farmer who raises food, it must injure the housekeeper who eats it.

Nor does the News or anybody else contend that it is useless to build railways to carry grain and cattle from the West to the East because cattle and wheat are produced in the East also. Nor does it contend that it would be well to erect a tariff wall between Manitoba and Ontario to obstruct the free exchange of food.

If it is profitable to carry food East and West, to build railways for that purpose, and no to obstruct the traffic by tariff walls, how can it be argued that it is wrong to facilitate transportation North and South, and that the process of transportation ought to be checked by tariff walls?

The United States produce some things, in their semi-tropical regions, which we cannot produce. We can raise more hard wheat than they can, they produce far more corn than we do. The seasons are different, so that even when both countris produce the same things, they are more plentiful at one time of the year in Canada, and at another time in certain States. Again, while in the East there may be certain farm produce passing from Canada into the United States, the process may be reversed in the West.

There are all the conditions for a profitable exchange, benefiting those who have to buy and those who have to sell.

These seem to us to be self-evident truths, and we should not think it necessary to dwell upon them, if they were not obscured by deeply-rooted prejudices.—Toronto Star.

TURNBULL'S

THE BARBER'S GUILE

(By STEPHEN LEACOCK)

"Was you to the Arena the other night?" said the barber, leaning over me and speaking in his confidential whisper.

"Yes," I said. "I was there."

He saw from this that I could still speak. So he laid another thick towel over my face before he spoke again.

"What did you thing of the game?" he asked.

But he had miscalculated. I could still made a faint sound through the wet towels. He laid three or four more very thick ones over my face and stood with his five finger tips pressed against my face for support. A thick steam rose about me. Through it I could hear the barber's voice and the flick-flack of the razor as he stropped it.

"Yes, sir," he went on in his quiet professional tone, punctuated with the noise of the razor, "I knowed from the start them boys was sure to win"—flick-flackflick-flack—"as soon as I seen the ice that night and seen the get away them boys made I knowed it"—flick-flack—"and just as soon as Jimmy got ahold of the puck——"

This was more than the barber at the next chair could stand.

"Him get de puck!" he cried, giving an angry dash with a full brush of soap into the face of the man under him. "him get ut—dot stiff—why, boys," he said, and he turned appealingly to the eight barbers who all rested their elbows on the customers' faces, while they listened to the rising altercation; even the manicure girl, thrilled to attention, clasped tight the lump hand of her client in her white digits and remained motionless—"why, boys, dat feller can't no more play hockey than——"

"See here," said my barber, suddenly and angrily, striking his fist emphatically on the towels that covered my face, "I'll bet you five dollars to one Jimmy can skate rings round any two men in the league."

"Him skate," sneered the other, squirting a jet of blinding steam in the face of the client he was treating, "he ain't got no more go in him than dat rag," and he slapped a wet towel across his client's face.

All the barbers were excited now. There was a babel of talk from behind each of the eight chairs. "He can't skate!" "He can skate!" "I'll bet you ten."

Already they were losing their tempers, slapping their customers with wet towels and jabbing great brushfuls of soap in their mouths. My barber was leaning over my face with his whole body. In another minute one or the other of them would have been sufficiently provoked to have dealt his customer a blow behind the ear.

Then suddenly there was a hush. "The boss!" said one.

In another minute I could realize though I couldn't see, that a majestic figure in a white coat was moving down the line. All was still again except the hum of the mechanical shampoo brush and the soft gurgle of running water.

The barber began removing the wet towels from my face one by one. He pealed them off with the professional neatness of an Egyptologist unwrapping a mummy. When the reached my face he looked searchingly at it. There was a suspicion in his eye.

"Been out of town?" he questioned.

"Yes," I admitted.

"Who's been doing your work?" he asked. This question from a barber, has no reference to one's daily occupation. It means "who has been shaving you."

I knew it was best to own up. I'd been in the wrong and I meant to acknowledge it with perfect frankness.

"I've been shaving myself," I said.

My barber stood back from me in contempt. There was a distinct sensation all down the line of barbers. One of them threw a wet rag in a corner with a thud, and another sent a sudden squirt from an atomiser into his customer's eyes as a mark of disgust.

My barber continued to look at me narrowly.

"What razor did you use?" he asked.

"A safety razor" I answered.

The barber had begun to dash soap on my face, but he stopped, aghast at what I had said.

A safety razor to a barber is like a red rag to a bull.

"If it was me," he went on, beating lather into me as he spoke, "I wouldn't let one of them things near my face! No, sir! There ain't no safety in them. They tear the hide clean of you; just rake the hair right out of the follicles,"—ah he said this he was illustrating his meaning with jabs of his razor—"them things just cut a man's face all to pieces" — he jabbed a stick of alum against an open cut that he had made—"and as for cleanliness, for sanitation, for this here hygiene, and for germs, I wouldn't have 'em round for a fortune."

I said nothing. I knew I had deserved it and I kept quiet.

The barber gradually subsided. Under other circumstances he would have told me something of the spring training of the baseball clubs, or the last items from Jacksonville track, or any of those things which a cultivated man loves to hear discussed between breakfast and business. But I was not worth it. As he neared the end of the shaving he spoke again, this time in a confidential, almost yearning tone.

"Massage?" he said.

"No, thank you."

"Shampoo the scalp?" he whispered.

"No, thanks."

"Singe the hair?" he coaxed.

"No, thanks."

The barber made one more effort.

"Say," he said in my ear, as a thing concerning himself and me alone, "your hair's pretty well all falling out. You'd better let me just shampoo up the scalp a bit and stop up them follicles or pretty soon you won't——"

"No thank you," I said, "not today."

This was all the barber could stand. He saw that I was just one of those miserable dead beats who come to a barber shop merely for a shave, and who carry away the scalp and the follicles and all the barber's perquisites as if they belonged to them.

In a second he had thrown me out of the chair.

"Next!" he shouted.

As I passed down the line of the barbers, I could see contempt in every eye while they turned on the full clatter of their revolving shampoo brushes and drowned the noise of my miserable exit in the roar of machinery.

THE GROCER'S DREAM.

Last evening I was talking
With a grocer aged and grey,
When he told me of a dream he had,
I think on Christmas Day.

When snoozing in his store
The vision came in view;
Then he saw an angel enter,
Dressed in garments white and new.

Said the angel, "I'm from Heaven,
The Lord just sent me down
To bring you up to glory,
And put on your golden crown.

"You've been a friend to everyone,
And worked hard night and day;
You've cared for many thousand,
And from few received your pay.

"So we want you up in Glory,
For you have work hard;
And the good Lord is preparing
Your eternal just reward."

Then the angel and the grocer
Started up to Glory's gate,
But when passing close to Hades
The angel murmured, "Wait."

"I've a place I wish to show you,
It's the hottest place in H——,
Where the ones who never paid you
In torment ever dwell."

And behold; the grocer saw there
His old patrons by the score;
And grabbing up a chair and fan,
He wished for nothing more.

He desired to sit and watch them,
As they sizzle, singe and burn;
And his eyes would rest on debtors
With any way they'd turn.

Said the angel, "Come on up,
There are Pearly Gates to see,"
But the grocer only muttered,
"This is Heaven enough for me."
—The Canadian Grocer.

CONDITION OF THE STOCK MARKET

The stock market has been furnished with the translation of an article on C. P. R. from the Frankfurter Zeitung complaining that there is a want of clearness about the intrinsic value of the stock, which it ascribes partly to the English-American style of bookkeeping and partly to the deficient method of publishing it annual report.

The article reviews the annual statement at full length and concludes:

"The very solid foundation of the C.P.R. makes a reduction of the present dividend (should no crisis befall the country) unlikely. But those who can only see a blue sky in everything concerning this proud undertaking should be reminded of some clouds on the horizon:

Increase of interest and dividends, the growing competition, and, last, but not least, the daily increasing demand of the farmers for freight reductions. It is especially the rural population of the west which is bitterly complaining about alleged excessive rates with favoritism shown to the east.

The Railroad Commission in Ottawa is at times bombarded with such petitions. Perhaps under this pressure a rate reduction would have been considered by the Government were it not that the other railroads would suffer. But they are not yet financially strong enough, and, besides, work with Government subsidies, which there is no intention of endangering. Therefore, this step will probably not yet take place."

IT WOULDN'T KEEP.

"Grand Country you have here, shepherd." "Oh, aye, it's no sae bad; but ye hae tae walk ten miles for a drapie o' whuskey." "Why, why not get a barrel and keep it by you?" "Mon, mon, it will na keep."

Is Critical About C.P.R.

The Solid Foundation of C. P. R. Makes a Reduction of Present Dividend Unlikely

Safety first is an urgent consideration with the railways; but the Canadian Pacific Railway is losing no time in supplementing its protecting agencies, devised to reduce the danger of accident to a minimum, if not to eliminate them altogether. The company has made a vigourous commencement in the equipping of the system with an automatic electric block signal. This is somewhat similar to the ordinary semaphore, which is a white iron or wood standard, some twenty-five feet high, with a painted cross-arm for daylight purposes, and red, yellow and green lights for night use. The track is divided into blocks at the end of which is a signal. A train standing or running in given block, will set the signal in the block immediately behind it, against following trains—thus ensuring perfect safety from rear end collisions. This is the case in double track, but in a single track installation, the signals are so worked that a train in a block will set the signal against following and opposing trains—thus making itself immune from the danger of either head-on or rear-end collisions. The C.P.R. now has these signals operating on its lines between St. John and Mattawamkeag; Montreal and Vaudreuil; Montreal (Place Viger) and Ste. Therese; Rumford Junction and Sudbury; West Toronto, Bolton, Islington and Streetsville Junction; Fort William and Molson; Stephen and Field (B.C.); Crow's Nest, McGillivray (B.C.)—the whole making a total of 638 miles.

The line between Montreal and Farnham is now being equipped as fast as the material can be put up.

PETERBOROUGH BOY BECOMES A BENEDICT

Event Took Place in the Far West —Progress of Mr. H. G. McCrea

The appended article refers to an old Peterborough boy, in the person of Mr. H. G. McCrea. The latter, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. McCrea, 793 Water Street, Peterborough, left for the west about two years ago where he has since assumed the proprietorship of the Hanna Herald. It is evident that Mr. McCrea's efforts to further the interests of Hanna, which is a thriving town in Alberta, are appreciated. The following is taken from the Hanna Herald:

"As a result of the marriage of Miss Lottie Mae Stanley to the editor of the Hanna Herald on Thursday, September 25th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. McCrea was last Monday eveing the scene of the greatest surprises that Ye Editor or his bride have ever had the pleasure of experiencing. The surprise was in the form of a gift shower when about seventy-five of Hanna's citizens gathered at their home on Seventh Avenue to offer congratulations and incidentally to give the newly weds the most enjoyable evening of their lives.

While the guests of the evening were absent, about seventy-five of the citizens of this town had journeyed to their home and filled it with a large collection of the most useful and valuable gifts that any heart could desire. On returning home Mr. and Mrs. McCrea were met by the assembly with showers of confetti, and the piles of gifts which awaited their inspection caused their hearts to overflow with gratitude.

Owing to the limited space which the home afforded so large an assemblage, the entire company adjourned to the Herald hall where addresses were delivered by a number of the busines men and the pastors of the different churches. After the programme, the Hanna orchestra rendered a number of musical selections lunch being served by the hosts of the evening. The evening was concluded by a dance and the guests were launched on the sea of matrimony in a most appreciable manner.

The Visit Of General Booth

The Salvation Army in Canada will shortly celebrate an event of historical importance to that organization in the welcome to the Dominion for the first time of their new General, W. Bramwell Booth, eldest son and successor of the late William Booth, founder of this world wide movement.

Toronto and Winnipeg are the only centres to be visited by General Booth, and extensive arrangements for public and private gatherings are being made.

The General leaves Southampton on October 23rd, and proceeds direct to Toronto, arriving on Saturday, November 1st, where his engagements will keep him until November 6, after which he will go on to Winnipeg, remaining there until November 11th.

Commissioner David C. Lamb, International Secretary and Head of the Emigration Department, Commissioner John Lawley and Colonel Theodore Kitching will accompany General Booth from England.

All the officers of the Army and Delegates in the territory extending from Port Arthur to Halifax, also from Newfoundland, will meet their leader at Halifax, and those from Fort William to the Pacific Coast, at Winnipeg.

THE PLANET WILL APPEAR STATIONARY

To-day the planet Uranus will appear stationary among the stars and remain so for a few days.

On Tuesday Venus will be at her nearest to the sun. The moon will be at the full on Wednesday.

Pegasus (The Flying Horse).

Directly overhead at 9 o'clock at night four bright stars may be seen forming a great square, in the body of Pegasus, which, it would appear has been known as such for at least 4,000 years. Many vivid and fanciful legends have been handed down to us concerning the origin and mighty deeds performed by the "Flying Horse." Until the age of steam and electricity came in, the horse in all ages was the symbol of rapid motion or fleetness on the surface of the earth, and when the wings of the bird were attached to him, he at once became the embodiment of swiftness both in the heavens and on the earth. According to the Greeks Pegasus was tamed by Neptune or Minerva and was a great favourite with the "Muses." He was given a Bellerophon to aid the famed hero in conquering the terrible monster called "Chimera" which name has now in our language become expressive of the fantastically imaginative and the unreal.

The winged horse appears to have been a favourite decorative figure, appearing on many pieces of pottery found in the valley of the Euphrates. He also appears on coins of Corinth at 500 B.C. and on the well-known Hittite seal. The most easterly star in the "square" is the chief star in the constellation Andromeda and has a companion going around it twice in a year and approaching us at considerable speed. The other stars of the square are in Pegasus, which contains many double and several variable stars.

"CASCARETS" ALWAYS STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

If Costive, Headachy, Bilious, Stomach Sour, Breath Bad—Clean Your Liver and Bowels

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never grip or sicken.

FINE WATCH REPAIRING

Cheap watch repairing may appeal to some, but generally speaking experience proves work done cheaply is generally done poorly, and in the end is the final ruin of a good watch. We have first-class workmen and do only high-class work. No other place can do any better. Our charges are no higher than others, for good work. If you have a good watch you will find it economical to have us do your repairing.

Particulars Of Death Of Walter Jayes

From the Buffalo papers further particulars have been received of the death of Walter Jayes, of Peterborough, and well known to local baseball fans. The Advertiser says:

"Walter Jayes, aged twenty-eight years, a popular and well known young local man, died on Sunday in a hospital in Warren, Pa., after an operation. The news of his untimely death was a great shock to all who knew him.

The deceased was a minor league baseball player and was playing in Warren, Pa. on Saturday. He was riding in an automobile that day when the machine hit an obstacle, breaking the wind shield. The glass flew and a piece struck him in the eye. He was up and about and dressed the injury after the accident.

A vast swelling appeared later and on Sunday he went to an hospital, where an operation was performed to relieve him, but in spite of this he passed away.

He had been hit on the head by a ball three years ago, and that injury combined with the new one, is thought to have created fatal complications.

The Buffalo News says:

Walter, or as he was better known, "Wally" Jayes, the well known baseball player of this city, was so badly hurt in an automobile accident at Warren, Pa., that he died Sunday night. Jayes played with several semi-pro teams around Buffalo, starting with the Brooklyns. He played professionally one season with the Green Bay team of the Southern Wisconsin League. Two years ago he managed the Delmore football team. He was an outfielder.

A Sweater Coat For The Boys In The Well Known "PENMAN" Make 59c

Being a Purchase of Factory Overmakes, Valued at $1.00 and $1.25.

The probability is that as soon as the weather becomes colder, or when he wants to go skating or tobogganing the boy will feel the need of a warm, close-fitting garment like these Sweater Coats. And this "Penman" line is one of the best purchases our Annex buyer has made in a long time, because the coats are all $1.00 and $1.25 lines, the heavy wool yarn of which they are made being most comforting in chilly weather, to say nothing of the durability of such a good class of knitted coat. About half of them are made with high button collar, the remainder being—some with reversible turn down collar and others with the V-shaped for wear beneath the boy's ordinary coat. There is an excellent selection of colourings, popular choice generally resting upon the garnet and grey; grey with fawn or navy; and castor with brown. Your attention is directed to the Window Display on Tuesdays evening and Wed. which will reveal at a glance the extraordinary purchasing power of 59c in the buying of these Boy' Sweater Coats.

Horse And Buggy Stolen

LINDSAY, Oct. 14.— A horse and buggy belonging to Mr. Frank Curtain, a farmer in Ops, was stolen from in front of the King Edward Hotel here at 8 o'clock last night. The Chief of Police gives the following description of the outfit: Dark brown mare, with white star in the forehead and narow white strip on the face; five years old; a Clyde, fifteen hands high; weighs about 1,200 pounds; new buggy, Sinclair make, black gear and black body, steel tires; single harness (not new), breast collar and overcheck.

Health and Beauty Hints

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

Grace: Certainly that brittleness of hair and your dandruff are dangerous conditions and should be corrected quickly by a proper shampoo. Get some canthrox from your druggist and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, then pour this mixture on the head slowly and rub well. This makes an abundance of rich, cleansing lather, and rinsing leaves the scalp and hair wonderfully sweet and clean. These shampoos are very soothing to tender, itchy scalps and so invigorate the hair roots that a growth of glossy, fluffy, even-coloured hair results. Canthrox shampoos are invaluable to the finest growth of hair and prevent as well as overcome all scalp and hair difficulties.

Mrs. X.: With a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water, you can soon rid the skin of every trace of hair. This paste should be left on the skin for two or three minutes, then removed, after which wash off the remaining delatone and you will have a clear, spotless, hairless skin.

Gloria: I always use a crystos tonic for my eyes when they are weak, watery and inflamed. I buy an ounce crystos from my druggist and put into one pint clear water, then place two or three drops in each eye a few times a day until they are strong again. This eye tonic is also very good for granulated lids and will give a sparkle and delightful expression to dull, expressionless eyes.

Jamie: I made a splendid hair and scalp tonic at small expense by putting one ounce quinsoin into one-half pint water. Until I cured my head of dandruff I used to rub a little of this on the scalp frequently and it soon banished both dandruff and excess oiliness. This quinsoin tonic stopped the itching, burning sensation and made my scalp clean, healthy and pliant, so my hair grew soft and fluffy and took on a beautiful lustre and rich, even colour.

Cleo: Your friend's suggestion to take the kardene blood cleanser and system tonic is excellent advice and you will find a course of this treatment will banish the run-down feeling as well as the pimply condition of your skin. This old-time household remedy can be prepared at little cost by dissolving one ounce kardene in one-half pint alcohol (not whisky), then adding one-half cupful sugar and enough hot water to make a full quart. The dose is a tablespoonful before each meal. The kardene is especially fine to clear the skin of pimples, blotches and sallowness, as well as to tone your system to full health and strength.

Teacher: In your case the wrinkles and lines in your skin are probably caused by its extreme dryness. To remove them use this preparation which you can make for yourself, which will act rapidly and restore the softness and natural tone to the skin. Get an ounce of almonoin at the drug store and dissolve it in one-half pint cold water, adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply this before retiring and leave over night. This will remove wrinkles, prevent crow's feet and make your face soft and satiny. Since it has removed my crow's feet I use it to clear and whiten my skin.

Chubby: I reduced to normal by use of the parnotis treatment which was recommended to me several years ago by my family doctor, and when I found that it greatly reduced my weight and restored my youthful figure without the slightest inconvenience or ill effect. I began recommending it to my friends and readers. To prepare this treatment dissolve four ounces parnotis in one and one-half pints hot water, then take a tablespoonful before meals. You will find that when your weight is where you want it the flesh will be firm and the skin free from wrinkles.

Girlie: I have rejuvenated my complexion and again have the velvety rose-tint skin of my girlhood. I stopped using powder and now use this simple, inexpensive lotion: In one-half pint witch hazel or hot water dissolve four ounces spurmax, then add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. This lotion dries quickly after being applied and is invisible. Use it on the face, neck, arms and hands and it will impart to the skin that youthful purity and exquisite tint it is impossible to obtain any other way. It is excellent for chaps, cold sores and to protect against fall winds and dispels the oily, sallow, rough condition in a very short time.

ENJOYING ILL HEALTH

By RUTH CAMERON

There is inquestionably such a thing as enjoying ill health. Or perhaps I should put it less harshly, and say, making a vocation of ill health.

If you should use that phrase to the people whose way of living it describes, they would be highly indignant. Oh would some power the giftie gie them to listen to themselves, and hear the peculiar gusto with which they speak of "one of my headaches," "my diet," "my rheumatism," "one of those bad attacks I'm subject to," etc., etc.

In all the world there is nothing so joyless as such enjoyment.

The people who indulge in it have my profoundest pity.

For they are unhappily caught in a vicious circle. The medicine they most need is a mental effort, and that mental effort, by the very nature of their disease, it is peculiarly hard for them to make.

When the doctor says that there is nothing the matter with anyone except nerves, the patient's relatives often take that to mean that there is nothing the matter with her at all. In reality it means that she has a disease which is as difficult to cure as many organic troubles.

When we are told that anyone has the opium or some other drug habit fastened upon him we realize that he has a terrible disease which excites our greatest pity and requires the most careful treatment. Now the habit of enjoying poor health is just as deadly and insistent a disease, and the poor unfortunate who has drifted into this cruel habit deserves just as much pity and just as careful treatment.

And for what he does while under the domination of that habit, for his gloomy ways, his distressing pessimism and his miserable self-centredness, he does not deserve blame, only pity.

The fault committed, if fault there was, lay in letting himself drift into the habit.

It is terribly hard to get out of this peculiar state of mind.

It is only about one hundredth part as hard not to get into it.

Even as I write, I know hundreds of thousands of women are drifting that way.

You, reader friend, may be one of them.

Then don't do it. Whether it's neuritis, or nervous indigestion, or sleeplessness, or headache, or queer feelings, or depression, or any one of the innumerable forms which the devil nerves know how to assume, stop now.

Don't be so tense. Relax. Cultivate serenity. Don't hurry, but don't be idle. Have plenty to take up your mind and keep you occupied but don't crowd yourself.

If there is any organic manifestation such as indigestion, treat that with rest, diet and as little medicine as possible. Then attend to the nerves which caused the trouble. But above all things, don't get into the habit of watching yourself and your symptoms as a cat watches a mouse. Don't enjoy ill health or make a vocation of it.

People who absolutely cannot afford to have nervous trouble almost never do. But one of these people. A friend of mine declares that if nerves were a prison offence we should not need any more nerve specialists. I think he's pretty near right, don't you?

Welcomed Rev. J. J. O'Brien

The members of the Sacred Heart Total Abstinence Society, at their regular meeting on Sunday afternoon extended a cordial welcome to Rev. J. J. O'Brien, who succeeds Bishop O'Brien as Spiritual Adviser of the Society. The meeting was very largely attended and was honoured by a visit from His Lordship.

Rev. Father O'Brien was taken completely by surprise, when Mr. N. Bibby read the following address of welcome to him:

Reverend and Dear Father,— The members of the Total Abstinence Society of the Church of the Sacred Heart extend to you a most cordial welcome on this, the first visit of your pastorate.

The memorable events and changes that have taken place in the diocese of Peterborough during the past past month have centred particularly in this parish. Our late pastor and beloved Spiritual Adviser was chosen to succeed to the episcopacy, an honour and dignity that reflected upon the people to whom he had ministered. Then came the announcement of your appointment to the parish of the Sacred Heart, the first official notification from His Lordship to the former flock of his priesthood. No stronger evidence of the confidence and trust of which His Lordship has deemed you worthy could have been manifested than the fact that he bestowed to your care the spiritual welfare of the flock of which he had been a good and faithful shepherd. We know that the priest is a bearer of heavy burdens and, that the duties placed upon you in this parish are unusually onerous. But we trust that we may be able to assist you to make easy your path when it becomes difficult, and by our devotion to offer you that encouragement which is the great solace to the priest.

We feel that the cause of temperance will always receive you closest attention and unswerving support, and we appreciate your presence here this afternoon at the first meeting since you rappointment and the commencement of your duties.

We assure you, Reverend Father, that our co-operation will always be freely extended to you, and we feel that our sentiments are fully reciprocated by you. Our assistance is extended to you in all your efforts, and especially to the promotion of the cause of temperance.

We sincerely congratulate you upon your appointment as parish priest of the most important parish in the diocese, and our greatest wish is that you may be long spared for your duties, and that your labours will be crowned not only with success, as it is generally understood in parochial work, but that you may win for yourself the eternal crown which you are striving to secure for others.

Signed on behalf of the Society.
D. Gleason, President.
John Theobald, Jr. Secretary.
N. Bibby, Treasurer.

Rev. Father O'Brien stated that he greatly appreciated the sentiments expressed in the address, and promised that the cause of Total Abstinence would receive his heartiest support. He thanked the members for their expressions of congratulations and for their proferred assistance.

The fall debates under the auspices are being arranged and a strong club is expected.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The local Council of Women will hold a public meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Public Library on Wednesday, Oct. 22nd at 3.30 p.m. A large attendance of representatives and members is desired, as important matters are to be discussed. Mr. Spence, Sanitary Inspector, will address the meeting. Any society of women in the City which desires affiliation with the local Council may elect representatives before that date.

Makes Hairy Growths Vanish From the Skin

(Aids to Beauty)

It is now such an easy matter to banish hair not wanted that no woman need longer tolerate superfluous growths on chin, lip or cheek. A thick paste made with a little powdered delatone and water and spread on the hairy surface 2 minutes, the rubbed off, takes the hairs with it, and after it is washed to remove the remaining delatone it will be free from spot or blemish. To avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package.

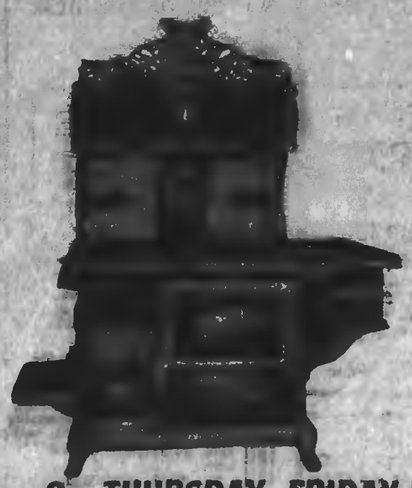
RADIANT HOME HEATERS ALSO



BUT what about Heaters? Of course we anticipated that this question would follow hard upon our HAPPY THOUGHT announcement of yesterday. And we have the answer ready. The peerless RADIANT HOME will share the centre of the stage with the famous HAPPY THOUGHT during the THREE DAYS of our TWENTY PER CENT DISCOUNT SALE--THURSDAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY of THIS WEEK.

This splendid base burner has no superior---it can have no equal until perfection meets its match. Strikingly handsome in design, and of the most finished workmanship, it combines the two essential qualities demanded by the wise buyer---a very great heating capacity with a surprisingly small consumption of fuel.

The HAPPY THOUGHT RANGE and the RADIANT HOME HEATER are our two leaders---our heavy artillery---but we do not stop here. Realizing that this great stove sale is the first of its kind ever attempted in Peterboro', we have determined that it shall be a memorable one.

On THURSDAY, FRIDAY & SATURDAY, every stove, range, & heater on our floor and in our warehouse will be marked at TWENTY PER CENT DISCOUNT PRICES. And while we have many STOVES CHEAP, we have no CHEAP STOVES, (a distinction with a difference). They all bear the maker's name---THE WM. BUCK STOVE CO.---and---THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON.

Whether your purchase be a Six Dollar or a Sixty Dollar one, the VALUE MUST BE EXCEPTIONAL.

Our entire floor space is given this week to the largest, the most complete, and the most varied display of stoves ever presented in this City.

WE INVITE YOUR INSPECTION TO-DAY---YOUR ORDERS ON THURSDAY.

"Frae Glasgie"? The Magistrate Wanted to Know

Andrew Morrison, However, Came From Healey's Falls and Contributed $2 to City's Finances

"Andrew Morrison," called Magistrate Dumble at police court this morning, and as the owner of the cognomen stood up, His Worship added, "a native, of Scotland, frae Glasgie?"

Morrison missed the question and informed the court that he was hard of hearing, but Sergeant Brown, who is frae the land of cakes himself, hastened to assure the Magistrate that the prisoner hailed from Montreal.

"From much further away than that I am sure," commented His Worship. However it transpired that Morison's address was Healey's Falls.

He was charged with being drunk in a public place on George Street, remarked the Magistrate, "an awful place to be drunk in," and pleaded guilty to the soft impeachment. The plea cost him the usual $2 fine.

John Busfield acknowledged the correctness of a similar charge against him and was fined $2 and costs. "If anyone wants to pay $2 for you, they may get you out. In the meantime it will give you a chance to wash your hands," said the Magistrate, who added the remark that Busfield evidently had no affinity for water.

"Apparently not," was Chief Thompson's comment. "He had a good wash basin in his room, too."

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS"

"The Shepherd of The Hills," which comes to the Grand Opera House on Saturday next, Oct. 18th, matinee and night, is a dramatization of Harold Bell Wright's novel, the dramatization having been made by Mr. Wright and Elsbery W. Reynolds.

"The Shepherd of The Hills" is an intensely spellbinding story of love, mystery and heroic daring; it gets a grip on life and brings peace to the soul of any man or woman who reads it.

The woods and hills are part of God's handiwork. They will give peace and strength to all who seek them. From this play you may, in some measure, feel their influence and know some of the ways of divine providence.

You will ask of this story, "Are the characters in the play real people? Does the old shepherd live only in the pages of the book or on the stage? Is there a Sammy Lane and a Young Matt?" You will say they are all very familiar, and you seem somehow to have known them a long time. The scenes may seem new and yet old. If you go to the Ozark hills, you will find somewhere a sheep ranch in Mutton Hollow and a Dewey Bold. But it is from a log house above the mists that you will view these hills and forests and take of their peace and strength.

That inspiration of the old shepherd and his friends will come to you also as you follow the old trail that is, nobody knows how old.

Constipation

Is an enemy within the camp. It will undermine the strongest constitution and ruin the most vigorous health. It leads to indigestion, biliousness, impure blood, bad complexion, sick headaches, and is one of the most frequent causes of appendicitis. To neglect it is slow suicide. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills positively cure Constipation. They are entirely vegetable in composition and do not sicken, weaken or gripe. Preserve your health by taking

RANGERS RETAIN CUP.

On Saturday Glasgow Rangers for the fourth time in succession won the Glasgow Cup, and since the institution of the Cup they have won it no less than eleven times. Celtic have won it nine times, Third Lanark three, Queen's Park two, Cambuslang one the last club being the first winners. It is not the first time the cup has been won four times in succession as Celtic held it continuously from 1905 to 1908. Rangers four time performance is as follows:

1910, beat Celtic 3 to 1.
1911, beat Partick T., 1 to 0.
1912, beat Celtic, 3 to 1.
1913, beat Third Lanark, 3 to 1.

BRITISH LEAGUE RESULTS.

Blackburn, Bury, Swindon and Hearts lead in the various leagues in Britain and it is a significant fact that none of the four have yet suffered defeat and are going so strong that the likelihood is they will keep top place for some time to come. A scrutiny of the League table is interesting.

THE RUGBY SITUATION

TORONTO, Oct. 14. — Saturday's football results caused the worst upset in the dope that has occurred for several years. The defeat of University of Toronto, Ottawa's victory over Hamilton and the overwhelming victory of McGill were the things which have put matters in a quandary.

When the news of the victory of Royal Military College over the University of Toronto fourteen reached Toronto, the championship was at once handed over to McGill. To be defeated in the opening game by newcomers into the league was indeed a surprise, but the injury to Jack Maynard coming on top of this was enough to make even the ardent follower of the Blue and White team believe that the Toronto Collegians will have to strengthen to regain the honours from old McGill. Maynard's injury will keep him out of the game for two weeks, but in that time the championship may be won or lost. The locals play McGill at Montreal and the only thing to do to retrieve their loss of last Saturday is to beat the champions right on their own stamping ground.

It is very seldom that Varsity complain of the poor work of officials, but when approached last night several members of the team spoke in disparaging tones of the work of Referee Malcolm. They have, however, taken their medicine in good part, and the defeat has only caused them to work the harder.

In the Interprovincial Union the race has settled down between Hamilton, Ottawa and Argonauts. None of the results to date have been real surprises, although it was expected in some quarters that Hamilton would win from Ottawa on Saturday last. Montreal is out of the race, their team being far from championship calibre. It would not be surprising if there were a three-cornered tie at the end of the season. On form to date the three teams are very evenly matched, and should all win their home games. Whatever team beats one of the others away from home will have the call.

Although Toronto R. and A. A. beat Parkdale in their opening O.R.F.U. fixture by 27 to 7, the series is far from being decided. The Paddlers made many mistakes which they will no doubt rectify before the next game, and with several of their weak positions strengthened, may spring a surprise and beat T. R. and A. A. Hamilton Rowing Club are an unknown quantity, but they may be another R. M.C. team. Parkdale have the biggest wing line of any senior team in Toronto, and was the strong point of the team on Saturday. Too much open play with the greasy ball and the slowness of their outside wings caused their downfall.

WHITE SOX TAKE FINAL GAME FROM THE CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The Chicago Americans made it three in a row from thel ocal Nationals to-day and won the city championship. The score was 5 to 2. Scott, vanquished in a duel with Humphries Friday, had ample revenge on his rival in to-day's game.

To Jacques Fournier goes the honour of driving in the runs which decided the game. His double in thef ourth inning sent the winning run across the plate. The Sox started a bombardment against Humphries' curves in the fourth. After Lord had walked, Chase singled. On Bodie's attempted bunt, Lord was forced at third, but Collins drove out as ingle and Chase scored the first run by making a beautiful slide under Archer. Fournier followed Collins with a timely double into the overflow crowd and Bodie and Collins scored. A pinch-hitter batted for Humphries in the next inning, and Jimmy Lavender, who went to the mound for the Cubs, was greeted with a fusilade of hits, which included doubles by Lord and Bodie and a single by Chase, giving the Sox two more runs.

The Nationals got their first run in the first inning. Evers singled and took second on Schulte's out. Zimmerman struck out, but Saier's one-base drive sent the manager to third. A double steal was started. Weaver took Schalk's throw and tried to run down Saier, but they collided at the initial base and Weaverd ropped the ball. In the meantime Evers stole home. Scott tightened up after this and his teammates played in spectacular style.

To-day's victory for the American Leaguers brings to a close the seventh meeting of the clubs, the Sox winning four times and the Cubs twice, with the first game a tie. The attendance to-day was 29,484; receipts for to-day, $19,569; National Commission's share, $1,956; each club's share, $8,806.

The grand total of attendance for the six games with the receipts and division of the money follows:—Total attendance, 153,240; total receipts, $105,815; National Commission's share, $10,500; each club's share, $29,453; players' pool (for first four games), $36,325. This amount is divided between the winners and losers as follows:—American League players, $21,795; National League players, $14,530.

Parkdales Here On The Holiday

Local Rugby fans will be glad to learn that arrangements have been made by which the Parkdale Juniors will clash with the local Junior O. R. F. U. team on Thanksgiving Day, thus giving the Peterborough lovers of the game an opportunity of seeing a contest on the holiday afternoon. The Petes are confident of their ability to beat the Paddlers here. They suffered a little from stage fright on Saturday in Toronto, but after they had found themselves they gave the Canoeists a battle royal and held them easily in the second half, when honours were even. With consistent practice this week they expect to beat Parkdale here on Monday. The game will be a good attraction for the holiday and as it is the only local sporting event should attract a big crowd.

GOLF

The following editorial on Ouimet's triumph at Brookline in "Golf Illustrated" of London, reflects British golfing sentiment:

"We think it may safely be said that Mr. Ouimet's victory over Vardon and Ray, in the replayed tie for the American open championship is the most dramatic thing that has ever happened in sport.

"When one saw the news on the tape it seemed too fantastic to be true—like a dream or a rather absurd piec of fiction. All the circumstances, too, were as orderly and apt as if arranged by the constructive imagination of a skillful dramatist. The international importance of the occasion; the world-wide reputation of the Englishmen; the youth of the winner, watched by his two little sisters from the cottage on the edge of the course; the 10-year-old caddie showing the winner the Stars and Stripes and telling him the honour of the flag was in his keeping; the almost inhuman accuracy that the great professionals, with all their skill and experience, could not withstand, so that they broke one after the other; the enormous margin gained in the last nine holes; the drizzling rain, the muddy course, and the huge, vociferous crowd—all these combined to make the whole thing seem more like a slice from Drury Lane melodrama than real life.

"The cold fact remains, however, that a youth just out of his 'teens, with a mere state's championship to his name and practically no experience of first-class golf, did the last nine holes at Brookline in five shots less than Ray. As was only to be expected, a flood of explanations of this amazing feat has immediately been forthcoming. On the one hand it has been claimed that Mr. Ouimet is the greatest golfer the game has ever seen, while on the other hand it has been urged that his youth and consequent fearlessness gave him a great advantage over his older and more anxious rivals — that he had everything to gain and nothing to lose, while exactly the reverse held good of the men with great reputations at stake.

"A little consideration will, we think, show that both these contentions are exaggerated. We have never seen Mr. Ouimet in the flesh, but, judging by the facts as generally known, we do not for one moment see that he could be expected to beat either Vardon or Ray in, say a series of six matches of thirty-six holes. To be a better golfer he must apart from the question of temperament, be their superior in the technique of the game; and how could a boy of 20, who has played all his life on an inland green, be expected to have as complete a command of the hundred intricate niceties of golf as Harry Vardon?

"On the other hand, if youth is an advantage against age, experience, and reputation, why is it that Mr. Ball and Mr. Hilton, among the amateurs, and the Triumvirate among the paid players—Braid, Vardon and Taylor—have almost monopolized the honours of the game during the last couple of decades?

"What, then, is the explanation of this strange thing? With some trepidation, as being guided only by hearsay, we venture to suggest the following reasons:

(1.) Mr. Ouimet possesses the golfing temperament par excellence, and is a very great natural golfer in addition.

(3.) Mr. Ouimet had the not inconsiderable advantage of 'knowing every blade of grass on the course.'

(4.) There is not the same veneration for established reputations in the States as in this country, where a young player is often 'beaten before he starts.'

"In attempting this slight analysis we would not have it thought that we are attempting for a moment in any way to dull the brilliance of Mr. Ouimet's victory. No carping criticism could do that, even if such were the intention. On the contrary, though naturally we should have liked an Englishman to win, we welcome the success of a young amateur in an event of such importance as being all for the good of the game.

"Needless to say, British golfers will watch Mr. Ouimet's future golfing career with the greatest sympathy and interest. It seems certain, from the cables in the daily press, that he intends coming over to play in our leading events next season. We sincerely hope he will find it possible to do so; and we can safely promise him a hearty welcome as has ever been accorded a fellow-sportsman from across the seas."

A PROOF OF THE HONESTY OF BASEBALL

To the world in general, those who love baseball and those who care nothing for it the big thought now is that the game cannot be dishonest. Never before was this fact clinched so tightly.

By winning Saturday's game Connie Mack personally is out something like $10,000, as he owns a half interest in the Athletics. MacGilliceuddy is a shrewd business man, who spends no more than absolutely necessary in buying new players. Furthermore, the National Commission loses about $5,000, its 10 per cent. share of $50,000, which would probably have been the receipts for a game to-day at Shibe Park. The rest of that sum represents what the two clubs lose by the Athletics' victory of Saturday.

But further than this, had Connie Mack been disposed to be "crooked" he could have dropped Saturday's game and played the sixth battle in Philadelphia yesterday. This would have saved the Philadelphia club a matter of $40,000, because the tickets were sold in a string of three there. You paid $9 for three games.

Since only two games were played in Philadelphia the Athletics' management must refund $3 for every ticket. It is estimated that about 15,000 reserved tickets were sold, which would net up agross sum of $45,000.

Musical Marvels.

It has been said of Dr. Hans von Bulow and Rubinstein that, if every note of music worth preserving had been destroyed, they could between them have reproduced every line of it. Von Bulow once gave a series of twenty piano recitals without a line of music and striking approximately 1,250,000 notes, each of which had to be retained in its exact position in his memory; and Verdi once, for a wager, played faultlessly an entire opera, drawn by lot, which he had composed fourteen years earlier and of which he was not allowed to see a note.

Nice For the Cows.

Retired Haberdasher (late of London)—Now, then, 'Enry, I'm goin' to have a large party 'ere next week, and I shall expect an unlimited quantity of milk, cream and butter. After that the cows can 'ave a rest till me and Mrs. P. returns from the continong.—London Punch.

London Juries.

England has been investigating its jury system and finds that charges of unfairness against juries are no new thing. One old bishop remarked, "London juries are so prejudiced that they would find Abel guilty of murdering Cain."

Vindictive.

Ethel—Yes, I know Billy is very wild, but I'm going to marry him to reform him. Kate—I told that boy a dreadful punishment would overtake him.—New Haven Register.

He Got On.

Millyums—When I married your mother I was earning $10 a week. Two years later I bought out my employer.

Daughter—And put in a cash register!—Town Topics.

Of all work producing results, nine-tenths must be drudgery.—Bishop Philpotts.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

Our bankers are not pessimistic regarding the situation, although they see the possibility of a slight business recession in Europe, as well as the United States from the intense activity of the past year or two. It is premature to assume our stock market values have reached their low point, but the immediate situation does not warrant any further decline. The reaction that has already taken place having fairly discounted many of the unfavourable features referred to above. Nevertheless obligations should be assumed with care until the money market recovers its equilibrium. The general situation is not so bad. The only doubtful point in the situation is the attitude of the Washington government.

The government is largely a trade affair and with the public indifferent the future is hard to forecast.

Interesting Case

(From the San Francisco Examiner)

When Henry L. Woolsey, a machinist, who lives in Maricopa, was brought to this city a fortnight ago and placed in the St. Francis Hospital, there seemed no chance that he could live for more than a few hours. His back, his thighs and his arms were as if they had been flayed, so frightfully had he been burned in a fire in his tenement. Hardly a square inch of skin was left uninjured. He was dying in slow agony.

Dr. George J. Sweeney had charge of Woolsey's case. After he had thoroughly studied it he shook his head, saying that Woolsey had just a slight fighting chance for life. Only the most heroic and wholesale kind of skin grafting could save him. Fully seven hundred and twenty sq. inches of living skin cut from the bodies of at least forty strong and healthy men would be required.

SETTLED BY THE EAGLES

And how was it possible for a man of small means like Woolsey, a machinist on day wages, to pay the big bills that would be necessary to buy 720 square inches of skin from the bodies of fifty men, and if he could not buy, how could he obtain what would save his life?

So Dr. Sweeney reported the matter back to the people who had employed him. Inasmuch, however, as they happened to be Fraternal Order of Eagles, and apparently understood the meaning of the word "Fraternity," the difficulty was quickly removed. San Francisco Lodge No. 5 and Golden Gate Lodge No. 61 decided that the life of a suffering brother Eagle, brought to their eerie from afar, must be saved.

In some instances six pieces of skin were removed from a single volunteer while others gave from one to six pieces, according to their ability to stand the pain and strain. More than twenty of Woolsey's comrades have already submitted to the knife.

Their example stirred the emulation of Woolsey's employer, Henry Pollock, a wealthy oil operator of Maricopa, who became so interested in the experiment that he gladly aided the operation by giving some of his own tissue.

The next operation will be performed on Saturday.

PATIENT HAS RALLIED

The patient has already rallied. From the new skin put upon his body new life seems to have come to him. One hundred and seventy inches of skin have so far been transplanted. It is one of the biggest operations ever recorded.

Among those of Woolsey's comrades who have already aided him by giving their own living tissue are the following:

William Lewis, 283 San Carlos avenue; Martin Hahn, 712 Clayton Street; Everett K. Mohr, 716 Capp Street; Francis Davis, Albion Hotel; B. Armatroag, Southern Pacific traffic bureau, Flood Building; Fred Everett, Arthur Smith, Frank L. Turk, Ernest Carlson, Aaron Birdsall, Leo Murray, John Slattery, Thos. Cremins, C. F. Alexander, Henry Hersbach, John Donohoe and John Slattery.

The Arthur Smith mentioned above is the brother of Miss E. Smith, hair dresser, of Peterborough. While on his vacation in San Francisco he went to see the injured man and was the first to volunteer six inches of cuticle.

OBJECTIONABLE ADVERTISING

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was surprised to see in last night's paper that you allowed an advertiser to use your columns to cast slurs at another regular and long time patron. I refer to a paid-for reading notice which speaks slightingly of the optical businesses that are conducted in connection with the drug stores. Peterborough people do not need to be told when they are well served. Personally I have had most satisfactory dealings with one optician, (Mr. A. A. Fowler), whose well equipped, modern parlours are in connection with the store of the Nugent Drug Co.—glasses supplied by him give the desired result, relief from eyestrain, with clear easy vision, as was the case with the glasses he fitted me with. I know of many cases fully as satisfactory as my own, that Mr. Fowler has handled, so to us its results that count, and we haven't much use for the concern that tries to get business by casting slurs on old satisfactory firms. Hoping you will keep your columns free from such objectionable advertising and so more readable for your subscribers.

I remain,
A Constant Reader of The Examiner.

CAPT. INCH'S STORY

Commander of Volturno Sends Version by Wireless

THE WATCH BELOW BURNED

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Captain Francis Inch of the Volturno sent his story of the disaster by wireless last night from the Krooniand, on which he is being brought to this port, to the officers of the Uranium Line here. Captain Inch's narrative says in part:

"At 6.50 a.m., Oct. 9, 1913, fire was reported in hold No. 1 by chief officer. At 6.55 a.m. flames were burning through No. 1 hatches, setting fire to the forecastle and all deck fittings. I slowed the ship down and kept her before the wind to enable us to put the steam extinguishers in operation, also three fire hose from deck connections. The flames were gaining rapidly, reaching the height of the foremast light, and imprisoning the watch below, who were burned to death in the forecastle.

"A series of explosions now occurred, wrecking the saloon and hospital amidships, the compass and steering gear being also damaged by the explosions. I gave orders to get help by wireless as soon as the flames burnt the hatches.

"It seemingly being impossible to save the ship, I had boats provisioned and swung out. The ship was rolling heavily. Boats Nos. 13 and 5 were smashed, but No. 2 was lowered in the water with cabin passengers and stewardess, in charge of Chief Officer H. P. Miller. After this boat left the ship she capsized, throwing her occupants into the water. She afterward righted herself, and several of the crew got back into the boat, the chief officer being one of them. The No. 6 boat was lowered, and got away safely filled with steerage passengers, in charge of Fourth Officer Langsell. The No. 7 boat on being lowered was caught under the stern of the ship, the boat being completely wrecked.

"Meanwhile the chief engineer, two seamen and myself fought the fire and apparently subdued the flames. I gave orders to send no more boats away, as I had received word from the Carmania that she was hoping to be with us by 11 a.m. Life-belts were served out and put on each passenger. The passengers now became calmer. Food was served out to them.

"Several steamers had arrived by dusk. The Krooniand put over boats, which made four attempts to come alongside, but were swept away each time.

"At 9.30 p.m. the saloon and chart houses were flaming. The deck, bridge and all before the funnel were blazing fiercely. Pumps and dynamo stopped for want of steam. Marconi operators working with the accumulators until 11 p.m., when the magazine on the bridge blew up, carrying the aerial away.

"Several boats by this time were lying off the ship, and induced passengers to jump, and they were rescued by boats.

"The fire meanwhile worked through the women's steerage to the after end of the ship, but we kept knowledge of this from the passengers, who were quiet throughout the rest of the night.

"The chief engineer, the Marconi men, and seamen, and myself spent the night making small rafts in case the fire burned through the deck before daylight.

"At 1.30 a.m. boats were enabled to come alongside, which enabled passengers to embark quickly. All the steamers lying around the ship sent boats. Now we were enabled to load three boats with passengers at once. The passengers left in a very orderly way and there was no panic, women breaking down and crying when help was alongside, and all were off the ship by 8 a.m., about 400 passengers. I searched the ship myself and found no one else on board, so decided to abandon her, as the No. 2 hatch was well aflame by now, so with the remainder of the crew embarked on the Krooniand.

"Nothing at all had been heard of the two missing boats. Passing vessels were asked to keep a lookout for them.

"I wish to express my heartiest thanks to the captains of ships who stood by, also to the officers and crews who came to our assistance, for their bravery and endurance in their endeavor to come alongside the ship. The work of the crews of the rescuing vessels was all that human effort could do, more indeed than could be expected."

PROSECUTION DESPERATE.

Effort Made to Convict Beilias on Monk's Legend.

KIEV, Oct. 15.—At the continuation of the trial of Mendel Beilias yesterday for the alleged murder of the boy, Andrew Yushinsky, the prosecution concentrated their efforts on an endeavor to prove that the Jews practiced "ritual murder" on Christians, by the testimony of the Archimandrite Autonomius. He is of Jewish descent, but was baptised when ten years of age. He resides in the Kiev monastery, but was formerly attached to the monastery at Saratov.

The Archimandrite carried two documents relating to ritual murders in the eighteenth century, and asked that they be incorporated in the records of the trial. The court refused to comply with this request.

Replying to questions, Autonomius declared that he knew of cases where Christian children had been tortured by Jews. He said:

"From my childhood my parents and teachers warned me not to have relations with Jews, because they tortured Christian children."

Questioned still further, he said that when he was a Jew he had never heard that the Jews used Christian blood for ritual purposes.

Several workmen and officials employed in the Zaite works declared that Beilias was working as usual on the day of the disappearance of Yushinsky.

A beggar woman was examined concerning statements she was alleged to have made to another woman, according to the preliminary examination, implicating Beilias. She said she knew nothing about the affair, but possibly might have gabbled something when in her cups.

Customs Board Rulings.

OTTAWA, Oct. 15.—The customs board, on the strength of appeals from rulings of collectors, has made interpretations of the following items of the customs tariff:

Tractor hitches and engine guides declared to be dutiable under tariff item 447; metal adapted in form and composition for use as nickel anodes, declared dutiable under tariff item 358; basic furnace slag, ground, declared to be dutiable under tariff item 662 and in effect from 9th November, 1912; fire brick purchased before 13th May, 1913, and entered for duty prior to 13th of July, 1913, shall be dutiable under the regulations in force 12th of May, 1913.

Through Trains Next June.

EDMONTON, Oct. 15.—By June next the Canadian Northern will run through trains between Toronto and Edmonton, and by August trains will commence running from Montreal through to the Pacific Coast via Edmonton over the Canadian Northern Railway. This announcement was made by Sir Donald Mann, who stopped here on a trip through the west.

Sir Donald said that the line between Sudbury and Port Arthur would be finished by December, and that the two ends of the steel on the main line between Edmonton and the Pacific Coast would be connected about the middle of next summer.

Finger Embedded In Steel Block.

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—Peter Kershanskus was brought from South Boston to the City Hospital, wearing a five-pound steel block on his little finger. The question was whether to amputate the block from the finger or the finger from the hand. The latter way would have been the easier, but it was decided to save the member. The man was etherized, and the physicians worked an hour and a half extricating the little finger with saws and other instruments.

DISASTER IN MINE

Over Four Hundred Lives Lost in Welsh Colliery Explosion

FIVE HUNDRED ARE SAVED

CARDIFF, South Wales, Oct. 15.—The long and terrible record of Welsh coal mine disasters was added to yesterday morning by one of the worst catastrophes of the present generation, a terrific explosion in the well-known Universal colliery, at Senghenydd, near Cardiff, entailing a loss of life which will, it is feared, total 434.

The latest figures obtainable are:

In the pit when the explosion occurred, 934 to 940.

Rescued, approximately, 500.

Bodies recovered, 10.

The day shift descended the shafts in the cages at five o'clock. An hour afterwards a deafening report brought the inhabitants in the vicinity of the mine running to the pit head, where they found the ventilating hoisting machinery at the top of the shaft had been blown to atoms, and a man who had been working 20 yards away had been decapitated.

Rescue parties of miners belonging to the night shift were soon on the scene. The fiery reputation of the mine, however, gave little hope that any of those below could be rescued alive.

An entrance was found, however, by way of an adjacent shaft and the rescuing parties came across some scores of men huddled together where the ventilation was still good.

Some 327 living miners had been gathered together and taken up the shaft with the bodies of six of their companions who had been killed by being dashed against the uprights supporting the galleries by the explosion.

The rescuers continued their search in remote galleries and by noon had picked up and brought to the surface altogether 500.

At the pit head the wives, children and other relatives of the entombed miners gathered in thousands and waited in the agony of suspense. Women and children wept and clamored for news of those still in the pit.

The men brought to the surface were found on the east side of the mine where the ventilation remained fairly good while on the west side, where the explosion occurred, fire soon added its terrors to the deadly afterdamp and the rescue parties were unable to make any progress toward the affected area.

The officials of the mine found it necessary to call a detachment of police to keep back the women and children, while the mine managers, with the tears streaming from their eyes, replied to all inquiries, "There is little hope."

Most of the rescued men presented a pitiable appearance. Some of them were not expected to live and nearly all of them were suffering from burns and shock or the effects of afterdamp.

The same pit was stricken by an explosion thirteen years ago, when 120 miners lost their lives and only one of those below at the time was rescued alive.

MAY BE DROWNED.

J. B. Lund of Vineland Experimental Farm Missing.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 15.—J. B. Lund, director of the vegetable department of the provincial experimental farm at Vineland, set sail in a dinghy from Jordan Harbor just before sundown Monday night and has not since been seen. Yesterday the little craft, with sail set, was found between Port Dalhousie and Port Weller, the harbor for the new Welland ship canal, partly submerged, and it is believed that Lund was drowned. He was a fourth year student at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and a brother of Herbert Lund, a lecturer in bacteriology at that institution. His father is an Anglican clergyman. He was in his 29th year.

ONE WAY OF GETTING CIDER FOR THANKSGIVING

The unusual spectacle of a celebrated Boston divine doing sentry duty with a musket on his shoulder in front of his own residence on Thanksgiving morning—and all for the purpose of getting a drink of Thanksgiving cider—is worth recalling, even after a lapse of 135 years.

Dr. Mather Byles, a Puritan clergyman, born in Boston in 1706, owed his fame to his wit and practical jokes as much as to his pulpit ability. In November, 1777, he was arrested as a Tory and sentenced to confinement in his own home. A military guard was stationed around the house with instructions not to permit Dr. Byles to leave home under any circumstances.

On Thanksgiving morning the staid old Puritans of the arrested minister's flock were surprised to see their pastor himself pacing up and down before his own front door with a musket on his shoulder. The regular sentry had disappeared, and Dr. Byles was doing sentry duty in his stead.

"You see," Dr. Byles explained, "I begged the sentry to let me go out to procure some cider with which my family and I might celebrate Thanksgiving day. He would not permit me to leave the house. So I proceeded to argue the point with him, and he has now gone to get the cider for me on condition that I shoulder his musket and keep guard over myself during his absence."

ULTIMATUM IS SENT

U. S. Will Not Recognize Victor in Mexican Election

CRISIS IS AGAIN ACUTE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—General Victoriano Huerta was informed yesterday by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge at Mexico City, that the American Government would not recognise the victor of an election for President of Mexico, held under present conditions. The action by the American Government was taken following a close study of the decree issued by Gen. Huerta proclaiming himself dictator. The best legal authorities of the State Department, Counsel or John Basset Moore, and solicitor for the State Department, Joseph W. Folk, analyzed the decree.

In the opinion of the administration Huerta's acts are not constitutional. Hence the President of the United States will not countenance any such election as Huerta proposes and which he says will be held without fail on Oct. 26, the date originally set by him, which the President of the United States looked forward to as the first actual step for peace.

Gen. Huerta's decree as well as the Mexican Government's reply to the representations made by Charge O'Shaughnessy in behalf of the lives of the 110 deputies whom Huerta imprisoned on Friday last, were discussed by the President and his Cabinet yesterday. By some this is regarded as insolent and as an attempt on the part of Huerta to "bluff."

President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan would not be surprised if the ultimatum sent Gen. Huerta resulted in Mr. O'Shaughnessy receiving his passports. While no message has been received from Mexico City indicating that the relations between the two nations have been stretched to a breaking point, the President will not be surprised at anything which happens in Mexico.

Charles O'Shaughnessy telegraphed the State Department yesterday that Gen. Huerta had given the embassy assurances that no violence would be done the imprisoned deputies. Mr. O'Shaughnessy added that Huerta stated further that the deputies must stand civil trial on the charge of sedition against the Mexican Government which had been paying them their salaries for many months. It is the latter part of the message which some of the President's advisers regard as being insolent.

The American Government is ready to back up its stand at any time by sending to Mexican waters the Atlantic and Pacific fleets. These vessels are being held in readiness. Charge O'Shaughnessy has informed the State Department a naval demonstration, would, in his judgment, have moral influence.

President Wilson, while regarding the situation as serious, does not take the view that there is a crisis. It is the confident belief of the President that England, Germany and France, the first countries which recognized Huerta as provisional President of Mexico, will now support without reservation the policy of the United States. In other words, the administration is of the opinion that Huerta, by his action in imprisoning the deputies and declaring himself dictator, repudiated the recognition he got from those European countries and vindicated the attitude of the United States.

President Wilson and his Cabinet discussed the Mexican situation yesterday at the first Cabinet meeting since last June. The despatch of a German warship to Mexican waters and the possibility of like action by other European powers, which may foresee a crisis for the Huerta Government, commanded attention.

Advices from Mexico City indicate that the Mexican deputies, for whose safety the American Government has made representations, were still in jail, but, according to Huerta, in no danger. His statement, however, that the deputies would be brought to trial, was received here with disappointment.

None of the secretaries would comment upon Huerta's decree of Oct. 10 assuming the powers of government, further than to characterize it as "very interesting."

REFORM FORGOTTEN.

No Effort Made to Uplift Prisoners Says Major Hughes.

KINGSTON, Oct. 15. — Radical changes in the management of Kingston and other penitentiaries and the elimination of politics were strongly urged by Major Hughes yesterday morning in the course of his testimony before the royal commission appointed to probe the charges of Dr. Edwards. Major Hughes was expected to give sensational evidence touching the charges but this phase of the inquiry was not touched yesterday morning. Witness urged the formation of a school of instruction for officers as at present it frequently happened that an officer was put over a convict who was in every way the officer's superior.

To-day practically nothing was done to improve a prisoner. The boys should be segregated and a systematic effort made to instruct and uplift.

"THE MEDIATOR"

By ROY NORTON

"Are you the man that gave Big Bill his nedin's e" she asked, with blunt directness.

Lish looked up at her with the wrinkles at the corners of his eyes stretched a little, but losing none of their good humour.

"I don't know about that," he said. "You see, I'm a stranger here in this happy community. It seems to me I do recollect havin' a word or so with some feller that kicked Jack this afternoon. That's a wonderful burro, miss. He's right like a man. Speakin' of him reminds me one time of how he—"

"Rats on the burro!" she interrupted, with due elegance of expression. "What I'm asking about is, are you the feller that beat Big Bill's head? Because, if you are, I've got something to tell you."

The prospector saw that she was in desperate earnest. His face sobered.

"It sems to me I may be the feller."

"Then what I want to say is this: When I was waiting on his pals this evening, all they talked about was how they would get you. You've got a gun, ain't you?"

"Nope. Ain't carried one since I started up the Divide to this here Peaceful Hill. Thought I was done with guns forever, and throwed mine in the American River. And she was a good gun, too. Why, say! Once down back of San Bernardino, when a mountain lion jumped Jack, I—'.

"Well,, you ought to have kept it. This gang here is a bad one. It's been getting worse and worse for the last year. Nobody here likes to have trouble with them. What I wanted to tell you was this: They hang out mostly at the Happy Home saloon. There's a gambling lay-out in the back end of it, and they stick around there when they ain't out working. So it's best for you to keep away from that place. They'd pick a fight and kill you like a coyote, mister. You just keep away from there. Like some more of that pudding?"

Apparently the pudding outweighed fear, for he assented with an alacrity indicating a suspicion that she might repent and withdraw the proffer. When she returned with it she looked around the room as if to make certain that no one had entered in her absence, put the dish in front of him, and then laid something else down with a thump. He leaned back in his chair and loked at it. It was a big frontier Colt's pistol of heavy caliber, loaded, and beside it was a box of cartridges.

"You just slip that into your clothes," she said. "You might need it. I'm only lending it to you, and I want it back some time. It's a legacy."

He appeared more interested in the story of the legacy than in its visible form.

"Queer sort of a legacy," he said. "Whose was it?"

"Man I was going to marry. He was a shot-gun messenger. Maybe you hard of him—Jim Ross. The hold-ups shot him because he showed fight. That was nearly two year ago. It's a good gun. Jim said so when he gave it to me. It was all he had—that is, that and thirteen dollars. And one of them was doby, but I did not mind."

Lish took the gun quite reverently in his hands, "hefted" it to see how it balanced, and then, as if to humour her, slipped it into his coat pocket, where it hung, dragging that unoffending garment down by its weight.

"I've always had a sneakin' admiration for a man that gets the worst of it when he's doin' his best," he said sympathetically. "I reckon it's because I'm so different. I reckon it's because I'm so peaceful that I hate to fight. 'Most always I get out of it. Now, if I'd been this Jim Ross, my arms would be six inches longer right this minute, because I'd have stretched 'em so hard when they told me to stick 'em up. Thanks for the loan of the gun, miss, just the same. And, by Jimminy that puddin' was good!"

He got up and sauntered out of the dining room with his hand in his pocket to support the weight therein, and made his way through the office and out to the porch, where the loafers were congregated in much the same attitude as when first he saw them. The moon had not risen, although it threatened to appear from behind the high peaks to the eastward, and the camp thrilled with life. There was scarcely a store or a saloon that did not have in front of it some laughing, talking group, some of whose members were shown in the rays of yellow light coming through windows where huge coal-oil lamps exposed displays intended to be seductive. Lish would have seated himself contentedly on the edge of the porch, but, even as he was contemplating that action, heard one man behind him address another:

"That's him! That feller over there by the centre post. He's the man that cooked Big Bill's goose."

"I wouldnt be in his boots for five thousand dollars!" was the emphatic rejoinder, still in a low voice. "First, when Bill gets able it won't be a fist affair. Second, if he gets the best of Bill, there'll be about three or four others that'll take a try at him. Before he's through he'll have to clean the crowd out, or they'll clean him."

Lish looked thoughtfully down the street, but did not betray by his attitude that he had heard, or that he noted the increasing silence and lowering of voices as others recognized him. A distinct wave of embarrassment swept over him, and he halfledi into the seclusion of the middle of the road.

"Somehow," he said to himself, "I am sort of sorry I came here. It looks as if this camp was gettin' along all right till I showed up. Anyhow, they must have been satisfied, or they'd have got busy and run this Big Bill and his gang out. I reckon I'll hit off toward Canady Hill to-morrer. It might be healthier for a peaceful man like I am. Then Bill and that bunch of sheep-herders'll forget all about me, and bimeby I can come down here without anybody botherin' me."

He started aimlessly toward the corral out at the edge of the town. The moon came up, and he looked backward. It shone on the rows of trees by the sides of the street, and dimmed the lights from the windows. It picked up the white, squatty spire of the church.

"Nope," he said to himself again, with a new determination, "I'm not goin' till Monday! I ain't been to church since I was a kid, and I'm goin' to start in again. I'm achin' to howl a few hymns when the preacher says: 'Everybody can cut loose.' I came here to soak in peace, and that is part of the game."

He made his way to the corral, and leaned on the fence and spoke to Jack, who came slowly over and held out his nose. He put his hand in his pocket, and brought out a chew of tobacco, which he handed that intelligent beast, who accepted it eagerly, and was about to bid him good-night when a shadowy form came out from behind the barn. It was the corral-keeper.

"That you, mister?" he asked, "I sort of reckoned it was. I'm glad you came over. I wanted to tell you, since I found out you was the man who went after Big Bill, that you'd best stear clear of the Happy Home. Some of that bunch is tellin' what they'll do to you if you come in there."

"It does seem to me," said Lish, "that everywhere I go all I hear about is this man Bill, and what he's goin' to do to me. Now, see here, mister, I'll tell you somethin'. He won't do nothin'; because he cant catch me! I never was a hand to look for a fight and I aint lookin' for one now, and I'm plumb scared stiff. I see just what you mean. I agree with you. If it was Bill alone, I might take a chance, because the Bible says a soft answer turneth away wrath, and the answer he'd get from me would be softer'n a spoiled clam. So I hope you won't worry none about me whatsever, because I'll sure run unless my knees is rattlin' so I can't."

He even turned back after he had made the man good-night to reassure him that he would take care of himself because he "was scared into an ague"; but the strange part of it was that after he had gone some distance down the street he went over into the moonlit shadow cast by one of the huge trees, ejected all the shells from the big pistol and tested the action with a certain air of knowing familiarity. Then he struck a match and inspected the cartridges, after which he put in fresh ones and slipped the old ones into the box. And then, to show how fearful he was, he passed leisurely on down the street.

It was just one o'clock in the morning when the Happy Home was at its liveliest, that a hush fell upon it, caused by the entrance of a man with broad, sloping shoulders and queer legs. The man walked in unconcernedly, stood sidewise to the bar, and said to Mr. Holliday: "I'd like some sody pop, the red kind, sarsaparilly if you got it, rosberry second choice, but as you ain't got them, give me lemonade."

Holiday looked anxiously toward the rear of the room, and began to force himself to haste in the preparation of the drink. Whispered comments were floating down the room, and warning admonitions. Four or five men apprehensive of trouble, began slipping rapidly toward the door to escape. Some of them may have observed a singular bulge under the prospector's armpit, a certain sign that he was not unprepared.

He backed against the wall at the end of the bar, and lifted his glass of lemonade with a hand so deliberate, so unwavering, so steady, that it appeared to boast of his nerves. He drank the decoction slowly, taking his time for the operation, and looking with half-humorous eyes over those at the lower end of the room. He did not seem to notice that the games had stopped and that the dealers were looking anxiously toward him, that some of the players had got to their feet and edged toward the sides of the room, and that the only men seated were those that had been loudest in their approval of Big Bill in the afternoon's encounter.

He paid for his drink with a whimsical, slow smile, pocketed his change and then bestowed a calm, sneering, chilling grin on the members of Big Bill's gang at the end of the room a mocking "Good-night, gents!" and in an instant had sidestepped through the door and disappeared.

Behind him there was a sigh of relief, some sarcastic comment, and the peaceful pursuits of the Happy Home resumed; but apparently the cause of it all was equally at peace, for, as he blew out the flame of his lamp in the Peaceful Hill Inn, he still smiled to himself, and said, addressing the open window: "I've been lookin' for peace for a long time, and this camp is all right! It suits me to a T-Y-ty. I sort of think I'll stay here quite a while.

CHAPTER VIII.

Keeping the Peace with a Double-Action Gun.

The prospector sallied down to the hotel office quite late Sunday morning. He smiled pleasantly at everyone in sight, threw away the butt of a brown-paper cigarette, and told the clerk he had heard no church bell.

"I sort of been wantin' to hear church bells," he said, "for several years. When I saw that meetin'-house yesterday I was so tickled I mentioned it to my burro. 'To-morrer mornin',' says I, 'just when I'm wantin' to sleep my darndest, there'll be a bell wakin' me up. Then probably I'll cuss some. The bell will keep janglin' away, and I can't sleep. Then I'll set up in bed and say: "Hang that bell!" Then I'll get up andw ash my face, and say: "I'm going to church, I am! Ain't been to one in twenty year."' That's what I said; but there wa'n't no bell."

The clerk refused to appreciate his sentiments. Instead he stared at him for a moment, and began: 'Big Bill is—"

"Never mind him!" growled Lish. "I'm sort of tired of that name. How about the bell? Ain't there a bell?"

The clerk admitted that there was not, and that the reason was the poverty of the diminutive flock that attended divine service. Furthermore, as he understood it from hearsay, seven church fairs, two sociables, and a cantata had left the bell pot ten or fifteen dollars shy. Lish listened with a melancholy look of disapointment, and appeared thoughtful when he turned away toward the dining-room, where he was the last arival, entering just as a horse barely "scrapes under the wire," when Maggie, the red-haired waitress, was beginning to close the doors.

"Thought you were never coming!" she snapped at him, with an assumption of anger; but he mollified her, disarmed her, cajoled her by his wondrous smile.

"I'd of been here before," he said, "only I was upstairs tryin' to shine my boots for meetin'. Besides that, I cleaned your gun. I'm wearin' it right here next to my heart now, just to show you how much I appreciate it."

He pulled his coat to one side, exposing a home-made holster, fashioned clumsily from an bootleg.

"I don't expect to have to use it," he said, "because I always run rather than fight; but I'll keep on wearin' it for a while just because you loaned it to me, and because as far as I can judge that feller Ross, what gave it to you, was not a bad sort, but jest foolish. By the way, Miss Maggie," he asked, with due deference, "do you ever attend Sunday meetin's?"

"I do if the regular boarders ain't so all-fired lazy they keep me here in the dining-room until it's too late," she snapped back; but he was too philosophical to answer an angry woman. It is to his credit that he ate in haste.

"I've gobbled my duck," he said, in further endeavour to win approbation, "so's that you could go to meetin' this morning'. I'm going', Miss Maggie, and I hope to see you there. It's good for a person—just like sulphur and molasses in the spring-time. Sort of cleans out their systems, and get's 'em started right for another week. I'll carry that gun, all right. Hope you'll be there, because the last time I went to a church house there wa'n't a person inside the door that I didn't know by name, and I want to feel at home again. So long."

HE NOW BELIEVES IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Because He No Longer Suffers With Headaches

TAYLORVILLE, ONT.

"I was a sufferer from Fearful Headaches for over two years. Sometimes, they were so bad that I was unable to work for days at a time. I took all kinds of medicine, was treated by physicians, but yet the Headaches persisted.

A short time ago, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so, with I must confess, very little faith. But after I had taken them for three days, my Headaches were easier and in a week they left me.

After I had taken a box of these tablets, my headaches were quite cured. My appetite was always poor and my stomach bad—and now my appetite is splendid and my digestion excellent.

I had become thin and weak from the constant Headaches but now not only have I been cured of all these awful Headaches, but my strength is growing up once more and I feel like a new man"

A Smugglers' Trick.

One of the most ingenious of smuggling tricks was that originated by a band of clever Parisian rogues recently. A coffin, supposed to contain the dead body of a man who had died of diphtheria, was despatched from the gay city for burial in London. It was met at the railway terminus in England, and conveyed at nightfall to a house not far from the Mile End Road, Whitechapel. Everything would have passed off as desired and planned had not a policeman on duty become suspicious on seeing a particularly large coffin being taken out of a hearse into a house that was known to be the habitation of men who had done penal servitude.

After the funeral party had shut the door and the hearse had driven away, the policeman secured assistance and knocked at the door. It was found that the coffin, instead of containing a corpse, was filled tightly with cakes of tobacco, dozens of boxes of cigars, and other excisable goods. The "mourners" were immediately arrested and the goods confiscated.

Dining Early.

Lord Shaw told a good story at a dinner to the Bench and Bar, given recently by the Fishmongers' Company in London. He said that in the old days the Scottish Bench in Edinburgh were accustomed to dine at four o'clock in the afternoon, and sometimes these convivial gatherings were prolonged to a late—or early—hour, as the case might be.

At two o'clock one afternoon a client called at the house of a distinguished lawyer and asked to see the master.

"He's at dinner," replied the maid.

"At dinner," gasped the caller. 'Dinner at two o'clock in the afternoon! Surely your master dines early?"

"No," replied the maid. "It's yesterday's dinner he's still eatin'!"

Significance of Small Duties.

Don't object that your duties are insignificant. They are to be reckoned of infinite significance and alone important to you. Were it but the more perfect regulation of your apartments by sorting away of your clothes and trinkets, the arranging of your papers "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might" and all thy worth and constancy. Much more. If your duties are of evidently higher, wider scope; if you have brothers, sisters, a father, a mother, weigh earnestly what claim does lie upon you on behalf of each and consider it as the one thing needful to pay them more and more honestly and nobly what you owe. What matter how miserable one is if one can do that? That is the sure and steady disconnection and extinction of whatsoever miseries one has in this world.—Thomas Carlyle.

Rochefort In Court.

Henri Rochefort went to court oftener, it is said, as plaintiff, defendant or witness than any other man in Paris. Partly this was because of his articles, partly because of his continual feelings with the picture dealers, with whom he often disagreed. In his later years, moreover, he was often called as a "witness" by parties in political suits, not because he had any pertinent testimony to present, but because he had a happy faculty when on the witness stand of making the government, the police and all that set appear a set of fools or scoundrels. The French code of procedure allows a witness much more latitude in "telling his own story" than does ours. And Rochefort's stories, whether relevant or not were sure to have a sting in them for the folk in authority.—New York Sun.

Woman's Winning Way.

"In all my life," she said, with a sigh, "I have seen only one man that I would care to marry."

"Did he look like me?" he carelessly asked. Then she flung herself into his arms and wanted to know what secret power men possess that enables them to tell when they are loved.—Chicago Record-Herald.

German Courtship.

The form in which a proposal of marriage is made has undergone great change in Germany during the past few years. At one time any young man who proposed marriage attired himself in his dress suit and carried a bouquet as an offering to his chosen one. We must not seek to pry into the intimacy of such proposals, but if the disconsolate lover left the house carrying his bouquet with him it was a sure sign that he was rejected. Nowadays proposals are less formal, but engagements are no less binding. In fact, a betrothal is regarded as almost as solemn and binding as the wedding itself. On every possible occasion German lovers appear arm in arm, and the custom is not confined to one class alone. Peasants walk thus, and princes and noblesses follow the popular custom.—London Standard.

Stomach Troubles and Weakness of Kidneys Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is an enormous amount of suffering from kidney and liver derangements and stomach troubles that could easily be avoided by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If you could only realize the scores of everyday ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver, and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial.

Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backaches caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash any clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills".

Australian Honey.

Bee farming in Australia is likely to become more important as a profitable industry in the near future. The prices obtained in London for the honey—which has won the highest awards — are very satisfactory. In 1910-11 a record was established by one bee-farmer in the Gippsland district, who extracted 30 tons from his apiary, and made $4,200. This year a bee-farmer has realized $3,927.50 from 150 hives. One hive has yielded 392 pounds of honey in a month, with a value of $24.50. The whole of Victoria is favorable ground for bee culture, but the flats of the Grampians offers the best conditions. A low average return would be $5 a hive, but some go to $20 or $25. Most of the honey is consumed locally. In the Franco-British Exhibition of 1908 it gained the highest award.

A Great Telescope.

A number of persons were talking about telescopes, and each professed to have looked through the "largest in the world." One after another told of the powerful effect of the respective telescopes. At last a quiet man said mildly: "I once looked through a telescope. I don't know that it was the largest in the world. I hope it wasn't. But it brought the moon so near that we could see the man in it gesticulating wildly and crying out 'Don't shoot! Don't shoot!' The old duffer thought it was a big cannon that we were pointing at him." The quiet man subsided and so did all the rest.

Cave Which Sings.

We have all heard of the Whispering Gallery which surrounds the mighty dome of St. Paul's. But few people beyond the borders of the Black Country know that there is such a thing as a Singing Cave. Such, however, exists at the ancient and historic town of Dudley.

Do not be misled. The cave does not sing, any more than the famous gilded gallery whispers; but by some accident in its construction the sound of voices ring round its cavernous walls and become possessed of such sweetness and power as to make the cave a place of enchantment.

The Singing Cave is in the grounds of Dudley Castle, whose history goes back 1,200 years. The visitor descends to it by means of rude steps formed in the earth.

Lloyd George's Good Cricket.

D. Lloyd George, son of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, is proving as vigorous in athletics as his father is in politics. After distinguishing himself as a footballer, he is now developing into a second Jessop, and at a recent cricket match, when he played for Eastbourne College, scored 75, which included four fours, a six, a two, and a single. And he was ninth man in.

Still Worse.

FRESH AIR IN PUFFS.

That's the Latest Idea For Securing Perfect Ventilation.

Puffs of fresh air, first from one direction and then from another, is the latest idea for ventilation of theaters, schools and even homes—puffs strong enough so that a person would feel them. The new theory of ventilation, which has had fairly widespread support in the last few months, is that still air is just as uncomfortable as bad air and that ventilation that brings into a room air in sufficient quantities is not satisfactory unless some motion is given to the air.

Experiments have shown that persons in an air tight chamber are as distressed by still air as they are by bad air and that stirring up bad air with fans gives much relief. As drafts sometimes cause colds, it has been the practice in most ventilating systems to bring fresh air into a room so as to cause as little motion of the air as possible and thus avoid drafts.

Dr. Hill of the Chicago bureau of sanitation now advances the puff scheme as a method of avoiding drafts, still retaining all the advantages of moving air. He points out that in the fresh open air a person does not catch cold from frequent puffs of air, but really enjoys them, and that in a home it is not puffs of air, but a constant flow—perhaps a hardly perceptible flow—which causes colds. So he has planned for theaters a puff system to bring in the fresh air.

He would have air ducts in various places on the ceiling and walls and would rush air through these at high velocity. For fifteen seconds he would have air puffed out at the people in the seats from one duct and then have that duct closed for forty-five seconds while other ducts were puffing. The ducts would operate consecutively, so that in no one place would there be a draft.—Saturday Evening Post.

DWARFS OF ITALY.

Bergamo's Peculiar Type May Have Been Noted by Shakespeare.

That the city of Bergamo, Italy, has an abnormal number of dwarfs of a peculiar type is asserted by Professor Max Kassowitz of Vienna, who was struck with this fact during a recent visit. From an allusion to the town in one of Shakespeare's plays he is led to believe that this peculiarity is of long standing.

The technical way of putting it is that there prevails in Bergamo "endemic micromelic dwarfism"—in other words, the dwarfs of Bergamo have "large crania, broad in the vault, with the root of the nose depressed and bare short and twisted limbs."

We read in the British Medical Journal that Professor Kassowitz was only about two hours in the upper town of Bergamo, and yet he counted at least twenty of them there, though he noted not more than one in the lower town. This paper goes on:

"The subjects were both adults and children, and it seemed to him that there were more women than men. They all had intelligent faces. He calls upon the medical men of Italy, and especially of Bergamo, to investigate this curious instance of dwarfism and refers to a possible although not a very probable allusion to its occurrence in this same town in northern Italy in Shakespeare's time."—Literary Digest.

Water Torches.

Light boxes or water torches, which will float on the water and give a great flare of light for an hour, are the latest application of the modern chemical marvel, calcium carbide. In Paris such light boxes are being sold for use as fireworks at celebrations, but in Germany they have been developed much further. Cylinders of the calcium carbide are fired from guns like ordinary shells, so that a ship can surround itself with a circle of great flare lights, each burning at 3,000 candle power for an hour. When the cylinders strike the water they sink slowly, and water seeps into the carbide. This generates gas and brings the cylinders back to the surface, and then an automatic device lights the gas.—Saturday Evening Post.

Stoessel in a Bad Way.

Major General Stoessel, the hero of Port Arthur, has not only fallen upon evil times in his declining years, but for the last twelve months he has been practically paralyzed and has now well nigh lost the power of speech. He was recently compelled to sell his small country estate near Moscow to liquidate his debts and is said to be practically destitute. He has accepted the offer of a faithful friend of an unoccupied furnished house for life.

Knowledge by the Foot.

Information was formerly measured by the page; it may soon be computed by the foot. One motion picture firm is sending out letters announcing that it has in stock 10,000 feet of architecture, 30,000 feet of science and 90,000 feet of geography.—World's Work.

Margaret Roper.

There were some great women in the age of Elizabeth as well as great men who adorned that remarkable period of adventure and literary activity, but few of whom had their names passed on to future generations.

Perhaps the greatest of these was Margaret Roper, the daughter of Sir Thomas More, who was well skilled in Greek, Latin and other languages; proficient in the sciences, as then known, and as remarkable for determination and strength of character as the great Queen herself. Tradition records that Queen Elizabeth offered her a ducal coronet, which she refused lest it should be considered as a compromise for what she considered the judicial murder of her father by Henry VIII.

The head of Sir Thomas More was stuck on a pole and placed on London Bridge, where it remained fourteen days. Margaret Roper determined to gain possession of this gruesome trophy. Aubrey tells how she proceeded: "One day as she was passing under the bridge looking up at her father's head she exclaimed, 'That head has lain many a time in my lap; would to God it would fall in my lap as I pass under.' She had her wish for it fell into her lap." Aubrey's account of this "miraculous" happening is thus explained: She bribed a bridge keeper to throw it over the bridge when he should see her passing under in a boat, and the exclamation that she made was a cue devised between her and the bridge keeper. When summoned before the council for having the head in her possession she boldly declared that her "father's head should never be food for fishes." For this she was imprisoned, but was soon liberated. She retained the head which she had inclosed in a leaden box and preserved with the tenderest devotion.

CHARM OF BOMBAY.

Indian Metropolis Is One of the Most Wonderful Cities of Our Time.

Bombay is a beautiful spot, which never seems to have been appreciated. One hears much of Bombay, but little of its beauty. A magnificent bay with picturesque islands in the middle distance and a background of mysterious hills. The town faces west, and to look across the warm sea from the lawn of the Bombay Yacht Club, watch the sun setting behind the vague hills, and then a yellow moon rise through a mauve haze is worth even a fortnight on any steamer.

The Yacht Club is a dangerous place for the traveler. It is apt to become his Capua. He will find it difficult to leave its comfortable halls. The absence of doors and windows, the noiseless waiters serving you with bare feet on the polished floors, says a writer in The National Review, preserve the eastern atmosphere even in an English club, you begin to realize the charm of a climate where fresh air is not merely wholesome but comforting.

A great charm of Bombay is that it is a city not merely on the sea, but along the sea. The front, curving pleasantly, stretches for about five miles to Malabar Hill. On the point is Government House, and the best residential quarters are near, where rich Parsees and high officials live in bungalows which are really palaces. A first and lasting surprise in India is the green grass of the parks and gardens. The Maidan of Calcutta, that famous green, the park at Lucknow, the Gold Club at Agra, the gardens of the Bombay bungalows are all alike in this, a result attained no doubt by infinite trouble and the possibilities of cheap labor.

In Bombay the formal sights for the tourist are not many. The caves of Elephanta should not be missed—of surprising interest, they reward you further by a delightful view of the bay and its islands. The Towers of Silence have a serene horror all their own. In the most luxurious quarter of Bombay sit, almost at the doors of their prey, the obscene vultures waiting aloft with a horrible patience—of all undertakers surely the grimmest.

There are law courts, a picturesque Town Hall, and a remarkable railway station, but they do not count. The interest of Bombay is the place itself and the people. It begins at once. You are delayed in landing because an elderly European is being crowned with garlands of flowers interwoven with tinsel on his return from Europe.

As you leave the dock you are caught by the fascination of the streets which never wanes. Crowds moving and various; fat parsees with bowler hats without any brims, and a more common head-dress made apparently of flypaper and shaped like a mitre. Mohammedans with beards dyed red, Hindus with the many caste-marks painted on their foreheads, Arabs with an odd head-dress made apparently of the pads with which western women eke out their hair.

A favorite dress common to both sexes is a sort of divided skirt which can be reefed to suit the temperature, and on hot days disappears almost entirely like a scandalized mainsail revealing two brown legs. The variety of costumes is infinite. You may wear anything or nothing. The children wear, frankly, nothing except an occasional bangle. The women are extraordinarily picturesque; one garment, vivid and varied in color, wound round the figure. Their arms and legs covered with gold bangles.

Farmer Wayback (starting home from the station)—Please, ma'am, do you wear false teeth?

Fair Boarder—Sir!

Farmer Wayback—Oh, I don't mean to be curious. Only this road is a leetle rough, and ef your teeth ain't good and fast you'd better put 'em in your pocket.—Spokesman-Review.

The way to cut out your accounting worries is to use the

Remington
Adding and Subtracting Typewriter
(Wahl Adding Mechanism)

This machine cuts half the labor by combining two operations, writing and adding, in one.

It cuts all the leaks by cutting all the errors. The machine itself is error proof and it spots any errors made by others. As a mechanical check, it is perfect.

Either one of these things makes the Remington Adding and Subtracting Typewriter worth many times its cost to you. And remember that the range of this machine covers billing work, statement work—any kind of work where writing and adding are done on the same page.

A demonstration, on your work, will be given on your request—no obligation involved. Send for our illustrated booklet, "The New Remington Idea."

SCIENTISTS ON LIFE BEYOND THE GRAVE

INTO the very ether, the properties of which he discussed, rushed the words recently uttered by Sir Oliver Lodge on the immortality of the soul, thrilling humanity all over the globe with thoughts of the possibilities that lie in the unsolved problem of the ages—After death, what?

In the press of common affairs in which most men are of necessity caught to-day there is scant time for speculating on the character of the land beyond the border of mortality and the lot of the soul that has passed into it. When a man of Sir Oliver Lodge's standing in the world of science speaks on this subject thousands turn a ready ear to listen to what arguments, what proof he has to offer on a subject that for all, despite their apparent indifference, is of the deepest importance. Does man come up as a flower, does he fade and is he cut down, and is that the end, as so many scientific men have said?

If Sir Oliver were only to add his testimony to that of others who hold this opinion there were soon an end of it and men would not read to the end of the speech he delivered before his fellow scientists in Birmingham, but when almost his first words expressed his faith and belief in immortality and the continuance of personality there was an eagerness to read to the last word the reasons for the faith that was in him. He spoke as an attorney for the case of the Soul before the bar of Time.

"The evidence, to my mind," were his words, "goes to prove that discarnate intelligence under certain conditions may interact with us on the material side, thus indirectly coming within our scientific ken, and that gradually we may hope to attain some understanding of the nature of a larger, perhaps ethereal, existence and of conditions regulating intercourse across the chasm." And he adds:—"A body of responsible investigators has even now landed on the treacherous but promising shores of a new continent."

None of the college professors questioned by this paper is indifferent to the subject, but few are willing to come out in the open and range themselves with Sir Oliver Lodge in the assertion that personality really exists. On the other hand, Professor John Trowbridge, S. D., Rumford professor and lecturer at Harvard on the application of science to the useful arts, emeritus and honorary director of the Jefferson Physical Laboratory, said:—

"I have carefully read everything Sir Oliver Lodge has said on the subject and I am surprised that any scientific man should make such statements. There are no facts to support any of his contentions. His opinions are not worth any more on the question of whether there is life after death than is that of the man in the street.

"About what there is after death we know nothing. Science has not yet found anything that will aid in solving this mystery.

"You ask me if I think there is life after death. I do not know. It would be dangerous to prophesy."

Dr. Alfred C. Lane, one of the most noted of the scientists of Tufts College, said:—

"Science has little to do with what it cannot test and verify. Observations which we cannot repeat, test and verify may be true, but they are beyond its realm. Now we cannot shut up discarnate spirits in cells as we can kittens, to test their intelligence. Consequently it is no wonder that scientific men have been inclined to let alone the line of investigation which Sir Oliver Lodge has taken up.

"Of course, in a world where radium and the possibility of a velocity as great as 185,000 miles a second have been discovered there is no telling what may be discovered next. It was Darwin who said that a scientific man should not be too incredulous. For my part, I would hate to call a man a liar if he had seen something that I had not and had made certain deductions from it."

Dr. Herbert Spencer Jennings, Henry Walters professor of zoology in Johns Hopkins University, had this to say of the speech:—"I must confess that I have not followed closely the results of the investigation of Sir Oliver Lodge in the field of psychical research. What I have heard of his results, however, has not impressed me. He is one of the very few scientific men in the strict sense of the word who has turned to psychical research. He is a physicist, however, and physicists are more prone to indulge in such speculations than zoologists.

"He appears to give absolutely no new ground for his belief in discarnate mentality. It seems to me that while there is no evidence by which such views can be contradicted, on the other hand, and more important still from the scientific point of view, there is no evidence to support such a belief. Some scientific men believe in ghosts, but then it must be remembered that all sorts of men go into science."

Professor Harry Fielding Reid, professor of dynamic geology and one of the foremost scientists of Johns Hopkins University, said:—"I have read the speech of Sir Oliver with a great deal of interest, but have not been converted to his views by the arguments contained therein. Sir Oliver is a great scientist, and it is a rare thing for scientific men to believe in ghosts. The Society for Psychical Research, organized in England about thirty-six years ago, has investigated many so-called spiritual manifestations—the views of Sir Oliver are really spiritualistic—and has, in nearly all instances, proved them to be manifestations of purely natural causes. I have never seen a ghost, and until good evidence is produced to show that they exist I cannot subscribe to such views as those expressed by Sir Oliver."

That Sir Oliver Lodge deserves the praise of every scientist because he has dared to reconcile the beliefs of the various religious creeds and those of science was the statement made by Dr. Arthur W. Goodspeed, professor of physics in the University of Pennsylvania, one of the few scientific men who support the distinguished Englishman.

"Sir Oliver Lodge's address before the British Association for the Advancement of Science," Dr. Goodspeed said, "is one of the most convincing and dignified statements ever made by any scientist. The world recognizes Sir Oliver Lodge as one of the most learned men, and naturally anything he would say upon immortality should receive consideration.

"Every religious creed contends that the soul lives after death, that the personality of man persists even after the grave is closed. Many scientists have asserted for years that such a condition is true and have tried to prove it. In the paper read by Sir Oliver he offers many facts to show that life does exist. He has tried to bring the belief of the religious creeds to a scientific basis or to relate physical science and psychology.

"There is nothing absurd in any of his statements. He has urged a belief in ultimate continuity as essential to science, and in support of his contention he has presented many arguments. The declarations he has made are all probable and many of his statements have already been proven by scientific tests."

Edwin J. Bartlett, A. M., M. D., New Hampshire professor of chemistry and head of the department at Dartmouth, made the following comment:—

"The address of Sir Oliver Lodge before the British association is one to be read carefully and then read again by every man concerned with science or philosophy. It abounds in the wise generalizations of a great scientist who also has looked out upon the world.

"The main theme is the (necessary) limitation, the incompleteness of the investigative methods in any field. Physicists ignore and exclude live things, biologists exclude mind and design and the possibility of wholly new fields of knowledge with the wider application of scientific methods.

"In a brief paragraph or two at the conclusion he expresses his own belief that memory and affection are not limited to their present association with matter. As he does not attempt to give evidence, we can barely feel that he has raised any new foundations for belief in a future life, but rather that he has cleared the ground on which such foundations may be laid."

"The psychology of to-day does not concern itself with the possibility of continuing personality after death," said Professor Walter Dill Scott, head of the department of psychology of Northwestern University. "A generation ago it devoted much attention to it, but no satisfactory progress was made toward a conclusion that would be accepted as authentic. I do not believe any psychologist to-day is interesting himself in the question raised by Sir Oliver Lodge. Naturally there is a tremendous popular interest in the subject, and I suppose it is true that a large majority of the civilized peoples of the world believe physical death is not the end. It is not within the province of science to dwell on the matter, because science deals with facts rather than with speculations."

"Those who have lived unquestionably exert an influence on those who survive them," said Professor LeRoy Moore, of the University of Chicago. "To that extent at least I agree with Sir Oliver. I would hate to think otherwise. Sometimes I see the face of my mother, and that has as much bearing on my thoughts as if she were physically present in a room with me. I do not concern myself with phenomena. Those who spend their time dabbling thus close to earth are not usually spiritually-minded. They can conceive nothing beyond their physical senses, and so they deny the existence of anything beyond that pale."

"Matters of eternity are necessarily largely matters of faith," said the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church and lecturer at the University of Chicago. "Our every day living is largely a matter of faith. We are constantly dealing with forces and things whose nature we do not understand. There is a certain class of infidel scientists as narrow as ever they have charged Christians with being. They serve to keep alive a hostility that is needless. Undoubtedly the effect of Sir Oliver's statement will be good."

Theologians are disposed to rate Sir Oliver Lodge's opinions on the future life more highly than do the pure scientists. One of them, Benjamin Tinkham Marshall, B. D., A. M., Phillips professor of Biblical history and literature in Dartmouth College, made the following comment:—

"Sir Oliver Lodge's address on 'Continuity' expresses, it seems to me, in admirable terms that humility which is becoming in the scientist, and indeed in every investigator, while adding a much needed note of caution against that cocksureness on the side of negation which characterizes so many scientists.

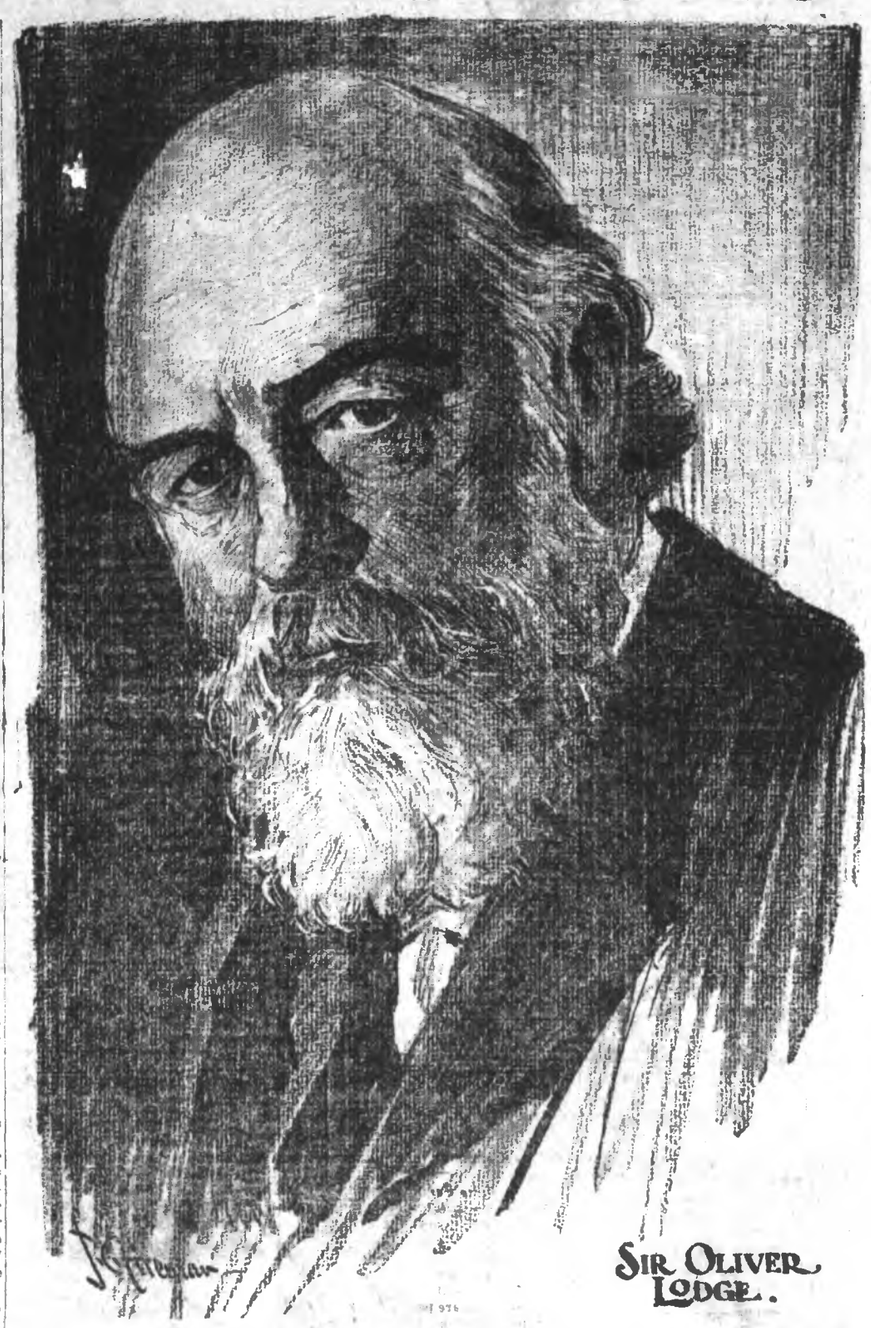
"The attitude of expectation of life beyond the grave, rising to the point of conviction that this continued life will, at no distant day, be demonstrable, when held and advocated by one having the standing of Sir Oliver, is bound to be deeply appreciated and welcomed for the confirmation of their convictions by all who aim to minister constructively to men, and who find to their dismay that some of the best of men are eager for a position affirmative to the old question:—'If a man die, shall he live again?'"

Anticipating the attitude of the scientists, Sir Oliver Lodge said:—"They" (the arbitrary scientists), "account for things up to a point; they account in part for the color of a sunset, for the majesty of a mountain peak, for the glory of animate existence. But do they account for everything completely? Do they account for our own feeling of joy and exaltation, for our sense of beauty, for the manifest beauty existing throughout nature? Do not these things suggest something higher and nobler and more joyous, something for the sake of which all the struggle for existence goes on?

"Our studies do not exhaust the universe, and if we dogmatize in a negative direction and say that we can reduce everything to physics and chemistry, we gibbet ourselves as ludicrously narrow pedants, and are falling far short of the richness of our human birthright.

"Existence is like the output from a loom. The pattern, the design for the weaving, is in some sort 'there' already; but, whereas our looms are mere machines once the guiding cards have been fed into them, the loom of time is complicated by a multitude of free agents who can modify the web, making the product more beautiful or more ugly, according as they are in harmony or disharmony with the general scheme. I venture to maintain that manifest imperfections are thus accounted for and that freedom could be given on no other terms nor at any less cost.

"I am one of those," asserted Sir Oliver Lodge, "who think that the methods of science are not so limited in their scope as has been thought; that they can be studied much more wisely and that the psychic region can be studied and brought under law, too. Allow us, anyhow, to make the attempt," he pleaded. "Give us a fair field. Let those who prefer the materialistic hypothesis by all means develop their thesis as far as they can, but let us try what we can do in the psychical regions and see which wins."



Curious and Romantic Stories Told in the Buttolph Collection of 26,000 Menus

THROUGH the mazes of the New York Public Library one may penetrate to the very heart of the stacks, where the silence is broken only by an occasional boy with a slip in his hand in quest of books for reading up stairs, and where Miss Frank E. Buttolph sits in a little room, enclosed with strong wire netting, sorting, tabulating and indexing the menus of the famous Buttolph collection. It is only about thirteen years since she began this work, and in that time she has brought together 26,000 menus from all parts of the world, giving side lights not only on what persons eat but on the many and varied events which are made the occasion for feasting.

The little room is a sacred place. A really interested visitor is welcomed by Miss Buttolph, but he is promptly cautioned to give due reverence to the place and the collection. "Tread carefully" is the admonition. Apparently the floor is covered with heavy brown wrapping paper, but the custodian of the Buttolph collection points to a sign, "Made in Germany." There is a twinkle in her eye, however, so that one is not quite sure whether he should remove his shoes on the threshold or not. He will be left in no doubt, however, about the necessity for reverential treatment of every article in the Buttolph collection. The library is sure of having this branch of its possessions well cared for as long as the donor and custodian of the Buttolph collection lives.

The collection is unique. There are other collections of menus in the world, to be sure, but nothing on a scale at all comparable with this one. The fame of it has spread to all quarters of the globe, and Miss Buttolph is in constant correspondence with collectors and with persons whom she has interested in her project. Not only in the large cities but in remote places the consuls of the United States send her menus, in various languages and of a most interesting character. Other officials and private individuals keep her in touch with affairs everywhere. She has letters from the secretaries of sovereigns, from the Lord Mayor of London, from the Archbishop of Canterbury and from diplomatists and persons distinguished in many lines. The representative sent by the United States to Addis Abeba, the capital of Abyssinia, Mr. G. W. Love, who died a few months ago, was one of the most interesting of Miss Buttolph's correspondents and sent her much news from a region of which white men know so little. He described a banquet at which he had been present where the high officials sat at tables but the lesser guests squatted upon the ground, receiving pieces of meat cut from long strips by the waiters and which they cut off piece by piece, slicing it upward with a knife with infinite danger to their noses. He sent the menu of a luncheon given to foreign officials by the Crown Prince Lij Yassu in celebration of Lidetta (Christmas) in the Aldersach, the banquet hall of the Royal Palace. The Emperor, Menelik II., was too ill to attend at that time. A comet was then making a considerable sensation and the cover of the menu bore a hand painted design of a comet with an enormous tail projected from the starry firmament and being studied by a man of grotesque appearance.

From the South of Africa there are many menus commemorating events mostly among the official classes, including one of a dinner at Durban to the Duke of Connaught. A masonic menu from Cape Elizabeth, South Africa, carries the record south to the Cape of Good Hope. In the other direction it extends to Iceland, where Miss Buttolph has been in correspondence with the daughter of the Mayor of Reykjavik, who sent her, among other things, a menu of a dinner given in Government House upon the occasion of the visit of the King of Denmark. Another far north luncheon was that given to King Haakon VII. by the citizens of Hammerfest, Norway. The menu was simplicity itself, including only bouillon, flyndere med holandsk sauce, kylling salat, karamelpudding and melon, but the wines were numerous.

Prussian Coronation Dinner 1861

One of the speech marking menus is that of a dinner given in Paris on Christmas Day, the ninety-ninth of the siege, which included a number of dishes in which the rat, cat and other animals, scorned as articles of food in happier days, were levied on to provide tasty fare. Many later French menus are included in the collection.

Then there is the menu of a dinner served at the time of the coronation of the King and Queen of Prussia in 1861, which carries one back to the days when Prussia was not merely a part of the German Empire. A menu written by hand reveals what Queen Victoria had to eat when she and Prince Albert were guests at Osborne House on December 21, 1857, and have tried to prove it. In the paper read by Sir Oliver he offers many facts to show that life does exist. He has tried to bring the belief of the religious roast duck, roast beef and plum pudding being the prominent features.

Miss Buttolph has one of the two menus that were being used the day that Aguinaldo was captured in the Philippine Islands. There was one at each end of the table and they were seized by Captain Harry Newton, of the United States Army, when the dinner was disturbed by the intrusion of the soldiers. It was a good banquet that they interrupted, including rice with Red Cross sauce, sausages with sauce, fish mayonnaise, broth with meat balls, pie of stuffed chicken, mock turkey, fresh ham, salad and sweets.

When the American fleet went around the world its remarkable progress was reported in many ways. Few of them are more interesting than that formed by the menus of the dinners, luncheons, banquets and tiffins which marked their departure and return and the various stops along the route. San Francisco and Los Angeles and Seattle banqueted them and toasted them elaborately, as is shown by the handsome menus which celebrate equally in their decorations the glories of the State and of the navy. The Orient showed its hospitality in characteristic fashion. At a reception to the fleet in Amoy the menu was printed on fans in English and Chinese and bore the Chinese and American flags crossed. A tiffin at the American consulate there included among the dishes shark, fish patties, mandarin fish, pigeon egg soup, bamboo shoots and vomelo salad, as well as such familiar comestibles as roast turkey and cranberry sauce and sweet potatoes. On the menu of a banquet given by the municipality of Yokohama tributes to the significance of the occasion were indicated in Manhattan cocktails, terrapin à la Maryland, punch international and consommé diplomatic. A Japanese menu for an entirely different occasion was that of a dinner for the Mikado's birthday. It is printed on heavy white silk and is very elaborate.

A menu printed in the native language is a souvenir of a dinner given by the Maharajah of Baroda to the Maharajah of Gwalior at the Laxmivilas Palace, with directions for two servings—one for the Brahmins and another for the guests who were not of that caste. Many Oriental menus are in the Buttolph collection, very interesting in appearance and very decorative, but, unless there is a translation, which is done in some cases, they are unintelligible to the ordinary visitor. Miss Buttolph has some of the most interesting facts about the menus carefully annotated on the backs, however, she having cultivated a neat and clear printing hand especially for the work of the collection.

The oldest New York menus are from the American Hotel, which in 1848 stood on Broadway, at the corner of Barclay street. They cover the period from June 1, to November 30, and are bound in a long, narrow volume which bears on the title page the autograph "James Bagley, 1848." This book had no value for the owner and was sent to Miss Buttolph in April, 1901.

On the completion of the Woolworth Building last April, a banquet was given on the twenty-sixth floor to the architect, Mr. Cass Gilbert, and the menu was sent to Miss Buttolph. The three days the oldest and the youngest New York city menus were from the same location, with a difference of sixty-five years in their dates.

She has the menu for the banquet to Kossuth, December 19, 1851, and for the ball to the Prince of Wales in the old Academy of Music, October 12, 1860. Prince Louis of Battenberg sent her an autograph copy of the menu for the ball which he gave on board the Drake, November 14, 1905. The menus for all the leading banquets given to Prince Henry of Prussia, in 1902, are preserved in the Buttolph collection.

While menus are of comparatively recent use, they have become a commonplace. The first printed menu used at the table of which Miss Buttolph has found a record was in 1541 at a banquet given by the Duke of Brunswick. It was noticed that he had a long piece of paper beside his plate to which he occasionally referred. On being asked what the paper was for the Duke replied it was a list of what was being served for the banquet and by consulting it he could preserve his appetite for his favorite dishes.

Of course, menus, in the sense of lists of food to be served at banquets or other feasts, are as old as those occasions themselves.

The Romans supplied their tables with the following articles of food, according to Macrobius, who lived early in the fourth century:—Field hares from Germany, peacocks from Samos, chickens from Phrygia, cranes from Melos, young goats from Anatolia, lampreys and salmon from Tartessus, pike from Pessinus, oysters from Tarentum, mussels from Chios, nuts from Tarsus, dates from Egypt, acorns from Spain.

Here is the menu of a dinner which Julius Caesar is said to have given to the vestal virgins after his election as Pontifex Maximus, 63 B. C.:—

SALUTE FOR KAISER WILHELM

Many Things of Interest to Boys and Girls—A Mystifying Trick With Figures—Bits of Useful Information. Riddles to Puzzle and Amuse.

In Germany, as in most European nations, militarism is very much more in evidence than in our own land of the free. In all the cities there are constantly to be seen soldiers in the uniforms of their respective arms of the service. Parades are a matter of everyday occurrence, and it is therefore not surprising that the German little folks, especially the boys, should become inbued with the military spirit. When the kaiser turns out at a review of troops there is always a large crowd to cheer him and his gaudily attired soldiers. At the recent Potsdam review the camera man snapped a couple of boys perched on a window ledge just as they were saluting the kaiser in true military fashion. One is in the uniform of a naval officer and the other in the gorgeous uniform of the royal hussars.

A Trick With Figures.

Desire a person to think of a number. Tell him to triple it and take the exact half of that.

Triple that half if the number is even, if odd multiply the larger half by three. Then ask him how many times that answer contains nine, for the answer will contain the double of that number of nines and one more if it be odd.

Thus, if the number thought of is five its triple will be fifteen, which cannot be devided by two without a remainder. The greater half of fifteen is eight. If we multiply this by three we have twenty-four, which contains nine twice. So we shall have 2 plus 2 plus 1 equals 5, the number first thought of.

Game of Mosaic.

A writing game for any number. Each writes a word on a slip of paper, and after the slips are mixed one of the players draws and reads them aloud in the order in which he draws them, and each player must write them down in the same order. Then each one must write a little story or paragraph, using the words in the same order. The game may be made more difficult by requiring the story to be of a specified length or written within a certain time, or it may be made easier by allowing the players to use the words in any order they please.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

WANTED TO SEE THE FUN.

So Little Bobby Was on the Job Every Day.

Eddy, little Bobby's playmate, was asked by a motion picture company to pose for it. Later when the picture was produced Bobby went to see "him." Eddy played a thrilling role of escaping from the pantry with a glass of jam just before his "aunt" went in search of him.

Bobby sat through the show, eying his playmate a little jealously, and then every day that week found Bobby spending his nickel for a front seat.

The manager of the show, becoming curious, asked the reason, and Bobby replied:

"Some day that woman's gonna ketch him, an' I wanna see the fun."—Judge.

USES OF TULLE.

Fashion Approves of Wash Net In the Dress World.

Now that the bodice of almost every frock is extremely low cut from the chin down, the wide or narrow V space thus formed must be partly filled in one way or another. An easier filling in method than the attached vest or than the detached chemisette which has an annoying fashion of drawing out of position and lending the bodice an askew look, is to have a tulle waistcoat which is separately put on. This accessory is easily made and fitted if cut after the body of a well fitting shirt waist, as that will be a correct guide for the shoulders and the armseyes. And to make the shoulders and the armholes feel comfortable is all that is necessary, as an elastic ribbon run through a casing at the lower edge of the waistcoat will draw it smoothly over the bust and back and about the waistline. If the lower two-thirds of the waistcoat's back is of batiste the garment will be firmer and wear better, since that portion of it must stand most of the strain. The fronts may be solidly pin tucked and fastened blindly with hooks and eyes or finely tucked in groups at either side of a row of tiny crystal buttons, while the neck may be finished with either a standing or a turned over collar ajour stitch bordered. The Medici collar illustrated is a dainty adjunct to wear with the tulle waistcoat. It is also made of tulle or wash net trimmed with lace

Beauty Up to Date.

The keynote of beauty up to date is simplicity. We have come at last to realize that the least elaborate things are often the most lovely, particularly where dress is concerned.

By "dress" is not meant clothes exclusively.

Take hairdressing, for instance. The present day styles are all of the simplest in appearance (though to attain the effect probably quite long practice is necessary), and they are ever so much prettier than the old fashioned frizzed up fringes and puffed out side pieces, with multitudes of curls.

The shape of the head and face is too pretty to hide—that is what artistic people are saying now—and up to date hairdressers have evolved styles of dressing which will show up all the beautiful outlines.

Round faces, oval faces and long shaped faces have all been studied from an artistic point of view, and clever hairdressers have learned just how to arrange the hair in the simplest manner possible so as to accentuate the points of beauty instead of concealing them, as old fashioned styles were wont to do.

If you are a little undecided as to what your best points are and as to how you should do your hair in the up to date simple way; then it would be well to go to a really good hairdresser and ask her to put it up for you in the style she thinks will best become you.

If you can take a friend with you, so much the better. She can watch operations from the back, and you can note the rest in the looking glass.

When fashion decrees that beauty up to date means showing more than usual the graceful lines and curves of one's figure then it becomes more important than ever to make or keep the figure as elegant as possible.

To be simply dressed does not necessarily mean to be cheaply dressed—far from it. Some of the least elaborate of gowns have cost fabulous sums. There is one advantage, however, which will appeal to those of you who have rather lean purses—namely, that so long as beauty up to date spells simplicity it is always possible to dress well on very little.

Cheap finery, as you all know, always looks tawdry and poor. A simple little frock or hat, on the other hand, without a bit of trimming perhaps, is considered just right these days and will cost little.

Nowadays it is the girl who can look pretty simply who counts. The days of overelaboration are past.

Cure For Sunburn.

One of the greatest troubles of the summer girl is sunburn, and how to get rid of it is a problem that interests her mightily.

The prime favorite of all sunburn remedies is one that contains almonds, for these nuts are particularly soothing to a burned skin and will do a great deal toward alleviating the condition. Any number of good almond preparations are on the market, but should you care to make your own lotion at home try the following:

Rub up in a mortar one ounce of sweet blanched almonds by adding, a little at a time, one-half pint of distilled water or pure soft water, mixing and rubbing constantly until a smooth, homogeneous milky emulsion is formed. Finally strain the resulting mixture through a piece of net gauze to remove the coarser particles. This is the common "milk of almonds" of perfumers to which glycerin, various cosmetics, perfumes and coloring matter may be added as desired.

If a paste is perferred it may be prepared as follows:

Pound the dry kernels of sweet almonds to a fine powder in an earthenware or marble mortar. This will require time and patience. When the almonds are sufficiently fine add just enough elder flower, roses or orange flower water to make a paste of the desired consistency. Perfume with some essential oil, such as attar of roses, bergamot, neroli or any other desired. Preserve in covered glass jars.

The Matter of Bathing.

Cool baths suit some temperaments, and hot baths bring the best results in others. Morning baths act as a tonic for some, and the evening tub is most appropriate for others. The best thing to do is for each individual to experiment until she has found which seems to have the best effect in her own case and then abide by the rule. Don't make the rule an unbreakable one, however, or you will be laying up trouble for yourself. If you once get the shower bath habit you will never give it up, so begin tomorrow morning. When using the regular shower be sure to protect the hair with a rubber cap. Use pure soap and warm water first; then, when all the soap is rinsed off, rub the body with a handful of sea salt. Shower again with water cool enough to give a pleasurable shock, rub briskly with a coarse towel and a moderately stiff flesh brush and then spray the body with a lotion.

On Occasions.

"Are you superstitious about thirteen at table?" asked Mrs. Flickenlooper.

"I am when there's hardly enough food for twelve," said Mrs. Giddybody.—Magazine of Fun.

He is, in my opinion, the noblest one who has raised himself by his own merit to a higher station.—Cicero.

LUNCHEON SETS.

Novelties In Summer Linens For the Bungalow.

Several attractive novelties in summer linens for the country house are being shown now. Our old friend, the willow pattern, which has become as standard a thing in china as bread and butter are in food, has been adopted as an embroidery design for linen.

Bungalow willow sets, as these luncheon outfits are called, are in white linen with the traditional Chinese design embroidered in two shades of blue. The price is $16.50 for a set consisting of a twenty-seven inch centerpiece and three dozen doilies—one dozen in each of the three customary sizes. Small napkins to match at $5 a dozen.

Willow china can be used with this corresponding linen with striking effect. Too striking, in fact, for anything except country house entertaining. Even there it will seem to many women to be "too much of a muchness" and they will prefer to use a plainer china with the willow linen.

Austrian linens are another novelty. They come in white, a pale grayish blue and a dull creamy yellow. The color is not solid, however, as many white threads are woven in with the tinted ones. The allover designs are very simple geometrical ones, scarcely perceptible at a distance. The fabric itself is rather heavy but much closer and firmer than some of the German linens used for summer luncheons and teas. The Austrian sets are a little more expensive than those in the willow pattern.

White Irish linen, embroidered in Japan in a deep border of small white knots with an occasional small floral spray in shaded blue silk, is the material for other sets, which cost $25 apiece.

Very inexpensive sets, but at the same time very attractive ones, are in heavy natural color grass linen with scalloped edges embroidered in blue. These will be extremely serviceable and will make a novel and picturesque effect. And their price, $4.50 a set (including centerpiece and three sets of doilies), will appeal to the woman who cannot afford to buy expensive table linens for her simple country house. For the summer home nothing is more convenient for informal entertaining than the cosy little tea wagon seen in the illustration. It may be wheeled out on the lawn, and as it is made from wicker the transit is a comparatively easy one for the person who pushes the cart.

A Water Experiment.

Procure two pieces of glass about six inches square, join any two of their sides and separate the opposite sides with a piece of wax so that their surfaces may be at a slight angle. Immerse this apparatus about an inch in a basin of water, and the water will rise between the plates and form a beautiful geometrical figure called a hyperbola.

A Proverb.

"Haste makes waste," the sages say.
It's a proverb old, yet true each day.
If our work is done with haste
Something will surely go to waste.
Careful movements are what tell.
A hurried task is ne'er done well.

Let's read the proverb another way:
"Make haste! Don't waste!" it seems to say.
Make haste to do whate'er is right.
Don't waste the precious moments bright.
Read either way, the words are true.
They're worth a trial, I think. Don't you?

Effective, Economical Complexion Beautifier

(Julia Orff in The Clubwoman.)

One reason I so strongly recommend mercolised wax is that it really takes the place of several different cosmetics, saving time, patience and expense. It is better than any cleansing cream, better than any massage cream, and better than any rouge, for accomplishing the results for which such articles are used. As the wax actually absorbs an old, faded or discoloured cuticle, a little each day, the underlying skin which gradually appears, is clearer, softer, healthier-hued and more youthful than any cosmetic-made complexion. Spreading on a thin coat of this wax at night, washing it off mornings, in a week or so produces a marvellous transformation. Just one ounce of mercolised wax, obtainable at any druggists, will do the work. There's nothing better to remove freckles, moth patches, liver spots, sallowness, blotches, pimples or blackheads.

For wrinkles and loose, saggy skin, I invariably recommend a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. This has remarkable astringent and tonic properties.

When Critics Disagreed

Professor Lounsbury tells a good story which seems to show that in the matter of poetry critics hold diverse opinions and that one man's opinion is as good as another's. According to the professor, Aubrey De Vere, the Irish poet, collected on the same day the opinion of three of his brother poets on the poetical standing of Burns.

One of these poets, who was Tennyson, said Burns' songs were perfect, but that one had to forget his serious pieces to enjoy them. The second, who was Wordsworth, said that Burns' "serious efforts" showed great genius, but that his foolish little amatory poems were worthy only of oblivion. The third was Sir Henry Taylor, who said that he found Burns' songs and his serious poems alike—tedious and disagreeable.

Spoonerisms.

Even history has its charms. As one follows the events of the day start echoes from the past, and sometimes laughter. Example:

Here is a quaint fellow in Tay Pay's Weekly revealing marvels about the signs and names of English inns. Creditable performance, doubtless, though drowsy withal. But we have conned the pages of history, so remember Spooner—the great, great Spooner—he who got run over while "boiling his icicle" at the side of the road, yet recovered and went home by "the town drain." To Spooner we owe a criticism—by deeds, not words—of the names they give inns. Surely you recall his agreeing to meet a friend at the Green Man, Dulwich, and, with his usual aptitude, hunting all afternoon for the Dull Man, Greenwich.—New York Tribune.

Badly Expressed.

Old Aunt (despondently)—Well, I shall not be a nuisance to you much longer, Nephew (reassuringly)—Don't talk like that, aunt; you know you will.—Boston Transcript.

Too Forward.

"By jove, I had a narrow escape yesterday."

"Really! How?"

"Well, four of us were lunching together, and, of course—you know how one has to on that sort of occasion—we each insisted on stumping up and paying the bill."

"Yes," remarked his friend, "but what about that narrow escape?"

"That's just it. For a minute or two it looked very much as though I'd overplayed the game and the other three really were going to leave me with that bill to pay."—Answers.

BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

with simple, safe, home-made tonic. Get from any druggist 6 ounces of Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Composee and 1 drachm Menthol Crystals. If you like, add 1 drachm of your favourite perfume. Mix thoroughly; apply night and morning with fingers; for dandruff and falling hair. Contains no dye or colouring matter, but one ingredient, according to authorities, actually forces into renewed action the dormant pigment-forming cells and thereby restores prematurely grey hair to its natural colour. This same ingredient is also a powerful stimulant to the growth of new hair.

Conservation of Country's Feathered Tribe Under Government Control to Prevent Ruthless Slaying

TRUE sport has its apotheosis in the recently enacted legislation under which the autumn shooting season comes this year for the first time under government control.

The federal authorities have arranged to conserve the bird population of the country; to afford suitable opportunities for the sportsmen; to curb the activities of pothunters and to prevent ruthless spoliation by those who kill birds for their plumage.

Just how this is being done is the subject of much inquiry these days. The Department of Agriculture in Washington, the stores where sporting goods are sold and the newspaper offices are overwhelmed with questions. The new statute, popularly known as the McLean law, under which protection is given to both game and insectivorous birds, was passed to fill the coverts, to cause the meadow and the thicket to echo with avian song and to recognize the winged patrols as aids to husbandry.

Life had been hard for the fowls of the air for many a year before the coming of champions who in season and out of season plead for their right to live and multiply. There were few sanctuaries for the feathered tribe. Wherever birds took their flight they were likely to arrive in some State in which they could be lawfully slain.

The first great conspiracy against bird life was hatched in the early eighties, in this country, when there rose a demand for feathers and wings of all kinds. If the plumage had a little color only it was sought for hat trimmings. Then came the National Association of Audubon Societies, which by its crusades in various States awakened the public conscience. The present federal statute makes uniform regulations which have been in vogue in many of the commonwealths.

It was no unusual thing before the beginning of the agitation for the preservation of the birds for whole sections to be stripped of the feathered songsters within a few days. One taxidermist alone received an order for the skins of 10,000 dozen warblers. A change in fashion and restrictive legislation lessened this destruction at a point where many of the species were near extinction.

Then came the demand for the plumage of the heron, the egret, from which the aigrettes of the headgear of women are derived; the ibis, the tern and similar birds, and the plumers in the employ of the millinery houses started on their work of devastation.

In many States, under the Audubon laws, the rookeries where these birds gather in the South have been protected. The killing of these birds in the breeding season, when the aigrettes can be obtained, leave thousands of helpless young in their nests to die within sight of the stripped bodies of their parents. The assurance that a clause will be inserted in the new tariff prohibiting the importation of plumage is regarded by the friends of bird protection as a strong weapon. It will have the effect, they think, of discouraging a fashion which they regard as founded on barbaric instincts by making it more difficult to obtain feathers at the cost of the extermination of a beautiful breed.

In the spring there comes as harbinger to the North the Robin Redbreast, in crimson plastron clad. He swings upon the budding branch, goes swiftly over the greening lawns and builds his nest in sight of man. A welcome visitor in the North, he is hunted for his life in the South. In the North he is the ornament of park and garden; below the fortieth parallel he is killed for market. Millions of robins are slain. They are sought in cedar glades at night with lights which blind and confuse them, so that they may be taken from the branches by hand and killed. The birds were brought dead by thousands to the Southern cities in the winter. They are protected under the new law.

Nature students in this part of the country count the spring with the coming of the bobolink. The idea of killing these little singers of the woods as "game" would never occur to them. Yet even under the new law the shooting of bobolinks is permitted in certain sections of the South and in the District of Columbia. They are known as reed birds and further south in the Carolinas are called rice birds. T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, said that the organization had filed a protest at Washington against the slaying of bobolinks in any section of the country.

It is the object of the new regulations made by the Bureau of Biological Survey under the authority of the Department of Agriculture to which the enforcement of the McLean law was delegated to prevent indiscriminate shooting of birds, which, not only appeal to the aesthetic sense but have also a high economic value.

It has been shown by the examination of the stomachs of thousands of specimens that the non-game migratory birds which are protected destroy many injurious insects and feed upon the seeds of noxious weeds. Sportsmen generally favor the regulations, although in some localities efforts are made to have certain changes and adjustments.

The dusking of ducks, that is, the shooting of the birds while at evening on their way from one feeding ground to another, is against the new regulations, which declare a closed season daily from sunset to sunrise. The rule was aimed at those who have been in the habit of disturbing the fowl in their resting places by rowing into the waters they frequent in boats in which are flaming lights. The ducks are then at the mercy of the shotguns, as, confused by the glare, they often fly directly to their death.

Every effort in being made by the enforcement of the new laws to prevent the extinction of wild life through the greed for gain. The extermination of many varieties of animals and birds has been very nearly accomplished in this country, not by sportsmen but by men who are shooters for revenue only. This spirit, the antithesis of that of true sport, drove the bison from the plains, the deer from the forests and the heron from the glades.

The new law provides for efficient conservation and at the same time aims to give to reasonable men the opportunity to go afield in quest of health and exercise and the excitement of the chase. Under moderate restrictions, the framers of the law have taken the position that there is no reason why game should not flourish in the United States in abundance.

The law is aimed mainly at aliens of the Northern States who despoil the woods and parks of non-game birds and against the negroes, the pot hunters and the plumers of Southern latitudes.

If Christopher Columbus had not come to these shores and made possible the destroying of the balance of nature, the present regulations about game of all kinds would not have been necessary. He did arrive, however, and then came the gentlemen to the James River with good fowling pieces, and later some turkey shooting was noticed about Plymouth Rock. When the settlers began to kill redskins in the valley and rear red schoolhouses on the hills civilization came into the equation of life. Until recent years the policy has been in most parts of the country to shoot everything good to eat and to cut down all trees fit to burn or good for building purposes and to use up all water power without regard to the generations to come.

Various public spirited sportsmen and naturalists, individually or banded into organizations, had for years been endeavoring to stop the wanton waste of animals, birds and fish classified as game.

In the movement for the protection of the winged denizens of the air the New York Zoological Society, the American Game Protective and Propagation Association and the National Association of Audubon Societies have been especially active, although many other smaller societies gave co-operation. One of the last acts of William H. Taft when he retired from office was to sign the McLean bill, introduced by the Senator from Connecticut, whose name it bears, and throughout the summer regulations have been framed and hearings held. It has been the aim of the authorities to put between the boards of the law books the ideals of sportsmen.

That this policy is justified is shown by the increase of bird life which has come within the last few months largely as a result of an understanding of conditions. The establishing of places of refuge, the protection given in rookeries under government control in the South, the aid of the Audubon Society wardens, have already resulted in the return of bird life to regions which have literally rarely seen varieties which were once common. The white heron has been observed this summer in Massachusetts and on Long Island, although hitherto the radiant prey of the plumers was seldom seen beyond the Florida swamps.

An observer on the shores of Lake Ontario has reported the return of curlew and the knot.

It is believed that a few years under the recently enacted statute will increase the avian population so that the naturalist, the sportsman, the farmer, the humanitarian and even the often greedy seeker of birds for the sake of purse and pot will be alike satisfied with its enforcement.

To the man who goes shooting for the love of the tang of the autumn air, the exhilaration which comes from the success of skill and the enjoyment of nature itself it is held that eventually the new regulations will be accommodated to conditions.

The five million persons in this country who do some shooting will be interested to know that for the purpose of the regulations the following shall be considered migratory game birds:—Water fowl, including brant, wild ducks, geese and swans; cranes, including little brown, sandhill and whooping cranes; rails, including coots, mud hens, sora and others; shore birds, including avocets, curlew, dowitchers, godwits, knots, oyster catchers, phalaropes, plover, sandpipers, snipe, stilts, surf birds, turnstones, willet, woodcock and yellow legs; pigeons, including doves and wild pigeons.

For the purposes of these regulations the following shall be considered migratory insectivorous birds:—Bobolinks, catbirds, chickadees, cuckoos, flycatchers, grosbeaks, humming birds, kinglets, martins, meadow larks, nighthawks or bullbats, nuthatches, orioles, robins, shrikes, swallows, swifts, tanagers, titmice, thrushes, vireos, warblers, waxwings, whippoorwills, woodpeckers and wrens, and all other perching birds which feed entirely or chiefly upon insects.

SOUGHT IN CEDAR GLADES AT NIGHT WITH LIGHTS, WHICH BLIND AND CONFUSE THEM.

First of all, for the protection of the birds, two zones are established. They are:—Zone No. 1, or the breeding zone, comprising States lying wholly or in part north of latitude 40 degrees and the Ohio River and including Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Oregon and Washington, twenty-five States in all.

Zone No. 2, or the wintering zone, comprising States wholly or in part south of latitude 40 degrees, including Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah, twenty-three States, and the District of Columbia.

The law prescribes a daily closed season for these birds throughout all the United States from sunset to sunrise. The shooting of birds at night is absolutely forbidden. This regulation has already disturbed farmers in certain localities who say that their days are so full of toil that shooting up the thickets at night would be a diversion. The government, however, will permit nothing of this kind on the ground that there must be time given for birds to rest and to be moderately free from enemies, so that the number may increase. It is also stoutly maintained by the experts that the farmer, by indiscriminate slaughter of birds at all times, is really standing in his own way by destroying creatures which kill insects and protect his crops. This drastic regulation applies also to the dusking of ducks and to the killing of any bird after the almanac declares that the sun is officially down. For those who would like a little of the gold gray in the air and something of the overcast sky, there are plenty of lowery days on which the ducks and other fowl may be sought.

Closed seasons are provided in general for the zones subject to modifications for certain States and localities, which may be seen by consulting Bulletin No. 22 of the United States Department of Agriculture, as compiled by the Bureau of Biological Survey. The regulations are subject to the approval on October 1 of the President, but there is little likelihood of his making any change from the standards set forth by the scientists in charge of the bureau, who have studied the localities with care. It is in effect a closed season on all insectivorous birds except those gathered for scientific purposes under a special permit.

A closed season shall continue until September 1, 1918, on the following migratory game birds:—Band tailed pigeons, Little brown, sandhill and whooping cranes, swans, curlew and all shore birds, except the black breasted and the golden plover, Wilson or Jack snipe, woodcock and the greater or lesser yellow legs.

For five years, starting with September 1 of the year, there shall be a closed season on wood ducks in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, West Virginia and Wisconsin, on rails in California and Vermont and on woodcock in Illinois and Missouri.

For the purpose of providing sanctuary a closed season is also established for the migratory species passing over or resting on the waters of the main streams of the Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri rivers. The killing of birds on or over the shores of these rivers or at any point within their limits from boat or any floating device is strictly forbidden.

In Zone No. 1 the closed season for water fowl shall be between December 16 and the September 1 next following. There are exceptions, among which is mentioned New York outside of Long Island, which is from December 16 to September 16. The Long Island closed season is between January 16 and October 1. The closed season for woodcock in this zone is between December 1 and October 1 following.

The closed season on black breasted and golden plover, jack snipe or Wilson snipe, and greater and lesser yellow legs shall be between December 16 and September 1 next following, among the exceptions being that of New York State, when the closed season shall be from December 16 to September 16, exclusive of Long Island, where the closed season shall be from December 16 to August 1.

The regulations for Zone No. 2, in a general way, are as follows, certain exceptions being granted:—Water fowl, January 16 to October 1; woodcock, January 1 to November 15; shore birds, December 16 to September 1 following.

Persons recommending changes in the regulations should be prepared to show the necessity for such action and submit evidence other than that based "on reasons of personal convenience or desire to kill game during a longer open season."

There will be seen on an examination of the tables and bulletins furnished by the government that there is a general elimination or cutting down of spring shooting. This is done for the purpose of promoting the propagation of game birds especially. These regulations are subject to change, of course, in various localities, as surveys made by government experts may show that the number of birds has increased so under favorable conditions that there may be further shooting.

Novel provisions have been adopted in the laws of some of the States and the Canadian provinces independent of the federal statutes. Ohio and Pennsylvania, for instance, now require persons who hold licenses to kill game, especially non-residents, to wear a badge, conspicuously exposed, bearing the number of his permit.

"Buck fever" has not as yet found any safe and certain antidote, and for that reason many of the commonwealths have legislated very heavily against the extermination of guides and friends. Manitoba requires sportsmen to wear a white coat, or sweater, and cap, and Saskatchewan demands that those who hunt big game must wear a complete outer side and cap of white.

In that province the penalty for "accidentally shooting" a person is $500 to $1,000 or imprisonment for six months and suspension of further license privileges for six years. Various American States have passed license laws for shooting or have made the requirements stricter for those laws which already exist. Refuges for game and birds have been set aside by executive order by the United States, including the entire chain of the Aleutian Islands, off the coast of Alaska; Walker Lake, in Arkansas; Petit Bois Island, on the coast of Alabama, and Anaho Island, in Pyramid Lake, Nevada, thus bringing the total number of national bird reservations up to sixty-four. In the last year the Niobrara Bird Reservation has been enlarged, and to it have also been sent herds of buffalo, elk and deer. Funds have also been provided for the stocking and extension of the elk refuge in Wyoming. Eighteen States also created new game preserves in the last year. There is a tendency to give greater protection to big game, and several of the States have shortened the open seasons.

As the restrictions on wild game increases there develops a tendency to be more liberal concerning game imported or that raised in captivity or on private preserves. Minnesota, New Jersey and Oregon passed laws permitting the sale of game raised in the domestic animals. Changes in bag limits are being made in the various States, especially with the advent of powerful quick firing magazine guns. These restrictions amount to preventing undue advantage being gained by weapons intended more for the battlefield than for sport and the laws extend not only to actual killing but to possession. To forestall the bringing in of large quantities of game on Saturday holidays the State of Washington has evolved the scheme of having the week end for sportsmen on Wednesday nights.

It is found by taking a survey of the legislation concerning game that every one of the forty-eight States now prescribes seasons for shooting, prohibits the export of game and requires non-residents to obtain a license. Only one State is without some restriction in the sale of game and only nine have failed to adopt the so-called model law for the protection of non-game birds. The tendency to protect bird life of all kinds is further shown by the resolution passed by the national Legislature authorizing the President to propose to other nations of this hemisphere that a convention be called to provide for the international protection and preservation of birds.

THE GATES OF LONDON IN BYGONE DAYS

IN the periodicals of London for July 30, 1760, is to be found a small but interesting entry to the effect that on this day one Elsgden, carpenter, of Coleman street, purchased the remains of Ludgate, Cripplegate, and Aldgate for the respective sums of £148, £91, and £177 10s., on the understanding that they should be removed by the end of September.

Newgate was destroyed by the Gordon rioters in 1780, and so came to an end that series of fine old gates which for centuries had provided ingress and egress to the free citizen of London.

If we may believe Simeon of Durham, an ancient writer, the first inwalling of the city was commenced about 306 A. D. by Helen, mother of Constantine the Great. But however that may be, it is certain that by 886 the Londoners, thanks to the Roman conquerors, enjoyed the protection of a strong wall with gates.

By the fifteenth century this wall, which extended in the form of a rough oblong for a circuit of over two miles, possessed eight principal gates. The most easterly was the postern, the chief of several lesser gates giving access to the Tower and its fortifications.

Not far distant was Aldgate, the first of the city gates proper, by which travelers on the great highway from Essex might enter the metropolis. A gate appears to have been in existence at this spot as early as the reign of King Edgar, and it was through Aldgate that the barons were admitted in 1215 when fighting against King John. A few years later the old gate was removed and was replaced by a new double one of stone. This remained until Elizabeth's reign, when the third and last Aldgate was built.

Following the wall in a northwesterly direction from Aldgate we come to Bishopsgate, which terminated the road from Cambridge, and is said to have been erected by and named after Erkenwald, Bishop of London, the son of Offa, King of Mercia. It was rebuilt during the reign of Henry II., and again in 1479. At first the Bishop of London was responsible for the upkeep of this gate, but later the duty was undertaken by the Hanse merchants, the Bishop being only "bound to make the hinges of Bysoppesgate, seeing that from every cart laden with wood he has a stick as it enters the said gate."

From the time of Edward VI. to J... I. Bishopsgate remained in a dilapi... condition. In the reign of the latter monarch a new gate was set up, finally to be removed at the beginning of the eighteenth century.

"Thomas Falconer, Mayor, about the year 1415, caused the wall of the city to be broken near unto Coleman street, and there built a postern, now called Moorgate, upon the moor side, where was never gate before. This gate he made for ease of the citizens, that way to pass upon causeys (causeways) into the fields for their recreation." Thus writes Stow.

Cripplegate was also a postern, so called long before the Conquest, by reason of cripples begging there. Aldersgate was the next important entrance to the city, and one of the most ancient, while Newgate was erected during the reign of Henry I. in order to afford additional access from the west.

According to Geoffrey of Monmouth, Ludgate was built by King Lud, B. C. 66, but this we may safely regard as legend. The origin of its name, as the Flood or Fleet gate, being decidedly the more feasible. It was rebuilt in 1215, and again in 1260, when it was adorned with images of King Lud and other British Monarchs.

Condemns Athletic Girl.

"UNTIDY, crude and lacking in manners is the English athletic girl," according to Sir Thomas Holdich, who recently gave expression to some strong views on the use and abuse of sports on the occasion of the distribution of sports prizes at Princess Helena College, Ealing, as reported in the Daily Graphic.

"Nowadays," he said, "there is a tendency to mistake the means for the end. ...es were meant to make one happy and ...ng and, incidentally, to teach one the ...ue of good temper and courtesy. They are not, and never should be, the whole end and aim of one's existence.

"The athletic girl, for instance, is not altogether worthy of imitation, for if she does not succeed in getting in the front rank she is too likely to show her disappointment.

"She is not always as tidy as she might be, her methods are sometimes exceedingly crude and her manners—well, she has gone."

He added that he did not consider such a girl by any means the most adorable of her sex. He had also heard an eminent sculptor say that golfing and tennis do not produce to the grace and perfection of the female figure.

Despite these disparaging remarks girls are still "playing the game" in England.

RETURN OF THE PRUDE

A LONDON WOMAN WRITER REPLIES TO DRESS CRITICS.

The Present "Orgy of Undressing" Is a Perfectly Natural Reaction From the Horrible Draperies and Plastered Trimmings of a Few Years Ago—Men's Garb Also Comes In for Some Scathing Denunciation.

Never in recent years have fashions in dress aroused the comment which is now being made in the press of various countries. The following article is a woman's contribution to the controversy:

Prudery is the art of seeing white as grey, grey as black; of discovering mountains in molehills, and bringing the blush of guilt to the cheek of innocence.

A writer in The London Times has suggested that the "orgy of undressing" now fashionable (!) among women is due to their being engaged in an "extensive advertising campaign conceived with the object of reviving the fading interest and passions of the male." This writer of a letter quoted by far too many newspapers goes on to explain that men nowadays take a decreased interest in the opposite sex, owing to increased facilities for games, for comfortable bachelor living, and the intrusion of women into business and sport.

I cannot say I had noticed any serious disinclination for feminine society among the men I happen to meet; still, it is for them to decide whether they find us increasingly unattractive.

But I should like to enter a very vigorous protest, on behalf of English womanhood, against the vile innuendoes put forth, in this and other quarters, under plea of criticism of our pretty clothes, our twentieth century ways, and almost everything we do.

If these diatribes were confined to horrid men it would matter less, but numbers of quite nice, well-meaning, admiring lords of creation will, tactfully cross-examined, confide to one views which suspiciously resemble those of Mr. Bernard Shaw and other advanced persons—views which, stripped to the bone, mean simply that men are now attributing to women a complete reciprocity of sexual feeling, with an extra dose thrown in for the maternal instinct.

Years ago, in the days of Trollope, Dickens, Mrs. Henry Wood, and so forth, men appear to have been satisfied to divide women into good and bad, and to believe that the good woman was a sort of angel, whom it was, however, useless to try to understand.

Nowadays, we have ceased to be sphinxes and become problems; and the natural result of curiosity without knowledge is that men attribute to women their own opinions and their own feelings.

I fancy, for instance, it is difficult for the average unimaginative man to realize the state of innocence in which a woman may remain, even though she reads numbers of novels [illegible] mother. Theoretically, she may know "everything about everything," but in actual practice she does not dream that the vision of her ankle or her bare neck may rouse in the men she actually meets more than the aesthetic pleasure she herself feels at the contemplation of herself in a long looking-glass.

The woman who is lured by physique in men is extremely rare; Wilkes knew that when he boasted that, give him half an hour's start with a woman, he would guarantee to beat the handsomest man in the three kingdoms.

What women want from men is above all constancy, and they know that physical beauty fades and palls more quickly than any other charm. It is the modern recognition of this which has taken from pretty women all the arrogance they used—according to the unanimous testimony of old novels and biographies—to flaunt before their plainer sisters—it is this which is largely at the back of that demand for comradeship with men which women make nowadays—the conscious or unconscious seeking of opportunities to understand men, so that the choice of a mate may be less hazardous than in the days when your face was the sole allure.

If women, because of freer modern conditions, are coming to have less animal attraction and less mystery for the other sex, that is a fact which the vast majority of women, and most certainly the highest type—the eternal mother-women—will rejoice in. Real love is independent of the hunting spirit; that belongs to evanescent passion, which is the enemy the deadliest danger of motherhood and home.

All these things seldom or never spoken of but most deeply felt are moving in the minds of womanhood to-day, and to suggest that the widespread movement towards beauty in dress—a movement which is not confined to the husband-hunter or man's woman but embraces the whole sex—is due whether consciously or unconsciously to a desire to allure, attract, rouse the sex-feeling, is a gross libel on the woman, who remains as modest and high-minded as she has ever been.

Modern feminine attire is certainly no more "immodest" than the gowns of the early Victorians or of the elegant ladies who went to the guillotine with their bare shoulders and bosoms covered in the bright morning light only by a muslin kerchief. It is more artistic, more Greek, more natural than ever before.

One has only to look through a history of costume or a set of old "Punches" and see how fashion succeeded fashion, bringing each time some hideous excrescence or plethora of ugly drapery, and plastered trimming, to recognise that at last the "female form divine" has come into its own.

We have thrown aside the trammels of the trailing skirt, the tight corset, the stiff collar. We walk the streets free, healthy beings, and know a new joy in life in consequence.

Smartly Rebuked.

It is not often miserliness gets such a straight-forward rebuke as is recorded in this story.

In the early days of Primitive Methodism there traveled in England an eccentric minister named Neale, who was famous for his plain talking. On one occasion he was preaching missionary sermons at a village so noted for its small collections that he determined to pass the plate himself. On his round he came to a farmer who was, as Mr. Neale well knew, the richest man in the place. This individual placed a penny in the plate. Mr. Neale stopped immediately, and said in a loud voice:—

"Take your penny out, man! Take it out! Don't you see you've covered up your laborer's sixpence?"

The rebuke was effectual, and a much more valuable coin was placed on the plate.

Guilty Anyhow.

Daniel O'Connell was at one time defending a man accused of murder at Clonmel. The circumstantial evidence was so strong against the prisoner that the jury had already determined upon their verdict of guilty when the man supposed to be murdered was brought into court alive and unhurt. The jury were desired to return their verdict at once, and they did so, but it was one of "Guilty."

"What does this mean?" said the judge. "If the man has not been murdered how can the prisoner be guilty?"

"Please, yer honor," said the foreman, "he's guilty. He stole my bay mare three years ago."

Sheer Waste.

Robert Lowe, afterwards Lord Sherbrooke, once saw a deaf member of Parliament trying his best to catch with his ear-trumpet the words of an extremely dull speech.

"Just look at that foolish man," said Lowe, "throwing away his natural advantages."

3-in-One oil for all Talking Machines

Pure, light 3-in-One oil lubricates perfectly the delicate mechanism of phonographs, gramophones and commercial talking machines. It makes the motors work easily and noiselessly—gives better, clearer tones and prevents squeaks, squawks and "whir".

Protects and Preserves Bearings

3-in-One oil is absolutely free of grease and acid. It never collects dirt, gums or clogs the bearings, as common greasy oils do. Grease and dirt grind into the bearings, wearing them out.

3-in-One also cleans, polishes the case and horns. It keeps bright all metal parts, absolutely preventing rust and tarnish in any climate. A few drops on a soft cloth wiped gently over your disc records, keeps all the dust out of the minute grooves where the needle runs.

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.

Too many girls grow up with weak, anaemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.

The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such treatmet as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 395 Woodville Avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment has built up her system and so strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl".

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

NO GAS BILL FOR THEM.

Maoris Cook Their Food In a Kitchen Provided by Nature.

The Maoris of northern New Zealand enjoy cooked food to a far greater extent than other natives, but they never bother with fire. They build their huts on the edge of some "friendly" geyser, where they may cook in nature's kitchen. On a spot which superstition would associate with death and the devil, the huts of about 200 Maoris lie scattered—the remnant of the once war-like tribe of Tuhourangi. Nature has built for these simple folks the best of all cooking appliances and saved them endless trouble with the stove, gas company or coal merchant.

A pond of boiling water lies in the middle of the settlement. In this the Maori woman puts her water kettle to boil, or hangs the wide-meshed flax bag filled with potatoes, and waits until they are cooked. True, the potatoes cooked in their skins taste a little of sulphur, but that is the right flavor for a Maori palate—the hautgout for the brown gourmet.

For the cooking of meats the fumaroles, or holes through which steam escapes from the ground, are used. A box with a wooden grating for a bottom is placed on the ground over the hole. In this the Maori woman places the meat, well covered with tin or iron pots. An old sugar bag is then spread over the box, and the crude apparatus is left until the imprisoned steam has completely cooked the joint.

Electric Ice-Cream Freezer.

An electric ice-cream freezer has been devised by a London inventor. In the usual freezer tank, generally of larger size for wholesale manufacture, hotels, or the like, is mounted a tubular coil supplied from a carbonic acid machine which takes the place of ice and salt. The small machine is mounted on a wall frame together with a small electric motor which drives it by belt from above, so that the outfit takes up very little floor space. Cleanliness is secured by the entire absence of crushed ice and salt, and there are no wet floors. It is claimed that the electric device also gives considerable economy in working. Another point is that where there are electric motors already in use for other purposes, the ice-cream machine can be driven from them without entailing the extra expense of a motor.

Boiling Criminals To Death.

Boiling criminals to death was once a legal mode of execution in England for counterfeiting and later for committing murder by poisoning. An act of Parliament passed in 1531 provided that convicted poisoners should be boiled to death, though this form of punishment was not applied to any other class of murders. The law was in force about fifteen years, and under it three persons were boiled to death, one a cook who put poison in food intended for his parish poor and another a maid who poisoned her mistress. A Dublin paper of Feb. 28, 1709, said that "twelve coiners (counterfeiters) were seized in the act of coining and, having been tried and found guilty, were four hours afterward boiled in oil, three of them women."

Rochdale Clothiers.

Rochdale, Eng., laid the foundation of its prosperity in the reign of Edward III., when a body of Flemish immigrants took up their abode there and introduced their craft as clothiers. Rochdale in the time of Queen Elizabeth had become so famous for its woollen manufactures that the "aulnager," the official appointed by the Queen to measure all woollen cloth made for sale, had to appoint a special deputy there to keep pace with its manufacture and see that the crown was not robbed of its duties.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's disease, dropsy or diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for Croxone promptly ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy for kidney, bladder trouble and rheumatism, than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter, that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to relieve the worst backache or overcome disagreeable urinary disorders.

You will find Croxone different from other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it should fail in a single case.

Sylvia Pankhurst Arrested.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Sylvia Pankhurst, who was the central figure of a fierce struggle Monday night between the police and the militant suffragettes in the east end of London, was arrested last night when about to enter the Poplar town hall with the object of addressing another meeting. The militants attempted to rescue her, but the police, who were in large numbers, succeeded in placing her in a taxicab and driving to Holloway Jail.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Receipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair

The beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth' Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural colour, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

Sandwich Prisoner Makes a Successful Escape.

WINDSOR, Oct. 15.—With an armful of clothes carefully selected from the storeroom of the county jail a Sandwich, in which he was serving a 30-day sentence for stealing a bicycle George Babbage, aged 26, made a successful dash for liberty early yesterday morning.

Babbage was assisting in cleaning the halls downstairs and the storeroom.

None of the jail officials saw him go, but some men on the street saw the prison stripes flash across the road and notified the jail officials. A search was made, but the prisoner was not located. It is thought he hanged his clothes by the river, and taking a small boat, rowed to Detroit.

WINNIPEG Oct. 15.—Unless the more conservative members of the Order of Railroad Brakemen can govern the next meeting, comprised of men on the C.N.R. employ, there is a possibility that a strike will be declared on the C.N.R. system. During the last two months the C.N.R. brakemen and baggagemen have been holding meetings with officials of the C.N.R., and it is learned that the railroad officials have conceded many points but have refused to concede several others, among which is an increase in wages.

It has been decided to put the matter to a general vote of the employes concerned.

The entire system of the C.N.R east and west will be affected.

TO EDIT TELEGRAPH.

Hon. W. S. Fielding Is President of New Montreal Paper.

MONTREAL, Oct. 15.—Hon. W. S. Fielding has accepted the position of editor of The Daily Telegraph and president of The Daily Telegraph Publishing Co. His statement follows:—

"On or about the first of December, 1913, on my return from a short visit to Great Britain, I will assume the duties of president of The Telegraph Publishing Co. of Montreal, Limited. I shall take the position with the cordial approval of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and leading Liberals and under conditions which assure Liberal control and the public ownership of The Daily Telegraph as an independent Liberal journal — independent inasmuch as it will not be connected with any party organization, but nevertheless frankly avowing its sympathy with the Liberal party. The desire of the conductors of The Daily Telegraph will be, while necessarily viewings things from a Liberal standpoint, to discuss the public questions of the day with moderation and fairness and with due respect for the opinions of those who may differ from them.

COL GRAVELEY DIES.

Ordnance Service Officer Dead at Age of 72 Years.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—Lieut.-Col. John Vance Graveley, a widely known and highly respected military man of Toronto, passed away last evening at his residence, 1,542 West King street, in his 73rd year. He had been ailing for some time, but it is thought that his death was directly due to the effects of an accident which he met with about six months ago, when he fell from a street car.

Col. Graveley was born in Cobourg, Ont., in 1840 and was the son of the late William Graveley. He was a resident of that town until twenty years ago, when he moved to Toronto.

While in Cobourg he was an officer in the 40th Regiment, having served in its ranks during the Fenian Raid in 1866. He was paymaster in that regiment for some time.

On July 31, 1907, he was appointed colonel of the Ordnance Service Corps, which position he held until death.

He was a strong Conservative, taking a leading part in several elections in West Northumberland.

WAS ANKO MURDERED?

Toronto Police Find Suspicious Circumstances In Tragedy.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—That Antanas Thomas Anko was murdered in the dye works of Abraham White at 135 William street last Saturday night, and that his death was not due to suicide, as at first believed, is the opinion held by those who have been investigating the case. Evidence secured tends to show that Anko was felled by a blow or blows and placed in the washing machine in a dying condition. City detectives are now working on the mystery, with a view to arresting a foreigner, who is said to have threatened Anko some time prior to his death.

It was not unt the funeral of Anko yesterday that the statement was made that he had been murdered. Anko was a Lutheran and one of the rules of the church is that a member can get nb Christian burial if he commits suicide. When arrangements were made by the burial of Anto yesterday from St. Mary's Lutheran Church, friends consulted the authorities about the manner of Anko's death and was informed that he should be given a Christian burial, as the evidence led to the suspicion that he had met with foul play. The funeral was held under the auspices of the Lutheran society.

From a close investigation of the interior of the dyeworks and the washing machine in which the body was found detectives are convinced that it would have been impossible for Anko to have committed suicide. Marks and bruises found on his body were evidently received during a fight. The opening in the vat was so small that it would take considerable effort to force Anko's large body through the aperture, a great deal more than Anko was capable of in his weakened condition.

It is said that wrenches were found near the washing vat and that marks on the body would indicate that Anko had been struck down by one of these.

VACCINATION AT THE HUB.

Fortunately the Question Was Not as Indiscreet as It Seemed.

It was at a dinner party. The bright young man found himself privileged to sit next to the young woman with beautiful arms and neck. He thought himself the most favored personage in the room. Suddenly his fair companion exhibited signs of nervousness. Two of his best jokes, saved for a special occasion, passed by unnoticed. Her face wore a look of alarm. Apprehensively the young man gazed at her, and meeting the look she said:

"I am in misery."

"In misery?" echoed the man.

"Yes," she replied. "I was vaccinated the other day, and it has taken beautifully. I could almost scream, it hurts so."

The young man looked at the beautiful arms and, seeing no mark there, said:

"Why, where were you vaccinated?"

"In Boston," she replied, the smile chasing away the look of pain.—Boston Journal.

"Yes, sir. While visiting in the country I made a very painful blunder which I never want to repeat."

"Indeed! Mistook a stranger for an acquaintance?"

"No, not exactly that; I mistook a bumblebee for a blackberry."—Chicago News.

Menai Strait Bridge Echoes.

Among the most noted echoes is that heard from the suspension bridge across the Menai strait. The sound of a blow from a hammer on one of the main piers of the structure is returned in succession from each of the cross-beams that support the roadway and from the opposite pier at the distance of 576 feet. In addition to which the sound is many times repeated between the water and the roadway at the rate of twenty-eight times in five seconds.

ECZEMA FROM HEAD TO ANKLES

Tortured With Terrible Itching and Burning. Scratched Until Tore Flesh. Lay Awake for Nights at a Time. Used Cuticura Remedies and Found a Cure.

St. Ola, Ontario.—"When I was ten years old I began to be tortured with a terrible itching and burning of the skin, and was told it was eczema. I have had it right along for seven years steady, it getting worse every year. I was affected from head to ankles. It seemed to appear like hives at first, then I would begin to scratch until I tore my flesh. It would always be at its worst at night. I have waked myself up at nights scratching and my fingers would be just stiff and cramped from scratching, so that I would be hardly able to straighten them out. My, how I have suffered! My face and whole body would be just a mass of blotches red as fire and after having soap and water on my face then I would begin to burn. I have lain awake for nights at a time when my eczema was at its worst.

"I would be tortured for months at a time. I was getting not only disheartened, for nothing helped, but completely disfigured also, but dame fortune smiled upon me one day in the summer of 1910 and laid before my eyes an advertisement of Cuticura Remedies. I used them according to directions and after a few applications I began to feel and see relief ahead. It is nearly six months since I first began and I can truthfully say I've found a cure." (Signed) Miss Louise E. Wilson, Dec. 12, 1911.

SLANG AND LITERATURE.

Expressions In Classics Which Make Modern Youngsters Grin.

Expressions like "beat it," "give him a lemon," "twenty-three," "make good," "forget it," "butt in," and many others, may be found in almost any book, but to cite them as cases of slang is unfair and ridiculous, says Francis Herbert Lee. When we find in "Love's Labor's Lost," "Gave Hector a gift—a gilt nutmeg—a lemon," it is only a coincidence, the modern slang meaning is absolutely wanting. Hawthorne writes, "Forget it—cast it away"; Deuteronomy has "made good"; but these are perfectly proper uses. A man may "make good" some one's losses, but it is only the later slang use of "make good" that makes us pause over the expression or see anything out of the way in it.

That is one great trouble with slang it profanes or renders ludicrous some times, or gives a false connotation to some word or expression that occurs in a sublime or pathetic scene, some passage that contains, or should contain "thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears." When Sydney Carton, in "The Tale of Two Cities," with a sublime self-sacrifice gives his life for his friends, and his head falls into the executioner's basket, the knitting women who are counting off the number of victims say, "Twenty-three." It is almost a profanation even to write it, but almost certainly the modern girl or boy will not be able to suppress a smile when those words are read, because of the meaning—peculiarly appropriate here—suggested by the slang association of the expression. It is not too much to say that if a teacher read that wonderful and beautiful story to a class all the pathetic effect would be lost. "Twenty-three" has been actually cited in print from "The Tale of Two Cities" as the origin of our modern slang phrase. There could not be a more striking or more outrageous example of misapplication of words.

We have known a roomful of two thousand boys scandalize the dignified president of a great high school and go into screams of laughter over a speech in which he represented a drummer boy, at a critical moment in a great battle when the French troops were breaking into a rout, as pleading with Napoleon for permission to sound the charge. "I can recall them, Sire," cried the boy, "let me beat the charge!" "Beat it, beat it!" shouted the emperor—a conclusion of the anecdote which brought down the house.

Illicit Gold Buying.

Most people have heard of I. D. B. (illicit diamond buying), a crime which in South Africa is punished with penal servitude on the breakwater at Cape Town.

The Rand, however, has the lesser known offense of I. G. B. (illicit gold buying). Considering that in the Rand mines only a few pennyweights of gold go to a ton of quartz, it is obvious that the miner does not get much chance of stealing the precious metal. When does the gold thief get his opportunity?

The pieces of quartz are ground into dust by powerful hammers known as "stamps." Water then washes the dust over inclined plates coated with amalgam. The gold instantly combines with the mercury in the amalgam, afterward being easily separated by chemical process.

It is of this gold laden amalgam that the dishonest employee will scrape off portions which, though small, will mount up to a good bit of gold in time. —Pearson's Weekly.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 82 cars, comprising 1471 cattle, 647 hogs, 939 sheep and lambs and 204 calves.

Exporters

The Swift Co. of Chicago bought 100 export steers, averaging 1312 lbs. each, at $7.35, average price.

Butchers

Good to choice butchers sold at $6.75 to $7.30; medium butchers, at $6 to $6.50; common butchers, at $5.50 to $6; good to choice cows, at $5 to $5.65; common to medium cows, at $4.50 to $4.90; canners, at $3.50 to $4; bulls, at $4.50 to $6.25.

There were 4 steers, fed by T. A. Russell, Downsview Stock Farm, at 78 per cwt., sold by Dunn and Levack, which was the highest price we heard of, that is for four cattle out of 1400 on sale.

Stockers and Feeders

Prices for good to choice heavy feeders, 1000 to 1150 lbs., were firm, at $6.40 to $6.65; steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $5.60 to $6.25; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., $5.25 to $5.75; eastern stock heifers, $4.25 to $4.80.

Milkers and Springers

The demand for good to choice milkers and springers was quite equal to the supply. Prices ranged from $50 to $90 each, the bulk selling from $60 to $70.

Veal Calves

Receipts were moderate and prices firm. Choice calves, $9 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $8; common, $5 to $6.50; rough eastern calves, $4.50 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs

Receipts being light, 9's, the market was firm for sheep and lambs, all offerings being readily taken at steady prices with Monday's quotations as follows: Sheep, light ewes, 100 to 120 lbs., $4.50 to $5; ewes, 140 to 160 lbs., $4 to $4.25; lambs, ewes and wethers, $7.25 to $7.50; bucks, 75c per head less.

Hogs

Receipts of hogs were also light, which caused prices for them to be firm. Selects, fed and watered, $8.90; f.o.b. cars, $8.25; weighed off cars, $8.90.

Sheep—Receipts 30,000. Market steady. Natives, $2.90 to $5; yearlings, $5 to $6; lambs, native, $5.35 to $7.30.

Well Qualified.

The drapery magnate was bombarding the applicant with the usual questions.

"Speak French?"

"Yes."

"Good salesman?"

"Yes."

"Can you tell a good lie?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Well, I'll give you a start."

The young man got on famously for a few weeks, until one fine morning a dainty Parisian damsel approached him and sweetly stated her requirements in the native tongue. The poor young man was flabbergasted, not comprehending a single word. Five minutes later he was facing his indignant employer.

"This is scandalous, sir. When I employed you did you not tell me that you could speak French?"

"True," mildly replied the culprit; "but did you not also ask me if I could tell a good lie?"—London Tit-Bits.

Mexico's Historic Stone Lizard.

A weird-looking creature is that known to scientists as the mysterious stone lizard of Cuernavaca, Mexico. This reptile, carved on a huge boulder lying on an overgrown hillside, is situated about eight miles from Cuernavaca and 70 miles southwest of Mexico City. It was there, centuries old, when Cortes first saw Cuernavaca, and is supposed to have been carved to commemorate some events in the wanderings of the prehistoric civilized race which built the great palace at Xochicalco, a few miles away. If this curious relic could speak, what tales it could tell of the long-dead past!

The Scallop.

The scallop can anchor itself as well as any ship. It never fails to drop its anchor on the approach of rough weather. The scallop, lying in its bed of shoal water, foresees a storm in true sailor fashion and at once puts out a tough and elastic little cable from a point near its hinge. This cable it fastens firmly to the nearest rock. It is then secure in the wildest weather. He who wades through haunted shoals as a storm approaches may see the tiny shellfish mooring themselves on all sides with silent bustle.

Playing Golf.

Marshall Whitlatch, a noted golfer, explains why particularly brainy men often make a poor showing at that sport. They think so hard about hitting the ball in just the proper manner, he says, that their muscles are tensed and the free swing of the stroke is spoiled. His theory, suggested to him by the Montessori system, is that the player should relax his mind as well as his muscles, feel out the correct position and aim in action; in short, that good golf is all a matter of subconscious habit.

Positive Proof.

"Yes, indeed, my husband is a remarkable man."

"I suppose nearly every woman has that opinion of her husband."

"But I am sure my husband is an extraordinary man. I told him this morning where something was in one of the closets and he found it."

Rather Expensive Advice.

Young Man—I should like to ask your advice, sir, as to whether you think your daughter would make a suitable wife.

Lawyer—No, I don't think she would. Five dollars, please.

Educational.

There is only one occasion when a business education is more preferable for a woman than housekeeping ability, and that is when she has a husband to support.

Getting It Right.

"I should say by other people's lack of wits."

HER HUSBAND CALLED HER A BEGGAR AND THIEF THREATENED WITH POKER---SUES FOR ALIMONY

Unusual Story of Marital Unhappiness Related Before Justice Middleton by Mrs. Frank Kearns of Smith Street—He Used Foul and Abusive Language, She Says

CASE CONCLUDED

For about two weeks after their marriage their honeymoon was at the full for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kearns, Smith street. But after the fortnight it began to wane, passed into the last quarter and finally its golden light ceased to shine. The two weeks of bliss were followed by two years of bickerings, hard words and strife, with a few bright spots strewn here and there.

Such at any rate is the story Mrs. Kearns told at this morning's session of the High Court before Mr. Justice Middleton. She is plaintiff in a suit for alimony with her husband, the defendant. They were married in Rochester, Nov. 15th, 1910, before a Catholic priest.

Mrs. Kearns was in the witness box from to a.m. until after the noon whistles were blown, and told a story to the effect that her husband had repeatedly used foul and abusive language toward her, had threatened her with a poker, and had laid hands of violence upon her. Whereupon she followed the advice of Ruth Cameron as published in The Examiner and threw a cup of water in his face. The result was like a red flag before a bull, for she claims her husband let fly a cup that struck her in the back, breaking into pieces.

Recess was called at 12:45.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. L. V. O'Conner, of Lindsay, for the defendant.

Mrs. Kearns said she was married on Nov. 15th, 1910, in Rochester, and came to Peterborough immediately afterwards to reside.

Mr. Gordon—When did the first difficulty arise?

Mrs. Kearns—Two weeks after our marriage.

Mr. Gordon—Tell the court how it happened.

Witness—I had been accustomed to taking walks, but for two weeks had not had any. I thought I would go out one afternoon, and told him I was going. He said he did not care. I said, "I won't go if you don't want me to." He looked ugly and said, "I don't care."

When I came back the door was locked. It was a bitter cold day and I was kept outside two hours. I walked around the block, stayed in the stable awhile, and when the whistle blew six oclock he came home. When I spoke to him he began to swear at me. In the house I asked him what was the matter. He said, "You went down to meet some one else. You did not want me." He appeared to be jealous. I tried to reason with him. He had no cause for jealousy.

Mr. Gordon— Was there any other trouble?

Witness—Shortly afterwards, I was to meet him down town. In some way I missed him and when he came home he flew into another rage and sword at me.

Mr. Gordon—What was the next difficulty?

Witness—My aunt and my first cousin came to visit me. He treated them nicely while they were at the house, but when they left he caled them "——beg——." He grabbed the coal oil can and began pouring oil around the kitchen, saying he was going to burn the "d——" place down.

Mr. Gordon—Well, were there any other instances?

Mrs. Kearns—One day Bernard Sullivan stayed for supper. Mr. Kearns met him. After supper we were going down town and asked Mr. Kearns to go. He wouldn't. I came back about 9.30. Mr. Kearns came home between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. He swore at me again because my relatives had visited us. There was beer in the cellar and he went down and got drunk. He was swearing at me. I went down stairs to sleep on the couch, but he came down ad sent me upstairs. He went down cellar frequently.

Mr. Gordon—Did he threaten to burn the house down again.

Witness— Yes, on two other occasions when he was in a rage he got the coal oil can and said he would burn the house down. The last time I said I was sick of that kind of thing. He often caled me names such as, "——" begear, thief and fool." He applied for a mail delivery route. I wrote the letters for him. There was some delay before he received an answer and he thought he had lost it. He abused me about it, and about every two weeks would bring it up and fly in a rage. Finally he received notification of his appointment.

Mr. Gordon — Did you have any work to do with the mails

Witness—I used to get the letters and put them in the boxes. He could not read very well and could not manage the names on the letters. He has not had much education.. I went

SUFFRAGETTES ATTACK KING

Jumped on Step of Royal Carriage and Flaunted Copies of Suffragette Literature

GREAT EXCITEMENT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., Oct. 15.—(Special cable).—King George jumped to his feet in a state of extreme nervousness, but Queen Mary kept her seat and placed a restraining hand on His Majesty's arm, when the suffragettes today attacked the carriage in which they were on their way to St. James' Palace, to attend the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife. One woman, bolder than the rest, jumped on the carriage and attempted to throw a petition into the vehicles. It was then that observers say the King made a movement of defending himself. The woman, who is rather obscure in suffragette ranks, was finally dragged away by the police, who had difficulty in saving her from the mob. The suffragettes clung to the carriage door long enough to shout in the King's ear, "Give us votes for women." Other militants succeeded in throwing copies of suffragette literature into the carriages of Queen Mother Alexandra and other royalties. The affair caused the greatest excitement and rumours of assassinations.

ROYAL NUPTIALS

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., Oct. 15.— In the presence of an assemblage of Royalty only surpassed by the recent wedding of the Kaiser's daughter, Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Governor-General of Canada, and cousin of King George, was married to-day to his fair cousin, the Duchess of Fife, in the Chapel Royal at St. James' Palace. The bride was attired in elegant simplicity. The bridegroom wore his major's uniform. At the last moment the Duke of Saxe Cobourg Gotha, who was to be "best man," was indisposed and the bridegroom's father, the Duke of Connaught, took his place like a young stripling, and the Prince of Wales was another best man. The wedding breakfast at first planned by Queen Mary, was abandoned at the request of the bride. Immediately after the ceremony there was a quiet little family gathering in the Palace, with a distribution of wedding cake. This afternoon the Royal bride and groom drove to the residence prepared for them in Portman Square. Lord and Lady Strathcona and Lady Mount Stephen represented Canada at the ceremony. Both bride and groom were baptised in infancy in the same chapel where they were married to-day

Miners Still Alive

Examiner Special:

CARIFF, WALES, Oct. 15. — Rescuers at the Universal mine got in touch early this afternoon with eighty of the imprisoned miners, who are still alive and possibly may be saved. The work of rescue is proceeding vigorously.

It is expected that Prince Arthur of Connaught, who was married today, will head the fund started among Royalists for the aid of the miners and bereaved widows and children. Sympathetic telegrams, inquiring into actual details of the catastrophe, were received from King George and other guests at the royal wedding festivities to-day.

New Marine Laws To Be Introduced

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.— On Friday of this week Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, will hold an important conference with members of the Dominion Marine Association respecting the new marine regulations on the Great Lakes and inland waterways of Ontario. New laws have been framed with a view to preventing collisions or accident of any kind, and are largely based upon recommendations of United States' and Canadian navigators on the lakes.

CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Action for $2,000 Damages Will Not Come to Trial at the Assizes

PLAINTIFF LOST AN EYE

The case of John Swanston, East City, versus the Peterborough Canoe Company, has been amicably settled out of court. The case constituted an action for damages to the amount of $2,000 against the Peterborough Canoe Company. It being alleged that the plaintiff lost the sight of the left eye as a result of negligence on the part of the company. On the third day of June last, while engaged in sewing a canvas wrapper about a boat, together with Wesley Hinds, in preparation for shipping, plaintiff had his left eye pierced by a long needle manipulated by Hinds. The sight was completely destroyed. Swanston claims that the injuries were caused through negligence on the part of defendants, and through a negligent and defective system in carrying on the work in their factory.

Mr. G. N. Gordon acted on behalf of the plaintiff and Mr. D. O'Connel for the defendants.

Broke His Ankle

Peterborough Boy Injured While Practising Rugby

Ormond Cavanah, son of Mrs. Cavanah, London street, City, was the victim of a painful accident last week while practicing Rugby with the team of the Woodstock College, which institution he has been attending since the opening of the season. In eluding a tackle, he turned over on his ankle, breaking the ankle bone. He was confined to the hospital for a week and has returned to his home here to recuperate.

Convicts Superior

To Some of the Officers Put Over Them Says Witness at Inquiry

Examiner Special:

KINGSTON, Oct. 14. — That some convicts are superior to the officers put over them was one of the features of the evidence given this morning by Chief Inspector Hughes of the government penitentiaries in the inquiry into penitentiary and prison reform. Inspector Hughes favoured a school for instruction of officers at prison farems and penitentiaries. In penitentiaries, he said, little was being done to improve the prisoners; in fact the placing of young convicts with hardened criminals frequently resulted in the former's utter degradation.

Was Living In Buffalo

Miss Jobe When Last Heard From Was in That City

In last night's Examiner, a letter appeared signed "One Interested," asking for information regarding Hazel Jobe whose whereabouts have been a mystery for some time. It might be stated that the young lady when last heard from, was living in Buaffo, and in her last letter to her mother stated that she was then leaving her room & house to look for another. "One Interested" may get further information by calling at 540 Park street.

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT NEWS

At the police court this morning, a local bartender was fined ten dollars and costs for supplying liquor to a minor. He acknowledged that he had been mistaken in the boy's age.

The boy who secured the liquor was committed by the magistrate to the St. John's Industrial School for an indefinite period. Magistrate Dumble read him a lecture on the advisability of his turning over a new leaf and coming out of the Reformatory a better boy.

WILSON PARCELS OF BELMONT IS ACQUITTED

Criminal Case Disposed of in the High Court Yesterday, the Jury Returning a Verdict of Not Guilty

EVIDENCE WAS HEARD

Wilson Parcels of Belmont Township was acquitted by a jury of twelve men yesterday on a charge of having criminally assaulted Hannah Ellis, who resides in the same Township. The case was tried yesterday before Mr. Justice Middleton in the High Court and late in the afternoon the Jury returned a verdict of not guilty. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused, who entered a plea of not guilty and Mr. W. O. Miekel, K.C., of Belleville, conducted the case for the Crown.

The Evidence.

Hannah Ellis, prosecutrix in the case, was the first witness called. Examined by Mr. Meikel, Crown prosecutor, witness stated that she resided in Belmont Township. On the day of the alleged assault witness had occasion to visit the home of the prisoner, where his mother resided. After remaining at the house for about fifteen minutes, witness started to return home and was accompanied a portion of the way by Parcels. The alleged assault tok place a short distance from the house. The prisoner was apprehended one week later.

Cross-examined by Mr. G. N. Gordon, counsel for the defence, witness admitted that she had been keeping company with Parcels for upwards of four years. Witness acknowledged having improper relations with the prisoner prior to the offence indicated in the depositions. Miss Ellis denied having had friendly relations with the prisoner since the alleged assault, but volunteered the information that she made a face at Parcels when he confronted her at the Court-House yesterday morning.

Evidence for Defence.

Mr. G. N. Gordon called Mary Parcels, mother of the prisoner. The latter asserted that the prosecutrix visited her house on one day in question for the purpose of submitting the measure of a waistband for a skirt which Mrs. Parcels was making for Hannah Ellis' mother. She denied having prevented the marriage of the prisoner and the prosecutrix.

The accused, who was placed in the box, gave evidence respecting his relations with Hannah Ellis on the day in question. The prisoner denied having criminal relations with the girl on the day the assault was alleged to have been committed. He admitted having had improper relations with the plaintiff on previous occasions.

Address to Jury.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, in addressing the Jury, contended that if the alleged outrage was committed it was done with the consent of the prosecutrix. He asked the Jury to acquit the prisoner on the grounds that the evidence was insufficient to warrant a conviction.

"It is no part of the Crown's business to press for or urge a conviction" said Mr. Mickel in his remarks to the Jury. "The duty of the Crown" he continued, "is to present the facts of the case as submitted to the Crown. He concluded by asking the Jury to bring in a verdict which they might consider justifiable.

His Lordship characterised the charge as a serious one and one that ranked next to murder in the eyes of the law. He asked the Jury to confine their attention to the question of whether or not the girl's story could be believed. He placed the responsibility of determining this question with the Jury. "The Jury's duty is to weigh the evidence and bring in a verdict accordingly."

WORK ON BRIDGE MAY BE SUSPENDED

It is Possible That the Present Plans Will be Altered So as to Provide for a Swing Bridge

VISITED OTTAWA

It is understood that work on the western section of the new C. P. R. bridge which crosses the Otonabee, will be indefinitely suspended. This is taken to mean that the present plans will be altered so as to provide for the consruction of a swing bridge and thereby facilitate navigation on the Otonabee river. The eastern section of the bridge will be rushed through to completion. A deputation comprising His Worship Mayor Bradburn and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., waited upon the Department of Public Works at Ottawa last week and the order to suspend work on the western section of the bridge, which crosses the main channel of the river, is believed to be the outcome of their trip to the Capital City. It may be a year before the work is resumed as the present plans will have to be altered and a new design provided.

WILL YOU OPEN YOUR HOME TO DELEGATES?

An Overflow Call Upon Peterboro' Hospitality

Owing to the fact that the attendance of delegates at the Baptist Convention has been unexpectedly large —the registration being the greatest in the convention's history, it would be esteemed a favour if those of other denominations, in a position to accommodate guests, would signify their willingness by 'phone to M. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Billetting committee, or by 'phone 1293.

INSPECTOR'S COMPLAINTS DISCUSSED BY COMMITTEE

Property Committee Hear From Mr. Spence and the Contractors in Regard to Collection of Garbage in the City.

ARRANGEMENT REACHED

Complaints made by Sanitary Inspector Spence that the contractors for the collection of garbage were not observing several minor clauses of the by-law were discussed by the City's Property committee last night, the discussion being brought about by a communication from the Inspector asking that the contractors be paid only on his certificate.

Mr. Spence pointed out to the committee that the by-law holds him responsible for the proper carrying out of the system and he thought it was only reasonable that he should have power to withhold payment until the work was done to his satisfaction.

He stated that the contractors were not using proper receptacles in which to collect the garbage, nor were they taking the precaution to keep their waggons covered as required by the by-law. Another point that was being neglected was the clause requiring contractors to replace the covers on the garbage cans after they were emptied. Mr. Spence cited a number of cases in which complaints had been received that garbage put out had not been collected, and also stated that he had received other complaints from citizens that some of the collectors had been uncivil in their talk.

Messrs. Hare and Graham, the contractors, were present and were given an opportunity to give their side of the case. Mr. Hare stated that they had refused to take garbage in certain cases because it was not put outside or because paper or tin cans or water had been mixed with the garbage contrary to the contract. Many people did not seem to understand that the garbage should be kept free of these things. They informed the committee that garbage cans were often placed outside, too late for collection, and stated that if all cans were put out by a specified time there would be no question about their collection. They promised to keep their garbage waggons covered on the way to the dump and expressed their willingness to carry out the terms of the contract.

Chairman Duncan remarked that both the Inspector and the contractors seemed to be doing their best to see that the work was carried out satisfactorily.

On the suggestion of Mr. Hare, it was agreed that he should supply the Sanitary Inspector each day with a list of citizens who have not been carrying out the regulations, while on the other hand, the Inspector will furnish the contractors with a list of the complaints he has received.

There were present, Ald. Duncan, chairman, Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Duffus, Langford and Green.

$350 DAMAGES ARE AWARDED

Court Refused to Accept Original Finding of the Jury in the Case of Johnston vs. Armstrong

NO DEFENCE OFFERED

The jury empannelled to fix the damages in the case of Benjamin Johnston versus Sidney Armstrong which was tried yesterday afternoon before Mr. Justice Middleton at the Fall Sittings of the High Court deviated from the course outlined by the Court, as a result of which, they were sent back to reconsider their verdict and construe their finding in accordance with the claim. The case involved a claim for three thousand dollars damages and costs of action from defendant, who it is alleged, wrongfully seduced plaintiff's daughter, Lilace Mabel Johnston.

No defence was offered by the defendant who did not appear in court.

Mr. F. D. Kerr represented the plaintiff.

Both parties to the case reside in Monaghan.

The jury after an hour's deliberation returned with a verdict in favour of plaintiff for twelve hundred dollars for the support of the child, and two hundred dollars for expenses incurred in connection therewith.

His Lordship in ordering the jury to reconsider their verdict pointed out that they had nothing to do with them after fixing of damages for the maintenance of the child. Their duty was to determine the amount of compensation due the plaintiff in connection with expenses for medical services and nursing in addition to damages to be inflicted as punishment for the wrong alleged to have been done to the plaintiff by the defendant.

On their return the second time, the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for the lump sum of three hundred and fifty dollars damages.

One Month In County Gaol

For Assaulting Special Officer Weller—The Police Court Calendar

A fistic encounter between Special Officer Weller of the C.P.R., and William Wright which was staged in the C.P.R. station last evening, culminated in a police court case this morning. Wright, who hails from Queensboro, Ontario, will have a chance to study the mural decorations at the county gaol for the next thirty days. He was charged with assaulting Constable Weller when the latter declined to allow Wright the privilege of sleeping in the station. The prisoner it was alleged arose in his wrath and administered a severe beating to the officer. The latter succeeded in arresting his man unaided.

"The officers of the law must be protected. We won't let every blackguard fight them," observed Magistrate Dumble in passing sentence.

Will Leave Peterborough.

"David Henry you are charged with vagrancy."

"Beg pardon," replied the gentleman addressed.

"You are charged with vagrancy, with no visible means of support, found wandering abroad and cannot give a satisfactory account of yourself."

This lengthy impeachment elicited a plea of not guilty from the man accused who promised to bid adieu to Peterborough if given an opportunity. The latter was forthcoming and Henry lost no time in getting out of the court room.

"Fra Glasgie."

The man "Fra Glasgie" was back again this morning. He answered to the name of Andrew Moddison and was charged with being found drunk in a public place. He was fined five dollars with an option of fifteen days in gaol thrown in.

The Magistrate promised to send the accused to the Central Prison in event of his return.

An Old Acquaintance.

"The same old Murphy," was the court's comment as Edward Murphy pleaded guilty to the usual charge of being drunk. He was fined two dollars. This is Murphy's first appearance in court for several months.

INSULT TO INJURY.

"Mrs. Bombast is highly indignant."

"Her house was robbed, I hear."

"Yes, and the next night the burglars brought back her silver plated ware."

A GILMOUR STREET MUSICALE

The season for indoor entertainment is at hand, and last night a very pleasant little informal musicale was given at the residence of Mrs. Palmer, 486 Gilmour street, when a few musicians were the guests and assistants of Miss Palmer, violinist. Miss Palmer performed several beautiful violin solos, using her grand old Amati violin, that her mother brought from England on her recent return. It is a superb instrument in capital preservation, a master-piece of the greatest Amati of them all—Niccolo—built when the art of violin making was at its height in Cremona, two hundred and fifty years ago.

The other contributors to a delightful musical evening were Miss Fick, of the vocal staff of the Conservatory of music, and Mr. Asa Hlycke, baritone. Miss Smith provided the accompaniments for the several artists, with fine discrimination and musical skill.

A BETTER OUTLOOK.

This is a cruel, wicked world, where conditions are thrust upon us that give a blue tone to our outlook. Things in general are bad enough, but a little of, even, surface searching might reveal glimpses of hopefulness, and it is a little luxury to be optimistic sometimes. Peace and its possibility are one of the greatest blessings brought to the world in the advent of the Prince of Peace, and if we could live up to His standard we should have universal immanent peace. But the warring nature of man kind, under the domination of evil and selfish passions brings us wars, which, in the process of killing our fellow men ,kill peace. If, however, the world will not cease fighting, if we can't have international peace, we can have community peace—peace in our homes, in society. Harmony in a community is one of the conditions of ideal society and that we in Peterborough are coming into our own in this regard more and more is pleasantly becoming more evident. Though there are factors that tend to the disintegration of harmonious civic and social relationship, yet a larger spirit of concord and cooperation is gradually asserting its dominance upon all classes of our citizenship, and a little indication means a great deal.

Recently the installation of a prominent church dignitary, whose relations to a large proportion of our population impart significance to his general attitude towards the public, gave evidence of a pacific and harmonious homologation of the attitude of citizenship in Peterborough, making for harmony of sentiment and relation necessarily antecedant to cooperation in promoting the common good. We have in the matter of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec further evidence of a harmony of cooperation that is significant and encouraging. It may seem a small thing, but it has a big meaning, to quote the general action in regard to the homely matter of providing for the entertainment of delegates to the convention. It is expected, as shown by the registration of delegates—the largest in the history of the convention—that at least 400 delegates will be in the city. It would be a physical impossibility for the members of the Baptist denomination to house all the visitors. This the large-hearted and liberal members of other communions saw, and, as a result, we have seen over a hundred of them voluntarily offering their services as hosts for the coming week. This shows a fine and beautiful spirit, which in turn begets a spirit of optimism, of hope for still better things; showing that, though divided in details of dogmatic belief, forms of worship and ecclesiastical administration, the denominations have found, on the rock of our common Christian religion, standing ground and starting point for the practice of the big principles of that religion and the cultivation and expression of the higher and nobler sentiments it teaches. This shows that we have come to practice more than preach ; to live our religion, and make it a vital force in human regeneration and amelioration of human conditions.

Whatever other than divine influence, if we are to recognise any other, has conduced to this condition, it is a subject of gratitude that it obtains in increasing manifestation. One cause, broadly considered, seems to be a changing attitude on the part of religious or, at least, pious, people towards religion; the increased tendency to regard religion as something practical and vital, something to be lived, to be expressed in daily life; not something to be regarded as an abstract possession, like, say, a great picture,—a thing to be cherished and admired in an habitual, perfunctory way. How great has been the influence of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in broadening Christian outlook, in lifting Christians out of denominational grooves, derricking them out of ruts, is something that seems to be worth considering. Concentration of effort seems to be the corollary of the demonstrated wisdom of concentration of aim—the evangelization of the world, through Christian cooperation and practically directed, instead of denominationally diffused, and necessarily ineffective, effort.

READINESS FOR STREET PAVING.

Now that we are undertaking permanent pavement, it becomes a point of interest that it should be permanent and not subject to perpetual disturbance, and, as far as the object of laying it, a good driving surface on our streets, practical destruction. In this case the following from the Brantford Expositor may be of interest and value as a hint to the civic authorities:

"Some years ago when the residents of this city began to agitate for a system of permanent pavement on our main thoroughfares and became impatient at the delay in making the change, they were told by the city officials that it would be unwise to lay pavements in Brantford until all the sewer, water, telephone, telegraph, gas and other underground connections had been made so that it would be unnecessary to dig up the pavement, once it had been laid. The citizens waited with patience and at last some of our busiest streets were paved. But have they been dug up again?. Dalhousie street has been torn up almost times without number and there seems to be no proper system of replacing the road in the condition it was found before the excavation became necessary. Somebody should see that the proper parties are made to restore the broken pavement at once. And Dalhousie street is no exception. On some of the other streets, there are places where the pavement has been dug up but never restored though in some cases over a year has elapsed since the excavation was made. There is laxity here. Who is to blame? Some person has rescribed the situation in verse in this way":

They took a little gravel,
And they took a little tar,
And various ingredients,
Imported from afar.
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement
That would last for many a day.
But they came with picks and smote it,
To lay a water main:
And in time they called the workmen
To put it back again.
To run a railway cable they took it up once more;
And later put it back again,
Just where it was before.
They took it up for conduits
To run the telephone;
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
They took it up for wires
To feed the 'lectric light,
And then they put it back again,
Which was no more than right,
Oh, the pavement full of furrows;
There are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement,
A credit to the town;
They're always digging of it up
Or putting of it down.

The city made a brave attempt to provide against the necessity of ripping up the permanent pavements when once laid. Hunter street especially was filled with holes, like a small-pox-patient's face, to provide for various kinds of services. Yet withal, the street was not yet in readiness for permanent paving. On the south side of Hunter street, just east of the drinking fountain and the bridge, there is a twelve or fourteen feet stretch of pavement that, by the sinking of the foundation, shows a dip of about six inches below the common level of the walk; a place that is flooded ankle deep with water at every rain or thawing of snow. This depression has been allowed to remain and there has been made a corresponding dip in the permanent pavement concrete surface of the street opposite it, indicating that that is to be the permanent condition of the walk and pavement. Preparations are making for applying the finishing surface to the permanent pavement on this street. It seems a pity that such a deformity should be permitted; and great promptitude of action will be needed if the defect is remedied before the paving work is completed.

In other respects there has not been as much foresight as it seems might have been employed. We have been talking of paving for the past year and there certainly has been warning enough, and time enough to have come to some understanding with the Street Railway Company as to its rights in the matter of the poles supporting its trolley wires, before the whole of George street was ripped up for paving work. Would or would it not have been possible to also have come to an understanding in regard to the electric light poles that are to be permanently fixed in the pavement on Hunter street, that would have permitted of their removal?

MR. SAMUEL AND DOWNING STREET.

Mr. Samuel having said that Downing street is dead, the "News" rushes to the conclusion that there is no longer any danger to Canadian autonomy, and that the Committee of Imperial Defence may be safely supported. We accept Mr. Samuel's word as to his own intentions, and we have no doubt from Mr. Asquith's speeches at the Imperial Conference, that he is of the same mind. But such declarations and good intentions cannot settle the question of self-government. Any proposal for Imperial organization must be judged upon its own merits and by its obvious tendencies. What needed in Canada is a definite statement of the various proposals for reorganizing the Empire, and a full discussion of them. The objection to the Committee of Imperial Defence, so far as Canada is concerned, is that the Canadian representative would be in a hopeless minority in a body composed mainly of British Ministers and military experts. At the same time there is no assurance that the committee would confine its attention to technical military matters. It would declare that so many men and so many millions were needed; and we in Canada would be expected to find our share of the men and the money. In other words, the committee would virtually exercise a taxing power over this country.—Toronto Star.

BORDENISM AND LABOUR.

The truth of the situation, and also its sting, lies in the fact that the Borden Ministry is under the domination of capital, and therefore it has collectively no sympathy with labour. The Premier is a lawyer without sociological versatility or initiative; Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Rogers are spending Ministers, with both eyes on the partisan results; Mr. White, the Minister of Finance, is the nominee of the business financiers and the corporation law firms; Mr. Pelletier has been so much devoted to dismissing Liberals from office that he cannot fairly be expected by his colleagues to understand the labour problems. The Ministers of Marine and Militia are too busy making glory for themselves at the expense of the country to comprehend the needs of labour and its relations to our complex industrial system; Dr. Reid is never thought of in any connection, except carying out the "spoils" theory of Government, and failing to defeat Mr. Graham in South Renfrew; Mr. Nantel and Mr. Coderre are Nationalist "sticks"; Mr. Doherty is a culturist jurist, but he has never been heard of in any other capacity. The contrast between the continuous regime of Sir William Mulock, Mr. Lemieux and Mr. King on the one hand, and the inanity and opacity of Mr. Crothers on the other is too depressing to be endured by Mr. Borden any longer, with any hope of toleration by public opinion; so Mr. Crothers must go.—Guelph Mercury.

THE ENGLISH LAND CAMPAIGN.

Mr. Lloyd George has begun his platform crusade against the land monoploy and has given his party its battle-cry for the next election.

In Canada there would be little favour for a plan such as that which the British Liberals are proposing for the amelioration of rural England. Conditions here are very different. Land is cheap, there is no chance of monopoly, and the great mass of farmers can own considerable farms. But in England, land is expensive, and would become much more so the minute a government tried the Unionist policy of buying out small estates for te rural workers to own. The Liberal plan is to moderate the conditions of rental and labour hire, and so leave the tenant farmer all the capital possible for stock and equipment.

The small ownership or peasant proprietorship system as seen in the continental countries of Europe is better, of course, than the present state of agricultural affairs in England. Nothing could easily be worse. But in some countries that have tried creating a class of small land-owners they have quickly got into debt and lost their farms again. Farms owned outright by large numbers of farmers are clearly an impossibility in England. The Liberal policy is one of fair rental and wages boards.

Some of the Unionists themselves are forced to agree to the wages board idea, and are prepared to go varying lengths in their policy of land purchase as to the terms. The parties are agreed on the need of reconstruction; the Liberals have adopted a decided policy, while their opponents vacillate and issue various ship.

Certainly the need of reform is urgent. The old system by which a small class of landowners provide the permanent machinery of farming, from farm buildings to labourers' cottages, tenant farmers put brains and capital into maintaining and improving their farms, and a great mass of landless wage-earning labourers draw rather less than a living wage, is about broken down. At this moment something like 90 per cent. of the land in England is worked in this way, but the wage-earners are leaving the country for town and colony, and things are approaching an impasse. Land reform is therefore not altogether a party question, but only in its details. A policy unwise as to details and method may make confusion worse confounded. Lloyd George is out to fight the next great electoral battle, right on issue between a prosperous system of tenancy and a system of petty and insecure peasant ownership.—London Advertiser.

AS TO THE POSSIBILITY OF UNIVERSAL STARVATION

Pessimistic papers read at the recent meeting of the British Association have led to a considerable discussion on the possibility of the human race being annihilated by starvation. One savant in England predicted that within the century humanity will be face to face with starvation, because at the present rate of increase the people would rapidly outgrow all reserves of food supply. A calm and practical examination of the subject discloses little basis for such alarmist predictions.

Taking the world as one big farm, we find two billion acres of land in cultivation, representing one-fifteenth of the earth's surface. Of this amount there are approximately 750,000,000 acres on the Western and 1,250,000,000 acres on the Eastern Hemisphere, in cultivation. This estimate, of course, does not include grazing lands, forests, etc., where large quantities of meat are produced. The world's annual crop approximates 15,000,000,000 bushels of cereals, 13,000,000,000 pounds of fibre, and 65,000,000 tons of meat. The world shows an average increase in cereals of 13 per cent. during the past half decade, compared with the previous five years, while the world's population shows an increase of only three per cent.

Thus, despite the trend toward the city of large masses of the population, thanks to the increasing aid of machinery, the world's gain in production far exceeds the increase in population, and it is safe to estimate that thef armer can easily increase production 25 per cent. if a remunerative market can be found for the products. In textile fibres the world shows an increase during the past half decade in production of 15 per cent., against a population increase of three per cent.

We have now no more reason to fear famine than ever we had; indeed, there is less reason. Famine is the result not of a fundamental shortness of supply, but of defective distribution. The rapidly increasing cost of living in Canada is due first to the artificial barriers we have erected against equitable distribution of food supplies, and secondly, to limitations of transportation facilities. An American Commission, which has recently been studying conditions in Europe, has found the problem of distribution far more effectively dealt with there than on this continent. For instance, in the German markets the farmers receive from 25 to 40 per cent. more for many of their products than the average on this continent, and the consumer pays less than in markets where American methods prevail. On this basis of reckoning, advanced methods of distribution would add $500,000,000 in value to the crops of the United States, as well as reduce the cost to the consumer. The economic distribution of the world's farm products is one of the world's greatest problems, as it certainly is one of Canada's. High cost of living has forced the United States to remove some of the barriers to economic distribution. High cost of living may compel a similar course in Canada. —Montreal Telegraph.

ENTERTAINMENTS

Something novel for charity functions is always being sought and some bright person has planned a measuring party.

The invitations sent out, or the advertisement printed either in circular or in the local paper, could read something like the following:

"A measuring party is given to you;
'Tis something novel as well as new.
Measure your height on door or wall;
Bring two cents for each foot tall,
An extra half-penny for each inch give,
And thereby show how high you live.
The ——— get the money,
They work all day
And get your supper for little pay.
With music and song and pleasure so hearty
We will greet you one and all,
At our "Measuring Party."

A novel alternative to this is a "weighing party," when the society giving the affair provide a large pair of scales and weigh each guest as he or she arrives. A fee of one cent for every ten pounds might be the charge.

MR. FIELDING TO EDIT THE "TELEGRAPH"

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—Hon. W. S. Fielding has accepted the position of editor of the Daily Telegraph and President of the Telegraph Publishing Company. His statement follows:

"On or about the first of December, 1913, on my return from a short visit to Great Britain, I will assume the duties of President of The Telegraph Publishing Company of Montreal, Limited. I shall take the position with the cordial approval of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and leading Liberals and under conditions which assure Liberal control and the publication of the Daily Telegraph as an independent Liberal journal—independent inasmuch as it will not be connected with any party organization, but nevertheless frankly avowing its sympathy with the Liberal party. The desire of the conductors of the Daily Telegraph will be, while necessarily viewing things from a Liberal standpoint, to discuss the public questions of the day with moderation and fairness and with due respect for the opinions of those why may differ from them.

(Signed) W. S. Fielding."

Christmas Shopping by Your Own Fireside

THAT is just what shopping from the "Ryrie" Gift Book means.

Wouldn't you like to sit down quietly at home some evening—just like the ladies of an older day did—and have the choicest wares you could possibly imagine displayed before you? Wouldn't you like to sit there quietly, undisturbed by other influences, and pick out something for each of your friends; spending no more—no less—than you intended; knowing you could not lose—could not be dissatisfied?

As you turn over the pages of our Gift Book you find displayed before you, as plainly as if you were in our store, hundreds of the best possible gifts, gathered from all corners of the world.

Both illustrations and descriptions are absolutely accurate, yet to prevent any possibility of dissatisfaction anything you order may be returned at our expense if it fails in any way to come up to your expectations.

A postcard will bring this Gift Book to you. Write to-day.

TRAVELING ENGLISHMEN.

They're Prepared For Anything, From Golf to Sudden Death.

The equipment of the traveling Englishman is the eighth wonder of the world. He is ready for any emergency from golf to sudden death. I recollect once being in a compartment on the Paris boat train with an English family and their luggage, and I do not remember ever being so pleasantly entertained as I was on that trip. As to the luggage, there were twenty-nine pieces of the hand variety which it took pater a half hour to dovetail into the racks while the train stood in the dingy station at Calais and another half hour to pry out when we reached the dreadful Gare du Nord.

This was only a detail, however, and I have never in my life seen a man work harder to get a family of three women comfortably settled. It was in vain that they protested against more wraps and rugs, against smelling salts and speckled fruit. Being a man, he knew so much better, than they what they needed, and he gently but firmly had his way.

Finally he dosed off to sleep, resting audibly from his labors. He had taken off his great coat with its amazing capes and pockets, and as his coattails became parted in his somnolent writhings I plainly saw a good sized holster protruding through the aforesaid coattails, evidently strapped around his portly waist.

"Alas!" I said to myself, "here we have a mystery! My comrade is perhaps a spy on route to Germany." This holster—with its supposed brace of firearms—fascinated me unspeakably, and about it I built a lovely blood curdling romance as we sped on through the monotonous French country. Finally my neighbor awoke, rosy and refreshed, and upon one of his daughters asking him some question about Paris he unbuckled the holster, took it off and, while I watched with bulging eyes, opened it and calmly extracted—a guide book. What else that deceiving case may have contained I have no means of knowing—perhaps caviare sandwiches or a bottle of Scotch.—Definestor.

FRENCH FAMILY DINNERS.

People Who Eat Sensibly and Make the Most of Their Food.

A typical French dinner—not an exceptional one, mark you, but such a dinner as a small tradesman's family would have—is incomparably superior to the plain roast dinner.

There would be, first of all, a few relishes, according to the season of the year. Radishes, ice cold; sardines, olives, caviare. Just a little of each with which to awaken the appetite, then the soup to excite gently the liquids of the throat and stomach, then a little entree—usually a bit of fish with its appropriate vegetable, or a handful of vegetables flavored with meat sauce. Then, and not till then, does the chief course appear.

It may be a roast, or game, or chicken, or chops, but in no case will it be anything which is not in harmony with the previous courses and it will be eaten in moderation, for the edge of the diner's appetite will have been dulled by the lighter foods which have preceded it. With it comes the salad—varied throughout the year by all the possible changes of the season, and never, never by any possibility will it be such a dreadful hybrid as the romaine, strawberry and green pepper thing. After the salad there will be fruit or mellow cheese, and then coffee.

It will take two hours to eat such a dinner, but it will take only half what the typical American dinner costs to pay for it and there will be no indigestion afterward no matter of what the dinner is composed.—Princess Hasan in an interview by Louise Rice in the Delineator.

Not Very Nourishing.

Doctor—For dinner you should take forty minutes.

Timid Patient—Would it be dangerous to add a bit of meat and some vegetables?—Boston Transcript.

Balladist—Don't you think if I'd cut out one of my four songs it would improve my act?

NEURITIS FOLLOWS CRIPPLED NERVES

Painful Effects of Chronic Rheumatism Quickly Routed by Rheuma

Painful Effects of Chronic Rheumatism Quickly Routed by Rheuma.

If your nerves are all crippled from attacks of Rheumatism, Neuritis can easily get a strong hold on the nerves. This most painful disease is one of the hardest known to expel, but RHEUMA can reach it if given a chance. This testimony is positive proof:

"Last March I was so crippled with Neuritis in left limb I could walk scarcely at all. Tried all remedies I heard of and had two physicians. Nothing did me any good until I used RHEUMA—$2.00 worth of your medicines surely cured me. —Mrs. C. E. Hayes, Russell, Ky.

Cruikshank at Eighty.

"Among the many people whose acquaintance I made in Richardson's rooms was old George Cruikshank. I happened incidentally to remark that I wasn't very well, when Cruikshank in his genial manner exclaimed: 'What? Not well? A powerful young fellow like you ought to be ashamed of yourself to talk of being unwell! Here, let me see you do this.'

"He sprang up, took the tongs and poker from the fireplace, crossed them on the floor like two swords and then, whistling his own air, danced a highland sword dance with great agility and accuracy, keeping it up for at least a quarter of an hour. As he threw himself into a chair, somewhat exhausted by his efforts, he said, 'Now, then, when I'm dead you can say you saw old Cruikshank when he was over eighty years of age dance the sword dance in Dr. Richardson's room.'"—From "Pages From an Adventurous Life."

Why Horses Scare.

The family at the supper table had been discussing a horse frightened by an automobile into running away. After silently listening for awhile little Mary finally looked up from her plate.

"I don't blame horses," she said, "for being afraid of automobiles. You would be, too, if you were a horse."

"Why, Mary?"

"Well," said Mary, "wouldn't you be scared if you saw a pair of pants coming along without a man in them?"—Everybody's Magazine.

A Sad Slump.

"What's the trouble?"

"The doctor has changed my medicine. I wouldn't take it unless the nurse gave me a kiss each time."

"Well?"

"The old medicine I took every fifteen minutes. Now the doctor has given me some to take every four hours."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

His Inference.

Robert had been dutifully listening to the conversation of his parents. They were discussing a certain Mrs. Smith, who was tagged in their talk as a grass widow.

"I say, pa," said Robert after some reflection, "is a grass widow a woman whose husband died of hay fever?"—New York Evening Post.

The Biggest Bush League.

"Father," asked the little boy, "what are sand lot baseball players?"

"They resemble very closely the political bush leaguers."

"What are they?"

"A political bush leaguer is a fellow who does a lot of playing around, but never gets on the salary list."—Popular Magazine.

Forgot Himself.

Old Lady (to beggar at door)—What's this soiled paper? You'll have to tell me what it says, for I haven't my glasses.

Misses His Guide.

"Diablo says he doesn't know what to do with himself when his wife's out of town."

"I'm not surprised. However, he knows what to do with himself when she's in town, because she tells him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Hexpack—If you steal—I don't care what—you'll repent it some day.

Henderson—Foolish idea! Didn't you ever steal a kiss?

Hexpack—Yes, and I married the girl too.—Chicago Daily News.

"These magazines are so helpful."

"What's the latest?"

"Here in the home hints they tell you how to make a lovely suffragette bomb out of an old tomato can."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

Ways of Mankind When Public Mirrors Are Encountered.

BIG COMFORT AT SMALL COST.

Try a Chiffonier Instead of an Extra Trunk the Next Time Family Belongings Are to Be Expressed—An Ice Cream Expedient.

Dear Elsa—While waiting for Dick to join me at the Grand Central station the other day I whiled away the time (fifteen minutes, mind you—men are always punctual) by observing the people who used the little mirrors over the automatic chewing gum machines.

It was funny to note the different ways in which the glasses were used by the women and the men. When a pretty girl came tripping along and caught the reflection of her face in the mirror she immediately looked to see if her nose was shiny and, if so, surreptitiously or openly, according to her nature, applied a dab of powder; or she readjusted her veil or tucked in a wayward lock of hair. In this way she justified her vanity—or was it vanity after all? But the men, my dear! They don't care a rap whether their noses are shiny or not. Still I noticed that they spent just as long a time in front of the mirrors gazing at themselves as the women. And such tricks as they played—'twould make the angels weep to see them. They turned their heads first this way and then that, looked straight into their soulful eyes, turned back their upper lips and closely examined their teeth and even smiled at themselves to get the effect.

Now, from all these signs and wonderful grimaces I gathered that our masculine friends were freely looking at and admiring themselves and that the performance might be termed just plain vanity. The women had a deeper and more subtle excuse for using the glasses—the details of the toilet to adjust.

To stop knocking the men, who, after all, are pretty decent creatures for the most part, let me tell you about a novel plan hit upon by a young mother who, with her two little daughters, is spending the summer at Atlantic City.

The distance was not great between the home of the thrifty matron and the summer city by the sea, so she decided not to take much luggage—not more than she could possibly get on without. But plan as she would it became a question at last of either getting another trunk or leaving at home much needed belongings.

A wardrobe trunk, she decided, would solve the difficulty beautifully, as it would not only give the required space, but would be a boon in the boarding place at the seashore.

A telephone inquiry as to the cost of the wardrobe trunk quickly showed this little mother that another way out of the difficulty must be found.

By putting her brains to work it was not long before the solution came. In the back hall upstairs there was a cheap chiffonier of oak, in which were kept the children's dresses and underwear. She decided that if she could do it she would take the chiffonier as it stood, doing away, you see, with the bother of packing it first and repacking its contents in a trunk.

This clever little lady called up an express company and asked if she could express an uncrated chiffonier and, if so, what it would cost. She was told that she could do so and that the express charge would be $1.20 for every hundred pounds. Madam then set to work upon the receipt of this joyful news to arrange the contents of the chiffonier more carefully with a view to safe transportation.

After the contents of the chiffonier had been settled the five drawers were locked and the whole thing was covered with an old piece of canvas and firmly tied with rope. The express company delivered it safely at the hotel and it was placed in her room at a total cost of $1.80.

Just think, dear, of the comfort and convenience one can gain if her "think tank" will only work a little overtime.

For the last few weeks I have had the most hopelessly ignorant Swedish maid to struggle with it has ever been my bad fortune to encounter. Although I had to labor long and earnestly to instruct her how to do the simplest household duties there is one useful thing she taught me. It is this: How to dispose of left over ice cream—that is, cream that has been turned out on a plate.

The Swedish idea is to take a glass fruit jar, large or small, according to the quantity of the cream, and pack the cream down hard in it with a spoon. I want to emphasize that word "pack" because I think it is that which makes the process so successful. When the cream is in the jar put a piece of paper over the top and then screw on the cover as tightly as you can. Now place the jar back in the pail with the salt and ice. Several hours after this process has been accomplished you will find the ice cream as firm as when first made, if not even better, no matter how soft it may have been when it was put in the jar. You will not find this the case, however, unless the pail has plenty of ice left in it.

As Dick and myself are not ice cream fiends we consider this new packing scheme a great saving in the high cost of living.

Don't you fairly hate the words "high cost of living?" Well, if you an look at the matter with fortitude there is one who cannot or will not, and that's yours devotedly,

MABEL.

TRIED TO BE TACTFUL.

Yet Little Glory's Scheme Didn't Work Out According to Rule.

"Children," said Mr. Timkins, who had been suddenly moved to deliver a little sermon as he swallowed his second egg at breakfast, "whenever you hear anybody say anything mean or unpleasant, act as though you hadn't heard it. Talk about something else and pretend you don't hear. That's what we call tact."

When Mr. Timkins got home that afternoon from the office he observed that somebody had strewn his favorite golf clubs and all his golf balls over the front yard. Summoning his six-year-old daughter Glory, he said sternly:

"Glory, did you get all dad's golf things out and put them here where anybody could steal them?"

"Dad," replied Glory with perfect composure, "isn't it too bad our ice cream freezer's out of order, 'cause Mary can't make any ice cream?"

"Glory, did you dig up all this turf knocking those balls around?"

"And Uncle Randolph came and took mother for a ride in his auto," continued the six-year-old. "When are we going to get an auto, dad?"

"But, Glory," said Mr. Timkins, "I want to know about these golf clubs. Did you strew them around here? Why don't you answer?"

"Well, yes, I did," said the young person, "but I was trying to change the subject, 'cause I didn't want you to know that I heard something mean and unpleasant."—New York Post.

MUNICIPAL PAWNSHOPS.

In the Mont de Piete the Parisian Has a Model Institution.

The story of the Mont de Piete, the great pawnshop of Paris, reads like a romance. It is the survival of an old bank conducted by a religious order established to fight usury. This benevolent enterprise was given up to be started afresh under the direction of the government in 1801, when Napoleon was near the height of his glory. The profits go to the state and to charity—to the public aid department and to the hospitals of Paris. These charities benefit about $70,000 a year.

The storage facilities of the Mont de Piete are admirable. The Frenchman may pawn his feather bed. When it comes back to him it, as well as mattresses, blankets and all bed furnishings, has been thoroughly disinfected. The rate of interest on loans is small, and it encourages by all means the redemption of the goods on which money has been advanced. As the Mont de Piete advances money only on a conservative valuation—as a rule to the value of two-thirds of the article pawned—there is generally a surplus to go to the pawner if the pledge is sold.

Municipal pawnshops in Berlin charge 12 per cent. in Brussels 7 per cent and in Madrid 6 per cent.

In London for small loans the pawnshop rate is from 400 to 1,000 per cent per annum.—Indianapolis News.

Too Numerous.

A darky employed as an office boy in Kentucky came to work one morning with a face that looked as though it had been run through a meat grinder.

"Henry," demanded his surprised employer, "what in the world has happened to you?"

"Well, suh, boss," explained Henry, "I got into a little argument las' night wif another nigger, and one thing led to another twell I up and bit at him. Well, suh, it seemed lak dat irritated him. He took and blacked both of mah eyes and bit one of mah years mighty nigh off and split mah lip and knocked two of mah teeth loose, and den he th'owed me down and stamped me in de stomach. Honest, boss, I never did git so sick of a nigger in mah life!"—Saturday Evening Post.

One-quarter of the 23,000 women workers of Kansas City receive less than $6 a week, although, according to the board of public welfare, a wage of $8.50 is necessary for a girl to live comfortably in a boarding house, while $5 means a bare existence. It is encouraging to see the question raised how the workers who get less than $6 manage to exist.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of these sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It is not a medicine, and has no direct action on the stomach, but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

Don't Let Your Dealer Tell You There's Any Other MEDICINAL WHISKEY "Just as Good" or "Better" Than DUFFY'S

He knows there is not, and so do you.

Unscrupulous manufacturers and dealers sometimes seek greater profit from base imitations and substitutes of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey because it is the standard of purity. But remember has been used by the medical profession, hospitals, sanitariums and in the home for more than half a century with wonderful results. It is an absolutely pure distillation of selected, clean grain, thoroughly malted, so palatable and free from injurious substances that the most sensitive stomach has no difficulty in its retention.

In the treatment of pneumonia, grip, cough, colds, malaria, low fevers, stomach troubles, and all wasted and diseased conditions, it is used with remarkable results.

The genuine Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is sold in sealed bottles only. The "Old Chemist's Head" is on the label and over the cork is an engraved seal. Sold by dealers and hotels everywhere $1.25 a large bottle

THE HIRED MAN'S OPINION.

The city folks keep comin' to the country for a change,
I can't see why they want to, and it seems damnation strange.
I'll bet you if I lived there I could have a lot of fun
Instead of always stayin' where there's nothin' ever done.

They seem to think it's nothin' but a picnic just to stay
Out on a farm and watch us while we're haulin' in the hay.
It beats the very dickens why they shut their houses tight
And spend their time and money where there ain't no fun in sight.

They'd nothin' suit me better than to go up there, by jings,
Where there is somethin' doin' and there's theaters and things.
I'd like to take their places and just have them jump in mine.
You'd never hear me kickin', and perhaps they'd think 'twas fine.

These city folks who're livin' in the tonicest of style,
Who're crazy for the country—well, it makes me want to smile.
I feel all fired sorry for the lucky city chap
Who don't know for a minute when he has a bully snap.

You bet if I was livin' in some easy place up there,
With all kinds of excitement and a chance to go somewhere,
I'd never, never hanker for the country any more,
Where we go to bed at lamplight and get routed out at four!

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Reducing Flesh.

For reduction of flesh a simple hot bath is supplied with four pounds of washing soda and one pound of bicarbonate of soda. First the feet and wrists are warmed and then gradually the body, so that the shock is not too great. The tub should be well filled. Hot water should be slowly added as it cools. The treatment requires one to stay in the bath for twenty minutes. A flannel dressing gown, full length, is then slipped on, and the patient goes to bed between blankets. A glass of hot water is also taken at this time. Profuse perspiration naturally follows, and one should stay in bed for an hour or longer. After leaving the bed care should be taken to keep out of drafts and to remain indoors for the rest of the day, as the pores are open, and a slight chill might result in a cold or something more serious. These baths are somewhat weakening, so must be used sparingly. A hot bath without the addition of soda will frequently break up a cold that is just starting. The above precautions should likewise be carried out.

Norman Wilson Secures Good Position in Toronto Drug Store

The friends of Mr. Norman Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson, Stewart Stret, will be pleased to learn that he has accepted a lucrative position as drug clerg in Dr. Adams' drug store, Queen Street West, Toronto. Norman's many friends in Peterborough will congratulate him on his securing this new and important field for the practice of his profession, and none but the best wishes will go with him. He was known in Peterborough as a good type of a young man and a promising student. Those who know him best feel satisfied that he will "make good" in his new sphere of work. This is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Wilson who has gone out from the family circle to fill useful positions in distant parts of Canada, and the last of their "flock" who have been carefully tended."

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS"

Harold Bell Wright, the author of "The Shepherd of the Hills," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Calling of Dan Matthews," and "That Printer of Udells," has made, in collaboration with Elsbery W. Reynolds, a dramatization of his most popular story, "The Shepherd of the Hills." The play has received an excellent production from Caskill and MacVitty and Manager Turner of the Grand Opera House has secured the original cast and production for his theatre Saturday next, Oct. 18th, matinee and night.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" is a splendid story of real life among the Ozark hills of Missouri and Arkansas. If you go there you will easily find a Dutton Hollow, a hill like Dewey Bald and people like Sammy Lane, Young Matt, Mad Howard and Father Hewitt. Clinging to the beautiful story simply told, is the very atmosphere of the life of the picturesque region which is so sadly unfamiliar to the travellers in search of new scenes. It is a clean and strong play, well worth seeing many times.

Must Remove Explosives

City Decides to Close Powder Magazine in North Monaghan

The hardware firms of the City and the other parties who have been storing explosives in the City's powder magazine in North Monaghan, are to be notified that they must remove their property before Saturday night. This is the result of a communication from the Municipal Council of North Monaghan notifying the City that the storing of explosives in the township must cease, and which was taken up by the Property Committee last night.

Mayor Bradburn did not see why the City should be required to establish a warehouse for the hardware men to keep their explosives in. He thought they should be asked to vacate the premises and moved to that effect. The motion, seconded by Alderman Greeh, was carried.

INDIAN RELISH

Put one and one-half cups of salt on one peck of green tomatoes (chopped fine and let it stand over night, or longer. Drain and add one medium sized cabbage (chopped fine), and boil all in three quarts of vinegar for half an hour. Then add six onions, chopped fine, three red peppers and two green peppers, with one seed of each left in; six cups of vinegar, two cups of light brown sugar, one tablespoonful of whole cloves, one tablespoonful of stick cinnamon, two table spoons of mustard seed, two table spoons of celery seed (tied in a bag). Cook until the onions are done; seal hot.

FINE WATCH REPAIRING

Cheap watch repairing may appeal to some, but generally speaking experience proves work done cheaply is generally done poorly, and in the end is the final ruin of a good watch. We have first-class workmen and do only high-class work. No other place can do any better. Our charges are no higher than others, for good work. If you have a good watch you will find it economical to have us do your repairing.

WISHED HIS DEATH REGRETTED

To the leader of a band, jocularly spoken of in the locality as "the worst in seven different counties," there once came a man with a request that the band play at a cousin's funeral.

"Is it a military funeral?" asked the leader.

"Not at all," was the reply. "My cousin was no military man; in fact, he was never interested in matters military. Nevertheless, it was his express wish that your band should play at his funeral."

The leader was surprised and flattered.

"Is that so?" he asked.

"Yes," responded the other; "he said he wanted everybody in the place to be sorry that he died."

YOUNG PEOPLE AT PROTESTANT HOME

Will Furnish Entertainment During Long Winter Months

The Peterborough Protestant Home was the Mecca last evening for a large and representative gathering of the Young People's Societies of the various Protestant Churches of the City, to the number of about 150—the object being to arrive at some feasible plan whereby the young people of the City could in some measure brighten the long winter months for the aged inmates of that institution.

The different societies on arrival were welcomed by Mrs. Rogers and Miss Lancaster. Mr. G. N. Baker requested to act as chairman for the evening, and Mr. C. H. Williamson, secretary. Organizing for the winter's work was first proceeded with, the assembly voting unanimously that the different Young Peopjie's Societies in the City entertain the Home alternately each Friday evening during the coming months.

A proposition to furnish the Home with a piano by the Young People was received with enthusiasm, and donations amounting to $140.00 was subscribed at once. This, it is felt, will be greatly augmented when the various Societies get together, and that the amount required will be raised in a short time.

The following representatives were elected to act as an Executive committee to take the various matters up.

Anglican—Mrs. C. L. Brewer.
Presbyterian—Mr. Hill.
Methodist—Mr. Gamble.
Bethany Tabernacle—Mr. Telford.
Baptists—Mr. W. C. Barry.

A meeting of this committee will be held in the near future to carry out the suggestions of the meeting.

After the singing of a few familiar hymns the gathering was entertained with light refreshments, after which Mrs. Rogers, on behalf of the Board, in a few well chosen words, thanked the Young People for their manifest interest and good wishes. The gathering was then dismissed after the singing of the Doxology.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Union Stock Yards, Oct. 14.—Receipts were not as heavy, there being 82 cars, 1,471 cattle, 647 hogs, 939 sheep and lambs.

The quality of fat catle was fair, but not enough good to choice butchers. Prices were about steady when quality is considered.

Export steers sold at $7.25 to $7.60.
Choice butchers steers, $6.75 to $7.10.
Good butchers steers, $6.00 to $6.60.
Medium butchers steers, $5.50 to $6.00.
Choice cows, $5.00 to $5.65.
Good cows, $4.75 to $5.00.
Canners, $2.75 to $3.75.

Feeders and stockers. Trade in stockers and feeders was extra good, there being many buyers, both from the States and Ontario districts.

Choice heavy steers, $6.40 to $6.65.
Medium steers, $5.60 to $6.25.
Stockers, 500 to 600 lbs., $4.75 to $5.75.

Milkers and springers—The market was strong, demand good at $50 to $88 each, bulk sold at $65 to $70 each.

Calves—Receipts light, prices very firm. Choice veals, $9 to $10 per cwt.; common to good, $5.00 to $8.50.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts light, prices steady to strong. Sheep, $3.50 to $5.25; culls and rams, $2.50 to $3.50; lambs, choice ewes and wethers, $7 to $7.60; rams, 75c per head less.

Hogs — Light receipts caused prices to be very firm. Selects, fed and watered, $8.60 and $8.25 f.o.b. cars, and $8.85 weighed off cars.

THE SPIDER SOUGHT QUIET

An editor of a rural paper received a note from a superstitious subscriber saying that he had found a spider in his paper, and asking him whether it was a sign of good luck or bad. The editor answered him, saying: "Old Subscriber, finding a spider in your paper was neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over the paper to see who was not advertising, so that he could spin a web across the door, and lead an undisturbed life ever afterwards."

BREATHE FREELY! OPEN NOSTRILS AND STUFFED HEAD--END CATARRH

Instant Relief When Nose and Head are Clogged from a Cold. Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges. Dull Headache Vanishes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake to-night struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith — just once — in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

The Autumn and Winter Dress is now Demanding One's Attention

AND WHERE ELSE, SAVE UPON OUR SECOND FLOOR, could one be more assured of finding the particular type of dress that will at once captivate one's fancy, and yet bear a reasonable price mark.

For, in the first place, there is the large number that provides easy and ample choice, and there is also the careful selection from the best designs and materials that the markets can produce.

Let us, therefore, by way of an introduction, describe the following models and tell their prices.

In a handsome Velvet Cord, is a smart dress, that has a turn down collar of the Brocaded Bulgarian order, is high or low neck style. It is made with a very becoming peplin effect, while the three piece skirt and new lapel cuffs are trimmed alike with prettily shaded Navy buttons. This conveniently fastens down the front and is priced $15

Bearing a 14.75 ticket, is a dress of wine coloured Whipcord, with Robespierre Collar in Satin of the same handsome shade. This collar is edged with Bulgarian Velvet, and the buttons used on the dress are also covered with this fabric. The medium narrow skirt has a smart lap effect with imitation button holes, and is finished at the waist with a belt. A double streamer of Black Ribbon is caught at the back, and at the ends are pretty pendants of crystal buttons.

There is a dress of Navy Blue Serge which is distinguished by its elegant simplicity. The skirt boasts, by way of a natty style touch, the new method of draping, and is surmounted by a girdle of Bulgarian Velvet. Oriental colours are also used as a deep edging round the cuff of the sleeves, and to cover the buttons. The collar is of the turn down variety and is made in the same fine quality serge as the dress itself, this is 13.75 out on the mail waggon with him and worked the most of the summer of 1911 with him on the mails.

HUSBAND CALLED HER A BEGGAR, ETC.

Witness told of a proposed trip to Ennismore. She said she would go as far as her aunt's, but not all the way. He said all right. The next day he said he would not call at the house of my aunt. He would pick me up at the gate, which was a quarter of a mile from the house down the lane.

He told me to meet him at the gate. I said, "When are you coming back?" He said he did not know. I told him I could not wait at the gate in that manner, and I declined to go if that was the way he would call for me. He go mad and threatened to burn the place.

Complained of Cooking.

During the summer of 1911 he would complain about my cooking when he got mad.

Mr. Gordon—Did he ever say it was good?

Witness—No; he never complimented me. One day I said, "It's no wonder people said you abused your first wife, for you are abusing me."

He said, with an oath, "Don't use my first wife's name," and caught me by the throat. That was the first time he put his hands on me. I said I would have the law on him. Then he jumped up and threatened me with a jack-knife.

Would Hide Things.

Mr. Gordon— Why did he keep the stable door locked?

Witness—He locked the electric iron in there, also the garden hose, and other things that I needed. He hid my writing material. The electric lights were on a flat rate but he was all the time turning them out. When he got mad his face would turn as white as paper and his eyes would blaze.

Left the House.

Witness told of the first time she left the house. He had grown angry and made a jump to the pantry where the knife box was. Mrs. Kearns ran out of the house. She returned two days later. The door was locked and she did not get in for three days, remaining with neighbours.

Took In Dressmaking.

Mrs. Kearns stated that the allowance of money given her was very small and frequently her husband swore at her when he did give any. She said she had to take in dressmaking in order to get money to clothe herself. Her attire, she considered, had not been sufficient for the time of the year.

Mr. Gordon—Did you ever tell the neighbours of your trouble?

Mrs. Kearns—No; except the neighbours I spent the three days with. I asked them not to tell.

Looked After Mail Entirely.

Mrs. Kearns—He had a law suit during the summer of 1912, and during that time I looked after his mail route entirely.

Witness told of a weak spell that attacked her on the verandah.

He said, I was only pretending. He swore at me and I was afraid the neighbours would hear him. He called me upstairs and was so mad he said he was going to leave. He packed his suit case and said "You'll never see me again." He was back next morning at 8 o'clock.

Witness said her husband provided no help for her while she was ill. He said he could not get anybody.

"The second time I was in the hospital," she said, "I was in the public ward. He would not pay for a private ward."

He stopped Dr. Gallivan from attending me. I called in Dr. McPherson; I thought he was the City doctor.

My husband said I was not sick at all.

Ruth Cameron's Advice.

Mrs. Kearns — When I was ill he complained he was not getting his meals. Some times when I would get them ready he would not eat them.

Neighbours told me I was afraid of him and urged me to show some spunk. I read a piece in the Examiner that Ruth Cameron wrote saying that some women were too easy.

One morning I said to him: "I wish you would bring me some water." I was not able to do heavy work.

"Can't you speak civilly to me," he asked.

"No, you dont deserve it."

He became angry, and came close to me. I was cleaning rice and I threw a cup of rice water in his face. Then he grobbed me by the throat, and twisted me around, hurting me very much. I got away from him and started to run out the door, down the steps. He threw a cup at me, hitting me on the back. It fell into little pieces on the floor. I was hurt so much I could scarcely breathe.

Escaped Through Window.

In May, 1913, witness said her husband flew into a rage. He went down town and got drunk. He ordered ale sent to the house and that night went up to her room, wanting to know where it was. I said he could not have any then.

The result was another outburst, and Mrs. Kearns said she crawled through the parlour window to the verandah and went to Mrs. Carew's.

Witness said that one night her husband asked who was going to pay Dr. Gallivan and suggested that she use some gold pieces to pay him.

"I did not care to use them in that way. They were wedding presents."

Sent Letters to Her.

On one occasion witness left home and received the following letters from her husband:

Peterborough, Sept. 23.

Well, Min.: I have a deal of worry and work to make $1.50 a day and you can destroy five a day. I had made up my mind to tell you to come home and keep away from that crowd in Smith and I would use you right and let the past drop, but when I came home I got a note from Dumble and I went to Gordon and am not in the least frightened. I will go from court to court while there is a shingle on the house and don't think you can frighten me. I ain't that class and will meet Dumble and you as soon as you, Mike.

Frank Kearns.

The Second Letter.

Peterborough, Sept. 25, 1912.

Well Min.: I write this now to ask you to forgive me and forget the past, as I will. Maggie went to see you this morning and they would not let her in. Min., I promised Maggie that if you would come home I would never say a cross word to you and would be as kind to you as the day I married you, and that I will. Do now Min. trust me this time. We are both letting our tempers get the start of us, but this will not happen again. Dumble and the rest of them is not after our good; it is after our money and you know this. Now for God's sake come home and anything you want you will get. I send you papers and a stamp and I want you to write as soon as you get this. Min, if this law starts it will ruin your life and mine, so let it drop and you will not be sorry. All I want you to do is to stay from those people on Smith street. Now Min, if you come home you will find a change. I did not sleep any last night. I cried all night and this morning. Maggie talked of some clothes. I will send them if you don't come home. Good-bye,

Frank Kearns.

Treated Her Well.

Witness said that when she returned home her husband treated her kindly for a time, but it was not for long.

"I went out to the neighbours or elsewhere he would lock the doors on me. One night I was out getting signatures for a petition for a sewer for the street. I got home at 8.15 p.m. The door was locked. I rang the bell. I looked through the window and saw Mr. Kearns sitting inside. I went to the back door. It was open. He was very angry and picked up a poker. (Witness broke down at this point). He threatened to strike me.

"Don't you dare," I said.

He did not strike me.

He raised the poker at me five or six times.

Another Flare-Up.

"I had never been to a picnic since my marriage and before July 1st this year I told Mr. Kearns I was going. He was apparently satisfied. On Sunday my sister came in from the country. I asked my husband if he would drive out there. He said he would not go to Timothy Carroll's, but he would drive to John Caroll's, further on.

He said: 'When do you want to go home?'

I said: "Any time."

"I will call at the gate at 6 o'clock," he said.

I want you to come up to the house. Don't make a show of me out here. He drove away. My sister and I went for a walk and when we came back I saw him about two hundred yards down the road from the gate. The horse was unhitched and tied to the fence. I said to my sister that I had better go, but she asked me to go in for lunch first. I did so and Mr. Caroll then came in and told me Mr. Kearns had driven off. A week later I went to Peterborough.

Broke The Wash Stand.

Mr. Gordon asked for any other happenings.

Mrs. Kearns—After being away on one occasion there was a big two-weeks' washing and I left out several of his shirts. He flew into a rage about that. Then there was a wash stand on the back verandah which he suggested might be taken into the shed. I think I put it in the shed, and then on a Sunday in July it was back to the veradah. I put it back in the shed and shortly after it was on the verandah again. Since he suggested that it be put in the shed, I carried it back again. He came up from the stable with an axe in his hand and hit the stand and the soap holder a blow, breaking both of them.

"Go on and break it if you want to," I said. He was in a terrible temper.

Witness told of the metaphorical last straw.

Shortly after this affair on the same morning she was standing in a door way when, according to her statement, her husband slammed the door at her, he door knob struck her on the spine, sending pains through her body. Her knees weakened and she sank to the floor. After that she went to Mrs. Tedford's, a neighbour, and has not returned.

How She Got Her Clothes.

Mrs. John Sulivan, of Toronto, came to visit her and she had to tell her of the trouble she had and could not invite her into the house.

"I asked her down town for dinner. I crawled through the kitchen window and changed my clothes. The next day the windows were all nailed down. Shortly after I got a ladder and went up to a second storey window, pulled a nail out of it and crawled through for my clothes.

Mr. Gordon—"Did your husband ask you to go back?"

Mrs. Kearns—Yes.

Mr. Gordon—And why do you not go?

Mrs. Kearns—Because I'm afraid of his temper.

The above are not the complete list of clashes between the husband and wife, and common decency forbids the printing of the epithets which Mrs. Kearns said her husband used toward her.

Cross Examination.

Mr. O'Connor—Did you not call your husband a "dirty old cur?"

Mrs. Kearns—"I said that that was what Mr. Dumble said he was if he treated me the way I told him."

Mr. O'Connor—You accused him last year of murdering his first wife?

Mrs. Kearns—I told him his sister told me he murdered his first wife, but I only said that when I told him he was abusing me.

Mr. O'Connor—And you used what common gossip said to your husband. Why did you not take him into your confidence?

Mrs. Kearns—There was no use of trying that.

Bought Her $80 Coat.

Mr. O'Connor—The day you missed him down town he bought you an $80 coat? And he let you pick it out He was good to you then?

Mrs. Kearns—Oh, yes, he was good to me at times.

Mr. O'Connor—You had quite a lot of cousins visiting you? And your husband after a time told you that he could not afford to feed them all?

Mrs. Kearns stated that they called at her place on their way home, and at times some stayed for a day or so and one had remained a week or so.

Good at the Hospital.

Mr. O'Connor—And when you were at St. Joseph's Hospital the first time he came to see you twice a day, and had a private ward for you?

Mrs. Kearns admitted that he had been all right then but when she was in the hospital the second time he had come over, but she had only seen him down the ward talking to a Sister.

Mr. O'Connor—Your husband complained that the dishes were left around after meals?

Mrs. Kearns—"Yes, he complained of that.

Mr. O'Connor — And that you would go out talking to the neighbours in the morning?

Mr. O'Connor—You were ill a few weeks before you were married? Were you not stronger in 1913 than in 1911?

Witness admitted that in some respects she was.

Mrs. Kearns said he had no fault to find with her huband in regard to drinking. If he got drunk twice a year, that was all.

Mrs. Mary Tedford

The next witness was Mrs. Mary Tedford, 693 Stewart Street. Mrs. Tedford said: "Mrs. Kearns came to my place in July, this year. In September, 1912, one morning about nine o'clock I heard a scream from the Kearns' place three times. Then I saw Mrs. Kearns come out on the back verandah. She was in her night dress. Her feet were bare and her hair was hanging down her back. Mr. Kearns was walking up and down the yard, muttering. That night about 10 o'clock she heard Mr. Kearns shout an oath, followed by "Where is it?" He was in a back bedroom. The light was on and Mrs. Kearns had just sat up on the bed. She got up and said she was "going down to Dumble's." She walked down Smith Street. Mr. Kearns was outside searching behind the woodpile and around the yard until 2 a. m. I thought he was drunk or crazy. My husband and I watched him. That was the night he was looking for the beer.

No More Quarrelling.

On one occasion when Mrs. Kearns had left her husband Mrs. Kearns asked witness to get his wife to return. He said there would be no more quarrelling. He said once that he had held the poker over her to frighten her, also that sometimes he thought she was insane. The morning Mrs. Kearns came back from the country Mrs. Tedford, 150 feet away, heard her husband say: "—— Go back to where you came from."

Three O'clock—Special.

The Kearns versus Kearns alimony case which occupied the attention of Mr. Justice Middleton in the High Court this morning came to an abrupt termination following the resumption of the court this afternoon when it was announced by Mr. L. V. O'Conner, counsel for the defence that the defendant was agreeable to a settlement, His Lordship characterized the case as a lamentable one and was satisfied to have an amicable settlement made, rather than have the savings of the couple dissipated in litigation. Judgment was awarded by consent of defendant for one hundred dollars per annum for alimony payable quarterly, and costs to the amount of one hundred and fifty dollars, to be paid by defendant exclusive of the alimony. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. G. N. Gordon.

HIGH COURT SITTINGS CONCLUDED

A breach of promise case concerning one Ellen E. Smart and Charles E. Jarrett, in which the former sought to recover the sum of $1,000 damages and costs for alleged breach of promise was adjourned one court.

Judgment was reserved in the case of the Northern Electric Company versus the Cordova Mines Limited in which the former sought to obtain judgment against defendants for the sum of $802.53, and to have a mortgage set aside that was made by the defendants.

The High Court Sittings concluded this afternoon, in so far as the disposition of stated cases is concerned. The court was formally adjourned until ten o'clock to-morrow morning when the Grand Jury's report will be received by Sheriff Hall in the absence of Mr. Justice Middleton, the presiding judge, who returns to Toronto this afternoon.

T. A. S. FORM A LITERARY SOCIETY

The T.A.S. Men's Literary Society, been constituted, the following officers being elected:

Chairman, R. Begley; secretary, V. S. Cox; committee, Messrs. J. Begley, A. New, D. Holland, B. Butler, W. O'Connor, C. Mutler, H. O'Hern, J. A. Sharpe, and A. H. Lehane.

The coming season promises to be one of particular interest to the members, as it has been arranged to bring several prominent speakers to address some of the meetings. The society has been formed on a solid basis, and will doubtless form a source of interest to many.

FRUIT LAXATIVE IF COSTIVE, BILIOUS, HEADACHY—"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Best liver and bowel regulator for mamma, daddy and children

Best Liver and Bowel Regulator for Mamma, Daddy and Children.

If you're headachy, constipated, bilious or stomach is disordered, and you want to enjoy the nicest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced, take a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" to-night and in the morning all the constipation poison, bile and clogged-up waste will gently move out of the system without griping and you will feel splendid.

Every member of the family should use this fruit laxative as occasion demands. It is just as effective for grandpa as it is for baby. It simply can not injure. Even cross, sick, feverish children just love its pleasant taste and mothers can rest after giving it, because it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing."

For thirty years "California Syrup of Figs" has been recommended by physicians as the ideal stomach, liver and bowel cleanser. Millions of families who are well informed use nothing else, but recently there has come a flood of apurious fig syrups, so we warn the public to ask plainly at drug stores for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," and see that it is prepared by "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no cheaper size. Hand back any "counterfeit" with contempt.

RESPECTING ONE'S RIGHTS

By RUTH CAMERON

That there are a great many people in this world deficient in a proper respect for the rights of others is a perfectly well recognized fact.

But that there are also people deficient in a proper respect for their own rights is less generally realized. But I think there are.

And furthermore I think they do a great deal of harm in the world.

For you will seldom find an excessively meek person who never attempts to defend his rights, without finding about him people whom he has lead into the habit of encroaching on the rights of others.

Self-sacrifice and self-effacement are without doubt medicinal for the soul but is it right for any one person to attempt to keep all the soul tonic of the family for himself?

And then again I do not think it is right to let anyone without reason keep you from being as happy as you can.

A happy life blesses humankind.

"A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five pound note," says Robert Louis Stevenson. "He or she is a radiating focus of goodwill; and their entrance into a room is as though another candle had been lighted. We need not care whether they could prove the forty seventh proposition; they do a better thing than that, they practically demonstrate the great Theorem of the Livableness of Life."

If you foolishly yield your right to healthy happiness you are yielding your ability to bless the world in this way.

Among my schoolmates were two girls whose mother had died when they were quite young and who were being brought up by a stepmother.

This stepmother was a very narrow, strict and over-bearing woman. I suppose she meant to do well by those children but her idea of doing well seemed to be to crush out their individuality, cut them off from normal intercourse with other young people and exercise a petty tyranny over all their doings even after they were full grown girls.

The younger of the two girls had one of these over yielding dispositions and was simply crushed by the treatment.

She wore the queer clothes, gave up dancing lessons, stayed at home from parties because her stepmother thought they might give prizes for games—a special bugaboo of hers—and in a hundred little ways allowed the life and fun to be crushed out of her.

The older girl on the other hand simply would not submit She did not leave home or go to any extremes. She Simply pleasantly insisted on being allowed to be and act like other normal girls.

The younger girl, shut off from natural intercourse with other young people as she was by her foolish yielding, grew old without ever being young. She never married. She is a sad, awkward, shy woman, dissatisfied with herself and her life.

The older girl grew into a fine normal woman, married happily—against her stepmother's wishes of course—and to-day blesses the world by radiating happiness and love of life on all with whom she comes into contact.

Incidentally I ought to mention that the older girl is the stepmother's favourite.

I believe the younger girl was lacking in a proper respect for her own rights and that her weakness has ended disastrously both for herself and those about her.

Please do not think I am discounting the value of meekness and unselfishness. I am not. I reverence unselfishness as the greatest of all virtues. But I think there are times when a defence of one's individuality, a firm stand against overbearing demands, a proper respect for one's rights, will add more to the sum of the world happiness than self-effacement and yielding.

SORROW IN HOMES OF DEAD MINERS

Examiner Special:

CARDIFF, Wales, Oct. 15.—Four hundred men imprisoned in the Universal mine have still to be accounted for, and there is little hope that they will be rescued alive. Rescue parties late this afternoon were unable to confirm their belief that there were thirty living miners in the mine. For several hours rescuers had to give up work on account of further explosions in the vicinity of the mine. In the humble homes of the lost miners there are poignant scenes of desolation following the keen and sudden bereavement.

MICHIGAN WILL TAKE OUR BEETS

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 15.—Michigan sugar beet factories are contracting for huge quantities of Canadian sugar beets as a result of the duty having been reduced one-half. Under the new tariff Canadian growers are receiving offers for all the beets they will grow for next season.

A number of Toronto business men are reported to have married chorus girls. Some chaps are so fond of adventure, you know.

Remember Tag Day And The Meaning of Tag Day

The Appeal to Your Hearts and Pockets Will Be Made on Saturday Next, October 18th

Saturday next is tag day, in the interests of that noblest of Christian expression of true divine charity, the Children's Aid Society. This is the record of the amounts realized on the three preceding tag days:

Tag Day, 1910 .....$1298.78
Tag Day, 1911 .....$1408.36
Tag Day, 1912 .....$1220.31
Try and make it $1500.00 for 1913.

There is no philanthropic work in this world which good people can take hold of with greater prospect of success than that which concerns children. This is a truth which is generally admitted, and yet it cannot be too often emphasized, for there is still much to be done that is new but feebly attempted. The criminals in our jails, the useless and burdensome paupers in our almshouses, the feebleminded and the self-destroyed inmates of our asylums all point with more or less force to a neglected youth and to golden opportunities allowed to pass unimproved, while the stern fact that these classes cost the people of Ontario nearly one-third of the public revenue gives an additional reason for a wise and vigilant system of child protection.

Few people realize that nearly all confirmed criminals and paupers are made such in early youth, and yet there is hardly any other condition so clearly confirmed by facts as this. Bad environment and bad example and training will almost inevitably produce a bad citizen with all the consequence of crime, terrorism and public expense.

Nearly all juvenile offenders are the victims of conditions and circumstances over which they had no control, and are the logical outcome of the early dangers and temptations to which they were subjected. It was to help such children to a better life and to protect society from the increase of crime and pauperism that the Children's Protection Act of Ontario was enacted.

This Act aims at a utilisation of that vast force of human love and sympathy that goes out to the homeless or unprotected child, rather than to the creation of a state system which would in time become more or less official.

Provision is made for the organization of Children's Aid Societies in all the leading cities and towns of the province, which are given authority to act by Government Order-in-Council. No Government grant is given, as it was felt that work so noble and beneficient in its character would be liberally maintained by Christian and benevolent people, supplemented by grants from the municipalities. These Societies have full authority to receive the guardianship of neglected and homeless children, and are empowered to warn or prosecute in the courts, parents or others responsible for gross neglect of children in their care. This system has worked well during the past 16 years and magnificent results have been accomplished although al that is desirable has not yet been realized.

The distinctive aim of a Children's Aid Society is first of all to seek to improve the condition of children in their own homes, by encouraging, or if need be, warning parents of their responsibility toward their children. Then where necessary to receive the guardianship of children found destitute or committed by proper authority. It is worthy of note that the powers of the Society are rarely abused, and the moral tone of thousands of homes has been greatly improved by its intervention. None can tell how much this means in the sum total of human happiness, but years to come will see useful lives develop that otherwise would have been wrecked before they had crossed the harbour bar of youth.

Under the provisions of the Act all children coming under the guardianship of a Society are required to be placed in foster homes as soon as possible, and here another field of Christian activity is opened up. No better work can be done by a childless couple than to take one of these little boys or girls and give them an assured place in the community. A child placed in a public institution remains homeless in the real sense and it cannot be given that affection, sympathy and individual treatment so essential for its proper growth. A home for every homeless child is the ideal towards which the officers of the Children's Aid Society strive, and the day ought not to be far distant when this will be an accomplished fact in Ontario. The conditions are made so simple that all who are willing to help in this way can do so, and the joyous presence of a child in the house is the surest remedy for loneliness or lack of interest in life. Some hesitate lest the child should turn out badly, but the great majority do well and even though there should be apparent failure the good seed sown in youth will not be financially lost.

The Government has provided for the personal visitation of all children placed in foster homes by the various Children's Aid Societies. No matter in what part of the province a child may be it is visited at least once each year, in order to make sure that it is well treated and also as an encouragement to foster parents who are helping the children's cause so materially.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

To-morrow should find rallying in the stock market. The drifting market partly encourages accumulation on scale down, but there seems to be no haste about buying. We find evidence of good absorption, but until the list becomes oversold to an extent that overbalances the liquidation there will be no prominent recovery.

We think prices will not go much lower for at these prices investment is very attractive. We would rather buy on the weak spots after declines for a turn than sell on rallies, as a general rule giving preference to the standard rails securities with good earning power.

The weakest feature of the market was Southern Pacific, which broke three points to 85 1-2, its lowest prices since 1908, but we are strongly of the opinion it is good buy at present prices.

The standard rails should rally as there is every evidence of good buying. We recommend the purchase of U.P., S.P., C.P.R., St. Paul, Baltimore and Ohio, Steel and Copper, a present prices.

Important Market Notes.

After extreme weakness, buy stocks (let profits run.) Limit losses. Begin to buy when prices are dull and weak. Take losses quickly, when there is much excitement and high prices for everything the market should be sold for a good turn. If trade goes ni your favour folow it down utnil it goes against you; then close the transaction. After advancing markets and prices wave, lower prices will come.

London buying largely of American cootks weakens exchange. London selling hardens it. This advise is handed to our friends.

Yours truly,
A. H. STRATTON & CO.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

London May Lose Its Park

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The London Canadian League Baseball Club may be faced with the necessity of providing a new park here next season, if the by-law to erect a permanent breakwater around West London, which goes up with the electrification vote on Oct. 22, is carried, as it probably will be.

To-day John Hayman of this City, secured an option from the owner of Tecumseh Park, W. J. Reid, which he will exercise if the district is assured of protection from possible flooding. He will sundivide the park for residential purposes, and the Canadian League will have to look elsewhere. At present there is no suitable park available.

PLAYERS GET THEIR MONEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Members of the New York Giants who are not going to make the world tour with Manager McGraw and the Chicago White Sox were preparing to leave for their homes or start on vacation trips to-day. They received $2,162.92 each as a result of the series with the Athletics. The National commission turned over their prize money to them yesterday. Cheques for $3,246.92 for each of the Athletics were sent to Philadelphia.

None of the players who wrote for newspapers during the series were punished by the National commission, and they drew the full share of money due them. The Giants contributed $1,000 from their prize money to the widow of John Murphy, former ground-keeper at the Polo grounds.

FOOTBALL

The Nomads Football Club have made arrangements to bring the Bowsers' football team of Toronto to Peterborough for Thanksgiving Day. This team is one of the best elevens in Toronto and with a picked team from the Peterborough football combination a great game is promised.

The game will take place at 2.30 p. m. on the Exhibition Park, with Mr. A. Day refereeing.

On Saturday afternoon the following games will be played in the competition: Cockneys vs. Magpies at 1.30 p. m.; Costers vs. Glaziers at 3.30 p.m., and the lovers of football should come to the Exhibition grounds to see these games, as both games will be hard fought and some good football is looked for.

Mr. A. Day will referee both games and the Cockneys and Magpies players are asked to be on the field at 1.15 sharp to kick off at 1.30 p.m.

BASEBALL

Only a baseball miracle can prevent the Athletics from winning a title again in 1914.

The Athletics to-day are a team of youngsters, a team still in the process of construction.

Take the outfield, young Eddie Murphy, young Walsh, young Amos Strunk and Reuben Oldring, who is not old as men age in the playing end of baseball.

And take that infield, Stuffy McInnis, a kid, and Eddie Collins, several years this side of 30. The same goes for Jack Barry. Frank Baker is somewhat of a veteran. He had several years' experience before he entered the American league, but he should be as good for three years more as he was this year.

Mack's star catcher, Wallie Schang, is a youngster, and several of Mack's pitcher are minors. Joe Bush, who was to the Giants this year what Hugh Bedient was in 1912, is 20 years old.

Three months ago Connie said that his team would win the American league title this year and that in 1914 he would have even a better team. Connie has always been known to look further ahead than Tammany Hall for the right kind of men and he also had a habit of making prophecies that rarely fail. As a prophet the tall tactician is nigh infallible.

It is doubtful if Bender and Plank will be seen in another world's series even if the Athletics win in 1914. They have paid heavily to time and their work this year was far from the standard they carried through 1912. They will be of some use through next season, but the chief reliance must be placed upon the kid hurlers. And the kids appear to be a capable lot. Bush, Shawkey and Brown will be three good pitchers next year. There is also a chance that Jack Coombs will return. Jack wil be in a hospital for some time to come, but surgery can probably assist him in mending his ills before next June.

POLICE WANT JAMES RAY

The following description of James Ray, the forger, has been received by the Chief of Police:

Wanted for Forgery.

James Ray—Age about 35 to 40; height about 5 ft. 7 or 8 inches; medium build; gentlemanly and very reserved in his manner and of a nervous disposition; weight 150 pounds. He wore a black new overcoat and new black Christy hat of medium height when last seen, and No. 8 boots. He is now said to be wearing a jet black wig, black moustache and black Vandyke chin whiskers. He shaves the sides of his face which shows a little grey hair on the side of his cheeks. His skin and complexion is very dark and sallow. He has a fashion of holding his handkerchief to his nose to cover his face; he wears black spectacles and looks smart and learned, like an M.D. or preacher, or ex-banker. Rumour states that when his wig is removed he is quite bald, with a little grey hair on the back of his head and above his ears. Has a chum described as follows: Age 45 to 48; height 5 ft. 2 in.; weight 200 lbs.; sunburnt, and quite red; occupation farmer, rancher, implement agent or butcher; stocky build; very talkative; eyebrows fair; cheeks and head very large; clean shaven; size of hat 7 1-4 or 7 1-2; size of shoe 9 or 10. It is said he has two fingers partly cut off. These two men were seen together leaving Berlin, Ont. Ray is wanted in several cities on similar charges. I hold a warrant for Jas. Ray. Arrest and wire me and I shall send an officer with the necessary papers. —Charles Slemin, Chief Constable, Brantford).

CENTENARY OF VERDI FAMOUS ITALIAN COMPOSER OF MUSIC

Last week in many places the centenary of the birth of the great Italian composer, Giuseppe Fortunio Francesco Verdi, who was born on the 10th of October, 1813, in the little town of Le Roncole near the city of Busseto and who died at Milan on the 27th of January, 1901, was appropriately observed. In a number of Italian cities Verdi festivals have already been held or are now in course to honour and commemorate the birth of one of the most striking figures among modern composers. In various parts of this country concerts have been devoted to Verdi's compositions in recognition of the centenary year.

Verdi's parents were the keepers of a little inn and shop in the village where they dwelt, and as a youth he received some musical instruction from a local organist, but his musical education really began when he entered the business house of Antonio Borezzi in Busseto. There Verdi studied under Provesi, who was organist of the cathedral and conductor of the municipal orchestra, and wrote many compositions for the orchestra which are now preserved in manuscript form in the Busseto library, among them his first symphony which was composed at the age of fifteen and played first in 1828.

In 1832 Verdi made the second change in his life and entered the second stage of his musical training when he went to Milan, where though he was rejected as a student by the Conservatory he remained to study for a year at the close of which he returned to Busseto to direct the orchestra for three years.

In 1839 his first opera was produced in Milan. It was caled "Oberto, Conte di San Bonifacio" and was followed by a comic opera known under two titles, "Un Giorno di Regno" and "Il Finto Stanislao," which was a failure, wherefore Verdi determined to write no more for the stage, a determination which he kept for a year. At the time he was working on the opera Verdi lost, within two months, his wife and two children. In 1842 "Nabucodonosor" was produced at La Scala and it was this opera which established his fame as one of the foremost operatic composers. "I Lombardi" and "Ernani" came in the two years that followed and then there intervened a period during which he wrote much, little of which has survived; "I Duc Foscari" produced in 1844, "Giovanna d'Arco" in 1845; "Alzira" in 1845; "Attila" in 1846; "I Masnadieri" in 1847; "Il Corsaro" in 1848; "La Battaglia di Legnano" in 1849; "Louisa Miller" in 1849; and "Stiffelio" in 1850. It is interesting to note that to this period belongs his first Shakespearean opera, "Macbeth," which was produced in Florence in 1847. Shakespearean drama was later to supply Verdi through the medium of the admirable librettist, Arrigo Boito, with the material for two of his finest works.

In 1851 the first of the greatest triumphs of Verdi's career came with the production of "Rigoletto" and the reputation gained with this work was sustained by the two operas that followed it in the two succeeding years, "Il Trovatore" and "La Traviata," which closed the period of what is called his second manner. The popularity of these three operas was widespread and carried the composer's fame far beyond the confines of Italy.

In 1855 he wrote "Les Vepres Siciliennes" for production during the Universal exhibition in Paris. It was successful at the time but has not had lasting popularity. "Un Ballo In Maschera," "La Forza del Destino" and "Don Carlos" which were produced in 1859, 1862 and 1867 respectively, are still sung but only occasionally.

At Cairo in 1871 was presented the first in the final series of operas written by Verdi, the operas that are regarded as marking his highest achievements and as approaching in style the newer class of music drama. This was "Aida," written for production at Cairo in celebration of the completion of the Suez canal. A music drama, "Otello," fully worthy of the great English drama which it follows, was given in 1887. Another Shakespearean text, "The Merry Wives of Windsor" furnished the book of the last of Verdi's masterpieces in "Falstaff," which was produced in his eightieth year.

In 1874 Verdi wrote his Requiem Mass on the death of Manzoni, and in 1898 he produced four sacred pieces, settings of the "Ave Maria," "Laudi Atta Virgine," to words from the "Paradise," the "Stabat Mater" and the "Te Deum." These religious works and his operas comprise nearly the whole of Verdi's music as he wrote only a few minor productions of other character.

Of "Otello" in a criticism of a performance at the Boston Opera House last season H. T. Parker said in the Boston "Transcript": "It stood forth as a masterpiece of operatic tragedy —as a drama which some like to believe has its virtues over Shakespeare's original play; as music that bears passion, reveals character, weaves atmosphere, spurs action, marches like Fate itself, yet goes its own individual way out of Verdi's imagination to its own singular beauty and power—as music and drama engrossing the mind, winging the imagination and melting the spirits of those that hear and watch."

A little picture of the great composer's personality is given in a brief article by Carlo Niconi, who was associated with the composer at the Naples Opera: "He was always an inspiration to his singers. His kindly nature and inherent gentleness of character made him a popular master, yet he could be very determined and severe when the occasion demanded. He held himself rigourously to the highest standards, and he expected the same ideals of all those who worked with him. Often he would attend a rehearsal when no one knew that he was present, until suddenly the clear and unmistakable voice would sound from some remote corner of the house, 'Please sing that again!' It was thus that many singers received their most valuable coaching, for Verdi was always patient, always intelligible, and always ready for work. He did not care for hero-worship. When 'Aida' was produced in Naples for the first time, with Verdi, of course, conducting, the people took the horses from his carriage and drew him in triumph through the streets. But he was more frightened than pleased with the demonstration. They crowded around him and tried to kiss his hands. But he was by nature so modest that he could scarcely understand the extent of their enthusiasm. It was not until the production of 'Otello' that he became accustomed to being a popular idol."

Rev. D.A. Thompson Is Moderator

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—The Presbyterian Synod of Toronto and Kingston met in St. James' Square Church yesterday evening, with a rather slim attendance, as many of the members had not arrived for the opening service. The sermon was preached by the retiring moderator, Rev. A. M. Hamilton, who spoke upon the words of St. Paul in the Epistle to the Galatians (i., 16): "To reveal His Son in me that I might preach among the heathen," the preacher dwelling upon the need of teaching the love of God.

The only matter of importance dealt with at the opening session was the election of the moderator, for which office three names were presented, Rev. A. D. Dobson, of Fordwich; Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, and Rev. James Buchanan, of Barrie. The election resulted in the appointment of Rev. D. A. Thompson whose name had been presented by the Peterborough Presbytery.

SLEEPING CARS IN AFRICA.

They Are Not Too Clean and the Conductor Makes the Beds.

Describing railroad travel in South Africa, E. W. Howe in his Monthly says:

"Soon after the train conductor looked at our tickets he proceeded to lug two huge bags of bed clothing into our compartment and make up two beds. We paid $1.20 for the use of the bed clothing two nights; the charge would have been the same for one night. So that we will have a large compartment to ourselves two nights and a day and pay only $1.20 above the regular fare. The beds were comfortable, though somewhat narrow, but we slept as well, I imagine, as people usually do on a sleeping car. On our door and on our window were placards announcing that the compartment was reserved, and we were not disturbed during the journey. When this reservation placard is not displayed any one has a right to a seat or bed in a compartment that is not full.

"The South African sleeping cars are not at all bad, except that the train conductor has so much to do that he cannot keep them as clean as they should be. The conductor did not polish my shoes at night, but I knew he was very busy and overlooked his neglect.

"I wish the haughty conductors of American passenger trains could see our conductor with his coat off, making up beds. I wish they could also see our tickets, which cover nearly 3,000 miles of travel and read from Durban to Victoria Falls and back to Beira. I am unable to understand them, but the conductors have no difficulty.

"On one or two trains we have been on there was a man who helped the conductor, but on at least two crowded trains on which we traveled the conductor has had no help whatever in making up the beds; the most curious thing I have ever noted in railroad travel. There is a guard on the train, who is what we call a brakeman, but he does not assist the conductor in the chamber work. When these conductors are taking the tickets they are as haughty as are American conductors, but when they begin lugging in sheets and pillows and mattresses they are as humble as the most timid traveler could wish."

Uncle Fogy's Philosophy.

Great men sometimes live to get over it.

An optimist will sell himself a gold brick, while a pessimist will not accept one free from a stranger.

Most families can afford to be without the wonderful household necessities that no family can afford to be without.

We are all, in a way, free agents. When we cannot be happy, we have our choice of at least fifty-seven varieties of ways of being unhappy.—Judge.

Hun anitarian.

"Hush! There are burglars in the pantry eating those pies I made this afternoon!"

"All right; I'll look after them."

"Certainly not! I'm going to take them a bottle of pain killer."—Houston Post.

Unconstitutional.

"Yes," replied the Saw slowly between his teeth, "and what an awful bore he is."—Fun.

KEYS AS THEY TURN.

Most of Them Unlock by Twisting Them to the Right.

"You would be amazed," said Professor Lookabout unfortunately, as he started to unlock his desk in preparation for the morning's classwork, "to know how many persons are unable to tell offhand which way a key turns. Only the other day, in a chat with one of the best informed men on my acquaintance, I was astonished to learn that he believed most keys turned to the left to unlock their locks. He was trying to open a typewriter desk and he struggled with the key several moments before he made the astounding discovery that it unlocked by turning to the right.

"'Why,' he said to me, with a surprised air, 'this key works the wrong way.'

"'Just what do you mean by "the wrong way?"' was my natural query.

"'It unlocks to the right,' he replied.

"'So do most keys,' I told him whereupon he glanced at me skeptically. It took me several minutes to convince him that, as usual, I was right. The fact is that, whereas door keys unlock to the left perhaps as often as to the right, depending on which side of the door you face, the key to almost anything except a door is pretty sure to turn to the right to unfasten the lid or drawer or roller apron which it secures. A little observation is all one requires to prove the truth of this. It's one of the little things which once in a while may be well worth knowing."

Late at the Play.

We know from Pepys and from passages in the plays of contemporary dramatists that the manners of theater audiences in the restoration epoch were not nice, but there is no reason to believe that even the fops habitually arrived at the theater late. Mr. Sparkish, Mr. Novel and their fellows would talk loudly while the play was going on to show the superiority of their wit to the poet's, but they likely were on hand early to lose none of the fun. In later epochs of English theatrical history theater going was a serious undertaking, not a mere pastime. One can tell from the beginnings of old plays that the authors counted on audiences closely attentive from the first. Lady Randolph is the first speaker in "Douglas," Orestes in "The Distressed Mother," Almeira in "The Mourning Bride." The custom of "playing the audience in" with a short piece was of still later origin. Perhaps about that time the habit of going late to the theater became common. "Half price" for late comers was a custom of Thackeray's time.—Westminster Gazette.

A Captured Royal Standard.

The British royal standard which fills the center of the ceiling of Trophy hall, Annapolis, is a splendid example of flag restoration. Professor Washburn said that this flag was "in about as fine pieces as chopped hay," yet today it looks as if it had just left the hands of the weaver. A great deal of historic value is attached to this flag, as it is the only British royal standard in the possession of a foreign nation. In 1813 Commodore Isaac Chauncey and General Montgomery Pike captured the city of York, now Toronto, and took from the parliament house there this royal standard.—Christian Herald.

PROHIBITION SPREADING.

Yet We Lead the World in Our Enormous Consumption of Beer.

It is generally thought that Germany drinks more beer than any other nation in the world. This is a mistake. Germany comes second. The United States consumes 1,851,000,000 gallons of beer each year, which is 100,000,000 gallons more than Germany's consumption. Russia leads the world in its use of distilled liquors, and the United States comes second, with it consumption of 133,000,000 gallons. Although the United States is first as a beer drinking nation and second as a consumer of distilled spirits among the nations of the world, the liquor dealers of America are having a desperate fight for the life of their traffic.

The saloon has been expelled from one-half of the population and from two-thirds of the geographical area of the country. In 1903 there were 3,500,000 people living in territory where the drink traffic had been outlawed; in 1910 the number had increased to 18,500,000; in 1908, or only eight years after, the number had doubled to 36,000,000, and today there are 46,629,750 persons, or a fraction over one half of the population of the country, living in no-license territory.

In the last five years the no license population has increased a little over 10,000,000, which is more than 10 per cent of the total population of the nation and 30 per cent increase in the number living in "dry" districts. Since 1908 the population of the country has doubled, while the number of inhabitants of "dry" territory has increased over thirteenfold.—Review of Reviews.

Dreams.

Plato, Aristotle and Cicero believed that dreams foretold future events if rightly interpreted. Artemidorus of Ephesus, who lived about the middle of the second century, wrote books of elaborate rules, telling how to interpret dreams. Among other things he says that he who shall dream he has lost a tooth shall lose a friend.

Stale Bread.

Bread that has been allowed to become stale may easily be refreshened by sprinkling it with cold water and placing it in a cool oven for five minutes. This will render the crumb perfectly light and elastic once more, but the bread must be eaten as soon as possible, as it rapidly loses its freshness again.

COL. GRAVELEY IS DEAD

Was Well Known Here in Military Circles

Lieut.-Col. John Vance Graveley, a widely known and highly respected military man of Toronto, passed away last evening at his residence, 1542 West King Street, in his 73rd year. He had been ailing for some time, but it is thought that his death was directly due to the effects of an accident which he met with about six months ago, when he fell from a street car.

Col. Graveley was born in Cobourg Ont., in 1840 and was the son of the late William Graveley. He was a resident of the town until 20 years ago, when he moved to Toronto.

While in Cobourg he was an officer in the 40th Regiment, having served in its ranks during the Fenian raid in 1866. He was paymaster in that regiment for some time.

On July 31, 1907, he was appointed colonel of the Ordnance Service Corps, which position he held until death.

He was a strong Conservative, taking a leading part in several elections in West Northumberland. — Toronto World.

The late Lieut.-Col. Graveley was well known in this City, especially in military circles.

Canadian Club To-morrow Night

"Twenty-one Years of the Canadian Club Movement" the Subject

The Canadian Club of Peterborough will hold its first annual meeting of the season 1913-1914 to-morrow evening, Oct. 16th, in the Y. M. C. A. As has been previously intimated the speaker and guest of the evening is Mr. Charles McCullough of Hamilton, honorary president of the Association of Canadian Clubs. His subject is "Twenty-one Years of the Canadian Club Movement." This will be a most instructive and delightful address to the Canadian Club enthusiasts of this City. No one is more capable of dealing with such a subject; as Mr. McCullough saw its inception and has been closely identified with the movement from its creation to the present day.

It is hoped that as large a number of the members as can possibly attend will make it a point of being present. The dinner will be served sharp at 6:30, and the meeting will be over at 8 o'clock in order that the members who have other engagements for the evening may fulfil them.

THEIR CHOICE

NEW YORK, October 13. — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Helm, a newly wedded couple, declare that they would rather live in Jersey City than Patchogue. The reason is the stern manner in which the law is administered in Patchogue.

The Helms rented a furnished cottage in Patchogue. Mrs. Helms was getting breakfast ready yesterday, while her husband slept. She was doing well with the bacon, eggs and coffee, when a constable arrived with a writ of replevin for the furniture. He took even the bed upon which the bridegroom slept and the frying pan that held the eggs.

The Helms in the renting of the cottage inherited the aftermath of a domestic discord in the household of John Semmelrath. Semmelrath and his wife, Ophelia, disagreed, and he sold the furniture, half paid for, to his father, who replevined it. Then the cottage was refurnished with the same furniture and rented to the Helms.

Mrs. Ophelia Semmelrath obtained some legal advice, and yesterday she was the one to replevin it. A real estate man with an eye to business, had another furnished cottage to rent. He offered it, but Mrs. Helm said:

"No, not here. Why, I would rather live in Jersey City than here."

As the Helms have paid their rent for a furnished cottage there may be some more legal proceedings.

WEATHER AND DISEASE

Much has been written on the relations between weather and disease and in medical literature there is no lack of carefully drawn curves showing the varying prevalence of particular diseases, the rise and fall of mortality, etc., side by side with others, indicating the march of one or more of the meteorological elements. There is however one phase of this subject that has been strikingly neglected. Many human beings are notoriously sensitive, not merely to the weather of to-day but also the weather of to-morrow. Arthritic, rheumatic and neuralgic patients need no barometer or weather map to tell them when bad weather is approaching. Old wounds give trouble at such times and members long since amputated reassert their power to cause pain. These phenomena are so well known that it would be sheer fatuity in any scientific men to deny them, merely because he cannot understand them, yet strangely enough they have been the subject of very little systemtic investigation.

A special case under this general head is the extreme sensitiveness of some persons to the approach of a thunderstorm. The pathological condition experienced by such epmons at the approach of a thunderstorm, must not be confused with the ordinary dread of thunder and lightning. In fact this condition often comes on before there are any ordinary indications of the storm's approach, and the symptoms commonly subside before the storm is over. Attention was called to this condition some time ago by Dr. G. M. Beard in Beard and Rockwell's Medical and Surgical Electricity, and it was given the name of "astraphobia." Cases of its occurrence are however familiar to almost everyone. The symptoms of the complaint seem to include all kinds of nervous manifestations, going on quite often to extreme nausea and physical prostration.

MACON, GA., CHILD

When we tell you that Vinol is the best remedy in our whole stock for making weak, puny, ailing children strong, robust and rosy we are only telling you what has been proved by hundreds of mothers.

J. L. Fickling, Macon, Ga., says: "My child was very thin and delicate, no appetite, nervous, and did not sleep well. Doctors did not help her. Vinol was recommended and the change after a fair trial was wonderful. She sleeps soundly all night, has a splendid appetite and has gained in weight. I wish every mother knew what Vinol will do for delicate children."

What Vinol did for this little girl it will do for every weak and ailing child because sickly children need the strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron that Vinol contains—that is why Vinol builds them up quickly and gives them a fine, healthy colour. It is pleasant to take and we guarantee that the results will satisfy you—money back if they do not. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, Peterborough.

OBJECTIONABLE ADVERTISING

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was surprised to see in last night's paper that you allowed an advertiser to use your columns to cast slurs at another regular and long time patron. I refer to a paid-for reading notice which speaks slightingly of the optical businesses that are conducted in connection with the drug stores. Peterborough people do not need to be told when they are well served. Personally I have had most satisfactory dealing with one optician, (Mr. A. A. Fowler), whose well equipped, modern parlours are in connection with the store of the Nugent Drug Co.—glasses supplied by him give the desired result, relief from eyestrain, with clear easy vision, as was the case with the glasses he fitted me with. I know of many cases fully as satisfactory as my own, that Mr. Fowler has handled, so to us its results that count, and we haven't much use for the concern that tries to get business by casting slurs on old satisfactory firms. Hoping you will keep your columns free from such objectionable advertising and so become more readable for your subscribers.

I remain,
A Constant Reader of The Examiner.

WILL INVESTIGATE LOSS OF VOLTURNO

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 15.—The London Board of Trade has ordered a government enquiry into the loss of the Volturno. It is expected that an effort will be made to place the responsibility on indiscriminate emigration at cut rates.

TEN KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK IN ENGLAND

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 15. — Ten persons were killed and many seriously hurt when the Liverpool local train to-day crashed into the Manchester express at the station in Liverpool.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The following events connected with the boys' department of the Y.M.C.A. are scheduled for the next few days:

Stereopticon lecture by the Rev. H. J. Keith on Friday evening next, commencing at seven-thirty o'clock.

Bible study Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

Paper chase Monday morning at nine-thirty o'clock. All the boys are invited.

NO STRAW, NO SALVATION.

The negroes of the South are an emotional people, and this characteristic is most plainly seen in their religious meetings. In such a state of excitement do they often work at this time that it has a hypnotic effect on the nerves, and many fall into a trance. On awakening they tell wonderful tales about trips to the other world and of the sights they saw in spirit land.

As many fall unconscious on the hard floor, it was the custom among the negroes, at a place called Gray's Hill meeting, to put straw on the floor deep enough to make a soft bedding. But one night the caretaker forgot to spread any. As a consequence, the congregation remained unmoved, in spite of the preacher's terrible paintings of the horrors experienced by the unrepentant sinner. He roared and ranted, but none of the sisters or brothers got up any excitement. They rocked backward and forward and filled the air with "amens," but not a single one went into a trance.

"Brothers and sisters," he exclaimed, with tears in his voice, "Satan ho'ly am amongst us to-night. There is 40 souls lost here this evening fur want ob straw."

HIS TIP

A benevolent gentleman living at a seaside town used to receive once a week a present of a basket of fish.

The fisherman who carried the basket of fish up to the house always received a substantial tip.

One morning, however, the gentleman was very busy and when the old salt brought the fish he thanked him hurriedly, and, forgetting his tip, turned again towards his study.

The fisherman hesitated a moment then clearing his throat called after the retreating figure. "Sir, would you be so kind as to put it in writin' that yo didn't give me no dip this time or my wife will think I've went and spent it?"

PRINCE IS MARRIED

Arthur of Connaught Weds Princess Alexandra

PRESENTS ARE HANDSOME

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, and Princess Alexandra Victoria, Duchess of Fife, eldest daughter of the widowed Princess Royal, Louise, were yesterday made man and wife in the ancient chapel of St. James' Palace, where both had been baptised. There was room for less than 300 in the simply, though daintily decorated chapel, but not since the coronation of King George had there been such a gathering of notable personages.

Besides King George, Queen Mary, Queen Mother Alexandra, the King and Queen of Norway, and other royal relatives of the couple to the number of a score or more, the congregation consisted of members of the diplomatic corps, of the British Cabinet, and of the royal household and of a few distinguished persons. Lord and Lady Strathcona and Lord and Lady Mountstephen were among the very few to whom invitations had been issued.

The bride, who entered the chapel between King George and her mother looked charming in a dainty dress of white charmeuse, embroidered with pearls and diamonds and adorned with exquisite Brussels applique lace, of which the bridal veil also was made.

Much admiration was expressed at the appearance of the five bridesmaids who were Princess Mary, daughter of the King and Queen; Princess Maud, only sister of the bride; Princess Victoria and Princess Helena of Teck; daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Teck, and Princess Mary, the little daughter of Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck. Their frocks were made of delicate shell pink charmeuse and cream lace and they carried beautiful bouquets of carnations and lilies, the same flowers as decorated the chapel royal.

The pages were little Prince John the King's youngest son, and Prince Olaf of Norway, whom everybody in the British Isles adores.

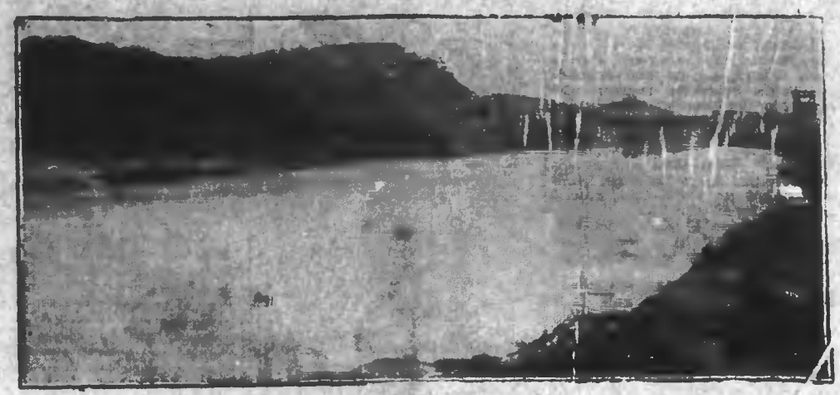
Prince Arthur wore his uniform as a captain of the Royal Scots Greys, with its bright scarlet tunic and high bearskin busby, and all the men among his royal relatives also wore military uniforms covered with decorations. The King was dressed as a field marshal. The Queen and other ladies were in beautiful costumes, dazzling with jewels.

The ceremony was extremely simple and was performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, as dean of the chapels royal, and canon Edgar Sheppard, sub-dean of the chapels royal, before an altar embellished with gold candelabra. Prince Arthur and his bride uttered the responses in firm clear voices.

The presents include jewels in abundance, gold and silver plate and ancient and modern furniture. One ultimate picture has value at $700,000.

Among those of interest to Canadians are the following: From Premier Borden and Ministers of the Cabinet of Canada, hand-engraved silver dinner service. of Canadian workmanship; from the Canada Club, a grand piano; from Earl Grey, a statuette; from Viscount Haldane, a despatch box; from the Connaught household in Canada, loving cups; from Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, a silver tray; from Lord Aberdeen, wine stands; from Lord Minto, a fire screen; from Lord Mountstephen, a silver plate; from Sir Charles Ross, a rifle; from Lord Strathcona, a diamond brooch and an automobile.

Prince Arthur Frederick Patrick Albert of Connaught was 30 years of age in January. He is a Knight of the Garter, a G.C.V.O., a P.C., a D.L., and a personal aide to the King. As captain in the 2nd Dragoons, he served in the South African war, and later represented the King as a special envoy to Japan.



OPENING OF THE PANAMA CANAL—At the end of this scene is the Gamboa Dyke, which was blown up on October 10th, by an electric spark transmitted by President Wilson from Washington—eighteen hundred miles away. This explosion made way for the complete connection of the waters of the Pacific and the Atlantic, and thereby joined the two great highways of commerce. It took 1227 charges of dynamite to do the trick.

ALL HOPE ABANDONED.

No More Living Miners Found In Welsh Colliery.

CARDIFF, Wales, Oct. 16. — All hopes of rescuing more of the miners entombed in the Universal Colliery, where a great explosion occurred on Tuesday, has virtually been abandoned. The report that a party of 29 men had been found alive in one of the galleries has proved to be erroneous, but a large number of dead bodies were encountered yesterday.

No official reports have been issued and this caused much comment. Fire broke out anew yesterday afternoon and is still raging. There are no further signs of life in the pit. Up to a late hour last night 49 bodies had been recovered, while 368 miners were still entombed. The shift which went into the mine Tuesday numbered 931.

The engineers have decided to devote their efforts to subduing the fire, as they believe it useless to persist in the attempt at rescue.

BALANCE IS GOOD.

Dominion W. C. T. U. Has Collected $50,000 During Year.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 16.—Mrs. Gordon Wright of this city was yesterday re-elected to the position of president of the Dominion Women's Christian Temperance Union. The honorary president. Mrs. Annie C. Rutherford of Toronto will likely again fill that position.

The vice-president remains the same, Mrs. L. C. McKinney of Alberta, being again elected, as was the recording secretary, Mrs. E. W. McLachlan of Montreal. The corresponding secretary for the year will be Mrs. Atchison of Toronto. The treasurer, Mrs. Jeannette Butler of St. Johns, Que., was re-elected.

The treasurer's report showed the sum of $50,000 to have been collected by the different unions in the Dominion, during the year. While a good balance remains on hand, most of the money has been expended in one or the other different branches of the union's work.

TO QUASH ELECTION

Liberals Decide to Protest Result in Chateauguay

PROSECUTIONS TO FOLLOW

MONTREAL, Oct. 16.—The election of Chateauguay will be protested, said Hon. Sydney Fisher, after a lengthy conference of the leaders of the Liberal party and prominent Liberals of Chateauguay, held at the Windsor Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Action for the appeal will be taken, it is said, as there is a strong feeling among the Chateauguay Liberals in favor of protest.

"We have evidence that will undoubtedly quash the election," said Mr. Fisher.

"Will there be any prosecutions?" he was asked.

"I do not see how the guilty can escape, when the evidence at the hearing has been given," said Mr. Fisher. "The prosecution will follow as a matter of course."

Those attending the conference were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Hon. Sydney Fisher, James Robb, M.P. for Huntington, Mr. McGerrigle of Ormstown, Mr. Conlin of Ormstown, Mr. Robert Brown of St. Chrysostome, Mr. Jas. Cowan of Drysdale, A. F. Leggatt, Chateauguay Basin, and Messrs. Robinson, Elliott, Ogilvie, Alex. McCarthy and Robert Ness of Howick, Mr. Collard of Ottawa, A. Youme, A. Mhon, Thomas Gibeis of Howick, N. Sangster of Ormstown, R. L. Calder, Montreal, M. Severin Le Tourneau, M.P., Mr. Papineau, M.P., Mr. Rutherford, Hon. H. Mercier, James Bryson and Mr. Wm. Bryson of Ormstown, and A. Marcil, St. Clothilde.

NEGLECT CHARGED

Guard Says Overseer Wouldn't Get Up For Dying Man

FAVORITISM IN PAROLES

KINGSTON, Oct. 16. — Startling evidence concerning conditions in the penitentiary hospital was given at the afternoon session of the prison reform commission yesterday by Frederick Ingledew, a guard.

He charged Overseer Wilson of the hospital with neglect of duty in not getting up on two occasions at night to attend dying patients, and said that he considered conditions of such a disgraceful nature that he had sent in a report to Inspector Stewart of Ottawa, but had not even received a reply to his letter. On one occasion a convict named Pellow fell in a faint when he could not get a drink of water. This man's death occurred later in the Hotel Dieu, his condition being so bad that he was allowed out of the penitentiary. The witness charged that Wilson had refused twice in one night to get out of bed to attend a sick convict named Bunyan. The latter's death occurred in the penitentiary. Wilson had said he would not get up, as he could not do any good. The witness regarded the hospital as very unsanitary.

Wilson is the man against whom Dr. Edwards laid charges of gross neglect of duty, and charges against him will be further investigated.

Ingledew declared there was a hard and fast rule that no guard must open a cell door in this department under any circumstances. A convict might die, but a guard was powerless.

Perry Johnson, ex-guard, complained of being made to do sixty hours' continual duty, and said that he had retired from duty on account of deafness, when he had a certificate from the doctor he was all right for work.

Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P., had another tilt with the commissioners over evidence to be taken. Objection was raised to hearing certain parts of the testimony of a witness. Dr. Edwards said that when the commission advertised for information it should receive it and judge its value afterwards.

Fred. Montgomery, ex-guard swore that he had seen two guards drunk while on duty, and that these men had never been up on the carpet for their condition.

Gordon Russell resumed his attack at the morning session on the food supply in the penitentiary. He told of having seen a printed dietary, but that the food supplied did not conform to this regulation.

Dr. Phalen in reply to a question said there once was a printed dietary, but it was now obsolete, and the food and the cooking of it was entirely in the jurisdiction of the warden.

Russell told of a row in one of the workshops as an illustration of how the parole system works out. The aggressor in the row was selected for parole, and the man who really stopped the row and saved the officer from assault was ignored.

The parole system, according to this witness, is not worked from Ottawa, and based on merit, but paroling is purely the result of favoritism in the penitentiary. He complained that although he asked for suitable employment he was put on the stone pile for thirteen months, and that he thought he was the only professional man who had ever been used in this way. He was offered a job in the deputy's room, but he refused because it would involve changing his cell and perhaps occupying a dirty bed. He charged discrimination by Deputy Warden O'Leary in favor of men of one particular religious denomination. There were thirty-six good positions and twenty-nine of these were occupied by men of one faith. They were men not so well educated or as competent as others who were given no preference.

A month before he was discharged, Russell had protested against having his hair cut, and for this he was penalized, although he was properly exempt on account of the short time he had to serve. When brought up before an officer on a false complaint of idling, he was refused an opportunity of offering any defence. He admitted that Col. Irvine had remitted these penalties afterwards.

Russell gave the food supply a hard knock. The witness declared that it was more like dog or donkey meat than beef. The fish was rotten and contaminated the vegetables.

Major Hughes will be recalled at to-day's session and Russell's story will be finished. Another adjournment will be made on Thursday night.

The long promised sensations over the inquiry before Ioose while Major Hughes was giving evidence on the charges against Deputy Warden O'Leary. Mr. Hughes had gone over the roster and showed how, on Jan. 11, 1913, the guards given the choice positions were ninety per cent. Roman Catholics, although there are twice as many Protestant as there are Catholic guards.

Naval Movement Dead?

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Chateauguay election has been interpreted here by some unionist papers as an indication of the endorsement of Mr. Borden's naval policy. "Truth," however, declares that public apathy has killed the naval movement in Canada and says "we might profitably take note at home that there is no excitements ring in Canada to promote scares and pull wires."

Powell Claims Alibi.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 16.—The case of Martin Powell, who was arrested in Detroit, charged with having robbed the Bank of Montreal, at New Westminster, of $272,000, was yesterday traversed, to the 1914 spring assizes, at the suggestion of the defence. Powell's counsel declared that he had a good alibi as a defence.

'TWAS STRANGE PARTY.

Last Boat From Volturno Bore Captain, Cook, and Dog.

On board S. S. Kroonland, via Cape Sable, Oct. 16.—It was a strange company that filled the last boat from the S. S. Kroonland to put off from the side of the flame-swept Volturno. It carried Capt. Inch, it carried the officers, it carried a dog. And it carried a cook who was one of the big heroes of the tragedy, for he stood at his post and baked and make coffee until the flames were so close that his shoes were literally burned off. The Kroonland was the last of the rescuing ships to pull away. As she left the Volturno was nothing but a cloud of smoke, and so hot that scuttling her was out of the question. The captain and officers and the crew of the Kroonland deserve the greatest praise for the skill, the daring and the spirit of self-sacrifice they brought to this opportunity. In their efforts appeared the first hope that any rescue was possible.

When we reached the burning Volturno it took remarkable seamanship and daring to bring the Kroonland under the stern in the hope of reaching her with a life line. It was a savage sea, and skillfully as our first boat put away in the darkness, we on board the Kroonland knew that the chances were against its returning.

The setting off of extra rockets from the Volturno gave a marvellous pyrotechnical display, but to those on board it must have seemed as though the flames had reached the pilothouse, for there rose a great cry of despair. When the real explosion came, we looked upon the Volturno and her people as doomed.

Fire In Hospital.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 16.—Fire of an unknown origin broke out in the General Hospital at eight o'clock last night. Several patients were carried out, but the prompt action of the volunteer firemen prevented serious damage.

Our Success

DOCTORS ADVISE OPERATIONS

Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Canadian Woman's Experience:

Fort William, Ont.—"I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. WM. A. BUFFY, 631 South Vickar Street, Fort Williams, Ontario.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"THE MEDIATOR"

By ROY NORTON

He hurried out of the hotel and off up the street to pay his morning visit to his two burros, and while there busied himself with his packs. Apparently it took him some time to find what he wanted, but as last he appeared with it. It was a celluloid collar and a faded blue necktie, with a poker chip cut into a scarf ring. After that came a shirt of many colours and some horn cuff buttons, all of which he slipped into his pockets with an air of abashment.

He talked to Jack, who stood behind him during this process, now and then thrusting a warm grey muzzle against the back of his neck, or taking tentative nips at his garments. Once or twice Lish made a pretence of furious anger at this familiarity, and struck at the burro as if intending knocking him down; but apparently the animal was used to these outbursts, for all he did was to run away a few feet, kick the air with both heels, and then slip slyly back to the teasing caress.

"It's a good thing it's Sunday, you long-eared chump!" the prospector remarked, shaking his fist in the burro's face. "Because if it wasn't I'd give you the worst lickin' you ever had in your born days."

But the little burro only smiled at him knowingly, as Lish climbed the fence, and hastened away to the hotel to make the necessary additions to his apparel. He leaned over the desk, and whispered to the clerk in a hoarse undertone.

"What time do they hold meetin's?" he asked. "It's been so long since I went to one that I forget."

"Eleven," was the concise answer.

He looked at the clock, and consulted a huge silver watch that was lashed to his belt with a worn and greasy leather thong. "Gosh! I got to hurry!" he ejaculated, and went up the stairs three steps at a time. He reappeared with a decidely solemn, yet expectant expression of face, and trudged away toward the little white building that he had passed the day before.

As he approached he heard the sound of childish voices singing "Precious Jewels," and he almost ran to the door. He paused as he gained it.

"That," he said to himself, "must be the Sunday School, and it looks to me, from the general run of the lay-out, that it comes before the regular meetin' for grown-ups, and that I'd be buttin' in if I went in there now; but, by Jimminy, it sounds good! This camp's all right! Maybe, if I had more education I could be a teacher in that mess. I reckon maw would be some surprised if she was alive and knew how I'm standin' here, just naturally itchin' like a dog with mange, to get into that Sunday-school mess with both feet!"

There may have been more embarrassed men than David Elisha Henley as he stood there by the door when the preliminary services ended; but if so they were not in that camp. Churchgoers began to arrive, but still he stood there, leaning against the corner of the building, watching them, and envying their air of habitude and repose. Most of them were women, and now and then a man, elderly, arrived and entered. It was the red-haired waitress who saved him the ignominy of weakening and incontinently bolting back to the Happy Home or some other resort, where he would have been at ease.

"Hello!" she exclaimed as she came striding up to the little building. "What are you hanging around out there for?"

"B-b-b-because I ain't got guts enough to go in!" he exploded. "But by gee whiz, I'll go in now that you are here."

"Well, get a move on you, then,' she retorted, "and don't walk as if you'd just robbed a hen-roost. You ain't afraid, are you?"

He had come closer to her. From inside, a cottage organ began a weird sort of wail under the hands of someone whose musical education had been developed along strength of legs rather than hands. At her bid he straightened a litle, although his words belied him:

"Course I'm afraid! You'd be scared, too, if you hadn't been to a meetin' in more'n twenty year; but I'm goin' to see it through. It don't hurt a man none to go to church.'

She started and walked inside the little chapel, and he persisted, to her annoyance, in walking so closely to her that he almost stepped on her heels. She held her head very high, and blushed the fiery red that only red-haired women are capable of blushing, while he doggedly followed her as if for protection, or guidance, across a strange waste. She sidled into a bench, and he clumsily insisted on gliding in after her.

"Well, here we are!" he exclaimed, in a friendly spirit; but his remark was ill-timed, for just as he began speaking the music stopped, and his mumble, intended for a whisper, became an audible roar. Some one tittered, and he scowled fiercely around him, and then back at Maggie, who was endeavouring to appear unconcerned, and a stranger to him.

He resisted a desire to tug at the sleeve of her shirt-waist and apologize. He sought refuge in a copy of Gospel Hymns lying on the bench beside him, and wet his thumb to turn the leaves. He heard nothing of the text, and was relieved when another hymn was announced. The circuit-rider read the first verse aloud, and Lish could scarcely suppress a shout of exultation.

"I know that!" he exclaimed, in a stage whisper to the waitress. She did not heed him, and he thought he had spoken too low. "I know that there hymn," he repeated, "and say! It's a whale of a good song! I'm for it! I could almost remember every word. My mammy used to sing it to me when I was a kid. Say, you ain't deef, are you?"

She turned toward him with a red face and an annoyed gesture, but at sight of his excited eyes relented.

"S-s-sh! Don't whisper so loudly," she admonished. "Everybody here can hear you."

For a moment he settled back into his seat, and shrivelled, and dwarfted, and felt that a score of eyes were gimleting him through the back. The organ started, and one whole verse had been sung before he could forget his breach of etiquette; then, losing himself, he cleared his throat with a harsh, scraping noise, and leaned out into the second verse. What he lacked in training and finish he made up for in vigour and willingness. He sang enthusiastically, as he had sung to steers on the ranges at night, when his soul was filled with poetry. There was fervour in his attempt to take high notes. There was zest in his efforts to roar out the low ones. He was unaware that the hard-worked little circuit-rider, ranked in the church records as "Home Missionary," shook and shuddered at those first bellows of his, as if in aprehension; then, watching him closely, smiled with relief, convinced of a great and overflowing sincerity.

Lish was sorry that there was to be no more singing. He felt that in this field he was a success. He was proud of himself, although Maggie, the waitress, sat stiffly and stared straight ahead at the conclusion of the hymn. Lish edged toward her a little, and she edged away. He was sorry, for he wanted company, and that two or three feet of intervening space seemed a vast distance. The preacher folded his hands before him on the pulpit, and memory admonished Lish that this was the sign for prayer. He looked quickly to right and left, wondering what posture the service demanded—kneeling, standing, or merely a respectful bending of the head. He decided the latter was the safe course, and was further embarrassed when he discovered that the custom was to kneel. He almost lost his nerve, and decided that he had best retain his own attitude of respect.

The preacher was not a strong man in physique or voice. His tones were those of appeal, low pitched and fraught with earnestness, as he began to plead forgiveness for those who blindly hindered the greatest work of all in the little camp up there in the tops of the hills. A cricket chirped loudly outside, rendering his voice discordant. The humming of honey-laden bees, busy, irreverent and ignorant of the Sabbath, floated in through a window, and let a monotone of sound. The air was drowsy with the fragrant scent of wild roses, of pennyroyal and golden-rod. And then, jarring and discordant, voices wafted in from the street—quarrelsome, drunken, jeering voices:

"At it again, is he? The sky pilot! Let's all go to church. Hooray! He's the mutt that tried to make this a closed camp. Let's close his meetin'-house!"

There was a confusion of oaths, coarse remarks, ribald comments, and clumsy humor. The little preacher, in an agony of suspense and haste, concluded his prayer just as five or six men darkened the sunlight streaming through the door. He was not the first to open his eyes and look at the intruders, for already the man who was afraid had pivoted on his haunches, and frowned at the interlopers. Lish grinned joyously; but there was that queer, set look on his face.

As the preacher turned tremulously, feeling that he was alone in the forthcoming combat, to his opened Bible, the prospector arose in his seat with a sudden determination. He stepped out into the aisle, walked straight toward the preacher, stepped up on the raised platform and stood beside him. The preacher stopped in amazement. He backed away from the pulpit as the prospector advanced, and his words subsided. He scarcely knew what to expect, and though fearless, as befits men of the cloth, waited for the newcomer to make his announcement. It was sharp and to the point.

"I don't want," Lish said, in his calm drawl, "to scare no one, or to say nothin' that ain't befittin' a house of worship; but—" He paused, and thrust a swift hand inside his bulging coat, and drew forth the heavy Colt's pistol that had been bequeathed by a man unafraid. He laid it on the Bible, and then, as if by afterthought, removed it and laid it alongside.

"But, as I was sayin', if there is them here as come searchin' for trouble, they're sure to find it. I'm a right-peaceable man. Nobody can ever say I did him a wrong unless he tells a lie. There aint no dead man as can say I sent him off unless he pulled first. This-here camp is called Peaceful Hill. This-here meetin'-house is peaceful. It's goin' to stay that way if I have to kill three or four men to make it so."

He made an impressive pause, in which he glared down at the disturbers standing awkwardly by the door, and his hand slipped forward to the butt of the gun. It seemed to clutch and hang there, as if to something familiar. The muzzle lifted slightly from the pulpit, and as if by chance fell into line with the surprised members of Big Bill's gang.

Why Do Women Suffer

When They Could Be Well?

It is so easy to be well and strong and able to enjoy life, that it is surprising how many women drag themselves through the day suffering tortures from lame back due to kidney trouble. Mrs. Wilcox found the way to cure herself and gladly writes about it so that others may be induced to use the same remedy.

BIG LORRAINE.

"During the last winter, I was bothered very much with a Weak Back. I was advised by a friend to try GIN PILLS and I did. The first box I found helped me very much and I found when I had taken the second, I was completely cured."

THE BURDENS OF AGE

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

Fancy Mice.

That the rearing of fancy mice can be made not merely an interesting hobby, but also a source of substantial profit, is illustrated by the experience of a Scarborough (England) man, hundreds of whose tiny pets find their way annually into the hands of the British admiralty. Tame mice are required principally for use in submarines. They are exceedingly prone to suffocation. The Scarborough fancier, Mr Heaviland, illustrated this by covering the palm of his hand with ordinary liquid paint and placing a tame mouse on it. The tiny creature was at once overcome by the smell of the paint and suffocated in an incredibly short time.

Byron's Habits.

While Byron was in Ravenna, Italy he adopted strange habits. It was his custom to rise at 2 in the afternoon breakfast and ride and dine at 6. Then he would sit and talk until 5 or 6 in the morning, or, if no company were there, he would write a bit of "Don Juan." But his life was like that of Aubrey Beardsley—upside down the day was the night.

In Training.

"Have you been to sea in the last six or eight years?"

"Not exactly," replied the mariner, "but I'm not out of practice. Every evening I go to the club and spend hours in a rocking chair whose motion has given many men seasickness."—Washington Star.

Eugenics.

The self made man was speaking. He said: "My father was a raiser of hogs. There was a large family of us." And then his voice was drowned by the applause.—Life.

Punished the Selfish One.

The Rule-Geneva express, says the London Standard Geneva correspondent, was overcrowded the other day and several travelers had to stand in the corridors of the second class coaches. One tourist saw a seat vacant, but covered with luggage, and asked a passenger sitting near whether the seat was "occupied." "Yes," replied the stranger, "the man is in the restaurant car, and will return soon."

There the matter ended until the express reached Lausanne, when the owner of all the luggage prepared to get out.

"Pardon me," said the tourist, "that luggage does not belong to you," and called the guard. The latter sided with the tourist, and the whole matter was placed before the station master. The selfish traveler had to prove, piece by piece, that the luggage on the seat belonged to him, and he finally was obliged to pay for two second class tickets.

The Charm She Wore.

Many are the charms adopted by society women with a grain of superstition in their makeup, and one of the most unique is that worn by a young matron who spends much of her time at Atlantic City. Attention being called to her curious pendant—a polished substance set in pearls and suspended from a slender gold chain—she was asked what manner of stone it might be. "Stone?" she laughed. "It's just plain, ordinary wood. You see, I have a most unfortunate tendency to toast, and at such times caution tells me to knock wood. Oftentimes there is no wood at hand, so all I have to do to save myself from my rashness is to tap my little locket. Simple ain't it?"—New York Tribune.

Beautiful India.

India bears the same relation to the orient that Italy does to Europe. It is the home of palaces, temples and monuments; it is the home of beautiful art work in many materials. Most of its cities have a splendid historical past that is seen in richly ornamented temples and shrines, in the tombs of its illustrious dead and in palaces that surpass in beauty of decoration anything which Europe can boast.—"The Critic in the Orient."

Had Itching Piles For 27 Years

Often Laid Up for Days at a Time—A Wonderful Tribute to Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Few people were ever more enthusiastic in praising Dr. Chase's Ointment than the writer of this letter. When you read the description of his case you will not wonder why.

Mr. John Johnson, Coleman, Alta., writes: "Three years ago I was cured of blind, itching piles of 27 years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I would ever get from the terrible misery of piles. Often I was laid up for three days at a time, and at other times worked when I should have been in bed.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth sixty dollars a box instead of sixty cents. I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time, and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this ointment made for me. I cannot tell half as much about it as it deserves. Anyone doubting this can write direct to me."

Poetry and Pay.

Poetry, it is declared is about the worst paid form of writing. That may be true regarded from the standpoint of dollars and cents, but the poet at any rate gets a poem out of his system and should feel that he is pretty well paid for his effort.—Toledo Blade.

One Use For It.

"I suppose classical music is all right in its place," said Maud.

"I'm sure it is," replied Marie. "I don't care to listen to it myself, but sometimes you have to play it in order to get a man to go home."—Washington Star.

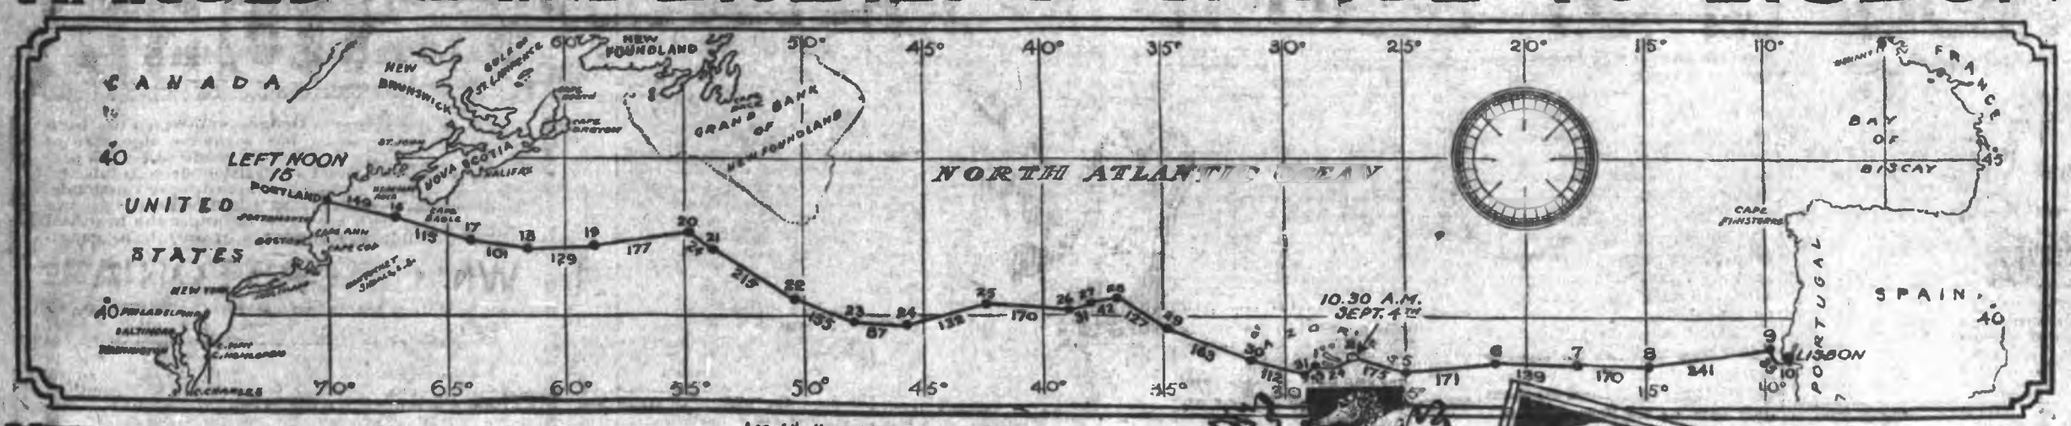
HAROLD VANDERBILT'S CRUISE TO LISBON



Log of the Vagrant from Portland to Lisbon.

(Copyright, 1913, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

LIKE a majority of other members of the Vanderbilt family, Mr. Harold Stirling Vanderbilt is particularly fond of one branch of sport. Yachting, with a strong predilection for schooner yachts and off-shore racing and cruising, has strongly appealed to him, and he is a thoroughly capable navigator and seaman.

He crossed the Atlantic Ocean this summer on board his new schooner yacht, the Vagrant, making the trip from Portland, Me., to Lisbon, Portugal, in slightly less than twenty-three days.

Not satisfied with the cruising possibilities of his older schooner yacht, the earlier Vagrant, with an overall length of 70 feet and 56 feet on the water line, which the Herreshoffs, of Bristol, R. I., designed and built for him in 1910, he placed an order for a much larger yacht with the same concern last autumn, and the two master Vagrant was delivered to him early last summer.

The new Vagrant has a water line length of 80 feet and an overall length of 109 feet, with a beam of 23 feet 8 inches and an extreme draught of 15 feet. Mr. Vanderbilt had won the 1910 race to Bermuda in his older vessel, and when he received the new yacht he decided to put her to a real test of seaworthiness, such as a trip across the Atlantic Ocean would provide.

The new yacht is equipped with a motor and electric generating plant, through which a shaft and two bladed propeller for auxiliary power is provided, but during the ocean trip the propeller was not attached. The yacht is electrically lighted throughout.

The first test afforded Mr. Vanderbilt of the qualities of his new yacht was in connection with the Eastern Yacht Club's annual cruise along the Maine coast.

The important factors in her design and construction were seaworthiness and comfort, with all the speed possible without sacrificing the other elements.

The yacht proved to be a thoroughly capable one and showed a satisfactory turn of speed, so when the Eastern Yacht Club's squadron put in at Portland Mr. Vanderbilt had the Vagrant made ready for the long transatlantic voyage.

The interior accommodations on board the trim schooner yacht are unusually well laid out, and her owner personally planned the arrangement.

At noon on July 15 the Vagrant left Portland, Me., but it was not until the last minute that the course eventually followed, which included a stop at the Azores, was decided upon.

On board with Mr. Vanderbilt during the trip across the Atlantic were Mr. Aymar Johnson, an enthusiastic yachtsman, who has been with the owner of the new schooner yacht on other of his off-shore cruises; Messrs. P. A. Carroll and S. W. Fish, a crew of fourteen men and Captain Perhan.

On the first day out the Vagrant's log showed 149 miles despite the fact that they encountered calms at the start and later ran into light west-northwesterly and northeasterly breezes with a smooth sea. The course selected took the yacht well toward the southerly end of Nova Scotia, and on the following day she passed to the south'ard of Cape Sable, making 115 miles in the twenty-four hours with more light weather, the breezes coming from the northward and northeastward.

From noon of July 17 to noon of July 18 the Vagrant covered 101 miles, and of the twenty-four hours eight were spent in a calm, while a light southerly breeze prevailed for the remainder of the time.

For July 18 to 19 the record was 129 miles in a light south-southeasterly breeze and all had gone well, but in the ensuing twenty-four hours the real excitement of the voyage was experienced. It started with a moderate east-southeasterly blow, and then they encountered a southeasterly Gulf Stream gale, which necessitated the yacht being hove to for eight hours.

It was one of those midsummer Gulf Stream tempests that make sail carrying impossible and show what the old Atlantic can do in the way of kicking up a rumpus, but the Vagrant went through the ordeal unscathed. During the day the Vagrant logged 177 miles.

The story of the following day is the one to be expected after a storm. There was a flat calm and the yacht covered only 24 miles, but on the 21st-22d, making to the southward in that which started with light breezes and eventually resolved itself into a southwesterly gale, the Vagrant travelled 215 miles.

Then came a record of 155 miles in the decreasing gale, which shifted to a light north-northeaster, and on the following day, in light northeasterly to southeasterly breezes, she logged 87 miles, with 132 miles scored on the 24th-25th in a light south-southeasterly breeze.

On the 25th-26th under the same conditions the Vagrant's record showed that she had covered 170 miles, while in the ensuing twenty-four hours, in calms with occasional southeasterly puffs, the good two-master made only 31 miles.

The 27th-28th was practically a repetition of the previous day—one of those tiresome days in the doldrums—and 42 miles was the best the Vagrant could do, but on the following day a light westerly breeze sprang up and she bowled off 127 miles and followed it with 163 miles in a light westerly followed by east-northeasterly breeze, which continued and enabled the vessel to get 112 miles nearer to her destination, Lisbon, Portugal.

The vessel was nearing the Azores, and on the day of July 31-August 1 she made but 35 miles, calms prevailing, though there were a few slants from northeast to west. On the following day the calm continued, but the tedium was broken when at half-past eleven o'clock in the morning she arrived at Horta, the Azores.

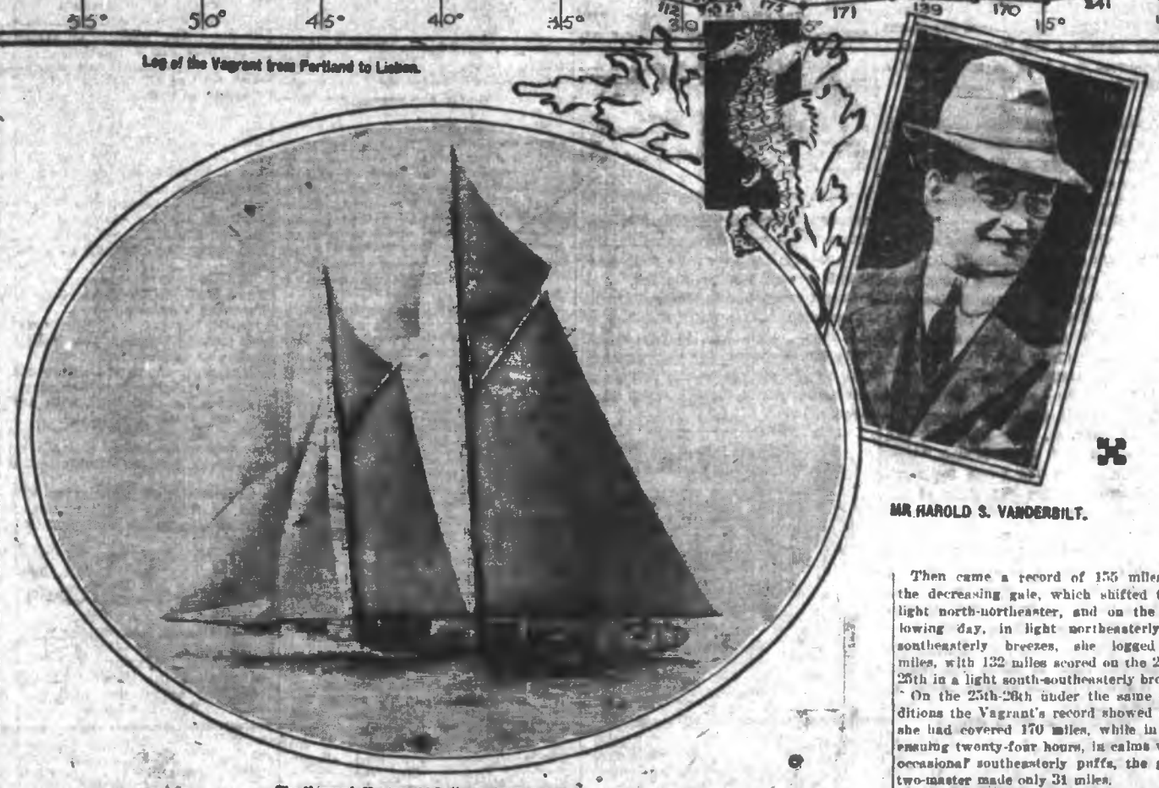
For two days Mr. Vanderbilt remained at the island port and then, at half-past three in the afternoon of August 4, he left, proceeding to the eastward, and on the day of August 4-5 the Vagrant logged 175 miles, a fresh northerly blow starting them on their way. This was followed by squalls, and later a steady north-northeasterly breeze set in which continued throughout the following day, in which the distance to Lisbon was cut down by 171 miles and more squalls were encountered.

On August 6-7 the breeze continued from the north-northeastward and 139 miles were logged, in fine sailing weather, and 170 miles more were covered the following day, with a few squalls to make the sport more interesting.

On the 8th-9th the record run of the trip, one of 241 miles, was established, a fresh north-northeasterly blow, with squalls, making the day a memorable one, and when it ended Portugal was in sight, the Vagrant having made in just to the south'ard of Cape Carvoeiro, and on August 10, at three o'clock in the afternoon, the yacht put in at Lisbon, having made a run of thirty-five miles.

Calms and very light airs had made portions of the trip uninteresting—times when the surface of the ocean was so placid as to be more suited to high speed motor boat racing than yachting in a vessel like the Vagrant—but the excitement afforded when it did blow hard more than compensated for the quieter times.

The Vagrant covered a total distance of 2,856 miles, with twenty-four as the low mark for any twenty-four hours and 241 as the high mark.



The Vagrant, Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt's Schooner.

MR HAROLD S. VANDERBILT.

Heroic Measures to Teach Riding

The Buckar and the Bucked in Training.

IN America there are so many horses to buck and to save themselves in trying that will buck without provocation circumstances. A horse that has never shown any inclination to kick or throw his rider or misbehave in any way is fixed between two padded posts and taught to buck. His rider must try to stick on his back. If he does not he must "fall" well. By an ingenious device the horse is made to do the stunts they are taught in the famous Cavalry School of Saumur. Here both the horses and the men are trained.

"AMERICAN SEAT" IN FRANCE

GREAT interest has been roused in France, where what is known as "the American seat" is much in vogue with jockeys, by Mr. Justice Darling's condemnation of the American style of riding during his summing up of the evidence in the libel suit brought in London by Mr. Richard Wootton, the trainer, against Mr. R. S. Sievier, editor of the Winning Post.

Mr. Justice Darling cited the evidence of Mr. Dawson, the trainer, to show that since the "American seat" began to gain favor some fifteen or twenty years ago there has been an increase of foul riding, and that the jockeys have not the same control over their horses as formerly because they ride with shorter stirrups.

Opinion in French racing circles is divided on the subject, but that the "American seat" finds favor despite the objections raised to it is proved by the fact that it is adopted by the majority of jockeys, English and French as well as American, riding on the French turf, though in some instances to a modified degree.

Thus, at Maisons-Laffitte races recently all six races were won by jockeys who have adopted the "American seat" in a more or less pronounced fashion. Frank O'Neill, Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt's stable jockey, who is a firm believer in the "crouch" seat and is recognized as one of the smartest riders on the French turf, particularly in races where it is necessary to get a horse away quickly and energetically support it from start to finish, is a firm believer in the American style of riding. That day he was successful in two races.

J. Reiff, who also rides "short," was successful once, and Guy Garner, one of the most recent of jockeys to cross the Atlantic, who also rode a winner, is a lightweight and consequently falls under Mr. Justice Darling's reproach of being a "small" jockey. C. Stern, though not an American, also adheres to the American style of riding, though perhaps to a slightly less degree than his American colleagues.

Bobsledding in Summer

"Bob Rolling" on the Cresta Bob Run.

BOBSLEDDING on the bare ground is a new form of sport that has found favor this summer in those Alpine regions heretofore associated chiefly with winter sports. It is out of these events, indeed, that the new pastime has been developed. Mr. Sanger, the inventor of the roll bob, is a familiar visitor to Davos Platz and has participated in the various sports for which the place is famous. The roll bob looks like a cross between an automobile and a sled and riding on it is said to be very exciting by those who have participated in the amusement. It is low and solidly constructed, fitted with rubber tired wheels and has a steering gear in front.

NEWS OF BRITAIN IN PARAGRAPHS

At a meeting of the Newport Board of Guardians, it was reported that there are 111 persons in the workhouse upwards of seventy years of age.

Up-to-date Father

Six young ostriches were hatched at the Cardiff Zoological Gardens, and are doing well. The male bird built the nest, sat on the eggs without a lapse, and now tends his young.

One-Legged Swimmer

Frank Gadsby, who has only one leg, swam from a point south of Fromby, Lancashire, to Southport, about ten miles, depending mainly upon powerful side strokes.

Girl Swam the Solent

Miss Nora Cochrane, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. W. Cochrane, of East Cowes, swam across the Solent from Lepe, on the Hampshire coast, to Cowes, in 1 hour 38 minutes, in a rough sea.

Faithful Terrier

A pet fox terrier had to be drawn away with a lasso before the police could remove the body of Edward Cave, a fustian cutter, aged fifty-six, of Booth Hill lane, Royton, near Oldham, who had fallen dead.

Revival of Copper Mining

There is every probability that the Penrallt copper mine a mile from Penrhyndeudraeth, North Wales, will be reopened in a short time, after many years' closure, and there will be work for about 200.

Heather Ablaze

A fierce fire spread among the heather on the estate of Novar, situated at Evanton, near Dingwall, and belonging to Mr. R. C. Munro Ferguson, M.P. The fire raged for some days, and at night the glare of the flames was seen as far distant as twenty miles away.

Phil May Memorial

The presentation of a collection of drawings by Phil May, valued at $10,000, to the Leeds Art Gallery completed the work of the Phil May Memorial Committee formed in Leeds some time ago. A tablet was placed on the wall of the artist's house at Westley, Leeds.

Chancellor's First School

Mr. Tim Evans of Llanbedr, a well known Welsh artist, has been commissioned by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to paint the elementary school at Llanystumdwy, where Mr. Lloyd George first attended school, and to include a large tree in the yard, which he often climbed when a boy.

Hero Rewarded

George Gardiner, fish weighman to Berwick Salmon Company, was on Berwick Quay publicly presented by the Mayor with the Carnegie certificate and $25 for saving a boy who fell over the quay. Mr. Gardiner, who has saved seventeen lives, was eleven years ago presented with the Humane Society's medal and parchment.

Sight Restored

A remarkable cure of blindness is reported from Bynea, near Llanelly, Wales. Four and a half years ago, after an attack of cataract, Mrs. Hannah Evans had the misfortune to become totally blind. Almost in despair, she allowed herself to undergo a course of treatment at the Swansea Hospital four weeks ago. Lately Mrs. Evans was discharged as cured, with sight restored.

Fifteenth Child a Prize Winner

A baby show under the auspices of the Inverness Town Council was held in the Town Hall. The object was the stimulating of greater interest among mothers in the proper care of children, and so help to decrease the high mortality in the town. One of the first prize-winners was an infant which was the fifteenth of the family, and the mother was heartily cheered.

Died in Church

The sudden death took place under remarkable circumstances of Mr. John Hargraves, master painter, Ardee. Mr. Hargraves was inside the Protestant church, where some improvements were being effected, and was assisting two men outside to get a pole into position by means of a rope. The men outside, finding that the assistance from the inside suddenly ceased, entered the building, and were horrified to find the body of Mr. Hargraves on the floor. He had died from heart failure.

Poacher in a Brook

At Maidenhead, James Perry, of Dean street, Marlow, was charged with being on land in the occupation of Sir Henry Vansittart Neale, in search of game. When a constable appeared Perry ran away, and jumped into a brook, neck deep in water. He set one of his dogs on the policeman, and it seized him by the leg. The man got away, but was traced by the name and address on the collars of the dogs. Perry had to pay $15.25, or twenty-one days, for the poaching, and for the assault on the policeman was sentenced to three months' hard labor.

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Recipe

No Better Remedy at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequaled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Henry VIII. Gold Coins Found

While quarrying at Barleyhill, Roscarberry, John Tobin, laborer, discovered in a small cave an enormous number of gold and silver coins in a fairly good state of preservation. The gold coins, each about the size of half-sovereigns of to-day, were said to be of the time of Henry VIII. The silver ones, varied in size, but none of them were bigger than a shilling of to-day's currency. A glass candlestick, a piece of wax candle, and other articles also discovered seem to point to the fact that the cave was used for Mass purposes in Penal days.

Many Zeppelins Wrecked

The Zeppelins have the worst record, so far as disasters are concerned, of any type of dirigible balloons, probably because more of that pattern have been built than of any other. Count Zeppelin constructed or reconstructed in all about sixteen of these huge aerial vessels. Of them ten have been lost, while nearly all the others have met with mishaps of one kind or another, and in some instances destruction has been narrowly averted.

It is a fact worthy of note that in a single year (1911), Germany lost, by storm and fire, no fewer than two rigid airships, one semi-rigid, and three of the non-rigid type; while another was seriously damaged and two had to be rebuilt. The German Navy is by no means wedded to Zeppelins.

ORIENTAL PERFUMES.

They Have Come Into Vogue With the Eastern Costumes.

Flower baths are in high esteem with Parisian elegantes. They are supposed to improve the health and looks. Rose baths are particularly popular and are supposed to be highly beneficial for the skin. The water of the bath is made lukewarm and quantities of rose leaves are strewn in the water, and their petals crushed to extract the juice.

Plain rosewater really is healing for the skin, and, no doubt, some of this poured in the water of the bath would be quite as efficacious as the rose leaves. Indeed, rosewater is a favorite toilet accessory with many women who have been noted for the beauty of their complexions.

There is little doubt that a good perfume is a wholesome tonic. Sachets placed in the clothing and scattered about the room undoubtedly act as disinfectants. The sachets for wear may be made of white silk or fine lawn and lace, trimmed and fastened to the lingerie.

Old fashioned perfumes are better than new ones. Some of them have a distinctly soothing effect on the nerves. Bay leaves, rosemary, lavender, rose leaves, myrrh, orris root, violets, lemon, mint, are all considered especially beneficial. Just why perfumes soothe the nerves it is hard to say.

The dames of long ago used to believe that sage tea was a fine thing for the complexion. Combined with ordinary tea it was used for making the hair thicker and glossier. The scent of sage was also liked. Those who ate, smelled and bathed in sage believed that they were thus prolonging their lives. Who knows? There may be more in some of these simple old herb cures than any of us are aware of.

Most of the perfumes just mentioned were used in the drawers or in chests where clothes were kept, and when the garments were taken out they had, of course, a delicate odor of the perfume still clinging to them.

Honeysuckle blossoms, rose geranium and lily of the valley are delightful, and their fresh leaves may all be used like those of the rose in imparting fragrance to the bath.

Lavender is said to be a good brain stimulant and is therefore a better perfume for the slow and sluggish than for one of alert mind.

A delightful face wash is made of tincture of benzoin, water and a little glycerine. And, by the way, benzoin is most refreshing put into the basin in which you wash your face and hands. It turns the water a little cloudy or milky, and it has a pleasant, pungent odor.

There are times and seasons for perfumes as in everything else. Just at present the fashion leaders approve of them. Rare old scents that suggest the orient are favored. Paris sets the style for us where perfumes are concerned. The leaders of the monde following the lead of the courts of Europe. Most royal ladies have special perfumers and guard the secrets of their preparation as carefully as a prime minister does the more weighty affairs of state.

The Empress of Russia is a most extravagant user of perfume. Her supplies of it come from Paris. Her apartments in the royal palaces and her cabins in the royal yacht are daily sprayed with essences of lilac, jasmine, fouquil, tuberose and white violet. The cases of perfume are sent directly on their arrival from France to the imperial laboratory for analysis before they reach the empress.

Spread Himself.

A lawyer defending a handsome young lady charged with larceny closed his appeal to the jury thus:

"Gentlemen, you may hang the ocean on a grapevine to dry, lasso an avalanche, pin a napkin to the mouth of a volcano, skim the clouds from the sky with a teaspoon, paste 'to let' on the moon and stars, but never for a moment delude yourselves with the idea that this charming girl is guilty of the charge preferred against her."

The jury acquitted her without leaving their seats.

A Cane In Defence.

"If you want to keep off holdup men," said an old detective, "carry a cane. A holdup man is more afraid of a cane than he is of a revolver. He's deathly afraid that the man carrying it will jab it in his face or eyes or get the end of it in his mouth. On this account they're just as much afraid of a small light stick as they are of a heavy one. There are so many different ways of using a cane that a man doesn't know just which way to guard against it. And any man can use it."

Gravitation.

The law of gravitation is thus given in Newton's words: "Every particle of matter in the universe attracts every other particle with a force whose direction is that of the straight line joining the two and whose magnitude is proportional directly as the product of their masses and inversely as the square of their mutual distance."

"Sore throat, eh? Get your wife to give you one of her old stockings to wrap around your neck."

KEENE PLEASED WITH ANNUAL FALL FAIR

Duck Hunters Are Numerous—Social Next Monday Evening

KEENE, Oct. 15.—The banner year for the Keene Fair, which was held on Wednesday of last week, fully upheld its reputation and the entry list was the largest ever recorded. People swarmed into the grounds as soon as the gates opened. The attractions were many and people from the adjoining counties, also the United States attended. A large crowd came down from Peterborough. Automobiles were lined up on the grounds. The Executive committee worked indefatigably to make the Fair a success, and needless to say, their hopes must have been realized. The Indian band from Alderville, under the direction of Sampson Comego, rendered an excellent programme of music throughout the afternoon. The main building was well stocked with exhibits of all kinds. The display of grains and vegetables was particularly good. The poultry department was well stocked with fowl of all varieties. Seldom has there ever been seen such a splendid array of horses and cattle at a fall fair. The swine and sheep classes were well filled. Lively interest was manifested in the horse races, which involved the distribution of a good many dollars in prize money. 'Susie Hal,' owned by Dr. Johnston of Peterborough, captured the big end of the free-for-all and Chas. Fife, of Otonabee, carried away the money in the green race.

The concert that was held in the Town Hall on the night of the Keene Fair was a success.

Duck hunters are numerous and are passing through the village on their way to Rice Lake.

Mrs. Holdsworth of Cobourg, returned to her home last Saturday after spending the past week with her sister, Mrs. James McFarlane.

Mrs. Gee of New York City, who has been at Bralesford Cedars the past five weeks, left for Toronto last Monday.

Quarterly meeting service will be held on Sunday morning, Oct. 26th, at 10.30 a.m. in the Methodist Church, Keene.

Mrs. Nixon of Toronto, who has been at Bralesford Cedars, returned to her home last Monday.

Rev. A. K. Edmison conducted the anniversary service which was held at Bethel Church last Sunday evening. There was a large attendance.

Mr. Jas. McFarlane and his men are painting the Keene bridge.

On Monday evening next, Oct. 20, the Y.P.S.C.E. will hold a Thanksgiving social in the Town Hall, Keene. A special programme, consisting of music, reading and dialogues, will be given. Refreshments will also be served. Doors open at 7 p. m. Programme wil commence at 7.30. Admission 15 cents.

Thanksgiving song service will be given in the Methodist Church next Sunday evening, Oct. 19th at 7 p.m.

The annual Missinary anniversary wil be held in the Methodist Church on Sunday evening, Nov. 2nd, and the Rev. J. H. Arnup, B.A., secretary of the Methodist Layman's Missionary Association, will occupy the pulpit.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcom McIntyre of East City, visited Mrs. McIntyre's parents last Sunday.

Mrs. H. McLachlan, who underwent an operation last Monday at Bralesford Cedars, is reported much better.

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hasenburger, 18 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 20 years."

English Hail Insurance

Hail insurance in Great Britain is fairly general in only two counties, viz., Bedfordshire ad Huntingdonshire, where its prevalence is explained especially by the fact that these counties were visited by a very destructive hailstorm in August, 1906. The two counties just mentioned and parts of Cambridgeshire and Northamptonshire are subject to rather frequent hailstorms; but over the greater part of the British Isles loss from hail is so small as to be almost negligible from the standpoint of the underwriter.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THANKSGIVING IN THE WOODS

URBANITES need not think they are the only persons who have a good time on Thanksgiving day, for if they could but peep into the activities of the people on the farms and see how they observe the holiday it would not be surprising if just a tinge of envy should be incurred.

Thanksgiving day on the farm is a day of festivity and jollification. It is a genuine product of enjoyment, dependent sometimes largely upon conditions of the weather and upon the natural facilities provided for enjoyment, and it is entirely unadulterated with the more modern and perhaps superficial (at least from a ruralite's viewpoint) contrivances for entertainment which the city affords. If a nation can be judged by the manner in which its national holidays are observed the character of the people who inhabit the country and the city can be determined by the application of the same rule.

Probably the majority of the men folks on the farm turn their thoughts to hunting on Thanksgiving day. The instinct to go out on Thanksgiving morning and shoot a turkey for the holiday feast is still quite strong in the average ruralite, although the birds have become few in number. There are comparatively few places now in our vast Dominion where a hunt r sults in the capture of a turkey. Those good old days when people did not need to consult the market price of turkey when planning their Thanksgiving feast have gone by, and even on the farm some thought is given to the market price of the fine young gobbler before it is decided to serve him up for the holiday dinner instead of shipping him to the city market.

But the larder of the provident farm family is generally well filled, and perhaps less thought is directed to the Thanksgiving dinner as to the manner of sport and enjoyment that can be obtained out of the day. Fowls of some kind are always to be found in abundance about the barnyard, and the preparations for the dinner require but little time once when a decision is made as to what the menu shall consist of. And "butchering time" has just passed, and in the cellar or the smoke house are plenty of possibilities that would make the mouth of an urbanite water.

So thoughts turn to the field and forest for a day's hunting. And it seems to be about the only day in the year when nearly every man and boy old enough to handle a gun goes hunting. The farmer will let the hunters from the city bang about all over his farm during the early part of the season, when game is plenty—if it ever is—but he will keep right ahead husking his corn, baling his hay, hauling in pumpkins, etc., until Thanksgiving day comes around. Then he gets the hunting fever.

There is no work done on Thanksgiving. It would be almost a heathenish act not to "take the day off," no matter how urgent the farm work may be. If there is snow on Thanksgiving it is a regular day in paradise for the men and boys, for then it is quite an easy matter to track Mr. Bunny to his hiding place and chase him out to become a target for the hunters. The rabbit being about the only kind of game that cannot be exterminated, but sticks like the faithful dog wherever space is cleared away for a home in the forest, it is the most common game that is hunted on Thanksgiving. Although there is often about one hunter for every rabbit, this does not seem materially to diminish the sport, for after the day is over those who are short in their string of game take consolation in the fact that they "had a good time anyway."

Aside from rabbit hunting, there is other game to be found in most country districts, such as pheasants and quail. But whether all this game has been killed earlier in the season by professional hunters makes little difference to the people in the country, for they will have their annual hunt on Thanksgiving day at any rate. It is an annual custom with them, and the woods and fields constitute a sort of Mecca to which they make their visits as regularly as the holiday comes.

But with it all the Thanksgiving dinner is looked forward to with a sort of primary importance that indicates that the farmer and the resident of the city are not so much unlike in their holiday inclinations after all.

Beecher Found Them.

Henry Ward Beecher used to visit his old friends once a year for many years, but in the latter part of his life he was not able to do this. In his very last year, however, he was able to spend a day in Indianapolis and went round the place. That evening he was received by the ministers, and the chairman in welcoming him said:

"Doubtless you find few of your old friends here in Indianapolis after so many years of absence, but we who are here welcome you just as warmly."

Mr. Beecher in reply said:

"Your chairman has said that I have found few of my old friends here in the city. It is true. I found only Mr. —, Mr. — and Mr. —" (naming four or five of the old men of the city). "But this afternoon we drove out to Cedar Hill" (the cemetery), "and I found them. They are all there, sleeping just as peacefully as they used to do under my sermons."

Speed of Animals.

According to the naturalists, no animal is known to have exceeded the speed attained by the famous race horse Sysonby. Instantaneous photographs show the full length of one complete stride of about twenty-six feet. In the stride of the fastest racers the hind quarters and limbs are raised considerably higher than the shoulders and from this relatively great height is brought downward and forward, widely separating from each other, as a sportsman says, "to avoid striking the fore legs." The hare which is hunted with fast dogs has not in reality the speed of the dog. The dog, on the other hand, does not attain the speed of the horse. The giraffe is said to run at the rate of fifteen yards per second under the most favorable conditions. The elephant, going at a rate of two yards a second, carries a weight approximating that carried by six horses.

HEROES OF SHAFT AT NIAGARA PLANT

Remarkable Feat of Four Men Who Stopped Flood in Tunnel

Three electrical workers went in a punt down through a raging torrent that choked a power company's tunnel along the mighty cliff that holds up the weight of Niagara Falls. Three men with three boxes of dynamite groped their way in pitch blackness through a circular chamber swirling with water in order to blast out ten tons of rock lodged unexpectedly in the tunnel's "spout." They failed. And then what? A few days later they did what mortal men have done neither before nor since; they climbed up the face of Niagara Falls from the outside, crawled under the curtain of water that leaps out from the giant cliffs and placed a charge of dynamite in the mouth of the tunnel. That time they were successful. The channel was cleared without the loss of a life. Here is the second trip as told by one of the men:

"Although we were dressed in oilskins, oil hats and rubber boots, we were quickly drenched to the bones by gusts of spray that tumbled on our heads and backs like pails of buckshot. So great became the force of these gusts that we could stand upright no longer and crawled from bowlder to bowlder on our hands and knees. All this time we were advancing literally under Niagara Falls, for the cataract was falling over and slightly beyond us, now and then giving us an extra heavy swish of water as the winds in the gorge blew direct against the face of the fall.

"We were walking about a hundred feet up from the pool, bracing ourselves against the pile of rocks. It was, at first, an almost impossible task to make steady progress. So we kept some distance apart for safety's sake in the event of one having a tumble, and by taking our medicine patiently at every downpour sent our way, we finally reached the ledge directly under the tunnel's mouth. It was a matter of a few minutes to place the dynamite and wires where they would hit the blockade to best advantage.

"We rested a few minutes and commenced the return journey. Bad as the approach had been, the going back was infinitely worse. The adverse winds had practically isolated us by walls of water and indeed at one time the prospect was good for a twenty-four-hour stay on the edge of an ugly cavern.

"During a lull we were enabled to make another start. Having to drag the pair of copper wires with us made the trip much more difficult, but we held on and gained foot after foot, sometimes slipping, often bringing blood, until the sight of the Cave of the Winds peeped through the abnormal mists. Exhaustion was slowing down our steps, and a fearful hunger increased the discomfort, for the adventure had taken the best part of a day. I remember some one throwing us a rope and we snatched at it with a sudden return of energy.

"Lifted safely into the cave, the superintendent touched the copper wires. A far-off roar, that sounded even above the boom of the falls—and we turned to face a messenger who had been waiting at the telephone for instant news of the water level in the tunnel. 'It is rapidly lowering,' said he, and all of us knew that the blockade had been broken by the blast."

Market for Flax Fibre

As a considerable quantity of flax is harvested in Canada every year, the attention of firms interested may be drawn to the market in Leeds, England, for flax fibre. Spinners there have followed with close attention the development of the growth of the flax plant in Western Canada, and are desirous of receiving shipments of the fibre if it can be obtained on competitive terms with supplies from other sources. Some three years ago a few small trial shipments of unretted flax fibre were sent from Canada. Mr. J. M., Mussen, Canadian trade commissioner at Leeds says consumers express their readiness to give their consideration to offers that may be received at any time from Canadian firms interested in seeking export markets for this fibre.

The Poor Man's University

"JONES knows more about motor cars than any other man I know," said a man to his friend. "He has obtained his knowledge chiefly from motor car advertisements, and the catalogues and booklets circulated through them."

"All I know about photography," declared a well-known amateur, "I have learned from the men who advertise cameras, plates, papers and films."

Advertisements have been well called "The Poor Man's University," but other than poor men have been schooled thereby.

Much of what the average individual knows concerning personal and domestic hygiene, modern office methods, books and authors, electricity, precious stones, investments, and almost everything else, he has learned from advertisements.

GOLD DINNER PLATE

Costly Dishes Are Used at Royal Banquets

Seven and a half million dollars for the contents of two pantries, each no larger than an ordiary suburban drawing-room! Such is the amazing value placed on King George's gold plate treasured at Windsor Castle.

For the purposes of a State banquet at Buckingham Palace four tons of this gold plate are transferred to London in vans bearing the Royal Arms, and tone more are left behind. In these treasure-vans are epergnes of gold which weigh several hundredweights. There are dishes, two or three of which are as much as any man would care to carry, and half-a-dosen of the dinner-plates even are a sufficient load for one man. As for the candelabra, you will see three strong-armed porters straining their muscles to deposit one of them in the van.

There is one dinner-service alone, designed by such artists as Flaxman and Stothard and fashioned for the fourth George by Rundell and Bridges, for the mere making of which over $1,000,000 was paid some ninety years ago. The gold of which it was fashioned—generations of derelict Court p'ate melted down—was valued at $2,500,000

There is a complete service for 140 diners—centre plaques to represent water, epergnes, candelabra, tureens, entrée dishes, plates by the hundred, all of pure gold, with thirty dozen other gold plates to fall back on in case of need.

One of the candelabra of this wonderful service—that of St. George fighting the dragon—contains 2,700 ounces of gold and cost $60,000; another, known as the "Hesperides," is so heavy that three strong men can scarcely raise it to the table-level.

Such are but a few of the golden treasures of the King, and in many noble mansions in Great Britain are other collections of gold plate worth in the aggregate millions of dollars.

The Duke of Bedford's gold plate at Woburn Abbey is especially magnificent. So lightly, however, was it regarded by the eighth duke that on his death in 1872 gold plate worth many thousands of dollars was found strewn about the floor of his house in Belgrave Square, in such a deplorable condition that it narrowly escaped being consigned to the dustbin as worthless metal.

Headche And Heart Trouble

Nervous Prostration of Three Years' Standing Cured a Year Ago by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Anyone who knows the discouragement and despair which accompanies the helplessness of nervous prostration will appreciate the gratitude felt by the writer of this letter.

Mrs. H. C. Jones, Scotch Lake C B., writes: "I suffered from nervous prostration for nearly three years. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors, without obtaining satisfactory results, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was completely cured by this treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine. I now attend to my housework with pleasure and comfort, and am glad to have the opportunity of recommending Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

At least some benefit is bound to be derived from each dose of this great food cure, as day by day it forms new blood, and builds up the system. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THANKSGIVING IN THE WOODS

URBANITES need not think they are the only persons who have a good time on Thanksgiving day, for if they could but peep into the activities of the people on the farms and see how they observe the holiday it would not be surprising if just a tinge of envy should be incurred.

Thanksgiving day on the farm is a day of festivity and jollification. It is a genuine product of enjoyment, dependent sometimes largely upon conditions of the weather and upon the natural facilities provided for enjoyment, and it is entirely unadulterated with the more modern and perhaps superficial (at least from a ruralite's viewpoint) contrivances for entertainment which the city affords. If a nation can be judged by the manner in which its national holidays are observed the character of the people who inhabit the country and the city can be determined by the application of the same rule.

Probably the majority of the men folks on the farm turn their thoughts to hunting on Thanksgiving day. The instinct to go out on Thanksgiving morning and shoot a turkey for the holiday feast is still quite strong in the average ruralite, although the birds have become few in number. There are comparatively few places now in our vast Dominion where a hunt r sults in the capture of a turkey. These good old days when people did not need to consult the market price of turkey when planning their Thanksgiving feast have gone by, and even on the farm some thought is given to the market price of the fine young gobbler before it is decided to serve him up for the holiday dinner instead of shipping him to the city market.

But the larder of the provident farm family is generally well filled, and perhaps less thought is directed to the Thanksgiving dinner as to the manner of sport and enjoyment that can be obtained out of the day. Fowls of some kind are always to be found in abundance about the barnyard, and the preparations for the dinner require but little time once when a decision is made as to what the menu shall consist of. And "butchering time" has just passed, and in the cellar or the smoke house are plenty of possibilities that would make the mouth of an urbanite water.

So thoughts turn to the field and forest for a day's hunting. And it seems to be about the only day in the year when nearly every man and boy old enough to handle a gun goes hunting. The farmer will let the hunters from the city bang about all over his farm during the early part of the season, when game is plenty—if it ever is—but he will keep right ahead husking his corn, baling his hay, hauling in pumpkins, etc., until Thanksgiving day comes around. Then he gets the hunting fever.

There is no work done on Thanksgiving. It would be almost a heathenish act not to "take the day off," no matter how urgent the farm work may be. If there is snow on Thanksgiving it is a regular day in paradise for the men and boys, for then it is quite an easy matter to track Mr. Bunny to his hiding place and chase him out to become a target for the hunters. The rabbit being about the only kind of game that cannot be exterminated, but sticks like the faithful dog wherever space is cleared away for a home in the forest, it is the most common game that is hunted on Thanksgiving. Although there is often about one hunter for every rabbit, this does not seem materially to diminish the sport, for after the day is over those who are short in their string of game take consolation in the fact that they "had a good time anyway."

Aside from rabbit hunting, there is other game to be found in most country districts, such as pheasants and quail. But whether all this game has been killed earlier in the season by professional hunters makes little difference to the people in the country, for they will have their annual hunt on Thanksgiving day at any rate. It is an annual custom with them, and the woods and fields constitute a sort of Mecca to which they make their visits as regularly as the holiday comes.

But with it all the Thanksgiving dinner is looked forward to with a sort of primary importance that indicates that the farmer and the resident of the city are not so much unlike in their holiday inclinations after all.

Beecher Found Them.

Henry Ward Beecher used to visit his old friends once a year for many years, but in the latter part of his life he was not able to do this. In his very last year, however, he was able to spend a day in Indianapolis and went round the place. That evening he was received by the ministers, and the chairman in welcoming him said:

"Doubtless you find few of your old friends here in Indianapolis after so many years of absence, but we who are here welcome you just as warmly."

Mr. Beecher in reply said:

"Your chairman has said that I have found few of my old friends here in the city. It is true. I found only Mr. —, Mr. — and Mr. —" (naming four or five of the old men of the city). "But this afternoon we drove out to Cedar Hill" (the cemetery), "and I found them. They are all there, sleeping just as peacefully as they used to do under my sermons."

Speed of Animals.

According to the naturalists, no animal is known to have exceeded the speed attained by the famous race horse Sysonby. Instantaneous photographs show the full length of one complete stride of about twenty-six feet. In the stride of the fastest racers the hind quarters and limbs are raised considerably higher than the shoulders and from this relatively great height is brought downward and forward, widely separating from each other, as a sportsman says, "to avoid striking the fore legs." The hare which is hunted with fast dogs has not in reality the speed of the dog. The dog, on the other hand, does not attain the speed of the horse. The giraffe is said to run at the rate of fifteen yards per second under the most favorable conditions. The elephant, going at a rate of two yards a second, carries a weight approximating that carried by six horses.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Commercialized vice under the recognition and regulation of the police department ceased in Detroit at midnight Tuesday night.

One of Cornwall's most popular residents passed away at the General Hospital yesterday afternoon in the person of Alex. McDonald.

Alberta is to take up the taxation of the unearned increment in respect to increased land values. Premier Sifton gave notice he would move a resolution to that effect.

The Crippies' Protective and Beneficial Association is the name of an organization being formed by Pittsburg residents who have but one arm or leg or are otherwise maimed.

A resolution expressing appreciation of the action of Hon. Col. Hughes in suppressing militia camp canteens was unanimously carried by the Dominion W.C.T.U. at London, Ont., yesterday.

A young man, unknown, of dark complexion and wearing a grey suit, was found unconscious on the sidewalk Tuesday evening in Whitby and has remained insensible. There is a possibility of foul play.

Mrs. Ellen Etheridge, second wife of a farmer of Bosque County, Tex as, has confessed that she murdered two of her stepchildren last June and two on Oct. 2, by poison. She was jealous of her husband's love for them.

No hope was held out yesterday that Albert J. Jewell, the young aviator who set out from Hempstead Plains, N.Y., early Monday morning in a monoplane, would be found alive. The theory is that he was blown out to sea.

The will of the late J. Pierpont Morgan was probated in London yesterday. His estate in the British Isles totals $5,889,155, so that the budget of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George benefits by death duties to the extent of about $950,000.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and durinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active, and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Parent's Scruples Overcome.

MONTREAL, Oct. 16.—A relenting father ended the proceedings yesterday in the case of Reginald Leamy of Ottawa, who was to have appeared on a charge of abducting Elizabeth Phyllis Campbell, Vlaville, Que., a minor, who is heiress to $75,000.

Miss Campbell left Montreal last week against her father's wishes to meet her lover in Ottawa to be married. Campbell caught her at Vaudreuil, and sought to detain her here. She, however, escaped through a trap-door in the station floor, and after walking for miles, and selling her gold watch to get money for her trip, made her way to Ottawa and was married.

Ten Killed In Wreck.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 16.—Ten passengers were killed and 18 others injured in a collision near here yesterday between a local train and the Manchester express. The rear coach of the express was shattered.

Patrick Lee, a youth of 14, who had just landed from the Campania from New York, and was going to visit his mother, was in the wrecked coach, which was telescoped by the locomotive, and found himself pinned beneath the wheels of the bogie. He was got out, covered with grease and his clothes in shreds, but was uninjured.

ANOTHER "BLOW UP."

Ambassadors Fear Fresh Murders In Mexico ity.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—All the information the administration had from Mexico City yesterday was that the foreign representatives were in session there, having been called together by the Spanish Minister, the dean of the diplomatic corps, for the purpose of considering Huerta's latest step. It is said there were signs of dissensions in the ranks of Huerta's army.

Some view the action of the foreign representatives as indicating that a crisis had been reached in Mexico, while others regarded it merely as an addition to the many serious actions which have been performed. Others regarded the reported dissension in the army as the real barometer of what the end will be. These officials see in this dissension another "blow up," the like of which occurred on Feb. 9 last, and which resulted in the assassination of President Madero and Vice-President Suarez.

In the meantime the American Government is awaiting Gen. Huerta's next step in the Mexican situation.

This will be the attitude of the American Government until Huerta answers in some way, by word or deed, the note President Wilson sent him Tuesday, and which was delivered to him by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge at Mexico City.

What will be the next step in the national drama which is being staged in Mexico City with moving-picture like rapidity, no one here will vouchsafe a guess. President Wilson does not believe Huerta will make a reply to his note of Tuesday.

PLUMAGE RIGIDLY BARRED.

Feathers Must Even Come Off Grouse and Partridge Say U. S. Officials.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — Both frantic and tearful appeals reached the Treasury Department yesterday regarding the enforcement of the tariff law inhibition against the bringing in of bird plumage. One man, whose dozen cases of grouse were held up at the New York customs house, telegraphed that if he took the plumage off his game, as required by the law, his customers would refuse to recognize the birds as grouse. The Department, however, is explicit that grouse and partridges bearing their plumage cannot be brought into the United States.

The problem of the aigrettes, worn on hats by women returning from abroad, is no problem at all, for Treasury officials pointed out that if aigrettes could come in on women's hats the way would be made clear for a wholesale importation of them in evasion of the law.

ALL READY FOR VOTE.

Sulzer's Fate Will In All Likelihood Be Known To-night.

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 16.—It is likely that the fate of Gov. Sulzer will be known to-night. The high court of impeachment adjourned last night with its deliberations unfinished, but it was said that the final vote probably would be taken at an open session this afternoon.

No official confirmation of this report could be obtained, however, as all the deliberations of the court yesterday were held behind closely guarded doors. No record of the proceedings was kept, and a ban of silence has been placed on members of the tribunal.

When adjournment was taken shortly after seven o'clock last night, two hours beyond the usual time, the judges filed out unguarded and the Senators hurried from the chamber to the streets, instead of remaining to discuss the case, as had been their wont.

GIRLS! CLEAN AND BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR; NO MORE DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Stop Washing Hair! Try this! Makes It Glossy, Soft and Abundant

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil — in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

SHE HIT THE BOTTLE.

Youth's Mother Checked Suicide With a Bible.

WEST ORANGE, N.J., Oct. 16.—Albert Kent is in a serious condition in the Orange Memorial Hospital after an effort to commit suicide. He would have succeeded if his mother was not such a good thrower. She knocked a bottle of carbolic acid from his hand, using the family Bible as a missile. His mother was darning socks, when Kent entered, shouted "Here's luck to you all" and placed a bottle of carbolic acid to his lips. His mother picked up the Bible from the table, at her elbow, and threw it at her son. Her aim was good and the bottle crashed to the floor. But Kent already had swallowed some of the acid. He will probably recover.

Saxony's King In Danger.

DRESDEN, Saxony, Oct. 16.—A mysterious stranger armed with a loaded revolver and a dagger, was arrested Tuesday evening in a theatre here where he supposed the King of Saxony and the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia were among the audience. The arrest caused reports to be put in circulation of an attempt to assassinate the king.

The stranger had rented a room in a hotel overlooking the street through which the king and the grand duke were to pass on their way to attend a gala performance at the court theatre.

Three Years For Pickpocket.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 16. — Joseph Brant, who is a member of the Mohawk Indian Band, was yesterday sentenced to three years in the penitentiary by Magistrate Masson. Tuesday night whilst a passenger on a G.T.R. train, he had for a companion Giachini Viliani, whom he robbed of $50 and a ticket for Italy. Brant threw the ticket away, with the pocketbook, after he had extracted the money from his victim's pocket.

Paid Fine In Coppers.

GLASGOW, Oct. 16.—Dr. Grace Cadell, one of Scotland's most prominent suffragettes, was fined $50 for refusing to stamp servants' insurance cards. She paid the fine in coppers weighing fifty pounds.

GOT A BAD SPRAIN

ZAM-BUK CURED

Don't limp about in pain when you slip on the sidewalk and get a sprain or get a bad twist as your recreation. Rub in Zam-Buk. It eases pain.

Mr. Clarence D. Black, Legal Department, Transcontinental Railway, Ottawa, writes: "I have used Zam-Buk, with very satisfactory results, but I did not know its full value until just recently, when I fell from a street car and badly sprained my ankle. I immediately applied Zam-Buk, and am pleased to say that it has proved invaluable to me. The sprain was soon cured."

Bear in mind that Zam-Buk is used by all the famous football teams, all the best trainers, and all the leading athletes. Men who are at sport all the time—whose living depends upon their keeping "fit," find Zam-Buk the surest way to fitness. They are the best judges. Mothers! use it when the children get hurt!

In addition to its use for sprains, stiffness, rheumatism and sciatica, Zam-Buk is eminently useful for skin injuries and diseases. Blood-poison, festering sores and ulcers, etc., it quickly cures. Also cures cuts, burns, scalds, chapped hands, cold sores, varicose veins, bad leg, eczema, ringworm, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Have you tried Zam-Buk Soap? 25c. tablet.

Three Years at Judge.

GLASGOW, Oct. 16.—Two militant suffragettes, Margaret Morrison Kerr, artist, and Mrs. Smith, a well known woman doctor, were sentenced yesterday at the Court of Sessions to eight months' imprisonment each for attempting on July 24 to set fire to a large mansion in a Glasgow suburb, at one time the residence of the late Sir John Muir, a former Lord Mayor.

There was a wild scene in court when the judge, Lord Salvesen, pronounced the sentence. Irate suffragettes hurled vegetables and apples at the judge's head, and sang the "Marseillaise."

Three women were arrested.

Suffragette Failed To Reach King.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—A futile attempt to reach King George and Queen Mary was made by a militant suffragette, Margaret Sterling, as their Majesties were driving yesterday morning to St. James' Palace to attend the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife. The woman broke through the line of police waving a petition, but she was seized and arrested.

Gored To Death by Bull.

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—William Allen, a prominent farmer, on the Aylmer, Que., road, was gored to death by a bull on his farm yesterday afternoon, while attempting to remove the animal into a barn.

Woman's Place.

Woman's place may be the home, but judging from recent statistics she seems to have deliberately ignored that fact, for there are 239,077 stenographers, 327,625 teachers and professors, 481,159 in various trades, 770,055 engaged in agricultural pursuits, 7,355 physicians and surgeons, 7,205 clergymen," 2,193 journalists, 1,087 designers, draftsmen and architects; 1,010 lawyers and 429,497 women in various professions.—Baltimore Sun.

Crystal Clear.

The aim of futurist sculpture, says a futurist, is simply the "synthesis of human dynamism," which is to be reached by "uniting atmospheric blocks with elements of concrete reality." Could anything be simpler and more elementary?—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Farm and Dairy" Live Stock, Produce and Grain Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Oct. 11.—Not in many years has there been an event that promised to affect Canadian markets to the extent of the recent changes in the tariff regulations of the United States. From every section of Ontario and down through Quebec come reports of price changes and trade movements due to this new tariff. Montreal, Toronto and Windsor are all making great consignments of stock to the United States. Detroit dairymen are said to be securing South-Western Ontario for supplies of milk and cream. A similar condition is said to rule in the Eastern Townships of Quebec.

The one factor that stands out paramount is that Canadian producers now have access to a new and almost unlimited market. They can produce in almost any quantity with the assurance that production will not overtake consumption and this applies to every line in which tariff changes have been made. There has been much speculation as to what the ultimate effect of the tariff will be. The Farm and Dairy Marketman with the assistance of the other editors of the paper, propose to thoroughly investigate the new situation during the coming week, visiting leading Canadian market centres and also markets across the line. The results of our findings will be given in a Special Market Issue next week.

Money seems to be becoming up somewhat and there is a fair supply available for legitimate purposes.

WHEAT

At both Canadian and United States points wheat receipts are record ones. Reports of the wheat crop in the Southern hemisphere are also favorable, consequently the market has weakened. There is, however, a good trade moving for foreign demand. Quotations are as follows: No. 1 Northern, 98c; No. 2, 95c; Ontario No. 2, 90c to 93c outside; 95c to 98c here.

COARSE GRAINS

The market for coarse grains has been quiet. Outside of a little flurry in oats in the early part of last week, due to the new tariff, trade has been normal. A considerable quantity of oats has been moving across the line at the old duty, and shipments from now on will be greatly increased. We quote as follows: Oats, C.W., No. 2, 35c; No. 3, 33½c; Ontario No. 2, 33c to 35½c outside; 36c to 40c on track; corn, 95½ to 75c; peas, 80c to 85c; rye, 65c to 68c; barley, malting, 55c to 56c. At Montreal, with similar conditions, quotations are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 40½c; extra No. 1 feed, 39½c to 40c; Ontario oats, 38c to 40c; corn, 79c; barley, malting, 65c; feed, 50c; peas, $1.85 to $2; rye, 75c; buckwheat, 56c.

MILL FEEDS

Following are ruling quotations for mill feeds: Bran, $22 to $23; shorts, $23 to $25; middlings, $26 to $28. Montreal markets report bran at $23; shorts, $24 and middlings, $27.

HAY AND STRAW

Tariff changes have not influenced the local hay market, unless it is to make present prices a little safer. Wholesale dealers quote as follows: No. 1 baled hay, $13.50 to $14 on track; No. 2, $11 to $12; No. 3, $9 to $9; baled straw, $8 to $8.50. Hay at Montreal has been much more active ever since tariff changes became law. The price advances have not been as great as the reduction in the tariff, but this is due to the fact that farmers were holding at longer prices than local needs justified in anticipation of tariff changes. Quotations now are: No. 1, $14.50 to $15; No. 2, $12 to $14; No. 3 and clover, $10 to $10.50.

EGGS AND POULTRY

It is not anticipated that tariff changes will have any influence on egg quotations as prices on the other side of the line are a trifle higher than on this side, though not sufficiently so to encourage export. Wholesale dealers quote new laids at 32c to 34c; fresh, 28c to 30c; storage, 25c to 26c. At Montreal dealers report that warm weather has reduced the activity in eggs, but prices have advanced one cent a dozen nevertheless. Dealers are saying 31c to 33c for eggs at country points with less off. In the city new laids go at 35c.

Receipts of dressed poultry are increasing and generally the quality is anything but satisfactory. Wholesale quotations are: Dressed fowl, 12c to 15c; live, 9c to 12c; spring chickens, 17c to 20c; live, 14c to 17c; geese, 12c to 14c and 10c to 11c; ducks, 11c to 14c and 10c to 12c; turkeys, No. 1, 22c to 25c and 20c to 23c; No. 2, 18c to 20c and 15c to 16c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

On an average the difference in quotations between United States and Canadian points is 10c a bus. Until the countervailing duty is removed there will not be much trade with the United States. New potatoes are quoted locally at 75c a bag. The ruling price at Montreal is 70c a bag. Bean quotations are: Primes, $1.75 to $2.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

Wholesale quotations are: Apples, bbl., 20c to 30c; bbl., $1.50 to $3; grapes, 6-qt. bkt., 20c to 30c; peaches, 11-qt bkt., 15c to 30c; tomatoes, 30c to 35c; plums, 20c to 40c; canteloupes, crate, $2 to $3; bkt., 35c to 50c; pears, bkt., 20c to 40c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

Reports of United States activity among the dairymen of Canada does not seem to have affected the butter market as yet as wholesale local prices have not changed. Dealers quote dairy prints at 28c to 29c; creamery prints, 30c to 32c; solids, 30c to 30½c; inferior, 26c to 28c. Cheese is rather dull, new large, 14½c to 14¾c; twins, 14¾c to 15c; old, large, 16c to 16½c; twins, 16½c to 16¾c.

LIVE STOCK

Live stock prices are up; and up to stay. Choice cattle, for instance, jumped 75c a week ago. Retail prices are up 1c to 1½c a pound, and consumers need not look for a reduction to old levels. There was a tendency on the first market following tariff changes to refuse to pay anything higher than the prices that ruled the week previous. Drovers held out, however, and before the day was over Buffalo prices were ruling at Toronto. American buyers are present at every market and are likewise active in the country. Quotations now rule as follows: Export cattle, choice, $7.60 to $8; medium, $7.10 to $7.50; butchers, choice, $7.40 to $7.75; common to good, $6.75 to $7.25; heifers, good to choice, $6.90 to $7.25; choice, $6 to $6.50; common to good, $4 to $5; butcher bulls, $4 to $6.50; feeders, $5.25 to $6.15; stockers, $3.75 to $5.75; canners and cutters, $3 to $4.

Choice milch cows go at $65 to $95; springers, $45 to $95 and common to medium, $40 to $65; veal calves are in demand at $8.50 to $10.50; rough, $4.50 to $5.

We quote small meats as follows: Wether lambs, $7 to $7.75; buck lambs, $6.25 to $7; ewes, $4 to $6.25; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $4.

Packers quote hogs f.o.b. at $8.90; heavy, $7; sows, $6.

At Montreal as at Toronto interest in things around United States demand and trade is very active. Choice steers, $7.50; good, $7 to $7.25; fairly good, $6.50 to $6.75 and from that down to $4.50; choice cows, $7.25; fair to good, $4.50 to $5.50 down to $3.25; bulls, $3.25 to $4.25. There was an active demand in all lines of small meats; Lambs, $6.75 to $6.77; sheep, $3.75 to $4.25; calves, 4c to 6½c a lb.; veal, 5½c to 7¼c.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, Oct. 11.—The local provision trade was without any new feature to-day, prices for live and dressed hogs being about steady, but the prospects are that they will rule still lower next week on account of the liberal supplies coming forward. The trade in live hogs was fairly active, there being a good demand from packers, and sales of selected lots were made at $9 to $9.25 and straight lots at $8.75 to $9 per cwt., weighed off cars.

A fair trade in a jobbing way was done in abattoir fresh-killed dressed stock at $13.25 to $13.50 per cwt.

EXPORT CHEESE TRADE

Montreal, Saturday, Oct. 11.—There was a decided break in the market for cheese this week, owing to the lack of orders coming from Great Britain, and prices dropped to as low as 13½c, and it is understood that in some places 13½c was the highest price actually paid. A break at this season of the year was rather unexpected, as there is usually a keen demand for September, but stocks in Montreal are fairly heavy; and, as there is an unusual absence of interest in the article on the part of British importers, local dealers, who are not inclined to speculate, have allowed the market to go its way without any attempt to maintain prices. Still lower prices will follow next week, unless the market is supported by an increased demand from the other side. Receipts this week were fairly heavy, aggregating about 54,000 boxes, and the shipments for the week were practically the same, so that there is no increase in the stock in store here this week-end. Heavy shipments are looked for from now until the close of navigation, as a large proportion of the stock held here for English account will probably be ordered out before the last boat leaves.

The market for butter is steady, with prices firmly maintained, owing to the scarcity of fresh butter. Receipts have fallen off very rapidly, and this week amounted to barely 3,000 boxes. The small quantity is due to the large export of milk and cream going across the border, the quantity of which is increasing very rapidly with the removal of the customs charges during the past few days. Finest fresh Eastern Townships is quoted at 27½c to 28c per pound, with finest stored goods at 26½c to 27½c.

CHEESE MARKETS

Peterboro, Oct. 8.—1,980 cheese sold at 13¾c.

Woodstock, Oct. 8.—1,783 cheese boarded. Price offered, 13c. No sales.

Kingston, Oct. 9.—71 white cheese and 125 colored boarded. Sales were made at 13¾c.

Vankleek Hill, Oct. 9.—664 boxes white and 371 boxes colored sold at 13 11-16c.

Brockville, Oct. 9.—1,721 colored and 1,035 white. Highest offer, 13¾c, refused.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Active campaigning by bear leaders carried the wheat market today sharply under the season's previous low price, altho the record for depression had been made only the day before. The close was weak at practically the bottom figures reached, 5-8c to 3-4c off compared with last night. Other leading staples, too, all showed declines—corn ¼c to 3-4c, oats 7-8c to 1 1-8c, and provisions 7½c to 15c.

Liverpool closed as follows: Wheat—One-quarter to ¾d lower.
Corn—One-quarter to ¼d higher

Milkers and Springers

Receipts of milkers and springers were not as large and prices remained steady, at $50 to $80 each, the bulk selling from $60 to $70 each.

Veal Calves

The market for calves, while active, was not quite as strong, as there was a larger number offered. Choice calves sold from $9 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50; common, $4.50 to $5.50; rough country calves $4.00 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs

A fairly large number, 1772, met a steady to strong market. Sheep, light ewes, 90c to 130 lbs., $4.50 to $5; ewes, 140 to 160 lbs., $4 to $4.25; lambs, ewes and wethers, $7.25 to $7.50; bucks, 75c per head less.

Hogs

The receipts of hogs yesterday were light, only 510 reported as being on sale. In consequence prices in some instances were a little higher. Selects, fed and watered, $8.60 to $8.75, f.o.b. cars, $8.40 to $8.45; weighed off cars, $8.65 to $8.90.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Oct. 15.—At the C. P. R. live stock market the receipts for the week ended Oct. 11 were 3700 cattle, 3200 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 1650 calves. Offerings today consisted of 2900 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs, 1670 hogs and 300 calves.

Supplies of cattle continue to pour into the above market, the receipts today being the largest on record for some time. Shipments to the U. S. markets this week to date equal 75 carloads. The quality of the cattle coming forward consists principally of common stock, this being the class wanted by American buyers. Prices were firm with sales of common bulls at $4.25 to $4.50 and inferior at $3.75 to $4, while cows brought from $3 to $4 per 100 lbs. In addition to the above buying there was a good demand from local packers for the same class of stock for canning purposes at the same prices. Butchers' stock was scarce, but sufficient to fill the requirements, however. Demand was fair and prices firm with choice steers selling at $7.25 to $7.50, good at $6.50 to $7, fair at $6.25 to $6.50 and the commoner grades at from $4.50 to $5.50 per 100 lbs. Choice butchers' cows sold at $5.40 to $5.75, good at $5 to $5.25 and common at $4.75 to $5 per 100 lbs.

Trade in sheep and lambs was only fairly active, with offerings smaller than usual. Lambs brought $6.25 to $6.75.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BAPTIST CONVENTION IS NOW IN FULL SWING

Peterborough Will Be Headquarters for Over Three Hundred Delegates From Throughout Ontario and Quebec For One Week--Address of Welcome Extended to the Visitors on Behalf of the Civic Administration---Stirring Address by Mr. A. A. Ayer, of Montreal, President of the Convention---Meetings Will Be Held in Murray St. Baptist Church.

REPORT OF NOMINATING COMMITTEE

The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec made its debut in Peterborough on Wednesday evening, making the second time the convention has met here within the past ten years. Over three hundred delegates will make the Electric City their headquarters for one week, during which time the progress of the Baptist denomination of Ontario and Quebec for the past year will be recorded. The meetings will be held in Murray Street Baptist Church and will comprise three sessions each day, in addition to a number of counter attractions that have been provided for the entertainment of the visitors. Last night's meeting, which was largely attended, was featured by the inaugural address of Mr. A. A. Ayer, President of the convention. The latter is a well known commission merchant of Montreal. His popularity is due in a large measure to the activity that he he has manifested in the promulgation of the work of the Church represented by the convention.

Civic Address.

The meeting was opened with a song service under the able direction of Rev. H. C. Bryant of Lindsay, following which an address of welcome was extended to the visitors by Aldermen Gordon and Langford respectively on behalf of the civic administration. His Worship, Mayor Bradburn was unavoidably absent. Ald. Gordon paid a glowing compliment to the Baptist denomination, and also eulogised Rev. J. R Webb, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church for his untiring efforts to achieve the moral uplift of those over whom he exercised spiritual supervision. Ald. Gordon deplored the infrequency with which Baptist ministers exchanged pulpits with other Protestant denominations. This he contended, constituted a weakness which he hoped eventually would be overcome.

Rev. Dr. A. A. Cameron, ex-pastor of the First Baptist Church of Ottawa, in replying to the civic address, commented upon the striking changes apparent in Peterborough since the last convention was held here seven year ago. He was pleased to note the progress Peterborough was making in conjunction with other cities of Ontario and predicted an enjoyable time for the delegates in attendance.

The President's Address.

"It is not only a great honour but a great privilege to preside over this large and representative body of our Baptist people, in this splendid City and in this beautiful new Church, whose much esteemed pastor has been my friend and co-worker for many year," said Mr. Ayer at the commencement of his address.

"These annual meetings should encourage and stimulate our people in Ontario and Quebec to do their part in upholding and spreading evangelical religion throughout Canada and the world."

In introducing his subject, "The Church and the World," Mr. Ayer referred to the marvellous advance that had been made in the world in the last hundred years in medicine, science, agriculture, in machinery, in electricity and in the various new inventions as seen on land, on sea, on the earth, under the earth and in the air.

"Never in the history of the world were there days like these days, nor times like these times," remarked the speaker.

"Never were opportunities so numerous, so far reaching, so momentous, to be, to do, to live, for God, for the world, and for self as to-day. And because of this one is led further to say: "Never in the history of the world or of the Christian Church was any subject of more importance for us to consider than that of the Church and the world.

I am quite aware that in choosing such a subject, I can only hope to draw your attention to the influence of events which have transpired and conditions which have developed so rapidly that most of our churches have not realised the necessity of adopting new methods in order to meet these new conditions and thus hold the young people of our own families and at the same time reach and bring others into the Church."

WAR AND VICE.

Never was the brain of man more active for man's uplift as seen in the scientific, business, and physical world, and never more active for his downfall as seen in selfishness, in greed, and in war and its enormous waste and destruction of property and men. The massacres of men, women and children during the Balkan wars was not only revolting to all Christian people, but a disgrace in this twentieth century to the great nations of the earth, which boast of their progress and talk much of peace.

The lure of the city has drawn the young men and maidens from the simple country life to the dangers and pitfalls of the centres of population.

THE CHURCHES' DUTY.

Who is to stop these awful wars with their attendant waste and suffering? Who is to close the saloons and brothels, the breeders of the gunmen, of vice, poverty, and degradation? Who is to counteract and destroy the various devilish devices of men and women of the underworld, which degrade the body, debase the mental faculties, and ruin the soul? Who, if Christian people of all denominations do not unite in doing it?

Is the Church fulfilling her mission in the great cities and among the governments of the world?

The Church should be the leveller of men, the place of meeting on an equal footing of the learned and unlearned, the rich and the poor, the source of influence for all sorts and conditions of men.

How to stop wars, to close the saloons, and to counteract vice should be the constant aim of the Christian Church of all denominations.

CHANGED METHODS.

Do not the phenomenal and rapid changes which have affected the people, in what is called the materialistic world, require changed methods and ways of approach to these people on the part of the Church, if men and women of the world are to be led to see the real purpose of life, and to know God and to know ourselves?

The Church should be prepared to meet the outlook and inlook of the people under such conditions of life as we have to-day.

Are the theological expressions, the plans of sermonizing, the modes of presenting truth, the teaching, the expositions, and the forms of service, which were suitable to our forefathers and their forefathers, suitable for the changed conditions of to-day?

Are the theological teachings of Luther and Calvin, of Wesley and Fuller, or of many others of their day, adapted to the larger and more developed minds of the congregations of to-day?

Truth is unchangeable, but the method of application of it changes and thereby the life and destinies of men and women are changed in their relation and responsibility to God. Truth should be framed and applied in a way to attract all sorts and conditions of men, so that in Paul's words, "we may by all means save some."

Many pastors have asked the question, "What can I do to bring the people to church; it is so discouraging to preach to half-empty pews? How and what shall I preach, or how can I reach this or that family or individual?"

The learning and energy of many good and gifted men is not, I fear, being applied in a way to best meet the changed environment of the men of the world, who may talk freely with their friends and associates, but are silent in the presence of a minister or the prominent officers of a church.

If the Church has been what it might have been, the world would have been won to Christ and His Church long ago. If the Church, that is to say its members, were less of the world and more "for Christ and His Church," the world could even yet be won in a short time. What hinders?

For some reason the people flock to the theatres and the moving picture shows and other places of amusement, while our churches remain half empty. Is it not a fact that while the usual sermon is understood and appreciated by the Bible student and the Sunday School teacher and scholar, that the man of the world is seldom reached or interested? The worship of God in our churches appears to him largely a formality, for to him in most instances there is a monotony of service, in the reading, the singing, the prayers, and even in the sermon.

GRAND JURY'S PRESENTMENT WAS RETURNED THIS MORNING

The Jury Recommend That Additional Cell Accommodation be Provided for the Prisoners at the County Gaol ---Public Institutions Throughout the County Are in First-class Shape---Fire Escapes Required for the Protestant Home.

The report of the Grand Jury was returned this morning at ten o'clock. The presentment was received by Sheriff Hall in the absence of Mr. Justice Middleton, the presiding Judge at the Fall Sittings of the High Court, who returned to Toronto yesterday at the conclusion of the sittings. The Grand Jury in their report, recommend the construction of fire escapes on the Protestant Home.

The report is as follows:

To His Lordship Justice Middleton:

May it please your Lordship:—We, the Grand Jury at the Autumn Assizes of the High Court of Justice, beg leave to report that as directed by your Lordship, we have visited the various institutions.

In visiting the Court House and Jail we found in the latter twenty-prisoners, 19 being males and one female, most of them serving short sentences. We found them well cared for and the surroundings in good order, but would recommend that additional cells be provided for the accommodation, as we are told that sometimes there has been a shortage of cells.

In St. Joseph's Hospital we found 25 patients, and in the House of Providence 68 old, infirm people. In both of those we found everything in first class order.

In St. Vincent's Orphanage we found 32 children under the care of the Sisters, in a splendid building, well equipped.

At the Nicholls Hospital we found 40 patients and everything in first-class shape, which speaks well for the staff, which will be increased in a short time, as the new wing (which will be double the capacity) will be completed in a short time.

At the Protestant Home we found a splendid building with 25 old people attended to. We would, however, recommend that fire escapes be put on this building for the safety of the inmates.

In the Children's Shelter we found 11 unfortunate waifs under the care of the Children's Aid Society, who are being well cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Henry.

At the County House of Refuge we found 32 inmates (20 males and 12 females). This is a splendid building thoroughly equipped, and on a farm, nine miles from Peterborough, and under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Beavis. Everything around and about showed that great care and attention were being given the inmates.

We are pleased to generally report as a result of our inspection that all the public institutions are in good condition as to construction and equipment and that the inmates are well cared for by capable and efficient officials.

In conclusion, your Grand Jury would congratulate the City and County on the lightness of the Criminal Calendar.

(Signed.) WM. COLLINS,
Foreman.

RECORD CROWD IN ATTENDANCE AT THE ANNUAL EXHIBITION AT NORWOOD YESTERDAY

Between 7,000 and 8000 People on the Grounds and East Peterboro's Big Fair Surpassed All Previous Exhibitions, Both in Attendance and Entries.

WAS A GRAND SUCCESS

As if to make amends for the downpour of rain he provided last year, the weatherman favoured the annual exhibition of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society at Norwood yesterday with the finest possible specimen of an October day, and the result was undoubtedly the most successful exhibition in the history of the society. Between seven and eight thousand people were on the grounds during the afternoon, the surrounding country side and every village and town in the district contributing to the record attendance From an early hour in the morning the dust clouds never had a chance to settle on any of the roads leading to Norwood, so thick was the stream of vehicular traffic pouring towards the village. Motor cars from every direction brought exhibition visitors. Peterborough motorists being particularly well represented. Peterborough also sent a big contingent down on the noon C.P.R. train, over three hundred people from here making the annual pilgrimage to East Peterborough's big event.

The weather was simply perfect — warm and bright with a summer-like feeling in the air that made every one feel in a holiday mood, and the scene at the height of the Exhibition was a brilliant one. The grounds were crowded along the Midway and on the slope of the hill over-looking the judging ring. At this latter point of vantage many people contended themselves for the afternoon, finding ample interest in the judging of the different equine classes.

Not only was the attendance a record-breaker, but the entries both in quantity and quality were ahead of other years, and the directors have every reason to feel satisfied at the result of their efforts.

Since last year a new brick armoury has been erected on the Exhibition Grounds and this commodious structure was used yesterday as a main building, answering admirably for this purpose. Inside in addition to a number of special exhibits there was a fine showing of roots and fruits while the ladies' work and the art exhibits also shown in the same building were admirable. The old wooden structure formerly used as a main building was devoted to the poultry exhibit which was a large and commendable one. In this building the Department of Agriculture of the Dominion Government had a special egg exhibit, including a demonstration of the candling and grading of eggs.

The Rural School exhibit of the Ontario Department of Agriculture was shown on the same large lines as at the Peterborough Exhibition and the tent was thronged with visitors during the afternoon.

The Midway always a feature of the Norwood Exhibition, was as lively as ever and all the concessionaires seemed to be doing a thriving business. Even the ice cream cone man whose trade is usually precarious in the middle of October was happy, the warm sun and the dust combining to help him in his efforts to get rid of his stock.

From an amusement standpoint the feature of greatest interest was the horse racing, and although there were but two events on the card, the crowd got its money's worth easily, as both races needed five heats before a winner could be nominated.

The free-for-all was a fine race between W. A. Fanning's "Picket Boy" and Dr. Johnston's "Susie Hal." The Peterborough mare won the first two heats after a hard fight, but "Picket Boy" came on and won the next three, taking the big end of the purse.

In the green race, A. Elmhirst's "Maud Sweet" and C. Fife's "Dr. Johnston" had a merry duel. The other entrant was J. Dinsdale's "Jack Brooks," the latter losing a wheel off his sulkey in the second heat and being unable to finish, although he was given third place by the judges. Here is the summary:

Free-For-All.

1	Picket Boy, W. A. Fanning, Lindsay	2	2	1	1	1
2	Susie Hal, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough	1	1	2	2	2
3	Bourbon Brook, A. Elmhurst, Otonabee	3	3	3	3	3

2	Maud Sweet, A. Elmhirst	2	1	1	2	2
3	Jack Brooks, J. Dinsdale	3	3	3	3	3

There was a specially fine showing of cattle, among the principal exhibitors being Wm. Wilson of Warkworth, who showed 12 head of breeding cows and heifer calves. Richard Patterson, of South Dummer, a herd of short

AN APPEAL FROM MAYOR BRADBURN

His Worship Asks the Citizens of Peterborough to Make Liberal Response to the Tag Day Call

A WORTHY OBJECT

To the Editor of The Examiner.

On Saturday next our citizens are to be afforded another opportunity of showing, in a practical way, their sympathy with one of the most worthy charities, namely, the Children's Aid Society. Let us all then, without stint, and ungrudgingly respond to the call of the "Taggers" who have been allotted districts and marshalled into line by the energetic committee of faithful ladies who are giving their valuable services for the advance of this noble Society.

Yours truly,
W. H. BRADBURN.

Discharged With A Warning

Character Evidence Submitted by the Police Was Satisfactory in the Case of John Morgan

The character evidence produced by Chief of Police Thompson in respect to one John Morgan, who the means of procuring the latter's release this morning.

Morgan was apprehended one week ago by Special Officer Weller of the C.P.R., on a charge of stealing a ride on the company's cars. The accused carried a large sum of money when arrested. He was remanded for a week in order to enable the police to look up his record which proved to be satisfactory to Magistrate Dumble who discharged Morgan with a warning.

A HANDSOME ESTABLISHMENT

Mason's Floral Emporium Shows Many Improvements

A more attractive florist's Emporium is not to be found outside the very large cities, than that of Mr. Francis Mason, Water street. Recent improvements have rendered it a most up-to-date establishment, and passersby stop in admiration(it being so entirely different to anything of its kind in Peterborough. The emporium is built of small stone and the placing of new windows and large plate glass doors, the woodwork of which is finished in oak, makes a very handsome front. The interior is done entirely in white, and on entering one is immediately struck by the cleanliness of the plan. The ceiling and walls are done in metallic and along the south side some spacious showcases have been installed. One of the best floral refrigerators that could be had, has been secured and is a valuable acquisition for the care and preservation of cut flowers.

Mr. Mason has been in business for the past forty years, and has made rapid progress until now he is the proprietor of one of the finest greendaughter for the past fifteen years, having his new emporium formally opened on Saturday, when the public is cordially invited to come and view the new premises.

Local Man Faces Serious Charge

The case of Garnett Innis was enlarged by Magistrate Dumble this morning until Tuesday next, Oct. 21st, when it is expected that the accused will be committed for trial The enlargement was ordered to allow of the depositions to be placed before the County Judge. Innis was charged with supplying drugs to a local young lady, with the object of procuring a miscarriage. The young lady gave evidence, as to how, when, and where the alleged offence was committed and former employers of the girl also gave evidence.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defence, and Crown Attorney Woon conducted the prosecution.

THE BENSFORT CHEESE FACTORY IS DESTROYED

Spark From Engine Room Is Thought to Have Been Responsible for Serious Blaze This Morning

LOSS WILL BE $2,000

A spark from the engine room set fire to the cheese factory at Bensfort this morning about eleven o'clock, and within an hour the building was gutted. The loss is estimated at $2,000, part of which is covered by insurance. The factory is owned by Messrs. Taylor and Kerr. A shipment of cheese comprising fifty boxes was made a short time before the fire occurred.

ADDRESS AND PURSE FOR REV. J. J. O'BRIEN

New Pastor of Sacred Heart Church Remembered by His Former Parishioners at Young's Point

The members of St. Mary's Parish, Young's Point, extended a parting mark of respect on Tuesday night to their former pastor, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, who is now parish priest of the Church of the Sacred Heart. Father O'Brien was presented with an address and a purse of gold coins. In the address reference was made to his efforts on behalf of the congregation and to the material improvements to the church property. The address was signed by Messrs. P. A. Kearney, P. P. Young, Jas. Walsh, Jas. Young, Wm. Hogan, L. Ayotte, Jas. Carroll, Jas. Fanning and Walter Young.

Rev. Father O'Brien made a neat reply expressing his appreciation of the kindness shown by his former parishioners, and thanking them for the gift with which they had presented him.

"Shower" Of Fruit Was Very Copious

Four hundred "sealers" of fruit and a liberal financial showing were the results of the second annual fruit shower under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Joseph's Hospital, which was held yesterday afternoon and evening at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum. The ladies were delighted with ther esults, and the guests enjoyed a very pleasant social evening. Tea was served during the afternoon, and a refreshment booth was kept busy.

A PETERBOROUGH BOY GOES TO STUDY IN ROME

The saying goes—"All roads lead to Rome" and a Peterborough boy it following one of them. Mr. Michael O'Brien, Jr., son of Provincial School Inspector O'Brien, 309 Reid street, left this morning en route to New York, whence he will sail on Saturday on the steamer Barbarossa of the North-German Lloyd line for Rome. Mr. O'Brien, having graduated with distinction at the Toronto University showed qualities that commended him for selection, for the pursuit of Theological studies, under the best conditions in the Eternal City. He will, therefore, spend four years in completing a course in Theology at the Seminario Romanio, where the Latin language is used as the language of instruction and lectures; in this regard an admirable training for the priesthood.

The many friends of Mr. O'Brien and his family will congratulate him upon the enviable opportunity that has been presented him, and wish him that success in his student career which has mental endowment and qualities as a student make humanly certain.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

THURSDAY, OCT. 16, 1913

CHATEAUGUAY PROTESTED.

At a meeting of Liberal leaders, held in Montreal, yesterday afternoon, it was decided to enter an appeal against the recent bye-election in Chateauguay. It is felt that there is abundant evidence of corrupt and undue influence not only to invalidate the election, but to warrant condign punishment of the parties guilty of the corrupt methods that a judicial investigation will reveal. We may look for startling revelations of the sordid means employed to "express public opinion" in Chateauguay, on October 11th.

GARBAGE COLLECTION.

The necessity of the proper administration of the garbage by-law is evident. It was devised in the interests of the citizens and the public health; the citizens have to pay for the service and the service will be satisfactory or otherwise in proportion to the powers given the official responsible for its administration. At one time we had perpetual discord in the Fire Department, detrimental to the morale of the brigade, and consequently to its efficiency, more or less due to the fussy interference of aldermen. Since this has been eliminated and the Chief held responsible for the discipline and effective administration of the department, there have been better conditions. The health inspector should have a similar relation to the administration of the garbage by-law. He should be made responsible and held to strict account, but to justify this he must be given a free hand, within the limits of the authority vested in him, and must not be subjected to interference in the exercise of his authority, that will tend to weaken it, and in turn tend to ineffective service. Any interference that will promote insubordination on the part of those subject to proper authority is wrong in principle and unsatisfactory in results. The sanitary inspector, not his subordinates, is theoretically the proper and only judge of the proper performance of the work he is specifically appointed and empowered to direct. In all other departments of the civic service payments are made upon the certificate of the official in charge of the work done under that department, and there seems to be no good reason why this should not apply to the branch of the Health Department, for which the Sanitary Inspector, is, or should be made responsible—under conditions that will not make his responsibility a matter of form.

THE OTHER POINT OF VIEW.

The angle of view affects our perception of things in a very important way. Many ministers of the Gospel, who seldom listen to any sermons but their own, haven't a frequent opportunity of learning the other point of view—that of the pew. But the ministers attending the Baptist convention heard in the well reasoned opening address of the President, a presentation of truth from the point of view of the layman. The President of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, Mr. A. A. Ayer of Montreal is a layman of, perhaps, half a century of business experience, as energetic in commercial affairs as he has been in religious and moral activities. It is the policy of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec to have its president alternately a minister and a layman. This year Mr. Ayer fills the presidential seat, and the address he delivered naturally evolved the laymen's, and as it apparently proved, the other point of view. Twice a day for fifty-two days in the year ministers impress the dictum of their authority and office upon the, preforce, submissive layman, and it is perhaps wholesome once in two years to have ministers put themselves in the place of the occupant of the pew and listen to the manner in which the interests of religion, the value and effectiveness of the agencies employed in promoting these interests appeal to, and appear to the keenly, practical and illuminated lay mind.

The address of Mr. Ayer, a very full summary of which appears in our news columns, was as robust in character, as fearless in critical argument. He takes the position that the wonderful progress of the world, with the attendant radical changes in social and moral conditions and popular temperament, call for the adaptation of changed methods of approach and dealing to the new conditions of society and humanity. Without disrespect, but in a spirit of earnest inquiry, Mr. Ayer seemed inclined to give a somewhat literal application of St. Paul's words—"the foolishness of preaching." At least he made the query as to whether the past and present "style" of preaching and modes of presenting truth and forms of religious service were best for the changed conditions of to-day." Another inquiry referred to the changed attitude of the people to religion, involving a corresponding change in methods on the part of the Church. These enquiries apparently tantamount to assertion, are important as showing the vision from the other point of view, of a shrewd business man, whose natural impatience for results counsels the practical way. Mr. Ayer made various suggestions of a practical nature, but the merit of them is not the important matter. The important matter is that a business man suggests business method in the matter of implementing the principles of the Christian religion. While the Founder of the Christian religion was yet a child he struck the key note—that of the methods best to follow—"Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" The essence of a business man's address was the application of business methods to the great business of saving mankind. The other point of view cannot fail to evoke serious consideration on the part of those to whom it was presented, both clerical and lay. This is a bustling business age, in which quick results, rapid "turnovers" are worked for and expected. The spirit of the age would seem to demand that the "Father's business" might have the benefit of directer and more practical methods, consonant with the changed environment subject to its influence.

THE HEROES IN WALES.

While the sympathies of Montrealers, and indeed of all the citizens of Canada, will go out to the hundreds of families bereaved by the appalling mine disaster in Wales, there will at the same time be a feeling of pride in the heroic behaviour of those brave colliers who almost fought for the privilege of descending the mines to the rescue of their comrades. Almost before the echoes of the devastating explosion had died away miners were flocking to the pit mouth in hundreds eager to face death underground in the hope of saving those who were entombed. The Welsh are an important constituent element of the British nation, and not less than any other element of that nation, they have shown that the British tradition is a part of their endowment. Here were Welshmen by the hundred rushing down into the very bowels of the earth to fight as heroic a battle with the raging powers of death as ever was fought. Not all the history of "the grandeur that was Rome," or "the glory that was Greece," contains record of more truly noble deeds. Thanks to these heroes over half of the 900 entombed men were saved from destruction by fire or noxious gases. Let nobody say that the British are deteriorating while heroism like this lies dormant in the breasts of the common people.—Montreal Telegraph.

CYNIC AND IDEALIST.

Ministerial explanations of Chateauguay do not agree. The News is frankly cynical. It expresses its belief that,

"if there was corruption in Chateauguay we may be certain that the Liberal managers at least spent dollar for dollar with their opponents."

The Mail and Empire, though the older organ of the two, appears to be the greater idealist. "It dreams that there was a battle of principles in Chateauguay. Liberals brought forward arguments which were dross. Conservatives confined themselves to arguments which were gold thrice refined.

Chateauguay pondered, and decided in favour of justice and wisdom, as typified in Mr. Rogers.

There you have the two explanations. Dollars of equal intrinsic value, according to the News. Arguments of unequal value, according to the Mail and Empire. Between these two Conservative authorities we do not presume to judge. One would like to know, however, what were the sources of the information on which these varying opinions are based. We have not seen any report of the arguments used by Mr. Rogers and his friends which confounded the Liberal arguments. Why does not the Mail and Empire print them, so that they may convince not only Chateauguay, but all Canada?

On the other hand, if the News knows that the two parties spent dollar for dollar, it must know what was spent by its own friends, the practical politicians as distinguished from the school of Rogers. Why not publish the account? Let us have the facts on which the Ancient Idealist and the Youthful Cynic base their opinions.—Toronto Star.

A NEIGHBOUR'S VIEW OF CANADA AND THEIR TARIFF

It is singular that those who were most affronted by the suggestion that Canada is an adjunct of the United States, commercially speaking, are foremost in proving the aspersion. As it seems to us, the relative sizes of the two countries remove any reproach from the fact that the commerce of the United States is the larger, and influences Canada more than Canada's trade influences the United States. It is simple fact that the trade of Canada was not particularly in mind when our new tariff was enacted. It took its place in the general revision without any special discrimination or favour. But no sooner does the law become effective than those Canadians who led the outcry against reciprocity between Canada and the United States make special calculations regarding the effect upon Canada. They point out that the United States has made reductions of duties in favour of Canada to a total of $4,995,610, against $4,849,933 under the arrangement which Canada rejected. And that they claim to be a victory for Canadian trade.

It is said that the imports of Canadian meat average a carload each hour since the tariff became effective. Hay, fish, dairy products, lumber of certain sorts are all arriving in quantities, and will arrive in greater. Canadian sellers are rejoicing not less than American buyers. Neither thinks at all of any reproach in the trade, and there is not a lisp of politics heard. But there is plenty of Canadian politics in the fact that Canadian buyers do not share the rejoicings of American buyers. As they perceive the stimulus to trade on this side the border, and as they remark the faling prices, they ask bitterly why this boon is denied to them, and what sort of patriotism it is that discriminates in favour of Canadian sellers at the expense of Canadian buyers. They demand that the Canadian customs on American wheat shall be removed in order that Canadian wheat shall be included in the favoured list. They demand that American agricultural implements shall be admitted into Canada on favoured terms. The refusal of the concessions to the United States, that is the refusal to reduce the Canadian customs in the interest of theb uyers of American goods, sustains the Canadian cost of living at the range from which the cost of living on this side the border is falling.

Accordingly, there is a quick demand for the enactment of the withheld half of the reciprocity treaty. Sir Wilfrid makes this the issue in the first by-election since the tariff became effective. It is expected that Parliament will meet in November, and then there will be a field day. Embarrassments on this account, and on account of the ill-fated naval policy, will not exhaust the Government's troubles. The Dominion's accounts show that expenses are increasing three times as fast as revenue. Trade is not so brisk as it was, and needs unshackling no less than our own did. The hope of the Government would seem to lie in a volte face, that is to say in a reversion to the naval policy which Premier Borden originally approved, and in the voluntary enactment of that degree of freedom of trade which was withheld as part of the Taft-Fielding bargian. Canada and the United States would then be on an equality in that each would receive as a gift what it had previously bargained to exchange for a consideration. — New York Times.

MR. FIELDING'S RETURN TO JOURNALISM.

It has been authentically announced that the late Minister of Finance has consented to serve as editor-in-chief of The Montreal Telegraph, which absorbed the late Daily Witness. The Telegraph will be a straight Liberal jornal and under Mr. Fielding's editorial management it will doubtless render excellent service not merely to the Liberal party but also to the whole community.

Mr. Fielding is not a novice in the journalistic profession. At sixteen he joined the staff of The Halifax Morning Chronicle, and by rapid but well-merited promotions he reached the managing editorship. He retired from the position in 1884 to become Premier of Nova Scotia, which office he filled continuously till he was called to the portfolio of Finance in the Laurier Ministry formed in 1896. His aptitude for the new career had been proved by his personal management of the finances of Nova Scotia, of which Province he was Secretary and Treasurer during the whole term of his Premiership. Mr. Fielding proved himself a consummate Parliamentarian well informed as a departmental head, courteous in debate, alert as a strategist, and broad-minded in his statesmanship. All of these qualities are as necessary to the editor as they are to the Minister of Finance, and Mr. Fielding will find ample scope for his resumed activities in the great city of Montreal.—The Globe.

THE ROYAL WEDDING.

The Royal wedding yesterday was one of special interest to Canadians. The future of the only son of the Governor-General of Canada, who with the Duchess will return to his post before this month has expired, cannot be a matter of indifference to the Canadian people. Some years ago, after the bridegroom had paid a ceremonial visit to Japan, he returned home by way of Canada, salting at various points in the Dominion and enjoying some pleasant experiences in fishing and shooting, which Canada presents in almost unlimited variety.

For some time the bride was the only life between him and the position of heir presumptive to the throne. He has, while his cousins have been too young to take their share in public life, accomplished a considerable amount of the ceremonial work necessary in the case of a monarchy, as the King's special representative.

The Prince, following in the footsteps of his father, declined the heirship of the Grand Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, preferring the rank of an English gentleman to that of a reigning German Grand Duke. This renunciation, although incurring no sacrifice except that of rank, does something to increase the interest in the Prince's future career. It is probable that he will find ample opportunities for the exercise of the diplomatic talents which he has acquired through a long apprenticeship by again following in the footsteps of his father and assisting in the work of the Empire.

Theb ride has been kept quietly in the background. Her mother, the eldest child of King Edward, ever since her marriage to the late Duke of Fife, owing, it is understood, both to delicate health and personal inclination, lived a country life and was only rarely tempted by the gaieties of a London season to take a slight part therein. In all probability the young people will share to a much greater extent than the bride has hitherto done in the national public life. This high position entails responsibilities and the Prince has shown every desire to meet them.—Ottawa Free Press.

A NEW CLUB

By RUTH CAMERON

We have a new club in our neighbourhood.

It is an extremely informal affair—no dues, no initiation, no meeting.

All there is to it is a name and a promise. The name is, "The Breathers" and the promise is that at least three times a day, and preferably much oftener, we will really breathe.

Of course that sounds perfectly absurd, but give me a few minutes and I'll try to make it less so.

How often do you breathe to the full depth of your lungs' capacity?

Probably not once a week if you are an average person.

Well that failure is what we promise each other to avoid.

When that lazy, listless feeling comes over you and your work—be it office work or house work or teaching, or what-all drags, and your head feels stupid, did you ever try going into an adjoining room, opening the windows and deep breathing?

That's what we do.

And though we don't advertise this remedy as a cure-all, we do feel it comes pretty near being a help-all.

Won't you join our club?

You can do it without any fuss or feathers—simply by making our promise to yourself.

Let me give you one or two suggestions in case you do.

Breathe, of course, away down to the bottom of your lungs. While you are doing it draw the head in and back, lift your chest and stretch upwards. You can let the shoulders hang limp. After you have done this a few times try holding the breath and letting it out as slowly as possible, trying not to let the chest collapse until it is all out.

If you care for more vigorous exercises you can swing your arms, striking your chest very lightly with the tips of your fingers while you hold the breath.

Another good accompaniment to breathing is to hold the arms with the elbows crooked and the fists clenched close against the side, and as you exhale, force the arms back as if you were pulling against something.

One thing that these exercises always do for me, and I fancy for anyone else, is that when I come back into the room where I have been working after doing them, I instantly realise how stuffy it is, and air it.

If you haven't the backbone to do these informal exercises, it will help some to remember to breathe deeply often when you are out in the open air.

And even if you do do the formal exercises it will help to do this, too. You can take the first exercise all but the stretching as you walk along the street, without anyone being the wiser.

An article on sub-oxygenation as the raison d-etre of half our mortal ills aroused our interest in our lungs.

It pointed out that better oxygenation of the system by deep breathing would improve the complexion, deepen the chest, increase the vitality, improve the appetite, digestion and circulation, and, by the pressure of the diaphragm muscle—estimated at two hundred pounds—would correct sluggishness of the bowels.

It sounds like a pretty big promise, doesn't it?

But we thought it was worth trying out.

Don't you?

HIS "BLARNEY" WON

A traveller in London was set upon by an importunate Irish beggar, a shiftless looking fellow but with the blarney wagging tongue of one gifted. The beggar followed the traveller mouthing sweet nothings and lies.

"An' sure, yure riverence, it wasn't that I was ever like this," he said. "It's often I've heard me mother say that we was noble by rights and that one of the family once wore the crown of Ireland, sir.'

"Well, what do you want?" asked the traveller. "Would you have the crown back? I can not give it to you."

The Irishman sidled a bit closer.

"Ah, sure, a half a crown would do, sir."

He got it.

PETERBORO' BOY'S BUSINESS SUCCESS

Mr. J. E. Kelso Left Here in 1880 Has Built up Laundry

Mr. J. E. Kelso and wife are in Town spending a few days with relatives and old school mates. Mr. Kelso left Peterborough on January 2nd, 1880, to enter the laundry business in Rochester, N.Y., and has since made a life study of the business. The laundry he entered was simply a one-room-hand laundry handling a few shirts and collars, but as the city grew the laundry was pushed accordingly, and the accompanying cut shows the buildings as they are to-day. This year they have added a new stable, with thirty-two stalls and a new building to be used exclusively for work known as wet-wash. This is a comparatively new feature in the laundry. The work is simply washed and the water extracted from it. This new buildings will take care of about 3,-500 family washings each week. This is a separate department from their regular work. Mr. Kelso states that they laundered about 27 tons of goods each week, and were growing. One of their strong points held to the public was their opening of their entire plant for inspection Tuesday and Wednesday of each week, and any person from Peterboorugh visiting Rochester will be made welcome at any time.

It will be an interesting sight for those unfamiliar with the business. Mr. Kelso visits his old home about once a year and is pleased with Peterborough's progress.—Com.

MAY A BELL MARKS ARTIST

May A. Bell Marks, the talented artist, with a strong supporting company, will be at the Grand Opera House all of the next week.

Perhaps a word in regard to this gifted lady would not be amiss at this moment. There are but few dramatic stars who cover as wide a range of emotional feeling as Miss Marks. Her impersonations impart a touch of realism to the characters portrayed that is easily recognized as the truth. This is the great goal of the artist—truth.

So that when character is depicted and warm, strong, human feeling displayed, we realize that it is true because it is natural. To act, even this power involves years of constant study and increasing investigation into actual human conditions.

Not everyone can slip into a character drawn by some dramatic writer and make it real. There are many on the stage who are unable to do this, so their work is largely mechanical. They have not the gift. Nature has not endowed them with the divine spark.

Miss Marks, on the other hand, possesses this gift, and it is this which instantly places her in direct accord with her audiences.

Grand Opera House, Monday, Oct. 20th. For nine performances. Six nights and three matinees, Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. Seats will be reserved for Thanksgiving matinee, Monday, Oct. 20th. Seats on sale at box office Friday at 9 a.m.

Literature Can Be Made Asset In Gospel Work

Rev. Dr. Graham Deals With Important Question in an Address at Baptist Convention This Morning—Books Exert Influence on Men

ALWAYS RECOGNIZED

The influence of literature upon religious progress was touched upon briefly, but impressively, by Rev. W. T. Graham, D.D., in seconding the report of the Publication Board at the Baptist convention this morning.

Going back to the earliest days of Christianity, Rev. Dr. Graham pointed out that the apostles found the necessity and advisability of writing their messages to the people in outlying parts. This continued on down to the Reformation, and Rev. Dr. Graham stated that possibly the writings of the Reformers contributed more to the outcome of their work than did their preaching.

Modern Examples.

Apart from the matter of their writings present day teachers of new beliefs bend their efforts toward spreading their literature into the homes of the people. To make their ideas known they send agents from house to house and endeavor to put their literature into the hearts of families or individuals who have been won over by the reading of such books.

Rev. Dr. Graham mentioned no particular literature, but there has been one form of new doctrine familiar to the majority of his hearers and quite readily recalled.

Book Changes Life.

Rev. Dr. Graham stated that in many cases the whole life of a man had been changed by a book that he had read or probably only a passage from it. And realizing this influence he said: "We cannot overlook the importance of literature in the work of Jesus Christ."

"The Baptist Church has a history and a literature of its own, and our books and papers should be put into the homes of all our people."

Rev. Dr. Graham pointed out the need of being able to put forward ones' convictions in a friendly spirit, and it was largely by reading the literature of the Church that one would be prepared. "Our young boys and girls should be saturated with the Baptist idea. They should not be ashamed to stand for Christ, and should be strong members of the Church." This Dr. Graham pointed out would be furthered by the dissemination of Baptist literature.

The Baptist Church in Canada is now supplied with a modern and complete equipment for producing literature, and the speaker urged that as far as possible books published there be purchased.

DEFENDS THE CAPTAIN OF CARMANIA

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Captain Inch of the ill-fated Volturno has come to the defence of Captain Barr of the Carmania regarding the latter's failure to send lifeboats to help the people of the Volturno. Several of the survivors and some officers stated that Barr would not risk his lifeboats till it was demonstrated that some other ships boats got along all right. Inch says Barr's boats made an attempt but had to return. The dispute will be threshed out at the London Board of Trade inquiry, where Barr will be under some criticism.

Soiled Papers.

Large papers or leaves of books that have become soiled from much handling can be put into perfect condition if the loose dirt is first rubbed off with a piece of bread. Then cover the spots with blotting paper made damp with oxalic acid in solution. Lastly pass a hot iron over the blotting paper until it dries.

To remove deep set creases in papers or the leaves of a book put between two pieces of white blotting paper—or any unsized paper—slightly dampened, and press with a warm iron until the page is perfectly smooth.

The Epworth League Convention of the Lindsay District Epworth League was held in the Methodist Church, Omemee on Wednesday, Oct. 8th. The Church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with house plants, wood-vine, welcome pennants, flags, etc., with Rev. W. W. Jones of Janetville, the President of the District in the chair for the three sessions—morning, afternoon and evening, which were a decided success and enjoyed by all present.

At the afternoon session Dr. J. N. Thompson, a layman in the Methodist Church, Omemee, gave a very interesting address on "The Hill Difficulty—What is Yours?" and on discussion which followed, none of the Leaguers of the District seemed to have any difficulty but what could be overcome by each member doing his or her part.

Mr. Frank Riches of Cambray, the ex-president of the district, received rapt attention during his short talk on "How to make the Week Night Service Go."

Rev. Mr. Fairville, field secretary made his addresses in the afternoon and evening, respectively, very clear and interesting by illustrations on the blackboard. How much more work would be accomplished were it not for those three little words "But" "If," and Won't!" But if each one of us would substitute these three other words, 'can, 'should' and 'will,' the world would be full of sunshine, and our labour would not be in vain.

"Our Call to the Home Field," was ably taken by Rev. J. W. Whyte of Minden.

Tea was served in the basement, after the afternoon session and a social hour spent. The meetings were very helpful and interesting, and everybody seemed to be so alert and sociable in welcoming strangers that a gatherin of this kind will be looked forward to with much appreciation.

Among those from a distance who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. F. Riches of Cambray, Miss Merks and Miss Wright of Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. Bradburn of Janetville, Misses Bryans and Thurston of Dunsford, Rev. Mr. MacMillan of Lindsay, Rev. W. W. FINE WATCH REPAIRING

Cheap watch repairing may appeal to some, but generally speaking experience proves work done cheaply is generally done poorly, and in the end is the final ruin of a good watch. We have first-class workmen and do only high-class work. No other place can do any better. Our charges are no higher than others, for good work. If you have a good watch you will find it economical to have us do your repairing.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1899 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism I suffered as only those who have it know for over 3 years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be the long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write to-day.

The "Maish" Comforter

As it's name implies, it is a truly "comfortable" comfort.

It imparts warmth without weight, and it's filling is of downy cotton in layers, each one the full size of the comfort.

The coverings are varied and beautiful, being of silk, silkoline, or a combination of both.

And their size is 70 by 72 ins. while the prices are:—

$3.98, $4.48, $7.89 & $12.90

Wool Delaine

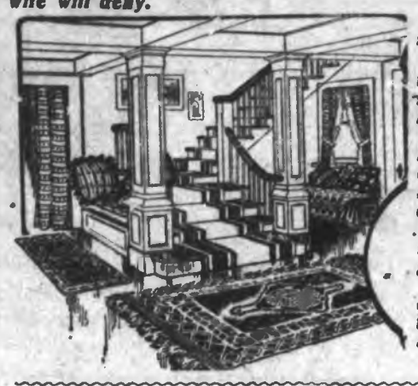
There is a pleasing assortment of patterns in this handsome fabric, that can be hardly excelled for the smart Autumn & Winter Waist that must needs wear well.

It's fine texture is silkily soft and pliable, the width being 28 inches and the price 50c a yard.

--Main Floor North.

Brussels Carpet is a Superior Stair Covering

That the heaviest wear and tear in the house is centred upon the stairs, no housewife will deny.



And time has proved that the most satisfactory stair covering is carpet.

Upon the stairs, carpet will wear better than oilcloth or linoleum, while it is softer to tread upon, makes stair climbing easier and has a richer appearance.

And Brussels Carpet, because it is made with a stout linen back, and a close, even, wool surface that is woven right through to the back, is without a doubt, the best carpet for a stairway.

It is procurable in quiet shades of self green and self red, also in fawns, greens and browns.

The patterns are of Oriental, small conventional and floral designs, while the width is three quarters of a yard, and the price $1.00 to $1.65 a yard.

---Third Floor.

Pure Wool Blankets

"Cressman's Special" is the name of a Blanket, made expressly for this store.

And because they embody such sound quality and good finish, we have not hesitated to permanently attach our name to them, as a guarantee of the confidence we have, in their giving real satisfaction.

In size 60 by 80 inches they are $2.39 a pair, and 64 by 84 ins. $2.98.

--Main Floor North

"Vyella" Waisting

"Vyella" is the finest of English flannels guaranteed unshrinkable.

It's substantial wearc is without a flaw, and rivals many fabrics that could not be washed.

There are a number of fine patterns and colourings, which are well suited for Blouse Materials.

"Vyella" is 34 ins. wide and 60c a yard.

BOARD OF WORKS DEALS WITH WALKS AND CROSSINGS

Regular Weekly Meeting on Wednesday Night—Work Still to Be Done

Ald. Buller adjusted his eyeglasses, pulled the Board of Works file toward him, and said: "Well, let us see the bill of fare to-night," and the regular weekly meeting of the Board was on.

Engineer Parsons reported that the plan to pump sewage across the river at the foot of Lock Street was feasible. A sewer could be run down Park Street and across to Lock. He had no details of the cost of pumping machinery.

Mayor Bradburn—That shows that we are doing all we can with the work.

The report was received.

Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that an application for a crossing from Mr. Peter Connal's property at 230 Brock Street to the south side of the road be constructed.—Carried.

Other Crossings.

Shades of other needed crossings arose. One is on Water Street, south of Antrim.

Mr. Parsons—We can't get up there this year.

Another was on Water Street at Anson Street.

Mayor Bradburn — There are so many crosings in Peterborough it's awful.

It was stated that people going to the Protestant Home leave the cars at Anson Street.

Moved by Ald. Duffus and Johnston that a temporary walk be laid there until one of concrete can be laid. — Carried.

Ald. Johnston said the same should be done below Antrim Street.

Mayor Bradburn—It's unnecessary.

Ald. Johnston—I like to look at it as if I were living there myself.

Ald. Buller—What's your pleasure. There is no use wasting all night over this crossing.

The crossing was on a list from Ald. Langford, proxied by Ald. Buller.

Mayor Bradburn — Ald. Langford doesn't have to run next year.

Ald. Buller— But he has some friends

A cement crossing will be laid below Antrim Street.

Maria Street, from Mark to Burnham, received attention next.

"That's a big job," Ald. Buller said.

Mayor Bradburn—Some one will fall over a loose board and we'll have another suit for damages.

Ald. Buller— We can tear up the timbers and throw down some cinders for the time being.

Ald. McIntyre—Tear it up.

Ald. Buller—We might see what we can do by way of repairing it now, but a new one will be needed next summer.

No One Ordered Gravel.

Ald. Buller looked at his note book and said: "Who asked for the gravel near the G.T.R. on Park Street? No one was guilty.

Mayor Bradburn— Maybe it's the stretch from Lake Street to the G.T.R. That road all the way to Lansdowne Street is in poor condition. It ought to be gravelled.

Ald. Buller—What about the cost of hauling to that section.

Moved by Mayor Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that the matter be left with Ald. Buller and the City Engineer.—Carried.

Denniston Avenue Case.

Ald. Johnston made a stand for repairs to Denniston Avenue.

Mayor Bradburn held that there might be other streets requiring attention more immediately than the north end street.

The Alderman replied that the Council had promised to repair the street last spring.

A motion to have the work done was defeated, and Ald. Johnston remarked, "I have done all I can, but I don't think it is at all fair."

To Move Stand-Pipes.

The question of moving the street watering stand-pipe on Dennison Avenue, and that opposite Mr. Pappas' residence on George Street, was left in the Engineer's hands with power to act.

Sewer to Dickson Co.'s Property.

The City Solicitor reported that if the plans for the sewer to the Dickson Co.'s property are approved by the Provincial Board of Health, the City can issue debentures for payment of that portion of the work not chargeable against properties. These plans will be submitted to the Provincial Board of Health for approval.

Bonner-Worth Sidewalk.

Ald. Duffus reported that the Bonner-Worth people are anxious to get a sidewalk up to their factory. He thought some accommodation should be provided. A plank walk will be laid temporarily until conditions are favourable for laying a concrete one.

To Ald. Duffus, the chairman replied that the Engineer will look into the question of gravelling the east side of Rubidge Street, north of Brock Street.

Civic Conduits.

On suggestion of Ald. Duffus, the City Engineer will report on the feasibility of the City laying underground conduits to enforce the laying of wires under ground. The several companies to pay rent for using such conduits.

Removal Of Sulzer Is A Certainty

Special Wire to The Examiner.

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 16.—While all the so-called "Impeachment" decisions so far are merely informal and unofficial counting of heads, there sems no doubt that the removal from office of Governor Sulzer was a mathematical certainty to-day. The High Court of Impeachment met at 10:15 this morning and as members filed in it was evident that like the members of criminal jury they had all made up their minds. The verdict will likely be officially recorded to-night, or it is possible that it might not be complete till to-morrow. The real issue comes on the fourth article of impeachment which declares that Sulzer suppressed evidence by means of threats to keep witnesses from testifying before the executive investigating committee.

Welcome Will Be Informal

Special Cable to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 16.—A bulletin issued from Rideau Hall this morning states that the arrival of Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia at Quebec is to be an informal one. There will be no official reception, no guard of honour, and no artillery salute, either at Quebec or Ottawa. The vice-regal party will arrive on the Empress of Britain on or about Oct. 24.

RECORD CROWD IN ATTENDANCE, ETC

horns, including milch cows, breeding cows, bull and heifer calves; J. P. Boland, Westwood, and Andrew and Wm. Knox of Norwood, who exhibited a number of prize winners, his listing containing breeding cows of the milch type, heifers and bull calves.

The Norwood band rendered a fine programme during the afternoon, their music being greatly appreciated.

Another feature was the annual inspection of the Norwood High school cadets, who made a splendid showing in their neat grey uniforms.

In the evening a concert was held in the town hall, followed by a very enjoyable dance. Many visitors from outside points remained over for the evening's events.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

There were fewer outside special exhibits of manufactured goods than formerly—not even a cream separator was shown on the grounds, while in former years they were numerous, and comprised some of the interesting sights for visiting farmers and dairy men.

Metallic Roofing and Ceilings

Mr. D. McVicker, the representative of the Metallic Roofing Co., of Toronto, made a comprehensive exhibit in a tent, showing various samples of their "Metallic" roofing and ceiling goods, now coming so much into use. "Metallic" interiors are fireproof, sanitary, permanent and beautiful. The new armouries building on the Fair grounds was roofed with this metal. H. J. Fife, of Norwood, is the district agent.

Bell Pianos

Mr. Thompson of the Norwood music store, exhibited a fine sample of the popular upright pianos manufactured by the Bell Piano Co. The tone and volume was much admired by the crowds who stood round listening to a free demonstration of its numerical qualities. Mr. Thompson also showed a lot of sheet music from his store, where the popular music of the day is kept in stock.

Pure Bred Holsteins

Mr. John H. Scott, a young and energetic cattle breeder of Belmont township, made a splendid showing of pure bred Holstein cattle, as well as a number of grades. He showed 19 head, and was successful in carrying off a good string of prizes. He won 1st prize for best herd, including one bull and three females with very superior marks; 1st prize for bull 3 years and over; and 2nd prize for his celebrated pure bred cow, "Snowflake Queen de Kol," a magnificent specimen of a pure bred milch cow, much admired by all who saw her. In grades, the entries were highly creditable to his skillful breeding, and showed the intelligent care bestowed on his stock.

McLeod's Polled Angus

The well known stock farm, "Highland Home," Plainville, near Cobourg, sent twelve head of splendid pure bred Polled Angus cattle for exhibition at this Fair. The success which Mr. J. A McLeod has made of this breed of cattle, has won for him a provincial reputation. His fine pure bred stock has been in demand al lover the country and wherever they have gone have given a good account of their breeding. The excellent specimens shows at this Fair captured six 1st prizes, four 2nd prizes and one third. His four-year old bull, which carried off first prize, is a superb looking animal weighing over two tons and has never been beaten wherever shown. Other prizes carried off by Mr. McLeod were: 1st for two-year old bull; 1st for three-year old bull; 1st for one-year old bull; 1st and 2nd for four-year old cow; 1st and 3rd for two-year old cow; 3rd for yearling. Mr. Alex. McLeod, the old and experienced father of the owner of the herd, took charge of the exhibit in consequence of the unavoidable absence of his son at home.

D. N. Dodd's Polled Angus

It was a great day for pure bred Polled Angus, and much interest was taken by farmers in the various herds on the grounds. Another lucky prize winner in this class was Mr. D. N. Doods, from Bensfort, township of South Monaghan. He showed ten head of Polled Angus consisting of five males and eight females. These showed fine breeding qualities, and won the admiration of many good judges. Mr. Dodds carried off 2nd prize for bull, 1st and 2nd for milch cow, three years old, 2nd and 3rd for milch cow under three years, 1st and 2nd for one year old, 1st for bull calf and 1st for heifer calf. Mr. Dodds' stock farm, "Lowland Grove," is situated on lot 12, concession 3, South Monaghan, where cattle buyers can always depend on finding something extra in fine registered stock.

Pure Bred Leicester Sheep

Among the excellent showing of shep, at this Fair, none attracted more attention than the superior flock of pure bred Leicesters from the folds of Messrs. Westington & Lane, Hamilton township. They succeeded in capturing 1st and 2nd prize for aged ram, 1st and 2nd for shearlings, 1st and 2nd for ram lamb, 1st, 2nd and 3rd for aged ewes, 1st, 2nd and 3rd for shearling ewes, and 1st, 2nd and 3rd for ewe lambs. This same flock defeated four of Toronto Fair's prize winners at the recent Lindsay Fair, and was successful in carrying off the special prize offered by Senator Cox of Toronto, for the best pen of sheep of any breed.

The Westington family are the oldest exhibitors of sheep in Western Canada, and have an extensive knowledge both in sheep raising and sheep judging. Their post office is Plainville P.O.

OIL BURNING BATTLESHIP LAUNCHED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Oct. 16.—Carrying a huge armament of ten 15-inch guns and large secondary batteries and provided for burning nothing but oil for fuel, H.M.S. battleship Queen Elizabeth was launched at the Dockyards here to-day. She is the first of the heavier class of warships in the world to experiment with oil only as fuel, but if found successful all future battleships of the British navy will be so equipped. She is the greatest battleship in the world today in proposed speed and equipment. She has been building just one year, and will be ready for service in less than another year.

LAKEHURST RURAL MAIL ROUTE

Mr. P. J. Scollard, Ennismore, has been awarded the contract for the new Lakehurst Rural Mail Delivery Route at a salary of $824 per year. The subsidiary route for the township of Enismore will be covered by Mr. Louis Sullivan.

The Easy Way to Banish Those Ugly, Hairy Growths

(Toilet Talks)

Every well regulated toilet table should find room for a package of powdered delatone to be used for banishing hairy growths. To remove objectionable hair or fuzz, make a paste with a little delatone and water and spread on hairy surface for about 3 minutes, then remove and wash the skin. This simple treatment is harmless and seldom requires a second application to remove every trace of hair. Any druggist can supply the delatone in an original package.

THE FASCINATING BOOK.

The greatest, the most informing, the most fascinating book in the world is the Bible. There is none like it for language, for imagery, for allegory, and for flights of oratory, and yet it is usually read without a word of explanation. No novel ever written can entertain like this book.

Sermons on theological questions have ceased to grip the souls of men in this practical twentieth century. It would be "infra dig." for me to attempt to suggest to pastors how or what to preach, but may one suggest that an effort be made to get at the view point of the other fellow and try to meet it? You may need to consult with various members of your church to find it out, for the man of the world will not usually reveal himself to you.

Perhaps not more than five per cent. of the average congregation can remember what the pastor prayed for, nor more than ten per cent. can remember every point or division of the sermon, and perhaps not even the text. But fifty to seventy-five per cent. or more, will remember the explanation of a passage of scripture or the exposition of a chapter, and many will remember it all their lives.

SHOULD BE INFORMED.

Is it too much to say that not one-half of our church members know how to answer men and women who honestly ask various questions concerning the Bible and the truths taught therein, and especially when they ask for the proof of the Resurrection of Christ. These things ought not so to be, and they are real hindrances to the spread of the Gospel. The world has a right to expect that every professing Christian should be able to give a reason for his faith.

The Sunday School is not the only place where the Bible should be taught. The sermonette to children has built up congregations.

Men are learning by experience and by a better knowledge of the Bible that neither the sign of the cross, nor the sacraments, nor the repetition of prayers, or in other words, neither signs, nor words, nor works, can save the soul. Men are looking for light and a renewed life as an evidence of vital living connection between God and man.

This is the day of proved statements. There has grown to be in these recent years a large body of high-class men called "auditors," who examine, verify, and testify to the correctness of statements. The people want facts, well authenticated, established and verified facts—facts about the Resurrection of Christ that would convince a jury of unprejudiced men.

If the Bible is neglected in the home, may it not be because the exposition and exposition of it is insufficient in the pulpit? Interest the people in the Book and it will be a means of restoring the reading of it in the home.

May the Church not take a few lessons from the ways of the world and at least adopt part of its system?

LACK OF SYSTEM.

Retaining members on the church roll, who are absentees or who, living in the vicinity of the church do not attend, is all wrong. Our assistant Home Mission Secretary says there are 8,000 absentees on the church rolls of this Convention. He could add 4,000 more who are non-attendants or lost, or, in other words, over twenty per cent. of our membership are really absent, and it is largely through a lack of system that this waste has occurred. It is high time that a sifting process began and that the Baptist Church should become a Gideon's Band; that God, who loves honesty and hates false returns, can prosper and lead to victory.

If as many idle men were allowed in any business organization as are in any one of our churches to-day, that business would fail.

The Church should be a working body, no idlers in it.

It was Wesley who said that every member of the Church should give or receive.

This is the age of system in business, and ought to be so in our churches. The Church should lead and not follow. The greatest institution in the world should have the newest and most effectual methods as well as the oldest and most valuable teaching.

VALUE OF TIME.

Working men, men of business, and good farmers to-day commence, proceed, and finish on time.

The clerk who fails to reach the office on the minute and the workman who punches his time late are a back number. Being on time becomes a habit, so that being late, like losing a train, disturbs one's nerves.

Pastors, if you would hold your people's attention in prayer meeting and in Sunday services, take the hint. Commence on time, and don't let the choir shut you out of the exposition or the sermon and do not pray for so many things in one prayer that the people cannot enter into the spirit of your prayer and say "amen" to it all. Remember the three-hour sermon of your grandfather can be compressed into thirty minutes, and then leave a few vacant spaces.

It is not unusual to-day to see an ordinary letter of 150 words compressed into a deferred cablegram of 30 to 40 words without a shade of its meaning being left out.

HOLDING OUR OWN.

Records show that the Baptists in these two provinces have increased threefold in the past forty years. What does this prove? These figures really show that we have not held our own families and that our losses have only been made up by our gains from outside.

The inference is that the world and its attractions have drawn many of our children and Sunday School scholars away. Business men of the world watch the leakages and use every effort to hold what they have. What can the Church do to hold its young people?

Perhaps the most important question for the young father and mother to consider and decide is how to train up their children. Doubly important is it for the Christian father and mother.

That they cannot successfully follow in the exact footsteps of their good old grandfathers and grandmothers is apparent to all. That the children will eventually see the world as it is to-day goes without question. How, and by what means, shall they see it? Through the medium of the street and the theatre, and the evil-minded, or through the influence and surroundings of the Church and its membership? Is it not better to lead and direct before it is necessary to correct and try to counteract?

If ways are not found to entertain and wisely instruct the young, they will search and find out ways, without proper guidance, which may lead to evil.

The family has neglected its duty in this respect, and the Church has followed the family.

VALUE OF MOTION PICTURES.

An unknown writer says:

"I sometimes think that the greatest educational force in the world to-day is the film camera. The picture speaks a universal language that tells more at a single glance than the swiftest stenographer could put on paper in hours. The untold millions of photographs, made literally from pole to pole, have done more, I believe, to educate the people of the present day and broaden their mental horizon than any other one modern device."

Our Sunday Schools should have been the first to introduce this film camera or "moving pictures."

Not only could the life of Jesus and His Apostles be illustrated, but most of the Bible could be taught in this entertaining way. Good pictures could be introduced and thereby our young people held in the church, and others could be brought in, instead of being allowed to wander away to questionable places.

Following this departure the social hour could be introduced and the church could be open every evening in the week for healthy and proper entertainment, as well as for praise and prayer. What an opportunity to fill the largest mission churches in our cities.

Is it so that the worship of God is laid aside from home and church, while relaxation from the strenuousness of our worldly callings is sought in pleasure and in games, in many ways, to say the least, of a character that entirely unfits men and women for communion with and prayer to God?

If it is so, then it is high time that Christian men and women halted and took stock of themselves, and that churches sounded a clarion call and came together in solemn assembly.

Is it possible that we have been deceiving ourselves into believing the churches are making great progress because of increased contributions to all purposes? If the contributors have taken time to pray, well and good, but have they done so in this busy world?

WILL CHURCH UNION SAVE THE PEOPLE?

Much has been said and written about union of churches and denominations. Would this lessen worldliness and increase spirituality? Union would bring about great economy in working and no doubt fewer church buildings would accommodate all who attend in many places.

Theoretically, the uniting of churches is an ideal plan, but would it result in harmony, greater activity in Christian work, and above all, a deeper spiritual life and consecration to service? As far as my experience goes, two Churches uniting resulted in the membership of one of the original Churches almost entirely disappearing in a few years.

Nevertheless, there is something wrong when in the villages and small towns there are five or ten churches, including two or more of the same denomination, when less than half the number would accommodate every man, woman and child in town. Here is a practical subject for the denominations to meet and consider.

I would like to see church union practised in a few such places before I am prepared to say that it is workable.

However, I am utterly opposed to our Baptist Mission Boards spending money to enter upon fields already fully occupied by other denominations.

A far more important subject to consider than church union is that of the spirituality of the Church and the fact that one-half of the people are seldom or never seen at its services.

CHURCH UNION.

Few Baptists would be opposed to organic church union if it were practicable, providing no sacrifice of principle was involved.

By principle is meant, first, the fitness of the applicant to become a member of a church, and second, the New Testament form of confession of faith in the death and resurrection of Christ, as represented in baptism.

It is generally supposed that the Baptists are opposed to union on account of what others miscall close communion. When the question is put to me, my reply is that "I believe the Lord's table is open to all who have been baptized; have you been baptized?"

There is no such thing as close communion. It is close baptism.

If Christ be not raised from the dead, then our faith is vain. If our confession in baptism before all the world of our belief in His death and resurrection is not the New Testament form of baptism, then there is no need of a Baptist Church. That it is, no scholar of repute will deny, and therefore there is no reason why other Churches should not practise it and so pave the way for church union.

Let us not forget that neither the Lord's Supper nor baptism are necessary to salvation, but should be observed in a proper and orderly manner by those who are saved.

UNITY OF EFFORT.

Canadians should take warning by present conditions in New York, Chicago, Boston, and other cities, and woe be unto us as Christians and as Canadian citizens if the Gospel is not given to all the foreigners coming into Canada.

In order to accomplish this there will need to be a supreme united and systematic effort of all denominations. Few have any idea of the filth and ignorance in which many of these people live, and how accessible they are to kindness on the one hand, and how easily led into all that is degrading and dishonest on the other.

New York is likened unto Sodom and Pompeii because of its graft, political degradation, and immorality.

The churches there failed to do their duty in the early days of immigration, and now the American people are reaping the result.

Here surely is a field for church unity, if not for the union of Churches.

If the Churches do not unite to teach morals and Christianise the people of Southern Europe and Asia, who are coming to Canada in great numbers, they will heathenise our cities.

The harvest is great, but the labourers are few.

It is our country's call in a time of great danger—who will respond to it?

China, India, Japan, the Far East and the Near East, are awakening and inquiring.

Who will mould these incomisg nations? Who will meet and lead the western movement of the vast numbers coming from the Near East? Who, except the English-speaking people, are prepared to instruct and lead in that formative period, whose foundations should be laid in the Bible and Christian education?

In order to meet approaching conditions, some of which we can see and more that we know of, we need leaders, men of broad and comprehensive views. We have old men and young growing men that we are proud of, but we need more, many more. We have young men who see visions of Canada's greatness, and who have refused the allurement of greater riches from greater cities, preferring to abide with their own people, whose God shall be their God.

At the conclusion of the President's address, the following committees were appointed: Scrutineers of elections—Rev. Albert Cooke of Fenelon Falls; Rev. F. E. Richards, B.A., Brantford; Rev. H. McDermid, B.A., Hamilton; Rev. C. R Duncan, M.A., Ottawa; Rev. F. A. Conners, Peterborough.

Nominating Committee—Rev. M. E. Sipple, Charleton Place; Rev. D. W. Terry, B.A., Coaticooke; Rev. L. H. Vail, B.A., Port Burwell; Rev. T. E. Meldrum, B.A., Ailsa Craig; Rev. J. J. Ross, Hamilton; Rev. F. J. Burrel, B.A., Vilal Vova; Mr. Carkner, Kenmore; Rev. E. J. McEwen, Paisley; Rev. C. W. Rose, B.A., Paisley; Rev. W. T. Graham, D.D., Brantford; Mr. A. McKee, Windsor; Rev. At the close of the meeting the Nominating committee reported as follows:

Committee on Arrangements —Mr. A. A. Ayer, Montreal; Rev. C. E. McLeod, Bowmanville; and Rev. J. R. Webb of Peterborough.

Committee on Pulpit Supply—Rev. J. R. Webb, Rev. F. A. Conera, Peterborough, Rev. J. R. Bonner and Dr. Scott, Peterborough.

Superannuation Report.

The report of the Superannuation Board created a spirited discussion, in which many suggestions were advanced as a means of swelling the contributions to the fund and thereby facilitating an increase in the amount of annuity which at the present time does not exceed one hundred and eighty dollars per year.

The report, which was presented by Mr. G. R. Roberts, showed that the receipts of the year, including balance on hand after the beginning of the year, were $7,132.72, and disbursements $4,496.20, leaving a balance on hand of $2,636.59. Sixteen ministers and thirteen widows of ministers, were paid $3,792.00, an increase of $222.00. It is hoped to have the amount of annuity increased next year, the largest amount now paid being $190. A large number of churches are contributing to the fund. An appeal was made for greater gifts to the investment fund, so that the Board's work be not crippled. The balance on hand at the end of year is $3,636.53. The greatest part of which will be paid at the December distribution to annuitants.

A Crying Shame.

In moving the adoption of the report, Mr. Roberts said that it was a crying shame that the maximum annuity should be fixed at the paltry sum of one hundred and eighty dollars a year. "Let us have no more dallying or playing with this important matter," continued Mr. Roberts. "Let us take hold of this important branch of the work and push it through to a satisfactory conclusion."

Rev. Mr. Craig seconded the motion re the adoption of the report. He endorsed Mr. Roberts' remarks concerning the advisability of increasing the annuity.

"Why can't every minister in the convention send one of his wedding fees to Mr. Roberts?" enquired Rev. Dr. Sullivan. The speaker volunteered the information that he recently received a wedding fee of twenty-five dollars, and he believed that many of his confreres received equally as much for weddings which they performed. Rev. J. B. Kennedy of Toronto, contended that the country minister was underpaid and that it would be a good thing if McMaster University inaugurated a department that would educate ministers to obtain salary enough to provide for any contingency that might arise when they entered the ministerial field. The report was adopted unanimously.

The vacancies on the Board were filled by the appointment of Messrs. J. G. Scott, G. W. Holmes and H. H. Lloyd, all of Toronto. The nominations for the Publication Board resulted as follows: Rev. O. C. S. Wallace, D.D., L.L.D., Westmount; Prof. W. S. McKay, M.A., of Toronto; Mr. F. L. Rateliff of Toronto.

Thursday Morning's Session.

Vice President Rev. John McNeill, B. A., Pastor of Walmer Road Baptist Church, Toronto, was in the chair. Rev. Prof. Gilmour led in prayer.

The morning exposition was the first of a series on "The Doctrine of Salvation," and was given by Rev. I. G. Matthews, M.A., Ph.D., Professor of Old Testament Interpretation in McMaster University. His theme was "The Old Testament Doctrine of Salvation." He stated that in the Old Testament the doctrine of salvation, as presented in the New Testament is not revealed in its fulness. The revelation was progressive and was preparatory to the New Testament doctrine. Some of the material usually interpreted, as applying to the individual salvation properly apply to the nation. Yet there is a vast mass of material that properly belongs to the theme of the morning's study.

The speaker dealt first with Salvation itself, the Hebrew words meaning salvation carry the idea of a broad place, an easy place, with rich pasturages, large bounds with large outlook and safety. They came from pastoral life and carry the idea of deliverance and the possession of life. The idea of salvation became more ethical during about a thousand years. Deliverance from disaster coming from national enemies, was the first thought of salvation in the mind of the Hebrews. Deliverance from disaster sure to come, because of the moral obliguity of the nation, is the next idea that was uppermost in their minds. Deliverance from a past calamity to a future glorious in its character was the third idea that the word salvation carries. The medium of deliverance was he second division of the fine address.

Repentance on the part of the nation was the thesis of the great prophets in a later age. Righteousness and salvation are inseparable. The new heart is the sine qua non of salvation in a still later period. The personal deliverer gradually came upon the purview of the Israelite. The idea of Kingship was always present, and the fulfillment of this idea was found only in Jesus, who brought in the Kingdom of God in its fulness. The suffering servant is also referred to at times, and while the popular interpretation of this expression applies it to Christ, it seems to apply to Jacob. The idea of vicarious suffering is wrapped up in the idea, however, and the only adequate expression of this idea is to be found in Jesus Christ, God Himself, is always in the Old Testament, the ultimate power in salvation. He is behind the army in the battle for national deliverance, in a prophetic period he dashes down his enemies, and He alone gives deliverance to His people—only in His mercy is there any salvation for His people; He forgives of His grace and of his mercy.

From the Material to Spiirtual.

In the Old Testament the idea of salvation moves from the material to the spiritual. We have there revealed the loving care and concern for the children of men. "God is love" is written there in the large.

The New Testament evangel rests on the Old Testament, which teaches this heart-cheering truth.

President Ayer spoke a few words on behalf of the Convention, appreciative of the address, and Rev. Dr. Brown prayed that the greatness of salvation might appeal to the minds and move the hearts of the delegates.

A special committee, respecting the claims of the Superannuation Board on the Publication Board reported through Mr. A. M. Denovan, K.C., of Toronto, that when a dividend can be declared by the Publication Board the Superannuation Board should be considered in a division of profits, but the latter Board is in no sense a creditor of the Publication Board.

Mr. Denovan moved the adoption of the report, and this was seconded by Dr. D. E. Thomson, K. C., Toronto.

Mr. G. R. Roberts of Toronto, pleaded for special consideration of the Superannuation Board in division of profits.

Dr. C. J. Holman, K.C., of Toronto and Rev. J. R. Webb took part in the discussion and afterwards the report was carried unanimously.

Publication Board's Report.

The report of the Publication Board was presented by F. L. Ratcliff, Esq., Toronto, Chairman of the Board. In the Book Room, business for the year totalled $34,772.06, being $1,836.04 in excess of last year. In the Canadian Baptist Department, in spite of increases of business there is a small loss on the year's work, this being due to the increased cost of paper, press work, etc. However, including proceeds from investments the business of the Standard Publishing Co., as a whole, for the year, shows a net profit of $95.69. The surplus now stands at $8362.80, and the business of the year is the largest in the history of the Board.

New Church House.

During the year a Church-House has been built at 223 Church Street, Toronto. This is a three-storey brick structure. In the basement are printing offices, etc.; the ground floor is occupied by the book-room and offices of the Editor and Manager; on the second floor are offices of the Home Mission Superintendent, Mission Treasurer, Foreign Mission Secretary of the Board Room; on the third floor offices of the Superintendent of Social Service, General Secretary of the B. Y. P. U., Assistant Superintendent of Home Missions, Field Secretary of Foreign Missions, and Convention Secretary. The Janitor's quarters are in the rear. The profits of the Board will be applied, for some years to come, towards the cost of the building. There is a general satisfaction in the denomination over the building of such a splendid edifice as the Baptist headquarters. Mr. Ratcliff added a few words in moving the adoption of the report, and stated that the new Church-House had cost $35,000, and that rentals will give about 10 per cent. on the amount invested. The adoption was seconded by Rev. Dr. Graham of Toronto.

To Unveil Monuments

Local Camp of the Woodmen of the World Will Go to Lindsay

The local Camp of the Woodmen of the World will journey to Lindsay on Monday, October 20, on the 8:20 a.m. train where they will unveil the monument lately erected to the late sovereign, Thomas Graham, of Sherwood Forest No. 50 of Peterborough. The Lindsay Camp also intend unveiling a monument to the late sovereign, Pogue, of Lindsay. The camps will unite and march to the cemetery where both unveilings will take place. All members are requested to be present.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL HAS SUFFERED FROM THE CLEAVAGE

That Was Recorded Six Years Ago When the Two Associations Separated---Old Country Football News

That Association football in England, and in other countries, particularly the game played by the amateurs, has suffered from the cleavage of six years ago is beyond all argument. That the prospects of a reconciliation and of a working basis between the Football Association and the Amateur Football Association were never so hopeful as now is, therefore, glad tidings. It is an open secret that the Corinthians, who have just returned from South America, have been most anxious to return to the fold for many moons, while those who are in the inner circle of officialism know that the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge were within an ace of ending all disputes, so far as they are concerned, early in this year. The serious-minded men of both camps, men who can enter negotiations with the spirit of compromise, the lubricant of diplomacy, have been hoping for and working for the restoration of amity for a long time. The first official news was issued when the Amateur Football Association, after a lengthy sitting, gave forth the following statement: "A report was received of the negotiations between the Corinthians and the Football Association, and a subcommittee was appointed to continue the negotiations." The most inspiring word in this announcement is "continue." The committee will meet at once, and we are looking for a solution of the few difficulties which have hindered progress for the last two years.

Alex. Wardrop, the late Middlesbrough and Portsmouth player, is now attached to the Nithsdale Wanderers.

M'Neil, the Motherwell centre-half, who has been playing well since the opening of the season, met with a rather serious accident last week, which will keep him out of the team for some time. He was completing a day's motorcycle run, when he was thrown from his machine, and is suffering from concussion. His progress so far has been slow.

Dumbarton have signed on John Davie, a full-back with considerable experience, who was lately with Hamilton Academicals.

Tottenham Hotspur have signed on as a goalkeeper John Eadon of Maryhill, a Glasgow junior club. The Spurs have now four goalkeepers available.

Lillycrop, of Bolton Wndrers, is expected to be this year's International centre forward for England.

Old Country Pars.

Lacey smiled.

Thomas has come to stay.

Football surprise, Rowley dropped.

Dawson's daring dives danger diverts.

Heywood United's forwards are in very poor form.

Closer than brothers kept Freeman and Rowley.

Goals a penny each at Blackburn, or six for sixpence.

Mitchell should clear quicker, low shots especially.

Hughes failed to bring Wolverhampton out on the right side.

Jack Lythgoe has not scored a goal for Walkden this season.

Chelsea and Notts Forest seem to have got stuck in the mire.

Campbell had a quiet day, thanks to good half and full back play.

Billy Hughes was too well watched to do any danger at Grimsby.

J. Nord of Walkden Central, is displaying very good form this season.

Leeds City supporters were on good terms with themselves last week-end.

The "glorious uncertainty" was demonstrated at Goodison last Saturday.

Last Saturday was the second time this season that Willie Reid failed to score.

Big Bert Baverstock, Bolton's brilliant back, bustled Burnley's Bert beautifully.

Well done, Derby County! It was a grand feat to beat City on their own ground.

S. S. Simon and Jude's forward line will need strengthening if matches are to be won.

RUGBY

One day I tried to play a game of Rugby—
I tried to be a roughneck for a day,
But when I got the ball, a guy would hug me
And lay me out upon the hard baked clay;
And then another stalwart youth would slug me,
And in my ribs a heavy boot would thud,
While countless other youth would up and lug me
Until my eyes and ears were full of mud,
And when I staggered up again, they'd plug me
And down I'd go once more into a heap,
And some would grab my feet and roughly tug me
While others on my chest would fiercely leap—
So when at last from out the soil they'd dug me
And pumped into my lungs some atmosphere—
I wished a photo man would come and mug me
The picture would have been a souvenir.

FIVE WORLD'S SERIES IN SEVEN YEARS FOR THOMAS

Ira Thomas some day will probably be an officer in that oft-predicted capital-labour war, and Ira will not be a captain in the army of labour, either. Ira, unless something nigh impossible intervene, will be a general in the camp of capital.

The Philadiphia catcher has just announced that he owns 34 houses and two stores. Yesterday he received a check for $3,243.92 as his share of the worlds series receipts. Ira will buy two moreh ouses with this money.

Some men are thrust into the pathway of fortune and Ira is one of these. In 1907, when the Detroit Tigers won their first pennant, Thomas was "in" when the melon was split. William Yawkey, part owner of the Detroit club, added $25,000 to the Tigers' pot, and including his slice out of that $15,000 and his strip of the big bacon, Ira hauled in a total of $1,945.96.

Detroit lost to the Cubs again in 1908, and Ira was back for his share of the losers end of the purse. He got $910, which was not to be scoffed at, but certainly little compared to what he has since pulled down.

The year 1909 did not find Ira connected with the Detroit Club and there was no side purse for the backstop that year, but in 1910, when the Athletics breezed in, there was Ira right on the job. He pulled down a check for $2,062.74. The next session he was still with the Athletics and walked away with $3,654.58. The Athletcis went hungry last fall while the Red Sox took in the side pot, but this season they cut into the heavy added purse, and Ira is barely $3,300 richer as a result.

Never regarded as a catcher of unusual ability, Ira has fallen into five world's series pots in the last seven years and pulled down a total of $11-817.20, besides a good salary. In not one of these years can it said that Ira was instrumental in landing one of the championships from which he so richly benefitted. When Ira played in Detroit he could not get along with Hughie Jennings. Ira and Hughie had ideas on the catching end of the game that differed so widely, so when Connie was making frantic efforts to land a catcher at the close of the 1908 season, the Tigers generously let him have Thomas. He did not help the Athletics materially in 1909, and Detroit again won the pennant, but the year following the move that took Thomas from Detroit bore fruit, and rich fruit it has been.

Ira's one great idea is to have stacks and stacks of money. Ira can tell you the exact date when Reading or Union Pacific or U. S. Steel or any of those stocks sold high, and he can tell you when they reached the low mark. He can tell you why they slip a fraction of a point either way. Ira is a good fellow and has many friends. He has cultivated the friendship of wise brokers and they pass some good information along to Ira. He saves his money; in fact, has been doing that for many years, and invests it in gilt-edged securities that "can go only one way"—up.

Thomas has probably more than doubled the money he pulled out of world's series. He has studied finance with more zeal than he ever id baseball, and the many tricks of the game are worked by Ira. The average man has no idea how many profitable little tricks can be worked with money, and not one of these angles need be in any way dishonest, either.

Money gets money, and the way to get it in the first place, Peter, is to become a catcher and do what Ira has done.

A Souvenir Of The World's Series

The Morning Times states this morning that the ball which Baker drove out a home run in the first game of the world's series this year is in the possession of Mr. Peter Gettas of the Boston Cafe. Our contemporary neglected to tell its readers how the ball happened to reach Peterborough. According to one source of information, Baker's drive landed on the deck of a Lake Ontario schooner and the Spalding bounded into the Province of Ontario, being picked up by a farmer living near Bewdley, Rice Lake. Thel atter was in town yesterday, and ignorant of the value of his find turned it over to Mr. Gettas who will place it among his other much prized world's series souvenirs which includes a splinter of bone from Merkle's head and, a horse shot from Snodgrass's "Charley horse."

EMBARGO ON WHEAT FROM THIS COUNTRY

Examiner Special:

WINNIPEG, MAN., Oct. 16.—Buffalo elevators are filled with grain, and eastern lines this week placed an embargo on most of the Canadian grain in bond through that port. In Minneapolis there was increasing talk that the Western Canadian pressure on Eastern Canada will bring about the abrogation of the countervailing duty and permit Canadian wheat to come into Minneapolis duty free. Sir Redmond Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, has given as his opinion that nothing will be done in Canada towards changing the existing tariff regulations until January. As to what Canada would do he would make not prediction.

A Great Author

No modern writer of fiction can claim as many readers as Harold Bell Wright, his books having sold into the millions. The most popular of the Wright novels, "The Shepherd of the Hills," has been made into a play by Mr. Wright, with the assistance of Elsbery W. Reynolds. The first presentation of "The Shepherd of the Hills" in this City will be given at the Grand Opera House, commencing Saturday, Oct. 18th, matinee and night.

The story has been so widely read that a resume of it is practically unnecessary. It is a story of the Ozark Mountains, and of a people that live wholesome, clean lives, who do big things and in a matter-of-fact manner. It is a play that makes its auditor a better man or woman for having seen it.

TEMPORARILY HANDICAPPED

Mr. Dougleigh—I met that French nobleman, Count de Brie, to-day.

Dotty Doughleigh—Really! Is he a brilliant conversationalist?

Mr. Dughleigh—Well, no; not at present. He has rheumatism in his shoulders.

CONDITIONS AT KINGSTON

Examiner Special:

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 16.—In the penitentiary enquiry, this morning, a paroled prisoner from Toronto testified on behalf of Warden O'Leary, denying that there was any discrimination shown in favour of Catholic prisoners. He was a Protestant, himself, and declared he was always treated as well as he deserved. There had been poor shipments of pork as food, but on the whole it was good fare. One witness, Guard Ingledow, said he had seen dying men in the penitentiary hospital unable to get a drink of water and the sanitary conditions in the infirmary were horrible.

Ontario Leads In Mail Boxes

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, ONT., Oct. 16. — There are now 57,570 rural mail boxes in Canada. In the development of rural mail routes, Ontario is a long way in the lead, having 44,572 boxes. Prince Edward Island is a poor second with 3,700. New Brunswick has 3,000 and Quebec 2,550.

USELESS FOR BLINKS

Blinks was a good hearted fellow, but a hopeless inebriate. When not in his cups he was a most exemplary citizen, but at intervals of a few weeks he was wont to indulge in a prolonged "spree", during which he would squander his money, reel about the streets, and conduct himself in a disgraceful manner generally.

Then he would "sober up," suffer tortures of remorse, promise better behaviour for the future, be a pattern of industry and sobriety for another period, and in some unguarded moment fall again from his high estate, and make a beast of himself in the old way.

On one occasion when he was undergoing the sobering process and was pouring his sorrows into the sympathehic ear of a friend, the latter interrupted him.

"Blinks," he said, "why don't you when you feel that intolerable craving coming on old fellow, go and jump off the pier?"

"It wouldn't do any good," tearfully answered Blinks. "I—I can swim!"

WHERE SHE GOT THE BUTTONS

The minister's wife was busily engaged one afternoon mending the family clothes when a neighbor called for a friendly chat. After a few moments of news and gossip the caller remarked, as she began to inspect a basket of miscellaneous buttons. "You seem to be unusually well supplied with buttons of all kinds. Why, there's one like my husband had on his last winter's suit." "Indeed, said the minister's wife with a slight smile. "Well, all these buttons were found in the contribution box, and I thought that I might as well make some use of them. What—must you go? Well, good-bye. Come again soon."

SHE WAS SCANDALIZED

A young girl who was paying a visit to an aunt, came to tea very late one afternoon. "Where in the world have you been?" asked her aunt. "In the hammock all the afternoon," replied the girl, "with my beloved Robert Browning." The aunt eyed her sternly. "If I hear of any more such scandalous procedings," she said. "I shal certainly write to your mother!"

ACCUSED OF MURDER OF HER HUSBAND

Special to The Examiner.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 16.—According to the outlining of the case by the prosecuting Attorney to-day, it was the uncontrollable jealousy of Mrs. Jennie Eaton and the influence of her daughter that caused her to slay her husband. Rear Admiral Joseph Eaton, for whose murder she is now on trial. Evidence will be brought to show that she consulted prominent chemists to get poison which would not leave traces. Great crowds are watching the proceedings.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING

The officers and members of Court Stanley A. O. F. held a rousing and entertaining meeting in the S. O. E. Hall, Hunter Street, Tuesday night. The officers met early in the evening and disposed of the usual business and initiated two candidates and received propositions for two more. The lodge room was then opened to friends, when an entertainment of music and songs was rendered. The idea is to encourage the members to turn out, put some vim into the meetings and introduce to their friends the benefits obtained by joining the Ancient Order of Foresters.

A goodly crowd turned out and, judging by the comments, the success and future results of the scheme are encouraging. A nice programme was run off. The Woods' orchestra gave a first-class account of themselves. The pieces rendered showed good taste and workmanship. Mrs. E. Wand followed with two excellent selections in her masterly way. Her manipulation of the selections showed care of choice and suited her voice admirably.

Bro. Huedry scored a triumph with his Scotch songs, given in his usual comical manner and, judging by the laughter and cheering he caught the funny element. Mr. Marshall scored again with his "Boiled Beef and Carrots. Bro. Percy Nash rendered a good and classy song in an able way. Bro. F. Pratt gave his usual contribution. One has only to hear hisstrong voice an dthe capable way he handles it to enjoy it.

Bro. Record gave a short talk on "Why I am a Forester," and explained in a forcible way the benefits derived by being a Forester.

The evening was a great success, and will only be one of many during the months to come. Bro. D. C. R. Heudry filled the chair and introduced the Juvenile Lodge that is to be in full swing in a few days. The boys were there in goodly numbers and are enthusiastic. Companions of the Forest were represented, showing that the A. O. F. takes care of the whole family. The evening closed with votes of thanks and the National Anthem.

MAN-TAILORED LADIES' GARMENTS

Mr. M. J. Hickey, Merchant Tailor, Adds New Branch in the Interests of Ladies

It will be news of special interest to the ladies of Peterborough to learn that coats, suits and skirts made by men to whom the making of ladies' outer garments has become second nature, can now be produced in faultless style by Mr. M. J. Hickey, of 434 George Street. Mr. Hickey has built up a large tailoring business for men, and has now been induced to add this new branch for the benefit of ladies.

To describe the unspeakable comfort and distinctive smart effect which can be given to ladies' outer garments when man-tailored, can only be done by a woman who has worn them. Coats and suits conformed to the present dress vogue, and designed and fitted by an expert cutter from New York, in touch with the proper styles in costumes can now be duplicated for Peterborough ladies. Wonderfully smart coats will be a feature. A leading characteristic of any suit is the splendid qualities and excellence of tailoring. In fact, nothing of time, trouble and skill will be spared to make this branch acceptable to the ladies. In fabrics, the most up-to-date patterns and materials in beautiful designs and shades are shown, and Mr. Hickey extends a cordial invitation to ladies to come and see. 3d-90.

Another Steamer Has Bad Fire

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 16. — The officers and crew of the West India mail steamer Van Vassan, which arrived here to-day from Amsterdam, had a thrilling fight for four days against a fire which raged in the coal bunkers and the cargo hold. For a time it was expected they would have to desert the ship, but finally the flames were got under control after the destruction of fifteen hundred tons of coal and cargo.

WEDDING BELLS

DAVIDSON—HALL.

This afternoon St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a quiet wedding when Isabella Charlotte (Chattie), eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hall, of 88 London street, became the bride of Mr. Archibald Davidson, of this City. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robt.. Pogue. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. J. B. Hall, of Toronto, and was unattended. Mr. John Allen, organist of St. Paul's, played the wedding marches.

The bride wore a brown travelling suit and brown velvet hat with ostrich plume, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley.

The happy couple left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for points west. Upon their return they will reside at 222 Rubidge street, where they will be at home to their friends after the New Year.

OBITUARY

MR. WM. PICKETT.

The death occurred yesterday (Wednesday) morning in Belleville, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dr. Coughlin, of Mr. William Pickett, formerly of this City. The deceased was 80 years of age, and leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, Mrs. Dr. Coughlin, of Belleville, his wife having predeceased him 45 years ago. The deceased has lived with his daughter for the past fifteeny ears.

The body will arrive in Peterborough via the G.T.R. train to-morrow (Friday) morning, at eight o'clock, and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral, and from thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

MRS. JAS. A. PATERSON.

The death took place in the Toronto General Hospital on Tuesday, October 14th, of a former resident of Peterborough in the person of Augusta Bemister, wife of Jas. A. Paterson, formerly of Peterborough, and daughter of the late Wm. Bemister. The deceased was well known in Peterborough, having lived here for a number of years, removing to Toronto six or seven years ago. The funeral took place this afternoon at Toronto.

Still At Work

Special to The Examiner.

CARDIFF, WALES, Oct. 16. — Although there are no hopes of saving more of the doomed miners in the universal mine, rescue parties are still at work. Fifty-three bodies have been recovered and three hundred and seventy-one are still in the mine.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

You will probably see further rallying tendencies in the stock market to-morrow, but we think there will be some "resting" in such case, and the daily operator who was courageous enough to buy on weakness after the declines as suggested may find it advisable to take profits on the major portion of his holdings awaiting a buying opportunity again on recessions. The monetary outlook has been such, with the currency agitation, Marconi affairs, tariff and anti-trust gossip, of a nature that has disinclined any support We think the underlying tendency is strong. Scattering liquidation from small holders will be allowed to runs its course, but the good securities are going into excellent keeping, and those who can buy and hold G.O., So. Pac., Rdg., P. P., and such issues will find themselves rewarded later when the clouds clear. It seems to us that most of the apprehension expelled by the sensational papers lies in the minds of the writers. In the late afternoon prices eased off a little from the best. The market was dull and there was almost complete lack of interest.

"Interested's" Question

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I have seen in the papers notices to the effect that an address is to be given in the Opera House by a delegate to the Baptist Convention who is advertised as an ex-Roman Catholic priest. Will the Baptist people kindly say whether or not this speaker ever was a Catholic priest.

Yours,
"Interested."

SULZER IS GUILTY;

Tribunal Convicts Him on Three of the Charges

VERDICT IS INCOMPLETE

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 17.—Governor William Sulzer was yesterday found guilty by the High Court of Impeachment on three articles preferred against him. They were 1, 2 and 4. He was declared innocent on the charges contained in article 3.

To-day he will be removed from office, but not disqualified from holding office in this state in the future unless there is a substantial change in the informal vote reported to have been taken by the court on these questions in secret session yesterday.

For the same reason it is expected that he will be found not guilty on the other four articles still remaining to be voted upon when the court adjourned last night.

Lieut.-Governor M. H. Glynn, who has been acting governor since the impeachment of Sulzer, will become chief executive of the state. He is an Albany newspaper owner. Robt. F. Wagner, a New York attorney, will become lieutenant-governor. He is the majority leader in the Senate.

The vote on articles 1 and 2 was 39 to 18, a bare two-thirds' majority. The former article charges that the governor falsified his statement of campaign contributions; the latter that he committed perjury in so doing.

The vote on article 3 which charges that the governor bribed witnesses to withhold testimony from the Frawley investigating committee, was unanimous in favor of the governor.

The vote on article 4 was 43 to 14, six members changing their votes on articles 1 and 2 from "not guilty" to "guilty," and two from "guilty" to "not guilty." This article charges that the governor suppressed evidence by means of threats to keep witnesses from testifying before the Frawley committee. Among these was Duncan W Peck, state superintendent of public works, who testified at the trial that the governor had asked him to commit perjury.

The secret informal vote to remove the governor was said to be 43 to 14, the same as on article 4, and the vote not to disqualify him was said to be unanimous.

Article 6, which charges that the governor committed larceny in speculating with his campaign contributions, was said not to have been sustained in the secret session by a vote [illegible] so, accusing the governor not guilty to seven against him.

Article 5, which charges that he prevented a particular witness, F. L. Colvell, from attending the sessions of the Frawley committee; article 7, that he threatened to use his office and influence to affect the vote or political action of certain assemblymen, and article 8, that he corruptly used his influence to affect the prices of securities on the stock exchange, were reported to have been also decided in favor of the governor in the secret session by a practically unanimous vote.

Of the judges of the Court of Appeals, presiding Judge Cullen voted for the acquittal of Mr. Sulzer on all the articles that came before the High Court yesterday. It was predicted that he would vote against his removal from office also, the only member of the Court of Appeals branch of the Impeachment Court to vote for the continuance of the high respondent in his present office. On articles one and two Judges Bartlett, Cullen, Chase and Werner voted for acquittal, and Judges Collin, Cuddeback, Hiscock, Hogan and Miller for a verdict of guilty.

It is predicted to-day that the decision of the High Court will be unanimous in favor of not depriving him of the opportunity to hold positions of trust, honor and profit under the state in the future.

NO COWARDICE SHOWN.

Captain Inch of Volturno Denies Story of Panic.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Francis Inch, the boyish-looking Briton, who commanded the burned steamer Volturno, came to port last night bringing with him 87 survivors, passengers and crew, of his ill-starred vessel. His story of the disaster, in which 136 lives were lost, had preceded him by wireless, but in a cabin of the Kroonland, which brought him here, Inch told his tale in simply phrased, and modestly spoken detail, that described more vividly than the wireless could picture, the panorama of the Volturno's loss and the rescue of more than 500 of those she had on board.

Cowardice, there was none, either among officers or crew. Inch says. There was no rush of seamen, which made it necessary for him to warn them back with his revolver. His only weapon, he left in a drawer in his cabin, and it burned with the ship. And no one on board drew a revolver. These statements he intends, should refute the stories told by steerage passengers, who arrived Wednesday on the Grosser Kurfuerst.

The Volturno's master, besides defending his own officers and men, said he had no criticism to make of the tactics of any of the boats that stood by.

RELATIONS BROKEN

Huerta Must Make Next Move in Mexican Crisis

DEPUTIES NOT RELEASED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — The Mexican situation last night, from the viewpoint of the administration here, is relations between the United States and the de facto government of Mexico virtually has been broken off. Before taking another step in the crisis it is admitted by the administration officials exists, there must be some move by Gen. Victoriano Huerta.

Only the complete elimination of Huerta will rest the friendly relations with the Mexican capital. "Mexican capital" is used because President Wilson no longer has friendly feeling for the de facto government. He has the deepest friendly feelings for the Mexican people.

There is not a single official in the national capital who believes that Huerta will liberate the deputies from imprisonment and restore them to their places, as members of Congress. Some contend that Huerta cannot do this, that his act of declaring himself dictator constitutionally removes the deputies from office. There are others, however, who believe that the act of Huerta in declaring himself dictator was unconstitutional, and that he could straighten matters by liberating the deputies and by a decree restore them to office.

A recognition of the revolutionists as a de facto power will come only after Huerta shows clearly that he does not intend eliminating himself. Under no circumstances will there be a recognition of the revolutionists as beligerents, because to do this the President of the United States would, under international law, jeopardise the claims of Americans against the Mexican Government, which amount to several million dollars.

Ex-Minister Has Fled.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Oct. 17.—Manuel Bonilla, who was Minister of Communications in the late President Madero's Cabinet, sailed from here yesterday on board the Hamburg-American liner Kronprinsessin Cecilie in disguise.

Fearing arrest he has fled from Mexico. He arrived here yesterday morning and went on board the liner which was due to sail at one o'clock for Cuba, Spain, England and Germany.

Arrangements were made yesterday for 200 refugees from Torreon to be taken on board the Texas City at Tampico. The American consul, William W. Canada, and Rear-Admiral F. F. Fletcher supervised the arrangements. The Texas City left here yesterday.

Britain is Watching.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The British Government has [illegible] attitude in regard to the Mexican situation. It considers the matter thus far as an entirely internal affair of Mexico and does not contemplate any action, although it is watching events closely.

The British Foreign Office has not received any information from the legation in Mexico City in respect to the reported conference of the members of the diplomatic corps there, and the fact that Germany is reported to have sent a warship to a Mexican port has not influenced British policy.

Greedy Seamen Arrested.

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—It has been customary for English seamen who have been signed on at British ports for round trips on Atlantic vessels to demand and secure a bonus for returning in them after they have grounded on this side of the water. In an effort to stop this practice the C.P.R. yesterday morning secured the arrest of Harry Stock, Arthur Boldridge and Albert Weatherby, the spokesmen of a number of seamen on the Mount Temple which recently grounded in the St Lawrence and was temporarily repaired in the Vickers drydock here, who demanded a bonus for working the ship, which they contended was not seaworthy.

Canadians Vice-Presidents.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 17.—Rev. S. G. Smith of St. Paul, Minn. yesterday was chosen president for 1914 of the American Prison Association, which closed its annual session here with last night's meeting. Col. A. G. Irvine, Kingston, Ont., and R. B. Chadwick, Edmonton, Alta. were elected vice-presidents.
